A year was required to make preparations for the trip. The herd, consisting of 2,000 cows, 200 bulls and 400 steers, the latter for food and draft purposes, had to be segregated from thousands wandering over a vast grazing area. Forty sleds, to be drawn by the steers, were laden with provisions and utensils. Andy Bahr, already past sixty, but known as the best reindeer man in Alaska, took with him nine young helpers, four Laplanders and five Eskimos. He made a reconnoitering trip by aeroplane which helped him map his course over the Baird and Warring mountains.

In spite of this precaution, it took a full year to travel the first 200 miles, to the juncture of the Kobuk and Hunt rivers, where a fresh supply of food had been sent ahead and cached by the Lomens.

Fawning season in the spring brought a large increase in the herd, and 1,200 deer were cut out and sent back to the home base. No travel is possible during summer months, for with snow gone, supplies cannot be transported. The trek started again in October, 1930. The perilous crossing of the ice-covered Kobuk and Noatak rivers was accomplished. Then the Brook range lifted formidable peaks of ice and snow, barring the way.

Learning the herd's position, and the dangers confronting it, the Lomens sent Sanis Robbins, pilot of the Alaska Airways, to help them out. Flying over the range enabled Bahr to chart a course through a pass in the mountains, and on across the Ambler river. The next few months were spent in negotiating this stretch.

The spring of 1931 found the band at the Colville river, their food supplies low, their strength diminished by the unceasing storms. Wolves and starvation had taken toll of the herd.

Then an unforeseen incident occurred. An epidemic broke out at Point Barrow, and Aviator Joe Crossin, flying from Fairbanks to Point Barrow, 600 miles distant, with serum for the sick, spotted the Lomen herd and radioed information of their whereabouts to Alfred Lomen, one of the brothers, then in Juneau. It was the first word received in months. Lomen radioed back to Crossin offering him $300 to bring a letter back from Andy. Crossin rediscovered the herd, landed, got the letter and sent it back to Lomen.

That letter, like all messages from the Laplander, was short and to the point. He needed certain food supplies by April. He got them—1,000 pounds of flour, sugar and coffee, for which Crossin was paid one dollar a pound for delivery.

Since that time, the herd has moved slowly forward, the difficulties largely a repetition of those encountered earlier. At one time as many as 400 reindeer strayed away. Dividing the herd into two parts, Bahr took one division and turned back to pick up the strays. This took four months, and in spite of his efforts, many were lost. The two divisions were reunited last summer near the Canning river, where provisions were brought in by Captain Peterson, whaling schooner commander and well-known arctic navigator.

In the present camp at Shingle Point, supplies are assured the herders by aeroplane from Aklavik.

Andy Bahr is the only one of the original band of drivers that started out from Naboktoolik in the fall of 1929 still with the herd. One by one, Eskimo and Laplander turned back, and replacements had to be made on the way. When he does return he will have the satisfaction of knowing that he has been the means of helping to start the Eskimos of northern Canada on a climb to independence and self-support. Since the reindeer were brought into Alaska 40 years ago that territory has made remarkable strides toward a new prosperity and social betterment. The reindeer is not dependent upon man for either food or shelter. In winter it lives on the moss which covers the barren land; in the spring and summer, on grasses, willow leaves, buds and mushrooms.

The meat and milk of the reindeer furnish food; the skin, clothing, harness and leather; the sinews, thread; the horns, knife handles and other utensils; the hair, mattresses—almost all the simple needs of the Eskimos, who have not become accustomed to white man's civilization.

When the herd is finally delivered to the Canadian Eskimos it will conclude a long trail of hazardous travel and courage worthy of a place in Canada's history.

TWO NEW FOODS FOR CATTLE USE

One Made of Molasses and Cottonseed Meal Looks Like Plug of Tobacco.

DROUGHT AREA AIDES.

By Howard W. Blakeslee
(Associated Press Science Editor).

BALTIMORE, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Two new cattle foods, one looking like a plug of tobacco, the other like Boston brown bread, both offering aid for stock feeding in drought, were announced to-day.

The plug is made of molasses and cottonseed meal; the Boston brown bread of molasses and corn meal. Both use a new scientific principle for mixing molasses, which has been for many years a cattle fattening food, but difficult to handle because of its stickiness.

The new process was announced by Guy Leonard, a chemical engineer. He is well-known among chemists as the man sent here from England in the Great War to assist in developing an acetone processes for use in making cordite.

Leonard takes all the stickiness out of the molasses by masking it with cottonseed or corn oil. Into a hot pot he pours molasses and the meal desired for cattle feed. Mechanical vanes keep the mixture stirring.

The heat dries the water out of the molasses so that it turns into a sugar powder. If molasses should be removed in this form it would turn back into molasses quickly by absorbing water from the air.

In the hot pot after the molasses becomes powdered sugar, the heat begins to boil off out of the cottonseed or the corn meal. For this vegetable oil the dry molasses has such affinity that a film of oil encloses every grain of dry molasses.

In this form the molasses stays permanently dry. The mixture can be pressed into cakes which look like tobacco plugs, or used in a state resembling crumbled Boston brown bread.

J. KING GORDON'S CASE SETTLED

United Church Council Urge Appointment as Christian Ethics Lecturer.

FOR TWO YEARS.

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 20 (CP)—The case of Rev. J. King Gordon seemed near completion to-day. Last night the General Council of the United Church of Canada voted unanimously to urge the board of governors of the United Theological College, Montreal, to appoint Professor Gordon as lecturer on the subject of Christian Ethics for two years.

The action came after the lengthy report of the Sessional Committee on Christian Education had been read and adopted without a dissenting vote. The report and luciadation of Professor Gordon's dismissal from the college was made by Rev. G. G. D. Kilpatrick of Hamilton.

Reviewing the action of the Montreal College Board in reducing the teaching staff from five to four professors, the committee's report stated it found the board acted in accordance with explicit instructions from the last General Council. The board acted in the best interests of the church, and suppression of speech or thought were not issues in the action taken, the report continued.

"Recognizing the importance of Christian Ethics in the training of students for the ministry, and recognizing that the question at issue has become for many identified with the rights of freedom of thought and speech for which principle the United Church has taken its stand and at all times must be prepared to defend, to the end the church may have witness that the United Church claims and exercises liberty in all matters of thought and conscience, this General Council earnestly begs the Board of Montreal Theological College to appoint Rev. J. King Gordon as lecturer in the subject of Christian Ethics in Montreal College for a period of two years."

Rt. Rev. Richard Roberts, the Moderator, commended Dr. Kilpatrick on the representation of the report.

BOYS HUGE OWL

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 20.—(CP)—With one shot from a .38 calibre pistol Eris Bjorkman brought down an owl measuring five feet in wingspread. He said it had attacked him and his wife while in front of their home last night.

To you who love your canary

You have a little feathered friend who will cheer your home with his song and his sprightly antics. Will you be thoughtful—will you feed him right?

Do you know that for nearly 40 years, we have been specializing on Bird Seed—searching the world and sending thousands of miles away to bring to cage birds in Canada the very best of seed. Then we clean it of every particle of dust or chaff—and blend it just right for a balanced diet to keep your bird in health and plumage and song.

If you love your bird, don't experiment on him. Don't give him any old seed "supposed to be" good for birds. Don't give him so-called diets. (You wouldn't give your own healthy children medicine and strong tonics every day!)

Duke Of Gloucester Welcomed To Ceylon

COLOMBO, Ceylon, Sept. 20.—(C.P. Cable).—Remarkable scenes of enthusiasm greeted the arrival of the Duke of Gloucester, third son of His Majesty, as he arrived today aboard the cruiser Sussex, en route to the Victoria State centenary celebrations in Australia.

The Duke will stay in Ceylon for four days, during which time he will formally present to Ceylon the ancient throne of the kings of Kandy as a gift from the King, in whose possession it has been for many years.

REBEKAH LODGE PLAYS HOSTESS

District Meeting of Belleville Area Are Entertained at Madoc.

PRESENTATIONS MADE.

MADOC, Sept. 21. (By Examiner Correspondent). — The Oakdale Rebekah Lodge of Modac was privileged to entertain the district meeting of the Belleville district Rebekah Lodge of Madoc was prirooms in the I.O.O.F hall, Madoc, on Friday afternoon last. The hall was beautifully decorated with flowers for the occasion.

The District Deputy President, Mrs. William Jordan, was accompanied by Mrs. Chesher, Mrs. Jack Carter and Mrs. Phillips of Belleville. Mrs. Jordan is the retiring District Deputy President and she installed Mrs. Jennie Morrison of Oakdale Lodge as her successor to the office of District Deputy President of District 39 for the ensuing year.

Among the representatives present were Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. McCarey, Mrs. Newton and Mrs. Richardson from Tweed Lodge; Mrs. Snowden and Mrs. Vandervoort from Stirling; and Mrs. Geen and Mrs. Coulter from Thomasburg.

After the general routine business was concluded supper was served to the visitors in the banquet hall.

Noble Grand Honored

The first evening meeting since the summer holidays was held by Oakdale Rebekahs Friday. Sister Mildred Robbin (nee Broadwprth) presided over the meeting. Several visitors were in attendance and after the general business of the lodge was concluded the Noble Grand who was recently married was presented by Sister Flossie Stewart on behalf of the lodge with a pretty kitchen set of useful kitchen cans and an address read by Sister Mary Wellman.

Ruby Nicholl, who is leaving to reside at Kirkland Lake, was presented with a pretty cheese and cracker dish by Sister Madge Burtt and the address read by the secretary.

Following the presentations the members and visitors were entertained to a dainty lunch in the banquet hall.

"YOU CAN PROVE TO YOURSELF HOW LONG OLD DUTCH WILL LAST BY PUTTING THE DATE ON THE NEXT PACKAGE YOU BUY."

"THAT'S AN IDEA, AND I'LL DO IT. I'VE NOTICED ALREADY HOW MANY MORE THINGS YOU CAN CLEAN WITH OLD DUTCH."

Old Dutch does it because it's made with pure "SEISMOTITE"

"Seismotite" (pronounced sis'-mo-tite) is a fine, scratchless cleaning and polishing material of volcanic origin. It cleans more things, cleans quicker and doesn't scratch. Seismotite particles cover more surface because they are flaky and flat-shaped like this That's why Old Dutch goes further and does more cleaning per penny of cost. Avoid cleansers containing destructive grit

Doesn't Scratch

Made in Canada

Old Dutch is ideal for cleaning any surface on which water may be used—floors, woodwork, painted walls, kitchen utensils, glassware, etc. It polishes as it cleans fine porcelain, enamel and tile. Buy a package of Old Dutch today.

WESTWOOD WOMEN TO BETTER LIBRARY

Meeting Had Special Features Connected With Old Land.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WESTWOOD, Sept. 20. — The September program of the Westwood Branch Women's Institute, which was held on Tuesday afternoon, in the Town Hall, had as its main feature, a tribute to the "Old Land."

Commencing with the roll call the members present answered with the name of a place in England and what noted for. Each member was presented with a copy of "Home and Country."

During the business discussion it was decided to hold a masked Hallowe'en card party, on the evening of October 31st, and committees of arrangement were appointed. It was also decided to re-establish the Institute library, culling out old or unused books, and securing others by donations from members or interested parties in the community.

Mrs. Fred Mortlock of Birdsall gave a splendid account of a recent trip to England.

Mrs. Mortlock left in May of this year for a three months' visit to the homeland, after an absence of twenty-two years, and the meeting with the members of her family, including an aged father and mother was an interesting point of her address. Her description of the voyage and places of note, which she visited in England, were very entertaining.

PETERBOROUGH

Memories and fond recollections,
At the moment sweep over my soul,
Peterborough: my home for many years,
It will always my love enroll.
Spanning the beautiful Otonabee,
Fringed by growth, bounded by rock,
Triumphal arches, the Maple trees,
And home of the famous Lift Lock;
City of beautiful churches,
And means of education thorough
No matter how far I may travel,
Ever clings to my heart—Peterborough.
Charlotte Street and George Street,
Hunter and Simcoe again I see,
Lovely Victoria and Central Parks,
The thought delights the heart of me;
The Smith street bridge and the Oval,
And the river's shimmering flow,
The fishermen busily casting,
The motor boat's rush to and fro;
And Rubidge Street I'll ne'er forget,
Though the years my brow may furrow,
Ever sweet the fond recollection,
Of my home in Peterborough.
And then I feel like an Irishman,
The thought of my soul "Wurrah, Wurrah,"
"Why did I act like a dumbell"
And leave good old Peterborough?

ASK NEW DATES FOR CONVENTION

Many of Havelock League Unable to Attend Rally on October 12.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, September 20. — The regular meeting of the United Church Efficiency League was held in the Sabbath School room Monday evening, with a good number of the membership present. Mrs. (Rev.) Kemp, vice-president of one of the groups, took charge of the meeting.

The United Church Young People's Groups for the County of Peterborough, are scheduled to meet here in convention on October 12th, but since a large number of the local young people cannot conveniently be present on that date, they are endeavoring to have the date changed.

The majority of the gathering were in favor of sending two cars to the recreational society's convention in Peterborough. On motion of Mrs. H. Hoard and Mrs. (Rev.) Kemp, the League here will serve supper to the delegates when they convene here.

The following program interspersed with selections from the orchestra, was then given: Violin solo, Miss Helen Buchanan; vocal solo, Miss Barbara Fennell, alto; three special numbers by the orchestra; reading by Miss M. Seeney; musical reading, Miss Dorothy Davidson; topic, Mrs. William Platt.

Rheumatism Made Him Give Up Job

Then Six Boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills Completely Relieved Him.

Ontario Man Recommends Dodd's to All Kidney Sufferers.

Denfield, Ont. Sept. 20.—(Special) —"I feel that I should recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all those who are suffering as I did," writes Mr. W. R. McBlain, a resident of this place. "When I was seventeen years old I went sailing in the old style sailing vessels. I followed that occupation for nine years. Being wet a great deal of the time I became afflicted with rheumatism in my back and knees. I suffered for two years and then decided to give up the job. An old doctor that I knew told me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I felt better after taking two boxes. By the time I had taken six boxes I was completely relieved of the rheumatism. Whenever I feel any symptoms of a return of the trouble I take a few Dodd's Pills. I am now fifty-eight years old and can bend over and touch my toes, keeping my knees straight. Anyone suffering with Kidney trouble can make no mistake if they take Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Madoc

MRS. J. MURRAY LOSES HER CASE

Judge Dismisses Divorce Complaint Against Husband, Naming Mrs. Murdock Skaith.

RULE FRIDAY ON CHILD.

TORONTO, Sept. 20.—(C.P.) — Mr. Justice Nicol Jeffrey to-day dismissed a divorce complaint of Mrs. James S. Murray against her husband, Toronto printing company executive, and reserved judgment in a cross complaint by the husband until to-morrow.

Mr. Justice Jeffrey sai dhe found no grounds for belief Murray and Mrs. Elena Murdock Skaith, radio entertainer, had been guilty of misconduct, but said they had been "indiscreet and foolish" in their friendship.

Mrs. Skaith, daughter of Senator James Murdock of Ottawa, was named co-respondent in the action brought by Mrs. Murray.

Mr. Justice Jeffrey was expected to rule to-morrow on the question of custody of the Murrays' four-year-old daughter, no win charge of Murray.

RUMOR PEGRAM SEEN IN TIMMINS

Two Citizens Report Similarity of Rug Salesman to Kidnap Suspect.

DETECTIVES ON HAND.

TIMMINS, Ont., Sept. 20.—(CP)—While Chief of Detectives Wm. Frahm, Detroit, and Inspector Gardner, of the Provincial Police Toronto, left here last night for an unknown destination and apparently unsuccessful so far in their search for two of the Labatt kidnappers, David Misner and Leonard Pegram, two reputable Timmins citizens claimed today to have seen the latter within the last two days.

One, an insurance and real estate broker, received a visit Tuesday from a stranger, said to have been a sailor with Persian rugs he wished to turn into cash. A shifty eyed individual, he left the office in a huff when turned away but not before making a searching survey of the office. The other, stated he saw the same man on the street and thought at the time that he resembled Pegram whose picture was printed as one of the Labatt kidnappers.

Frahm and Gardner and another man, believed to be a third police officer, though unidentified were registered at a local hotel under assumed names since last Saturday. When their presence became known, they refused, to be interviewed by press representatives and even denied they were police officials. They were rumored to be checking up on lumber camps in this section where their quarry was believed to be in hiding.

Elders Oppose Strike By Montreal Pupils

MONTREAL, Sept. 20 (CP) — Striking school children, mainly Jewish, numbering more than one thousand pupils from Baron Byng and Commercial High Schools here who walked out of their classrooms two days ago in protest against higher fees, will find little support from their responsible elders, according to a statement made today by Nathan Gordon, K.C., chairman of the Anti-Defamation Committee of the Canadian Jewish Congress.

"Our committee held a meeting," said Mr. Gordon, "and we are unanimously of the opinion: first, that we do not approve of the strike; secondly, that we think it is a very ill-advised proceedings besides being a preposterous thing for young children to do; and thirdly, we call upon the parents of the children involved to send them back to school at once. We feel that the school board has given the matter of school fees sincere and mature consideration, and that it is attempting to cope with a difficult financial situation in the best manner possible."

PRELIMINARY HEARING OPENS MURDER CASE

Manvers Girl Declares Two Men Sought Her Hand in Marriage.

HEARING CONTINUING.

Body of Rogouski Found in Trout Creek on the Fallis Farm.

(By Staff Reporter)

BETHANY, Sept. 20.—Preliminary trial of Dmytro Bolejczuk on a charge of having murdered Peter Rogouski in Manvers township on or about July 29 was opened here this morning before Magistrate W. A. M. Campbell of Port Hope.

The body of Rogouski was found under some logs in a trout stream on the farm of John Fallis in the fifth concession of the township on August 22, having been missing since early Sunday morning July 29. Rivalry for the affection of Olive Romanic, sixteen, daughter of another foreigner from Central Europe who had settled in the district eleven years ago, was indicated in the girl's evidence this morning. She testified that the prisoner was the father of her child born last March, but that she had expected the slain Rogouski to marry her some time next month.

Crown Attorney F. D. Boggs of Cobourg conducted the examination of witnesses for the prosecution, and D. A. Richardson of Cobourg was present as counsel for Bolejczuk.

Father's Evidence

Mike Romanic, lot 15, concession 5, Manvers township, testified that the prisoner had worked for him ten months as a hired man about two years ago. He then went to Toronto and came back to Bill Sarhanuk's farm.

Romanic said his daughter Olive, unmarried, had became a mother four months ago.

Crown Attorney Boggs—Who is the father of the child.

Mr. Richardson — This man doesn't know who the father is.

Romanic said he had seen Bolejczuk twice this year.

Col Boggs—Did you see him on July 28.

"I don't know dates. I can't read."

Witness saw the prisoner at the neighbouring farm of John Sarhanuk. It was on a Sunday. Rogouski lived with him for a time while working as a carpenter. He went away on a Sunday.

"I don't know what date it was or what month. He was going to his brother."

Mr. Richardson objected to the Crown's question as to whether Romanic saw the prisoner on that day.

"When did you last see Peter Rogouski?"

"At six in the morning on the Sunday he left my place. I did not see him again until his body was found in the water. I knew his brown boots."

"Did you see the prisoner the day Rogowski went away?"

"I don't remember."

"Were you at John Sarhanuk's that day."

"I don't know about the day."

"When did you last see the prisoner before Rogouski went away?"

"I can't tell. I saw him around quite often."

Mr. Richardson—When was the baby born?

"Maybe in March. I'm not sure. It was this year."

Romanic said his daughter did not go out much at night. Sometimes boys came to the house. They were neighbors' boys."

To Col. Boggs witness said he didn't know whether the dead man had been paying attention to his daughter Olive.

The Girl in the Case

Olive Romanic, sixteen, said she knew the prisoner and Rogouski for a number of years. She swore that Bolejczuk, the accused was the father of her baby boy born on March 30. Three months prior to that her father had sent the prisoner away from the house.

"That last time I saw Peter Rogowski was on Sunday morning about seven o'clock. He was going to visit his sister-in-law some miles away. He had been paying attention to me from early in the year. We had talked of getting married in October. He was at our place the night before.

I saw the prisoner that Saturday night. He was standing at the corner of our house about 8 or 9 o'clock. I was coming from the milk house. My sister saw a man at the window and mother went out and called to him to come in or go away

During the week Peter was missing Dmytro came to our place on the Saturday. He didn't say anything about Peter. He was talking about things at Pontypool. He brought me a dress. I wouldn't take it. He offered it again. I said I didn't want it He said it was a present for me. Dmytro said about that time that if I wouldn't marry him he would save money and go to the old country."

Witness said that Dmytro lived at Sarhanuk's, across the road, and close by. She denied that any boys came to her father's home to see her.

Col. Boggs—What did you do with the dress?

"I threw it in the stove."

Miss Rogouski said she had continued on speaking terms with the prisoner.

A Younger Sister

Paraska (Patsy) Rogouski, 13, said she saw the accused creeping outside to the window on the Saturday night, July 28.

"I did not know who it was. I screamed. Olive said it was "Mit" (Dmytro). My mother went out and told him to come in or go away."

The little girl told the court that Peter Rogouski went away from her home Sunday morning, and was going to come back that night.

"That day I saw the prisoner about noon on Sunday in the berry patch near our house. He said he was looking for Bill Sarhanuk. My sisters were with me."

"Patsy" said she saw the accused in the neighborhood nearly every day during the three weeks Rogouski was missing. He was at Sarhanuk's.

The trial was resumed this afternoon.

Mother Of Six Stages One-Woman War On Firm As Revenge For Doused Lights

CAMDEN, N.J., Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Too many callers kept Mrs. Elsie Barnable, young-looking mother of six, from sleeping as she laid on a cot over the polehole before her home last night in her one-woman war against the Public Service Gas and Electric Company.

It was Mrs. Barnabie's third night out. She began sitting over the hole at 2 p.m. Monday to keep the electric company men from putting a new pole in until they gave her $500 and firewood.

She yielded yesterday morning, after 37 hours, to her husband, whose legs dangling in the polehole likewise were enough to prevent the insertion of the pole.

Now they're taking turns.

The neighbors and visitors get as much fun out of the performance as a circus and crowd around all hours of the day. They bring food and blankets, and build fires. But at the same time, they keep the vigilants from sleeping.

They remember grievances, they said, against light companies, and were sympathetic.

The Barnables claim their light was turned off while one of their children was ill. The company denies this.

COLLEGE BOARD AWAITS ORDERS

Had No Notification of Lecture Course by Prof. King Gordon.

WOULD APPRECIATE FUNDS.

MONTREAL, Sept. 20.—(C.P.)—"We have received no official communication from the general council relative to the establishment of lectures on Christian ethics by Prof. King Gordon," declared A. O. Dawson, chairman of the Board of the United Theological College, to-day in reference to the recommendation of the General Council of the United Church in Canada in session at Kingston, Ont., that Prof. Gordon be appointed lecturer in the subject at the college here for two years.

"I presume when they do inform us of their decision in a day or two they will also make some suggestion as to where the funds are to come from," Mr. Dawson said. "We were asked by the General Council to reduce the number of professorships from five to four, and other colleges were asked to make similar economies, and we did what we thought best, because of shortness of funds. The decision of the General Council now is apparently a compromise between what they asked us to do and what fmmbers of the church wanted done, and I hope it will solve the difficulty."

Mr. Dawson thought that inasmuch as a lectureship would not call for an expenditure of more than half what a professor received, the difficulty of raising the necessary funds would be diminished accordingly, and the problem would be that much easier to solve. "But we will have to see what the General Council suggest when they send us the official notification," he said, "when we will call a meeting of the Board immediately, because the college will open early next month."

Obituary

JOHN JAMES HOUREN

The death took place at St. Joseph's Hospital this morning of John James, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Houren of 184 Lake street. The child was four months old. Funeral arrangements in the hands of Duffus' Funeral Home, are not yet complete.

MARGARET COUGHLIN

The death of Margaret Coughlin of Douro Township occurred in St. Josephs Hospital last night. She succumbed to a lingering illness.

Miss Coughlin was born in Douro and spent her life in the township. She was unmarried. Surviving are two brothers, John and Joseph, and two sisters, Annie at home, and Mrs. M. E. Leahy of Douro.

JAMES LOGAN.

The death occurred this morning of James Logan, the beloved husband of Mary Muir, at his residence, 305 Park Street North. He was 56 years of age. Lately in a low state of health and suffering from bronchial trouble, Mr. Logan had sufficiently recovered, it it learned, to leave his bed. He was believed to be making satisfactory progress to recovery, but suffering a relapse he passed away suddenly at nine o'clock this morning.

Since coming here from Scotland twelve years ago, Mr. Logan had been employed at the Quaker Oats plant. A son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Logan, he was a native of Cambuslang, Scotland, in which community he had belonged to the Knights Templar (Robert Burns Chapter), and the Royal Arch Masons Lodge.

Besides his widow, he is survived by two sons, William Logan and George Logan, and two daughters, Mrs. Albert Millard and Mrs. William Rickard, all of this city; a sister, Mrs. Lamb of Cambuslang, and a brother-in-law, Robert Muir of Peterborough.

The funeral is to be held on Saturday afternoon, with services at the family residence, conducted by the Rev. Dr. C. V. McLean, pastor of St. Andrew's United Church. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

DIED

LOGAN.—On Thursday, September 20, 1934, James Logan, the beloved husband of Mary Muir, at the family residence, 305 Park Street North, aged 56 years.

Funeral from the residence on Saturday, at 2.30 p.m., with the Rev. Dr. C. V. McLean, pastor of St. Andrew's United Church, officiating. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

The Weather

TORONTO, Sept. 20.— (C.P.) — Synopsis.—Pressure is high over the eastern portions of Canada and the United States, also over the western provinces and the north-west States, while a shallow trough of low extends from James' Bay southwestward across the lake region to Texas. It has been decidedly cool with light scattered showers in the western provinces and showers have also occurred over North-western Ontario and in Nova Scotia, but the weather over Eastern Canada has been generally fair and moderately warm.

Lower Lake Region and Georgian Bay—Moderate easterly to southerly winds; fair. Friday, moderate to fresh south-west winds; cloudy with scattered showers, followed by north-west winds and becoming somewhat cooler by Saturday.

Northern Ontario: South and south-west winds; cloudy with some showers. Friday, westerly winds; mostly cloudy and cooler; probably scattered showers.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley: Light to moderate south-east and south winds; fair. Friday, south-west winds; partly cloudy and moderately warm, followed by showers.

SMITH FAMILY NOT SATISFIED

Definite Identification of Body Causes Brother to Believe Not John Smith's.

RETURN CANOE.

In the absence of definite identification of the body washed ashore on the west coast of Newfoundland more than two weeks ago, Earl Smith, brother of John Smith, the long-missing trans-Atlantic bound canoeist, believes the body of the intrepid paddler is yet to be found. No authoritative word has reached the family here since Newfoundland police telegraphed a description the day the body was discovered.

The original despatch from the lonely outpost, Long Point, stated the body was clothed in blue overalls and a union rubber suit. Fishermen in the region were confident that it was the body of the drowned paddler, but Earl Smith here reported that, to his knowledge, the overalls and rubber suit were not among his brother's effects. The body had been exposed so long that physical identification was impossible.

Information regarding the disposition of the body has not reached Peterborough from the isolated spot. Undoubtedly the body has been interred, yet the authorities have held no communication with the Smith family. Earl Smith this morning expressed the opinion that, unless the remains have been definitely identified as those of someone other than his brother, the silence of authorities is decidedly unusual.

Arrangements for bringing back to Peterborough the ill-fated paddler's canoe, "Pride of Peterborough," were completed by the Canadian National Railways to-day. Earl Smith instructed local officials to proceed with the order.

The canoe is at present in the hands of Customs officials at Bonne Bay. It will be shipped to North Sidney and thence to Peterborough at a cost of about $20.

Invading Woman's Bedroom Costs $20.50

BRANTFORD, Ont., Sept. 20. — (CP)—"I have very grave doubts of the truth of the allegation made by the accused that he was invited to the home by the complainant, Mrs. Eustinia Hanchurak and believe that his story regarding the demand for money and invitation was made up when he saw the frustration of his own disgraceful plan," said Magistrate S. A. Jones in the city police court today as he gave judgment on a charge of trespass laid by Mrs. Hanchurak, the latter swearing that she awoke to find John Sutka, a former boarder at the foot of her bed at 3 a.m., Sept. 11.

His worship added that "there was proof of trespass. Even had the woman given the man an invitation the accused still was guilty of trespass for the husband was the person who was occupier of the house, and he did not invite anyone."

The husband of the woman was in the hospital at the time of the trespass.

A fine of $10 and costs was imposed the costs amounting to $10.50.

FREE TRADERS LAY CAMPAIGN

Samuelites Decide to Fight Along Whole Front Next Election.

MINIMUM OF 400.

LONDON, Sept. 20 (C.P. Cable)—The executive of that section of the much-divided Liberal party which follows Sir Herbert Samuel, the free trade group, unanimously decided to-day to fight along the whole front in the next general elections.

The executive will guarantee local parties from the loss of election deposits, amounting to $750 in each instance, which results when a candidate fails to secure one-eighth of the total vote in his riding.

A minimum of 400 Samuelite candidates are expected to run. The executive decisively rejected any idea of pacts with other parties.

A general election is not expected until 1936, the end of the statutory term for the nationaal government elected in 1931.

The attitude of the Samuelite faction in is strong contrast to that of the emaciated Lloyd George section which has only two or three seats in the present house, and which tentatively decided a few days ago not to run candidates where it seemed likely they would merely split the vote in favor of government candidates.

The third main section of the Liberal party, the National Liberals under Sir John Simon, government supporters, presumably will continue to fight under government auspices.

GENEVA.—A military alliance between France and Russia in event of the eastern security pact failing through, as seems likely, was forecast by Geneva observers to-day.

You Can't Have Hands Like Hepburn If You Bite Your Nails, Says Gladys

KATHARINE HEPBURN

Not so long ago, a well-known young American sculptress modeled the hands of the exotic Katharine Hepburn for a famous art collection. La Hepburn's hands, you know, are very lovely, and fully deserve to be thus honored. They are very shapely and expressive. And Katie always keeps them perfectly groomed.

There are a good many other gals in this world, of course, who have shapely and expressive hands. But shapeliness and expressiveness aren't the only qualities necessary to make hands truly beautiful. For true loveliness, the hands must also be tipped with perfect nails. And that's the main reason why the hands of all habitual nail biters are considered so very ugly.

Nail biting is a repulsive habit at best, and can do more to ruin an otherwise perfect pair of hands than anything else. Yet it really isn't so difficult for a girl to break herself of the nail-biting habit. She must, however, be fully determined to stop the practice if she wants to succeed. That's the basic step. She's got to use her will-power, and she's got to be persevering, too. She can't forget her ultimate aim, can't lie down on the job for one second, if she wishes to succeed.

Then, too, the girl who bites her nails should manicure them frequently and well. She should polish them, dress them up a bit. For if she makes them look halfway decent she'll take more pride in them and will be reluctant to spoil their appearance by biting them.

There are a number of supplementary aids that a girl can employ to assist her in breaking herself of the nail-biting habit. A bit of tincture of aloes, for example, when applied to the fingertips, will make most any girl feel reluctant to chew at her nails. Another preparation that is effective can be made of 1½ ounces each of alcohol, chinoidin, gum mastic and gum myrrh. These substances should be mixed throughly and allowed to stand for about 48 hours. Then a big of the mixture should be applied to each fingertip and allowed to dry. And whenever removal is desired, a bit of alcohol will effectively do the trick.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Lips

Anxious: The only way that I know of in which you can actually have your lips made thinner is by plastic surgery. Such work should be done by an expert only.

Colors

Anita: I think that you will find shades of tan, brown, blue, gray, clear yellows, dark green, dark red and black becoming. You should use a soft peach shade of powder, soft orange rouge and light lipstick.

Cod Liver Oil

Laura: The cod liver oil should be taken after meals for best results. If you do not like the taste of the plain oil, take it in a bit of orange or lemon juice.

Face Powder

Ida R.: I think that a soft ochre shade of powder would blend harmoniously with your coloring. An astringent should be used after the skin has been cleansed, to close the pores.

Henna

Enquirer: The pure Egyptian henna, made of the leaves of the henna shrub, is not harmful to the hair. The chemical henna, however, is not advisable, as it contains chemical salts.

EDITOR'S NOTE: To obtain Miss Glad's pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture," write, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling.

MISSIONARY RALLY IS WELL ATTENDED

Representatives From District at First Meeting in Springville.

Successful, from every viewpoint, was the first sectional rally of the Women's Missionary Society, Peterborough Presbyterial, held in Springville United Church on Tuesday afternoon, when Mrs. R. C. Hanbidge, 3rd vice-president of the Presbyterial, presided over the various groups under her supervision.

A gracious welcome was tendered the visiting ladies by Mrs. A. Hunter, president of the Rally Church.

On the platform with the presiding officer, were Mrs. A. I. Brown, president of the Presbyterial, and Miss Evelyn Mitchell, W.M.S. travelling secretary of the Dominion Board, Toronto.

Mrs. R. S. Staples, Cavan, was appointed secretary for the day.

The delegates from the district all brought fine reports with interesting notes on the monthly meeting programs.

A beautiful duet was sung by Mrs. Grandy and Miss Southam, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. McBain.

The guest speaker, Miss Mitchell, who was introduced by Mrs. Brown, gave an account of her itinerary throughout Eastern Canada, Newfoundland and the Canadian West, with many intimate illustrations of her contacts with the people. Many instances were cited of the fine work being done by W.M.S. women, new organization of Auxiliaries, Circles, Bands and Baby Bands being on the increase everywhere.

Today's Recipes

Veal Rolls With Mushroom Sauce.—Veal steak, one-fourth cup mushrooms, two tablespoons butter, one-half cup bread crumbs, one teaspoon chopped parsley, one-fourth teaspoon poultry seasoning, one tablespoon grated onion. Saute mushrooms in butter, stir in bread crumbs and seasonings. Season well. Wipe off meat, cut in strips two inches long and about four wide. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Place a spoon of dressing on each piece of meat. Wrap the veal around and fasten in place with string or with toothpicks. Sear in a small amount of fat. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, until tender, about one hour. Baste frequently with melted butter and boiling water combined in equal proportions. Serve plain or with creamed mushroom sauce made by sauteing in butter one-half pound mushrooms. Sprinkle lightly with two tablespoons flour and add one-half cup milk and one-half cup cream. Season well and cook slowly, stirring constantly until sauce is smooth and thickened.

Peanut Butter Cake.—One-third cup peanut butter, one cup sugar, two eggs, one cup milk, two cups pastry flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon vanilla. Cream peanut butter and sugar together; add well-beaten egg yolks, alternately add milk and sifted dry ingredients, add vanilla. Fold in stiffly-beaten egg whites. Bakes in a loaf pan in a moderate oven for 50 minutes. Ice with spice frosting.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Celery for Soup

Dried celery leaves are very helpful at all times for soups, sauces, dressings and salads and every supply shelf should have two or three bottles on hand at all times.

Save the Bristles

Soak the new tooth brush in cold water for 24 hours before using it. You will find this will prevent the bristles from coming out quickly.

Repot

If the leaves of the rubber plant turn yellow, loosen the dirt around the edge of the pot and remove the plant to a different pot. The root may be potbound or the soil may be wormy, but in either case it is wise to repot the plant.

Makes All Sweet

Water containing baking soda, left standing in a baby's bottle, will make it sweet and clean if the original washing has not accomplished this.

Warsaw

In holding a grandmothers day Warsaw Women's Institute fell in line with many other branches. By many it is being realized that it is really a great calamity that so many Canadians know so little of their ancestors.

Canada's early settlers were a splendid type of men and women, who came to the country on their own initiative. Some came and settled on grants of land given by the British Government along with medals won in various engagements. These were often the younger sons. Many of them found the work very difficult, but they made good. Then there was, about one hundred and fifty years ago, a large influx of United Empire Loyalists. Many of these were descended from the early Puritans, who came to the States 1620-1690.

In later years many have come to try to do a little better in the new land and some few have been brought out by various companies. In all these cases and in many others Canadians have great reason to be proud of their ancestry, not in a vain-glorious way, but in an honorable one. Their names and their deeds should be remembered. Remembered, they should incite their descendants to live up to the ideals of their forefathers.

The Bible devotes whole chapters to genealogies. The ancient bards sang of people and their doings and so, history is recorded, much is lost since the word of mouth stories have been more or less dropped. Many of the Armenian boys, young as they were when brought to Canada, had already learned of their families and of their country, and it fired them to remember their homes and with a spirit to return. Little as we can do is to remember our forbears, not to boast—even if we could—but to honor and live up to the ideals; not necessarily the methods, they change, but the fundamental ideals based on the firm trust in and desired obedience to the Great Creator and Father of all.

In matters of business and sometimes of property it is often well to know about one's ancestors and their lineal descendants.

Not long since an Institute woman, unmarried, received a letter from some department in Toronto, asking for her maternal grandmother's maiden name and a few other questions. A heavy fine was to be imposed if the questions were not answered fully within a certain time. Fortunately, by a little constructive thought, she was able to give the required information. Why it was demanded was a puzzle, unless it is some new regulation.

Also, in cases of illness of certain forms, it is well to know the conditions of one's antecedents. It often is a great aid both in prognosticating and in treatment. All told many consider it a wise thing not only to know names but much more of our ancestors, for a few generations anyway.

The Scots hold their family traditions, even to the distinguishing tartan.

Skimpy suds. You have to rub the dirt out. Hard rubbing shortens the life of your clothes.

CLOTHES COST DOLLARS . . . CHIPSO PENNIES SAVE CLOTHES

MANY women, attracted in the store by cheap soap flakes, have realized at home that the so-called "bargain" was "all in their eye." Suds, not size of package, are what count in the long run. You can't have rich, safe suds from anything but a fine, rich soap.

"Chipso goes farther"

"I know now that Chipso is best," says Mrs. Harvey Fell. "The suds last. I don't have to keep adding soap. And Chipso soaks the dirt out. After only 15 minutes' soaking in Chipso suds, my dirtiest clothes can be raced through like a light wash. I don't have to wear them thin with rubbing."

"Chipso saves colors"

"Don't mention cheap soap flakes to me," rages Mrs. A. B. King. "I ruined a dress I had made for my little girl. It faded and streaked. Just think—all of my time and effort and the cost of the material wasted! I never have any trouble with faded colors when I use Chipso."

Your nicest things are SAFE in Chipso.. Nothing in Chipso to fade colors or to injure even woolens and silks.

Babies GROW and GROW On this easily digested milk

So many mothers write us telling how their babies began to make normal gains in weight as soon as put on a Carnation Milk feeding formula. Many medical authorities are convinced that Carnation Milk is better for infant feeding than cows' milk in any other form.

Carnation Milk agrees with babies. It is much more easily digested than raw or pasteurized milk. It is as completely nourishing as the best bottle milk. It contains the same food elements—supplies the same minerals and vitamins that any other milk is depended upon to furnish. Nothing but water has been removed from Carnation Milk. Nothing has been added. And the purity and uniformity of this sterilized, safeguarded milk protect the baby from upsets.

Your doctor will give you a correct Carnation formula for your baby. Write for two free booklets—"100 Glorified Recipes" and "Contented Babies". Address Carnation Co., Limited, Toronto, Ontario.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

To be regarded as a popular hostess is every woman's ambition and we can all attain this if we really want to. Hospitality is really being kind and warming the hearts of those we know and invite to our home. One must draw out one's guests and make them appear at their best in the eyes of each other consequently one must study human nature, be self-effacing, kind and considerate. It is in far better taste to be simple and unostentatious when entertaining than to plan elaborate entertaining and discover that the worries entailed ruin your disposition and wear you out before your guests arrive, hence, one cannot appear at ease or enjoy the occasion as it shiuld be enjoyed. People do not "call" any more. The uninvited guest has almost become history. It is true friends do drop in" for an occasional chat or a cup of tea, but because we live in such a busy age the tendency is to wait until one is invited even for an evening cup of tea.

* * * * * *

Friend husband may bring a business friend home to dinner or tea upon one minute's notice, or a friend may be passing through town and drop in unexpectedly particularly during the holiday season. This is something that the charming hostess must be prepared for and the wise woman has an "emergency shelf" well supplied to help her over such an occasion. The following suggestions for this shelf may be helpful: Soups: Vegetable, chicken, oxtail. Meats: Tongues, chicken, corned beef. Fish: Salmon, sardines, tuna. Vegetables: Peas, corn, baked beans, asparagus. Relishes: India Relish, olives, pimentos. And: canned milk, raisins, rice, tapioca, cereals, mayonnaise, French dressing, crackers, cakes, nuts, marshmallows.

* * * * * *

Now that we have a well stocked emergency shelf just suppose someone does drop in unexpectedly. It would not be very difficult to prepare and carry through a successful meal and the following suggestion may be helpful:

MAKE THIS PRECIOUUS LITTLE DRESS FOR WEE DAUGHTER AND DOLLY

It's really astonishing how utterly simple it is to make these cunning frocks. Dolly's is patterned exactly like the one for wee daughter. See the miniature sketch, which gives you an idea of its simplicity to make it. It buttons right down the back like a pinafore.

In cotton dimity, a pale blue ground with pale pink and yellow sprigged roses, the dress is darling, with white lawn collar.

In candy striped percale, gingham checks, cotton broadcloth, etc., are equally charming suggestions.

Style No. 3237 is designed for sizes 2, 4 and 6 years.

Size 4 requires 1¾ yards of 35-inch material with ¼ yard of 35-inch contrasting for child's dress; and ¾ yard of 35-inch material for doll's dress.

HOW MANY CAN SOUTH WIN

Some players never make opening pre-emptive bids. They claim that often it prevents small slamcontracts from being bid and made. This is true in some instances, but in the long run hands obligating opening pre-emptive bids lose nothing by the process, and frequently gain thereby, through shutting off opponents as well as partner from further bidding. The following hand should, however, have been bid 2 spades, to discover what partner held.

South had a pre-emptive bid of 4 spades, which held. The opening lead was the queen of diamonds. How many can South win against the best subsequent defence?

South won the first trick with his ace of diamonds. He took his two top honor tricks in hearts. Dummy ruffed declarer's last heart. Declarer ruffed a club led from dummy.

The declarer saw that he could not fail to win 4 odd, as at worst he could lose only to the missing jack of trumps and another, even if all 5 missing spades were held by an opponent. Only a single diamond could be lost. Probably he would win 5 odd, losing a single trump and one diamond. It would be fun seeing how many he could win. If the jack fell there would be a small slam.

Although the odds were 3 to 2 against it, the lead of the ace and king of trumps captured the missing jack, insuring a small slam. The 10 picked up the last outstanding spade. Ambition grows with achievement. For the first time the declarer wondered if he might not make a grand slam, by squeezing West. Eight tricks had been won. East had just discarded the 10 of hearts. South had left 3 unled trumps. He began to watch discards with the greatest care. Who had the 3 diamonds above an 8? Even one of those twice guarded in East's hand must prevent a grand slam, unless East was as dumb as an oyster. On the 9 of spades West dropped the 9 of diamonds, doubtless leaving him the jack and 10. At the tenth trick West discarded the jack of clubs, suit. Dummy had left the lone king of clubs, with the king and 8 of diamonds. The declarer held one spade with the 7 and 4 of diamonds. Now for the eleventh trick. South led his last trump. West was squeezed. If he let go the ace of clubs, dummy would discard a diamond, thus winning the last 2 tricks with the king of clubs and king of diamonds. If West let go an honor in diamonds dummy would discard the king of clubs, and win the 2 diamond tricks. Nothing could prevent a grand slam.

Your Health

by DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Every physician has a story to tell of the emergency call from the mother of a new baby. It is her first child. The doctor is frantically summoned to to come at once. He finds that the cause of the excitement is a perfectly normal condition—perhaps the soft spots on the baby's skull.

Funny as these experiences may be in the telling by the hardened practitioner or to the mother of five, they are serious enough for the beginning parent. Only by watching in one's own child the developing changes of the body during the first two years of life can wisdom be acquired—the knowledge that the changes which occur in that period are more rapid than in any subsequent period of the body's development.

John Fiske contributed to the evolutionary theory the idea that the length of the period of infancy is one of the marks of the higher animals. The fish is thrust from its egg and immediately begins the life of an adult. It requires and receives no parental care. The kitten, higher in the scale, is born blind and helpless, but in a few days, a week or two at most, it begins to make excursions for itself, finds its own food and soon is independent. The human period of dependence, however, is nearly a seventh of the entire life period of the individual.

The human body at birth is by no means prepared to perform all of the functions of life. Its development for the first three years, indeed, is simply a continuance of the development inside the womb, carried on better outside the mother's body only for reasons of physical economy—room and weight.

The series of changes which occur should be learned by the young parents. They are, first, the functions of breathing and digestion. Air and food are furnished to the newborn baby by the mother's blood. Second, the development of the bones—at first these are soft, they must grow to keep pace with the rest of the body, and gradually become hard in order to maintain the pull of the muscles and the body's weight. Third, the eruption of teeth at the time when the food changes from liquid to solid; Fourth, the acquisition of sight and hearing and, quickly following, the development of speech, walking and the complicated processes of the mental life.

The proportions of the body also change. The proportions of the body at the age of five are fairly close to that of the adult. But not until about the age of 16 is the process entirely complete.

The details of these changes will be revived in the succeeding articles this week.

MILK BOARD BAN STIRS PROTESTS

Co-operative Union Claims Rebate System Cannot be Avoided by Some.

SEES MISUNDERSTANDING.

BRANTFORD, Ont., Sept. 20.—(CP).—The Co-operative Union of Canada to-day protested vigorously against the ruling of the Ontario Milk Control Board banning the practice of distributors paying rebates out of profits to consumers.

In a statement on behalf of the Union George Keene, general secretary, said one affiliate of the Union in Ontario was obliged by law to distribute its net profit surplus in equal proportion between producers and consumers according to the volume of business done by each.

The company, a co-operative dairy, he said, 'could give legal effect to the order of the Milk Control Board."

Mr. Keen's statement added. "The Milk Control Board is apparently under the impression it can render nugatory letters patent granted by the province and disregard the provisions of the Companies Act (Ontario)."

The statement says: "The Milk Control Board does not seem to understand that a co-operative society sells at current prices and that what is returned both to producers and consumers is the profit made in the operations of their own business as authorized by law in a manner which best appeals to them.

"The Milk Control Board does not propose to tell capitalist milk their own profits."

SOCIETY GIRL ENDS HER LIFE

Suicide After Being Bridesmaid Tuesday Puzzles London.

USED BROTHER'S GUN.

LONDON, Sept. 20 (C.P. Cable).—The death of a society girl who was a bridesmaid on Tuesday and yesterday committed suicide, was the object of a coroner's inquest in Berkshire to-day, which returned a verdict of suicide while of unsound mind.

She was Mary Peel, niece and adopted daughter of Col. Sidney Peel and Lady Delia Peel. Aged 22, she returned from Russia to her parents' home at Brimpton, near Newbury, on Sunday. Tuesday she was a bridesmaid at the wedding of Jane Ferguson of Peterborough to William Fellowes.

She returned to her home with her adopted mother on Tuesday night, apparently in the best of spirits, but her body was discovered by a maid yesterday morning, killed by a shot fired from her brother's sporting gun, which lay nearby.

Witnesses said they were at a complete loss to explain it. The deceased was never peculiar in mind or actions they said.

Her father, Rev. Maurice Peel, was killed in the war while acting as an army chaplain.

St. Andrew's W.M.S. Meets Church Parlor

The monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Church was held on Tuesday afternoon in the church parlors. In the absence of Mrs. B. L. Barns, the president, the business part of the meeting was presided over by Mrs. Scott.

Reports were given by the various secretaries and the questionaire on temperance was read. The devotional part of the meeting was taken by Miss F. Dixon, Mrs. Pilling reading the Scripture and Mrs. Crowe leading in prayer.

Miss Margaret Ferguson, who was a delegate at the Summer school at Whitby for ladies of missionary work, in August, gave a splendid paper on the meetings of the conference. She outlined in detail the various subjects taken up at the conference and the paper was of exceptional interest to all present. The meeting closed with the benediction.

One Twist Does the Trick

Mighty Pull by Dr. Locke Starts Arthritic Patient Along Towards Recovery.

BATHS, MASSAGES, ETC., TRIED

"Were I to obey the strongest impulse at the moment, it would be to climb the highest mountain (and I feel equal to it now for the first time in four months) and proclaim to humanity the world over my intense gratitude for our worthy Dr. Locke. To him my case was but a simple one, although to the many New York specialists it appeared a mystery. X-ray pictures, they told me, revealed rheumatics and arthritis. After they recommended baths, massages, pills, medicines and capsules without any relief, one doctor suggested Mt. Clemens for baths, and, if that failed, then Johns Hopkins Hospital would be the last resort.

"While at Mt. Clemens, I met a friend from Detroit who was just passing through. His wife was a former patient of Dr. M. W. Locke and she had such excellent results that he insisted on taking me in his car without further delay direct to Williamsburg, to make sure that I would get there. To say that I am extremely happy that he took me there, is putting it mildly.

"The doctor took one look at my leg and said to two neighbouring patients, 'Hold him tight,' and gave my leg such a pull and twist simultaneously that it sent me crawling on the floor, uttering an oath at the same time. The pain was intense during the breaking down of the adhesions and I could not sleep all night after that.

"I was fearful the next day of having to go through the same procedure once more, but, to my utter surprise, I received the simple, ordinary arch adjustment just the same as all in the 'circle' and now after ten days of these adjustments my leg is fine and as normal as the day I was born, with not an ache or a pain. It just seems inconceivable and I cannot praise nor bless Dr. Locke sufficiently. All I can humbly say is that I take my hat off to God's greatest gift to humanity.—Long live Dr. Locke!

A DEFINITE AID

Treat the trouble at its source—prevent trouble—by wearing M. W. LOCKE SHOES and Nature will work its wonder for you as it has for the thousands who already wear them. In fact, results have been so remarkable that Dr. Locke said that if all were to wear these shoes properly fitted, eventually few would need to visit his clinic. No wonder so many have come to appreciate that they preserve their health when they are correctly shod.

NO SUBSTITUTE FOR M. W. LOCKE SHOES

The help you get from M. W. LOCKE SHOES is due to the fact that they are exactly the same as those Dr. Locke uses in Williamsburg. Dr. Locke's range of lasts is used because he proved that no one last can fit all. The lasts vary from "No. 1", designed for extreme conditions, to "No. 4" which is often used to preserve normal foot condition.

An insole built right into the shoe is specifically designed for each last—to give adjustable support to the longitudinal arch which is further supported by sole leather counters, matching the insoles.

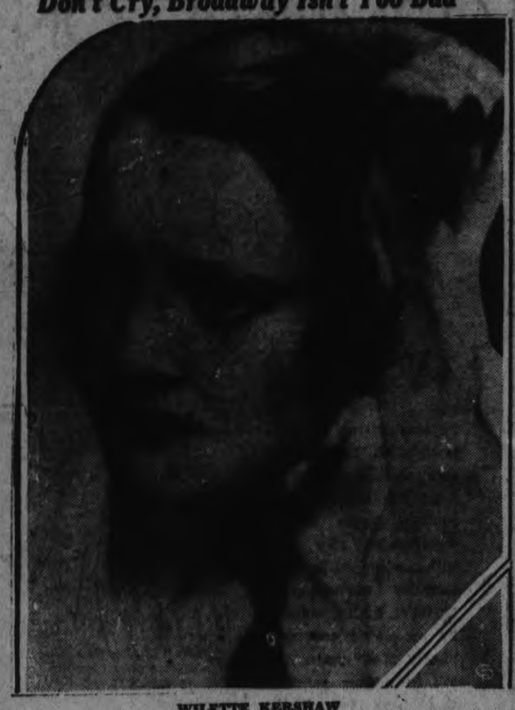
Don't Cry, Broadway Isn't Too Bad



WILETTE KERSHAW

This is Wilette Kershaw, who has won fame as an actress in Europe during the last ten years, and who is returning to Broadway to open in a new comedy in January under her own management. And she really isn't weeping at the changes in the White Way, where many shows have gone on the rocks in the last five years, but simply is registering emotion, which is an actress' privilege. Miss Kershaw is a daughter of the late Harry W. Kershaw, American newspaper editor.

Ermine Tails Distinguish Gown

We rave about skirt lengths and silhouettes, the placing of the waistline, and such like matters or moment to fashion. But when all is said and done, it's the little details—the collar treatment, the cut of the sleeves, and the placing of a bow, a ruffle or a flower, that distinguishes a costume, and makes it stand out above its fellows.

The rough crepe dress sketched in the center, above, for instance, is simply 'made'" by the cluster of ermine tails which finish the ripple collar. Notice the ripples are also used at the wrist.

At left is a simple silk tunic frock with an unusual belt and simple collar treatment.

And at right is an oatmeal crepe, which comes in black or brown, and is trimmed with a frill of Roman-striped silk in revere effect. The sleeves are full at the bottom, three-quarters length, and also finished with the striped silk.

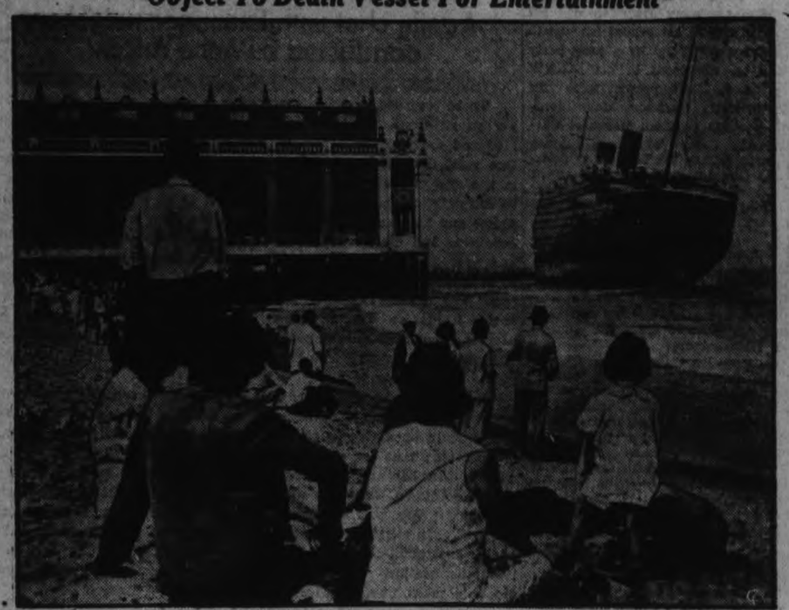
Under Arrest

GEORGE ALAGNA

After he was quoted as saying "the real story of the Morro Castle disaster hasn't been told," George Alagna, above, assistant radio operator of the vessel which burned with loss of many lives, was taken in custody on a body attachment after a long examination by the federal grand jury seeking evidence on which to base criminal charges.

These four DuPonts, all members of the gunpowder making company, are, left to right, Felix, Irenee, Lammot and Pierre S. They were asked to tell lots of things they didn't want to before the United States senate probing armament business. Attempts to block embargo on munition shipments to Bolivia and Paraguay was one of the things they were accused of. They admitted making huge profits in wartime gunpowder sales.

Object To Death Vessel For Entertainment



As thousands continue to crowd the beach at Asbury Park, N. J., to look at the hulk of the Morro Castle, wedged on a sand bar, bitter criticism of the plan of the city commission there to use the charred liner as an entertainment museum was started by women's organizations. Mrs. O. L. F. Mohn, president of the Asbury Park Women's club, declared, "This thing is too much of a tragedy to think of making an entertainment of it." A fee was being charged for a closer view of the boat from the pier, proceeds to be turned over to relatives of victims of the disaster.

Continue Cattle Slaughter In U.S. Drought Areas

Scenes such as this were familiar throughout Oklahoma as the United States government agents went from farm to farm destroying thousands of animals listed as "distress cattle." Crowds followed the killings eager to get some meat for winter. The farmer owning the cattle was permitted to sell only his hides. Often families have wept as cattle they could not feed throughout the winter were shot. The Roosevelt government has been paying the owner $4 to $30 for each animal.

Properly Wrecked In The Middle Of a City

Hundreds of spectators gazed in horror as this biplane swooped downward after its engine sputtered and died, skimmed Los Angeles, Calif., tallest buildings and then came to a crumpling halt in the site of the new Union Station there. Although the plane was reduced to a twisted, tangled mass of wreckage, the pilot, Robert Crawford, concert singer, stepped from the crushed cockpit unscratched. This is all that was left of his ship.

Bullets, barbed wire entaglements, steel helmets, strikers using inner tubers as slingshots for huge stones—these are part of the warfare during the U.S. textile strike riots at Saylesville, R.I., in which casualties mounted to 120. Top, a barbed wire defence erected by national guardsmen. Below, left, strikers and sympathizers hurl rocks at windows. Below, right, a guardsman, struck with a rock flung by an inner tube slingshot fastened to two trees, is receiving first aid.

IN TOMORROW'S paper the Woodbine entries for opening day will be released and we hear that they have provided a choice racing menu that will satisfy the appetite of the most critical racing fan. A steeplechase event is carded on the opening day's program and this always draws a large crowd of people who otherwise would not be at the track. If no more rain falls in the meantime the racing strip should be in perfect condition as the heavy rains of a week ago were just what it needed after the long dry spell.

Down at Rockingham they have been starting our old friend Miss Morocco in sprinting events lately which as we all know is not her proper distance but one of these fine days her name will be found among the entries in a mile and a sixteenth event and we are telling you that her chances will be better than a dime a dozen. She formerly belonged to the Smallman stable and their popular trainer George Alexandria says that he never housed a better distance performer and George should know as a goodly number have passed through his capable hands.

DOWN AT the same track is one called De-Valera who is a real sprinter and will not be long in earning a set of brackets and don't forget that this one will perform with the real good ones and mud or dry footing make no difference. At Havre de Gras we look for Modern Times to capture a distance in the near future. Our old friend Bokie B. is also down there and as this is his home grounds it will surprise us very much if he does not earn feed money.

Over at Lincoln Fields one called Vox Pop is catching the eyes of the early morning railbirds with his sensational workouts. Johnny Westrope last year's leading rider of America is still riding a few winners at Chicago but is not meeting with nearly the same success since he lost his apprentice allowance.

While it's a little early yet to talk of winter racing it might not be out of place to mention that Hialeah Park at Miami Florida have already sent out their condition books to the horsemen for their coming winter session. From this distance it looks as if they are in for a banner season, however we will have more to say on that latter on. We expect to see Big Blow produce a winning effort before Woodbine comes to a close as he shipped here in grand condition after a successful campaign in eastern Canada.

GEORGE WATSON and his little brother are each sporting a swell new suit of clothes these days being their gift from Claude Pascoe the well-known Toronto haberdasher for leading all jockeys at the recent Thorncliffe meeting. Watch this same pair during the coming meeting at Woodbine as they sure know the shortest route around any man's race track. Frankie Mann who was runner up to this pair last week is out to try and beat them and it should be a ding-dong battle.

EIGHT VETERANS IN THIRD ROUND OF LADIES' OPEN

Three Britons and Five Canadians Start Third Gruelling Round in Quarter Finals.

AMERICANS ELIMINATED.

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO, Sept. 20. (CP). — A field reduced to eight sterling players, all tested under the withering fire of the keenest competition, will be put to a further gruelling test to-day in the quarter finals of the Canadian ladies' open golf championship.

Five stalwart Canadians, all of whom have previously tasted the thrill of title victory, won their way into the select third round brackets yesterday, to accompany three equally brilliant British invaders along the championship trail.

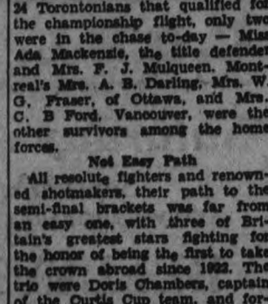
Out of the original brigade of 24 Torontonians that qualified for the championship flight, only two were in the chase to-day — Miss Ada Mackenzie, the title defender and Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen. Montreal's Mrs. A. B. Darling, Mrs. W. G. Fraser, of Ottawa, and Mrs. C. B Ford, Vancouver, were the other survivors among the home forces.

Not Easy Path

All resolute fighters and renowned shotmakers, their path to the semi-final brackets was far from an easy one, with three of Britain's greatest stars fighting for the honor of being the first to take the crown abroad since 1922. The trio were Doris Chambers, captain of the Curtis Cup team, and former British open champion; Miss Molly Gourlay, ranking player from Surrey and Miss Diana Plumpton, a rising star who shot her way into prominence as runner-up in the open last year.

With the exception of Miss Mackenzie and Miss Chambers, the quarter-finalists gained clean-cut decisions in yesterday's battles. Mrs. Ford, who eliminated Mrs. M. B. Marbaugh, of Willoughby, O., the one American challenger, scored the most lop-sided decision, six up and five to play, while Mrs. Mulqueen returned to her best form with a par-crushing 5 and 4 verdict over Mrs. R. Holmes, another Torontonian. Three of the matches ended with identical scores—four and three—with Mrs. Fraser accounting for Mrs. C. S. Eddie, of Toronto; Mrs. Darling eliminating Evelyn Mills, Ottawa, and Miss Plumpton blasting the hopes of Mrs. Roy H. Horne, of Edmonton, Alta.

Miss Chambers knocked out Mrs. Alec Gold in an all-British duel, with the former squeezing through by a 2-1 margin largely as the result of her ability to steer clear of trouble. Mrs. Gold on the other hand explored no less than half a dozen traps which subtracted valuable strokes on holes she might have won or halved.



Number 403

One of the most common causes of wrong posture in golf is standing too far away from the ball. It causes "reaching" with a resulting "hiplock" which prohibits all possibility of any body action in the swing. The sketch aptly illustrates this point.

When taking the starting position give first consideration to posture. Be sure that the hips are unlocked and free of tension.

It is far better to be too close to the ball and stand up straight than to stand too far away and bend over.

SCRIBBLED NEWS OF SAILING RACE TO AUSTRALIA AT $1.98 PER WORD

120,000 Words Daily Carried Over Wires to Newspapers Throughout World.

SEASONED WRITERS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (C.P.) — Everett Morris, one of the New York Herald Tribune's host at Newport, R.I., reports to his paper today:

"The most expensive correspondent among the droves of yachting experts, feature writers and straight men covering various phases of htis America's Cup series is Harry V. Spurr, the Bayside Yacht Club race committee man, who is doubling in lead pencils on board the communications ship Norsaga as special informant for the Australian Broadcasting Company.

"Every word he scribbles as he sits among the soft cushions and upholstery of Norsaga's fantail costs his temporary employers $1.98.

"Spurr's accurate reports on the progress of the race—if any—are received in the Sydney office of the A.B.C. and then read into a microphone that flings them into every corner of the big continent down under.

Drop in Bucket

"The Bayside yachtman's few hundred words are but a tiny drop in the stream that flows out of here every day. A check of the business done by the two telegraph companies and the rival communication corporations indicates that about 120,000 words are flashed over land wires and through the air daily to press associations, newspapers and magazines the world over."

Of the outstanding personalities among the seafaring typewriter-manglers, Mr. Morris said:

"Then there is Tom Horgan, (Associated Press staff writer) the man from Antigonish, N.S., the chanteyman and poet laureate of the Yachting Writers' Association of America. When Joe King, steward of the group, serves the daily tot of rum, Horgan is wont to burst into songs that would have done credit to the fo-c'sle of a Yankee tea clipper."

To the Horgan and Bill Taylor, another writer mentioned among the "outstanding personalities," Morris pays this tribute:

"They have wrung more salt water out of their socks than many of their confreres have ever sailed on."

LA GUARDIA WAVERING ON MUNICIPAL LOTTERY

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP)—An avalanche of afflictio protests, prospects of court tests, and coolness on the part of Mayor La Guardia—descended to-day on the plan for a municipal lottery.

A separate hearing for the scheme, part of a three-point program to raise relief funds, for the needy of New York City was set tentatively for next Thursday, and Mayor La Guardia said:

"They may convince me that we shouldn't undertake it."

The Mayor conceded that in the event of a court test, there was but a slim chance that the legislation would be upheld.

BRILLIANT PLAY GIVES TORONTO FIRST OF SERIES

Two-hit Pitching of Blake and Timely Blows Brings 3-0 Victory.

BLAKELY'S HITTING.

TORONTO, Sept. 20. (CP).—Toronto Maple Leafs were one up on Rochester Red Wings to-day in their final International League playoff and apparently headed for their first International League pennant since 1926.

Before 5,000 wildly cheering fans, The Leafs beat the Red Wings, 3-0 in the first of the best four-out-of-seven series that will determine the league's representative to meet the American Association pennant winners in the annual little world series.

A combination of timely hitting, two-hit pitching by Fred 'Sheriff' Blake and brilliant fielding gave the Leafs the victory. Blake, who once toiled in a Red Wing uniform, was almost invincible after a shaky start and faced only 15 men in the last five innings.

Pitching Duel

For four innings Lefty Michaels matched Blake's cunning. First man up in the Leaf's half of the fifth, Bill Regan, sent a fly to rightfield which Winsett dropped. Richardson followed with a bunt which Michaels played badly and both runners were safe. Both advanced on Johnny Heving's sacrifice and held their bases as Blake went out at first. Then Lincoln Blakeley, rookie centrefielder, tripled to deep centre and Regan and Richardson raced home with two runs and the ball game. Toronto's other run came in the seventh on two singles, a sacrifice and an infield out.

Michaels was almost as good as Blake, allowing only five hits, striking out one and didn't allow a walk. The "Sheriff" struck out three and passed one.

The teams resume the series under the lights here to-night. Norbert Kleinke probably will hurl for "Specs" Toporcer's team while Ike Boon, manager of the Leafs, will send Whitey Hilcher to the mound for two straight.

Ten Rugby Players On Strike at Oakwood

TORONTO, Sept. 20 (C.P.) — Protesting against a ruling which prevented six schoolmates from playing rugby because they did not obtain the required 60 per cent standing in the annual examinations, ten members of Oakwood Collegiate's senior rugby team were on strike to-day.

Charging that in some case students neglected their school work for rugby, Principal Walter Kennedy said, "We have been planning this for some time."

Asked whether the refusal of the ten to play rugby would hurt the team's chances in the Interscholastic race, Mr. Kennedy said winning the game was not the main thing.

BEARDED LADIES AT WORLD GAMES IS NEW CHARGE

Peculiar Competitors From Foreign Countries Complains South African Team Manager.

MASCULINE VOICES.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Sept. 20.—(C.P. Cable via Reuters)—B. C. Sims, manager of the South Africa British Empire games teams, made astonishing allegations here yesterday against European competitors in the women's world games at London. The world games took place immediately following the Empire games.

In his report to the South African and British Empire Games Association, Sims said: "I am very much against our taking part in the world events. The class of persons representing foreign countries in these games is, to say the least, most peculiar and one heard remarks on all side that they were not women.

"From my personal observations, I must say I am very much in agreement with these opinions as quite a number of foreign athletes shaved, had very deep voices and gave the impression of being masculine."

Canadians Laugh

BURLINGTON, Sept. 20.—(CP)—M. M. (Bobby) Robinson laughed heartily tonight when he was told the manager of the South African British Empire games team B. C. Sims, had charged some European countries entered "men" in the women's world track and field games in London last August.

When he had finished laughing, the manager of the Canadian team said Sims' charge was "ridiculous."

"The European women, who won practically every event at the games, certainly were huskier and more matured than our girls," Robinson said. "But they were older. I would think their ages would average between 25 and 30. Most of our girls were 17 or 18.

"We sent school girls to England for the Empire and world games and Europe sent matured women. Well, they say a good big man can beat a good little man. By the same token a good woman athlete can beat a school girl. That's why our team was beaten."

NEW ORLEANS MILITIA CLOSE GAMBLING DIVES

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Under partial martial law through orders issued by Governor O. K. Allen, ally of Senator Huey P. Long, even the alley dice games that formerly flourished nightly in alleys here are no more.

"Nickel he wins," and "bet he's wrong," are phases no longer heard. Every resort in St. Bernard and Jefferson parishes supposedly have closed their doors. And to make sure they do not open the militia is on duty with sharp orders to stop all gambling in the New Orleans area.

Belleville's 1-0 Victory in the Tenth Ties Series

Squeeze Play Ends Pitchers' Combat With Single Run

More Than a Thousand Fans Are Thrilled as Archie Deyell and Chief Williams Hold Batters In Check In Fourth Game of Central League Finals.

DEYELL HURLS FINEST GAME OF CAREER WHILE CHIEF DISPLAYS OLD-TIME FORM

With Two Out in Tenth and the Bases Filled, Kerr Bunts in the Only Run of Contest to Give Nationals Their Second Win of Series.

Squeezing in a run in the last half of the tenth in Belleville yesterday, the Nationals took a 1-0 victory over the Petes to tie the C.O.B.L. playoffs at two games apiece. Over a thousand roaring fans were thrilled with a great pitchers' duel between Archie Deyell and Chief Williams, with the two teams playing championship ball behind them. The final game is slated for Peterborough on Saturday.

The homesters reached Deyell for a single, a walk and two scratch hits in the overtime stanza to chalk up the only run of the contest. Archie hurled the finest game of his diamond career, fanning eleven, walking three and holding the Nats to seven hits in ten innings, three of them in the frame. He was practically unbeatable with a whistling fast ball and a sharp-breaking curve that cut down the opposition inning after inning in that thrilling battle. He had fine support throughout.

Maestro of Mound

Jack (Chief) Williams returned to his oldtime form for the day to again prove the old southpaw maestro of the mound in the Central League. The Indian was never better, his puzzling hooks and change of pace fooling the Petes completely from start to finish. While they threatened at times in the frist half of the game, the Chief became more baffling as the fracas progressed and had Knotty Lee's batters handcuffed the final four frames. He also received great backing by his teammates.

Foley was the only Peterborough hitter to get two safeties, one being a double. Only three other hits were garnered off Williams—who fanned eight—Whatley, Burton and Konopka getting them. Utronki led the Nats at bat with three in five, while Ford came through with two for four. Smith and Kerr got one apiece. Murray and Ash did some fine fielding for the losers, with Deyell grabbing two dandy grounders and Foley robbing Mills of a hit. Green, Ford and Williams turned in some neat defensive work for the home squad.

The Petes had a fine chance in the first canto. Konopka led off with a single but was out stealing. Batten rolled out and Foley doubled to left. Calladine was hit by a pitched ball but Murray fanned. Utronki singled for Belleville and got to third on two outs but died there. Burton walked in the second and got around to third on two outs but was stranded. Smith walked in the Nats' half, but Deyell fanned three. With two out for the Lee gang in the third, Foley was hit by a pitched ball and went to third on Smith's error, Calladine taking first and stealing, but the next batter lined out to Green. The Mills' crew went out in order.

Green Grabs Liner

With one out in the fourth, Ash was safe on Smith's miscue, took second on Whatley's hit, and both advanced a sack on an out, but Konopka's liner was grabbed by Green. The Nats failed to threaten. Foley's hit in the fifth came to naught, and Ford wasted one for his side. In the sixth, Burton singled and moved up on an out but stopped there, while Belleville was retired in order. Konopka walked in the seventh but was picked off first, and Smith's hit for the Quinte team did no good. The Petes went out in order in the eighth, ninth and tenth as Williams hurled perfect ball.

Utronki singled in the eighth, stole second and went to third on Foley's bad throw, an argument ensuing as Belleville felt he should be permitted to score, but the umpires sending him back to third. They did nothing in the ninth but in the tenth Ford singled after Smith had fanned. He moved up when Scarlett walked. Williams flied out, but Utronki came through with an infield hit to fill the bases. Kerr bunted down the third base line and Deyell could not get it in time to make the third out, Ford crossing the plate with the million dollar marker.

KEENE VICTORY EVENS SERIES

Put Punch in Play to Defeat Westclox at Home in Second Game.

SCORE WAS 8-6.

Keene Girls packed plenty of punch into the second game of the finals for the championship of the Ladies' City and District Softball Loop, last night on their home grounds when they won 8-6 in a nifty tussle to even the series against the Westclox, the latter having taken the first battle 13-11. A fair-sized crowd of noisy fans watched the two evenly-matched squads battle through nine frames of close ball, with the visitors being held scoreless in the last three frames, as Keene played a heads-up fielding game to protect their two-run lead secured in the fifth.

Westclox manager sent Mary Hall to the mound and she held the Keene batters to five singles and two runs in the first three innings. The opposition got two cheap counters in the fourth on a single and two errors, and staged a batting rally in the fifth when they scored four. M. Hall was struck on the head by a batted ball in this frame and retired in favor of Barbara Blade, who retired the side when the first batter up hit into a double-play. M. Hall permitted eleven hits, walked one and struck out one. B. Blade sent the Keenesters away in three frames without a hit and only one batter reached first. She fanned none and walked none. Marilyn McCarthy went tthe route for Keene fanning eight. She passed three and allowed ten hits. The winning pitcher put herself in a few tough spots but turned on the pressure at critical times to dish up some smart twirling. In the last frame Westclox had the tying runs on the sacks with one out, but the last two batters went out on an infield fly and a strikeout.

Laura Chartren pasted out three clean singles in four tries to lead the Westclox batters, while Mary Hall hit a single and double. Barbara Blade got the longest hit, poling out a triple. For Keene, Irene Short with a triple and single was on top, while Roberta Gainor, H. Nelson and G. McCarthy all hit safely twice.

NAPANEE VICTORY REMOVES DELORO

Smelters Lose Second Game of Round in Intermediate Playdowns.

NAPANEE, Sept. 20.—Lefty Vern Bishop, eastern Ontario's youthful pitching sensation, chalked up another impressive five hit win here yesterday as he turned Deloro back, 12-2 to give Gibbard Bees their third round play-off series and the intermediate O.B.A.A. championship for eastern Ontario. The combined offerings of Leal and Callery who relieved him in the fourth failed to halt the slugging Bees who had a field day with the stick while Bishop was striking out nine and allowed but four balls hit to the outfield. With the Athletics eliminating Copper Cliff Tuesday Napanee now has A and B intermediate teams waiting a play-off with a western Ontario survivor. Teams:

Deloro—Simmons 3b, O'Neill, 7b, Stewart, 2b; Callery, cf; Bandreau, c; Callery, rf, p; Leal, p, rf; Gray, ss; McCrodan, lf.

Gibbard Bees—Sweet, rf; Stewart ss; Grose, cf; Stinson, c; Card, 1b; Bishop, p; Lucas, 2b; Johnson, lf; Switzer, 3b.

DEFEAT PETES WITH BIG DRIVE IN LAST PERIOD

Homesters Lead in First Half But Wilt Under Terrific Speed of Opponents.

RUGGED GAME.

Possessing just a shade more speed and stamina than their opponents, Scarboro Grads broke loose in the final period of the intermediate O.A.L.A. semi-final game at the armouries last night to score five goals and defeat Peterborough Kiwanis 12 to 6.

The result more or less disposes of the Petes' chances of continuing in search of lacrosse honors for the season, since it will be next to impossible for them to overcome the six-goal handicap piled up by Scarboro in the return game Friday night at Agincourt. Goals count on the round.

Much in Hunt

However, until the Petes weakened under the speedy drives of the Scarboro athletes in the final gallop last night they were very much in the hunt and during earlier stages had a decided edge. It was just that extra fleetness afoot of the visitors that finally wore the locals down and permitted them to go on that last period scoring barrage.

The period scores about fairly indicates the play. At the end of the first it was 2-2, while the Petes led at the halfway mark, 5-4, and well deserved the advantage. In the third period the winners moved forward to set up a 7-6 score on which to make a start in their concluding drive for their well-earned win.

Teams Very Fast

It was the sweetest exhibition of the great Canadian pastime seen here this season. Both teams were lightning fast and they dished up a rugged but clean brand of sport that kept the large crowd in a continuous uproar. The winners' combination worked more effectively, although they failed to show the same class around the nets as the Petes.

C. Hurd, the big, powerful chap who carried number 2 on his sweater, was the big train of the visitors' squad. Time and time again he sallied up the floor with the ball tucked in his stick and the Petes found it next to impossible to stop his passage. He made several end-to-end rushes to score and was the outstanding player on the floor. Later when the Petes began to gang up on him, he gave some neat passes to allow his mates to bulge the twine. Other stars for the winners were Hawes, Prudham and Stibbard.

Closely Checked

Scarboro held so close to their checks that the losers found it difficult to get the combination working effectually. Once they did get inside they made few mistakes, and when they were going full steam had the Scarboro goalie worked into a frenzy of activity. King, Magee, Hatton, Jack and McConnell were standouts but the whole squad turned in effective efforts.

No feature of play quite compared with the great goal-tending turned in by Red Creighton in the Petes' nets and A. Hurd for the visitors. Both goalies repeatedly were swarmed upon by the opposing players and turned them back without a score although shots were rained upon them.

The teams:

Peterborough Kiwanis — Goal, Creighton; defence, Miller and Cadd; rover, Hatton; wings, King and Jacks; centre, Dundas; alternates, Magee, Routly, Puffer, McConnell, Lebarr, E. Creighton.

Scarboro Grads—Goal, A. Hurd; defence, T. Johnston, M. Marsh; rover, E. Prudham; wings, E. Prousser, S. Prousser; centre, W. Crooks; alternates, W. Hawes; Stibbard, Donnelly; A. Stevenson, G. Coles, C. Hurd.

Referees—G. H. Goudie, Toronto; Joe Murphy, Mimico.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By G. S. P.

And what a heart-breaker that senior ball game was! While it was a mighty hard blow to see the Petes drop that 1-0 ten-inning tilt—thereby tying the C.O.B.L. series up at two games each—it was even tougher to see Archie Deyell lose out after the game he hurled! Yes, sir, the big Bailieboro school teacher threw the finest game of his short career in organized baseball. He simply threw his heart out in a grand performance, but fate was against him. Deyell allowed but four singles in nine innings while fanning eleven—his fireball and swell bender having the Nats completely helpless till the tenth.

* * * * * * *

But in the tenth, after Smith had struck out, Ford hit to centre field. His repeated bluffing to steal second kept Archie worried and he eventually walked Scarlett. Archie didn't know that Ford has not stolen a single base all this year! Williams flew out but Utronki hit between short and third, Konopka reaching the ball in time to hold Ford on third. Then Kerr caught the whole Petes' team flatfooted with a dinky bunt down the third base line. Deyell had to field it, too late to get Ford at the plate, and his throw to first was a little too late also—and the game was over.

* * * * * * *

You can't take anything away from Jack (Chief) Williams. He hurled one of his greatest game, turning back the years to his prime as a great southpaw. We've watched him ever since he was in the C.O.B.L. and we never saw him any better—and this is the guy we thought would be unable to lift his arm to fling for a week or so! The veteran Indian was never cooler, nor was his sharp hook ever breaking better. He had the Petes guessing all the time and was fooling them regularly, throwing that hook when they dug in and whizzing a straight ball across when they were looking for the curve. He got better as the game went on, and we frankly don't know just what to say about what he'll likely do Saturday—as he is again slated to hurl, pulling a Grover Alexander or Walter Johnston by trying to win three in a playoff series!

* * * * * * *

It was a mighty tough ball game to drop and a honey to cop. And it was a sweet struggle to watch. The boys were battling for everything and played fine defensive ball. They couldn't do anything offensively with that kind of twirling on both sides. The Petes ought to start hitting soon, being practically shut out twice in a row now by Williams. The umpiring was pretty fair as a whole, but the arbiters made one bad mistake. In the 8th Utronki hit, stole second and started for third when Whatley's throw went into centre field. He saw Foley start to fling to third so he ankled back toward's second. Foley's throw was bad, so Utronki went on. The umps wouldn't let him score but sent him back to third.

* * * * * * *

The ground rule in this case is that a runner on an overthrow is entitled to the base he's going toward and one extra. Well, Utronki wasn't going toward third, but back toward second, so he was only entitled to one base—that is third—on the bad throw. And so the two umpires ruled. Yet, Peeney Mills, his team, and the crowd kicked up such a squawk that the two umpires apparently weakened and argued and listened to bitter arguments pro and con for no less than twenty minutes! Mind you, they didn't change their decision, yet they permitted the game to be held up that long instead of pulling out the watch and making the Belleville team abide by the decision or forfeit the game. One of them even went out to look at the spike marks to see which way the runner was going—and this after a thousand marks had been made in eight frames! They were undoubtedly lax at this time, and the Nats eventually abided by the decision.

* * * * * * *

Peterborough sports took it on the chin all along the line yesterday. Besides that 1-0 nick in the close baseball shave at Belleville, the local lacrossers were slapped smartly with a 12-6 reverse here by Scarboro Grads, our bantams were handed a shellacking by Toronto kids here, and Westclox gals took the wrong end of an 8-6 count in Keene. This latter must have been a neat number, with Marilyn McCarthy and her buddies having an edge on the Alarm Lasses to even their playoff series at one win each. Third tussle is at five in the Bowl Saturday e'en.

* * * * * * *

King Edward Bantams fell by the wayside, 19-3, to Columbus Boys of Toronto at the Exhibition Grounds, Partington pitching four-hit ball while the others on his team smacked two local twirlers around at will and outfielded 'em. The Toronto lads had too much experience and class and won the series in two straight. However, the K.E. kids had some fun out of it and no doubt learned a lot. That's one local O.B.A.A. contender now out of the running, but we still have the seniors, intermediates and juveniles.

* * * * * * *

Things don't look too bright for Kiwanis lacrossers after their 12-6 setback in the Armouries here yester p.m. The Scarboro Grads shaded 'em the last half, being very fast and showing considerable class. Quite a crowd saw a fine game with sparkling goal-tending and clean, speedy lacrosse dished up by two good teams. All the locals worked hard but the starry Mister C. Hurd and Company looked a little better. They play the return one in Agincourt Friday, and Kiwanis have to make up six goals to tie it up.

* * * * * * *

Grab-bag: Milton intermediates eliminated Waterloo last e'en, and Cogs have been ordered to go to Milton Saturday to start the next series . . . . . Terrier Juveniles will play in Toronto Sat'day, also . . . . An Oshawa report says Tony Graboski will play hockey in Montreal this winter under the sponsorship of the Maroons . . . . Meaford and Penetang battled to a thirteen-inning 1-1 tie yesterday, both Warpy Phillips and Marchildon fanning twenty-two batters! . . . . Phillips gave but two hits in this fine duel . . . . It was decided by a tossup yesterday that the fifth C.O.B.L. game will be here on Saturday, with neutral umpires from Toronto.

COLUMBUS BOYS MUCH SUPERIOR TO LOCAL SQUAD

King Edward Bantams Fall Prey by Big Score to Toronto Rivals.

MAKE BAD START.

King Edward bantams wound up their season by taking it on the chin from the Columbus Boys of Toronto by the lop-sided score of 19-3 yesterday afternoon at the Exhibition grounds, making it two in a row that they lost to the Toronto club in the O.B.A.A. playdowns. The game was a loosely played affair with the Queen City boys having too much experience and coaching for their younger rivals, getting the jump on them in the first inning by scoring 7 runs and from then on it was just a parade.

Todd started for King Edward but was quickly removed in favor of Mortimer who finished the game on the mound for the Petes. Partington hurled for Columbus Boys and held the Petes well in check during the entire contest. Staszewski again led the Toronto team in hitting collecting 4 hits out of 5 times at bat while for the losers Jimmy Lawson was the only one to secure more than one bingle, getting two out of four. The fielding feature of the fracas was an unassisted double play by Crawford, first baseman of the Boys, in the eighth frame. The box score:

The Social committee of the ladies' section of our club staged about the nicest little tournament that has been seen on our greens for many a long day.

Invitations were sent to All Saints' and they sent up a strong delegation....Sixteen rinks in all took part.

The names were drawn from the board and everybody had the same chance....Three six-end games were played.

The ladies who undertook to put this little event over certainly deserve a lot of credit. They did their job thoroughly and well.

The winning rinks were skipped by Mrs. W. Darcy, Mrs. R. Martin, Mrs. J. Coursey and Mrs. L. Deyman.

Down at Port Hope yesterday our club was represented by two rinks skipped by G. Cairns and G. Coleman. It was the last mixed tournament of the year for that town. Our bowlers were not successful with the prize list, but they report a pleasant day's outing.

Three local rinks went up to Toronto yesterady and were entertained at the Granite Club by the bowlers. They later took in the ball game in the evening.

YANKEES WIN FROM DETROIT

Giants Move Ahead With Victory as Cards Lose Double-header.

CUBS FALL BACK.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York Yankees at least kept the pennant-bound Tigers from adding insult to injury by clinching the American League pennant at the expense of their nearest and most durable rivals but that doesn't seem to have made much difference in the flag race.

After 20 scoreless innings in Detroit, the Yanks broke loose with a run yesterday, then having broken the charm of Tiger pitching, went on to knock Elden Auker around for a three-run burst in the sixth and won 5-2. The only tangible results were that the Tiger lead was reduced to 6½ games and they were left needing four victories to clinch the flag—only three if the list includes a triumph over the Yanks today.

The Giants staged a gain in the National League race that was almost as big as Detroit's loss when they won a game from Cincinnati and the second-place Cardinals lost a double-header because of rain at Boston. New York's 6-4 triumph, gained through a four-run rally in the eighth at the expense of Rookie Beryl Richmond, increased the Giant lead to four games.

As the result of two days of idleness through rain, the Cards had a couple of games completely wiped off their program and now only have 12 left in which to overhaul the Giants. New York has nine to go.

Cubs Retreat

The third place Cubs retreated to 7½ games behind the Giants, putting themselves on the ragged edge of elimination as they took a 5-4 setback from the Phillies and Curt Davis, who allowed only seven hits and drove in two runs.

Brooklyn continued to make life miserable for the Pirates, winning a double header 4-1 and 8-4 with heavy hitting behind Van Mungo and Johnny Babich.

The Athletics climed to fifth place in the American League with a double victory over the White Sox, 5-3 and 14-0. On the mound George Caster and Joe Cascarella allowed the Hose a total of seven blows while the A's belted five homers, including Jimmy Foxx's 42nd of the year. St. Louis, slipped to sixth, took a single decision from the Red Sox, 3-2, scoring all it runs off Johnny Welch in the sixth.

The Senators, now seventh, squared their series with Cleveland by pokling out a 5-2 decision behind Bob Burke's steady elbowing.

Pitchers' Duel Ends 1-1 in 13th

PENETANG, Sept. 20.—Penetang and Meaford tied 1 all in 13 innings here yesterday in the most thrilling pitchers' duel ever witnessed in this part of Ontario, when Warpy Philips, stellar southpaw from Meaford, and Phil Marchildon, local right-hander, clashed in the second round O.B.A.A. Intermediate "B" play-offs. Each hurler struck out 22 batters in the 13 innings.. Philips allowed but two hits, while Marchildon yielded six.

FINAL CONTEST HERE SATURDAY

Flip of Coin Brings Central League Championship Game to Riverside Park.

WILLIAMS TO PITCH.

The fifth and final game of the C.O.B.L. playoffs will be staged at three o'clock Saturday in Riverside Park. The Belleville and Peterborough officials tossed a coin following the Belleville 1-0 ten-inning win yesterday to see where the final game would be held, and the locals won the toss. With each team having won two apiece, this fifth game will definitely settle the loop title for 1934, and the team to represent the league in the O.B.A.A. semi-finals next week with the G.W. Grads of Toronto. The biggest crowd of four or five years is expected to take Riverside Park to capacity for this all-important ball game.

The Petes won the first two games of the five-game series, but the battling Belleville bunch came through to unexpectedly sop the next two and tie it up. With Chief Williams proving their only winning hurler, it is natural to look for him to start Saturday's game for the Mills' crew. While he is hardly likely to again hurl such a game as he did at home yesterday, still the Chief is always dangerous. Probably Bill Calladine will get the call for the Lee gang, and it should be a great struggle.

Nawab Will Play On Indian Team

BOMBAY, Sept. 20 (C.P. Cable)—The Nawab of Pataudi, who has made a great name for himself on English cricket fields, said to-day that he would be glad to accompany the Indian cricket team which is to tour England in 1936 if he were invited, provided he was satisfied the team was selected on its merits.

The Nawab, who has played for Oxford, Worcester and England, had only a short season in England this past summer but on the basis of 15 innings batting established highest average of any batsman in first-class English cricket, 78 runs per inning. This was two runs higher than Wally Hammond of Gloucester, who played tarcughout the season.

CHAPTER 44

As soon as she reached her room, Joan called up Nancy, and when she got her, she announced breathlessly, "This is Joan . . . Joan Dudley."

"My dear . . . how unexpected . . . and splendid! How did it happen?"

"I've come—to eat the apple . . ." Joan's laugh tinkled across the wire. She had a sudden unlift of spirits. "Nancy, where's Drew?"

"He's somewhere about. I'll have him paged. And may I come around, and we'll go down and have tea? There are some dancers who are superb. You aren't tired, are you?"

"No. We motored up. I'll tell you about it."

When Nancy came, she found Joan, lovely and remote in her little black hat, a sheer black frock, and her pearls. "Dear child," she said, "you're charming in all that somberness. But if you're going to eat the apple we must have you gay and gorgeous."

"I don't want to seem to forget poor Aunt Adelaide," Joan explained, "for after all she loved me."

"She'll never be the wiser," said Nancy with a touch of flippancy. "If she's in heaven or the other place, she's not thinking of clothes."

As they went down together, Nancy said, "I've reserved a table. And the boy is looking for Drew."

"Probably Rose Carter has found him."

Nancy stared at her. "Rose Carter?"

Joan nodded. "I motored up with her."

"Rose . . .?"

Joan explained. "She says Drew wrote to her to come."

Nancy said, with calmness, "She lies."

Joan's heart jumped. "Nancy, he must have said something."

"Nothing that she could twist into such a meaning. He adores you, Joan. You needn't be jealous."

"I'm not." But even as she said it she knew that she was jealous . . . horribly so. She confessed, honestly, "It will be deadly, having Rose here. I wanted you and Drew to myself."

"You'll have us. Heavens, child, haven't you grasped the fact that there's no one else for Drew?"

They had come into the dining room and had made their way to a table, which with others encircled a floor cleared for dancing. There were many tables and many people—a brilliant cosmopolitan crowd. Joan had scarcely time to glance at them, when the room was plunged suddenly into darkness, except for a spotlight which shone on the cleared space of polished floor.

And into that space moved presently, to the click of castanets, two dancers—a marvellous pair—she with her wide lace skirt looped with roses, her slender waist, her smooth hair. He, slim in his tight trousers of claret velvet, his sash, his gold-embroidered jacket, his black head shining, his saturnine face calm and composed except for his questing eyes.

There was the thrum of guitars . . . a throbbing note . . . the dancers swayed and dipped. The light followed them, caught the faces of the people in the surrounding darkness, and showed them intent, watching that passionate drama in the ring.

Among those who showed in that circle of light was Drew Hallam. Joan recognized him with a quick beat of the heart. He was leaning forward in his chair, his fingers about the stem of his wine glass, his eyes following eagerly the movement of the dipping, dancing figure in the wide lace skirt.

Here was no forlorn lover sighing to the moon! Drew was the picture of smug satisfaction. Why should Nancy have painted him in such somber colors? Despairing? Desperate.

The light traveled on, following the dancers, and now it was Joan whom it picked out, shining full upon her, framing her face as it had framed her lover's, showing her pure as a nun in her black coif.

Drew saw her and caught his breath. He did not believe in the least that it was Joan. It was of course a hallucination, born of his thought of her . . .

Yet, if it were? He jumped to his feet—and just then a page, leaning over him, gave him Nancy's message.

He followed the boy, and arriving presently at his sister's table bent down to Joan, "It is really you?"

She said, with a touch of frigidity, "Yes."

"And not a ghost."

"No."

"Why didn't you tell me?"

"I wanted a surprise . . ."

He dropped into the chair beside her, "I saw you from the other side of the room as the light passed you."

"I saw you."

"Joan—are you glad?" he found her hand and held it.

Nancy's voice broke in. "What do you think, Drew? Joan motored up with Rose Carter. And Rose said you had written."

"I had," calmly. His clasp tightened on Joan's hand as she tried to withdraw it.

"She wrote to me asking me to come to Paris. I wrote back that I wasn't in the mood for Paris. I wasn't in the mood for anything—that I was low in my mind because of you."

"She construed it into an S.O.S." Nancy said, "and came on."

Drew uttered an impatient exclamation: "She can go back again for all I care. But how did you happen to link up with her, Joan?"

She told him, "Fate—I fancy . . ." she ended.

He turned to her and said, very low, "She made you unhappy? Did she, Joan? Tell me the truth."

His spell was again upon her and she spoke honestly, "Yes. I felt as if I wanted to turn back . . ."

"You are not going back . . ."

She did not answer him and for a few moments there was silence, as they watched the dancers treading a new measure. In the darkness, Drew carried Joan's hand to his lips. "You are not going back," he said, as if there had been no pause, "I am going to keep you here—forever ——"

She fought for composure. "You can't keep me if I don't want to stay."

"You will want to stay." He rose: "You won't mind if we leave you, Nancy?"

"I shall mind. But I knew from the first that it was inevitable." Nancy's light laughter followed them.

As they came out into the lights of the lobby, Drew asked, "Where can we be alone?"

"Why be alone?" Joan demanded.

He laughed a little. "If you don't know—why tell you?"

A silence while his eyes held hers, then she surrendered.

"I've a sitting room. And Farley can play chaperone."

"Do we need—a duenna? Well, perhaps, in Spain."

In the hour she had to herself Farley had made Joan's sitting room a place of beauty. She had ordered flowers and set them about so that there was the fragrance of them and the color. On the wide seat below the window which looked out on the mountains, she had flung an apple-green cushion, and with the pink of the azaleas which bloomed on a table beside it, the effect was spring-like and charming.

"Take off your hat," Drew commanded, "and let me see your hair."

Joan lifted it, and touched her locks lightly. "Am I all right?"

"With these ——" he picked up a bunch of violets from a bowl on the table and wiped the stems on his handkerchief. "Come here," he commanded.

As Joan went towards him he spoke to Farley, who was moving quietly about in the adjoining room, "Can you get me a pin?"

She brought a big one and retired discreetly. She had the effect outwardly of composure, but within she was much disturbed. So here were the Hallams again! And he with his love-making! And heaven only knew what would happen to the child if she married him.

Drew arranged the flowers in a shoulder-knot, touched them to his lips and pinned them to Joan's gown. He did it expertly, and smiled into her upraised eyes. "That's better," he said, and then suddenly his voice broke and he caught her to him. "I've been starved for you, starved."

When an hour later Drew went away, Joan sought out the maid. "Farley," she said, and her voice caught. "Farley, I'm going to be married . . ."

There was a short and significant pause before Farley asked, "To Mr. Hallam, Miss Joan?"

"Yes. In April, Farley."

There was anxiety in the older woman's eyes, "Are you sure you know your own mind, Miss?"

"Of course."

Farley moved about the room beating up the cushions; then she turned and faced her mistress. "I know it isn't my place, Miss Joan. But you haven't any mother. And marriage is a solemn thing."

Joan stared at her for a moment, then she flung her arms about the other's neck. "Wish me happiness, Farley," she said, "I want it so—I want it."

Kellogg's FOR FLAVOR

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, September 21

An interesting and intriguing chain of planetary configurations combine to complexion a day of the surprising, subtle and singular. It is probable that this irregularity or element of intrigue may confine itself to the purely personal affiliations, which seem to be imbued with romance, secrecy, idealism or spirituality. Yet there is sign of a pleasant change or journey, a good business contract is in order and a new project is assured friendly support. Shun law and speculation.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of the singular, intriguing, mysterious or mystical, especially in their romantic affiliations. There is augury of pleasant change or journey, successfully launched new projects and profitable contracts, but beware extravagance, speculation and litigation.

A child born on this day may be peculiarly gifted, energetic, ambitious, but with a personal proclivity to the radical, idealistic, romantic, curious occult and spiritual.

Australian Majority Favors Lyons Party

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 19 (CP Cable via Reuters).—Compilation to-day of the popular vote in the recent Australian general elections showed overwhelming support for the United Australia Party of Prime Minister Joseph A. Lyons. The party receive 1,120,768 votes out of a total poll of 3,075,803.

The Country Party, Government allies, received 364,913 votes, making a total of 1,485,681, or somewhat under half of the total vote.

Federal Labor, the chief opposition party which increased its strength without getting a majority, polled 869,626 votes. Extreme Labor got 483,182.

The Douglas Credit Party, although it did not elect a single member, polled 132,584 votes in the seats it contested, roughly half of the total constituencies. Communists, who also failed to elect anybody, received 41,200 votes. Independents had 27,625, and others 35,903.

Steam Rises From Red Hot Sides Of Beached Morro Castle

Clouds of steam arise from the metal sides of the Morro Castle, still red hot from the flames which continued to consume its interior, days after the tragedy claimed scores of its luckless passengers. This shows the vapor produced by spraying a water hose over the smoking plates as the giant gutted hulk is beached on the waterfront sands in Asbury Park, N.J.

COACH STOREN STRENGTHENS ST. MIKE'S PLAY

Adds Some Powerful Men to Irish Front Line to Secure Stability.

WELL BALANCED TEAM.

BY ELMER DULMAGE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Sept. 20. — (CP) — There has always been a very slender margin of safety in the American methods of St. Michael's college "schoolboy" football teams and that is probably the reason the Irish have failed to make headway in the O.R.F.U. despite a consistently brilliant attack.

Irish backfields have been long on gambling plays and short on caution. The line has never been quite solid enough to hold its own and the attack has necessarily been an overhead affair. Few teams in the east had a more effective forward pass system than St. Michael's last season and none had as ineffective a ground attack.

Coach Bill Storen, Detroit University graduate, hopes to change this state of affairs in his second season at the helm of the Irish. Husky, high school boys from the United States have arrived at college with some real promise of developing frontline power. There may even be a kicking threat.

McKernan To Kick

Ken McKernan, Windsor youth who made his senior debut last fall, shows promise of making a fair job at punting. Storen expects he will work in nicely with the "old guard," Hugh Marks and Joe Connolly from Rochester who are starting their third season together in the O.R.F.U. Marks and Connolly both are fine all-round performers.

With McKernan to kick and an experienced pivot man, Bill Ripley from U. of Detroit back of the line, Storen has few worries there. Ripley played three seasons as a result with the highly ranked Detroit team. Jack Talbot, from Pontiac, Mich., is another backfielder likely to make good.

Strong Reserves

For reserves are Jack France, former Woodstock, Ont., junior sensation; Red Malloy who played with the Irish two years ago and Jack Alexander, a promising half from Assumption College. At least the rear division will be as strong as before.

It is up front that Storen has hopes of developments. Around Johnn Metras, one of the outstanding snapbacks in the country, will lineup schoolboy heavyweights who know how to make interference, block and tackle. The spectacular Metras is working personally on this brigade.

When he is through the preliminary weeding out, John Reavy from Detroit and Oscar Pung from Pontiac probably will be regular insides. Both were stars in high school football. Clarence Burt from Pontiac, 1933 O.R.F.U. all-star and Leonard Oszewski from Detroit, are virtually sure to start at middle.

At the ends are Charlie Peck and Jimmy Burke, regulars on last year's squad. Peck was a star in 1933. Mickey McMillan from Windsor may get plenty of work at outside.

Strong Foul Play Hints In Doig Case

GODERICH, Ont., Sept. 20 (C.P.) —Suspicion that Andrew Doig, 60-year-old Egmondville bachelor came to his death by foul play grew stronger to-day as Provincial Police redoubled their efforts to solve the mystery.

Doig's body was found on Sunday afternoon last behind a clump of bushes one half mile from the home of his sister, Mrs. Simpson. He was last seen the previous Friday when he left his home after eating breakfast, in the best of health and spirits. The post mortem disclosed death was caused by strychnine poisoning.

Yesterday the safety deposit box of deceased in a Seaforth bank was to have been opened before officials of the law and relatives. This was not done, owing to the absence from town of the bank manager.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK - - By R. J. Scott

PARTRIDGE HUNT DATES CHANGED

Shooting to be Allowed Only During Periods for Deer, Moose.

DOGS BANNED.

TORONTO, Sept. 20.— Partridge shooting in Ontario this Fall is to be permitted only while the regular deer season is on, according to an official announcement yesterday from the Queen's Park office of Hon. Harry C. Nixon, Minister of Game and Fisheries.

In the territory south of the French and Mattawa Rivers, excluding therefrom the counties of Bruce, Grey, Simcoe, York and the area lying south and west thereof, and the counties of Leeds, Grenville, Dundas, Stormont, Glengarry, and Carleton, partridge may be taken from Nov. 12 to Nov. 17, both days inclusive.

In the "A" deer hunting section of the province, as defined in the Game Laws, and familiar to all sportsmen, the partridge season will be from October 22 to October 27, both days inclusive. The other open periods are: "B" section Oct. 29 to Nov. 3, both days inclusive; and "C" section, Nov. 12 to Nov. 17, both days inclusive.

No dogs will be allowed in hunting the birds. The authorized bag will be 4 birds per day, or a maximum of 12 for the season. Five classes of partridge may be shot, Ruffed Grouse, Canada Grouse, Sharp-tailed Grouse, Ptarmigan, and Prairie Hen.

English Physically Not Deteriorating

LONDON, Sept. 20 (C.P. Cable)—Suggestions the English race at home is physically deteriorating received no support in the annual report of the chief medical officer issued to-day.

Sir George Newman the chief medical officer of the Ministry of Health, declared there was evidence in every part of the country to indicate the health of unemployed and their dependents, in particular, on the whole was not suffering seriously.

The chief causes of death in order of mortality were diseases of the heart, cancer, bronchitis, diseases of the nervous system and tuberculosis. These five were responsible for 66 per cent of the death rate.

Road accidents were principally responsible for deaths by violence.

Cancer deaths set a new high, notably among females. They were 1,526 per million of population, an increase of 856.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 97c to 99c; oats, 35c to 38c; barley, 60c to 64c; corn, 85c to 86c; rye, 55c to 57c; buckwheat, 55 to 58c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Egg prices were again lower on the Montreal Produce and Dairy market yesterday. Butter and cheese quotations were also fractionally easier.

Graded shipments of eggs in carlots or less were quoted at 27c to 29c a dozen for A large, down a cent; 25c to 27c for A medium, off a cent, 21c for B and 19½c for C. Receipts were 593 cases.

Fresh No. 1 butter was priced at 19¾c a pound in carlots or less, as compared with 19¾c to 19¼c a pound Tuesday. Small lots to retailers brought 20½c a pound for solids, and 21½c for prints. Arrivals were five boxes.

Cheese prices were fractionally easier, Ontario colored declining ¼c at 10 to 10¼c a pound, while Quebec cheese was down ¼c to 9½c a pound.

New Quebec potatoes were 40c to 50c per 80-lb. bag of No. 1 graded.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Fears that Argentine wheat exports would overflow into the United States led to material setbacks of all grain prices yesterday in Chicago.

Announcement that Argentine wheat, duty paid, could be laid down in New York as cheap as United States red winter wheat had a decidedly unsettling market influence. A curious effect was that September, December and May wheat futures in Chicago all closed yesterday at practically identical quotations—something said to be without precedent here and resulting in complete elimination of carrying charges on deferred deliveries.

Wheat closed weak, near the day's bottom level, ⅞c to 1⅛c under Tuesday's finish; Dec. new, $1.03¼ to $1.03½; corn, ⅝c to 1¼c down, Dec. new 76½c to 76⅝c, oats, ⅝c to ⅞c off, and provisions unchanged to 12c decline.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Tottering outside markets led Winnipeg Grain Exchange wheat prices to lower levels yesterday, the session's net decline being ⅝c to ½c.

Export demand was restricted to about 250,000 bushels of Canadian wheat and other outside buying was negligible. All futures closed at bottom levels. October option ended at 81⅞c, December at 82⅝c and May at 87c to 87⅛c.

At the bottom some support from the Government agency was noticeable. A little selling came in from Southern houses and hedging pressure was moderate. Commission houses added a small measure of support to the export buying, but on the whole trading was dull.

Argentine offerings depressed Liverpool prices 1⅝d to 2d. while Chicago dropped ⅞c to 1⅛c. Favorable Argentine crop weather was offset by further rain and snow in Western Canada, holding up harvesting.

Demand for cash grains was only moderate, while coarse grains slipped off with wheat and outside markets.

SAFETY SPEED COMFORT SERVICE

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS

Canada in the Autumn... A picture that all should see.

In the opinion of many experienced people, the best time for enjoying railway travel is now. Canada's vast areas of forest and lake are taking on their autumnal splendour, while in the farming districts harvesting operations are proceeding, and the usually quiet countryside is alive with activity and beauty, which compel the admiration and interest of all who behold them. The days have become cooler, the sun is gentler, and the nights are longer and more restful.

Those whose vacations are still to come and those whose affairs cause them to travel, are fortunate. They should not miss the panorama of grandeur which Canada is now providing. Especially should those who dwell in the East endeavour to see our Western Provinces and those in the West enjoy the beauties of the East.

To do so is not an expensive or wearying experience. In pursuance of their policy of rendering as great service as possible, the railways are making special arrangements at exceptionally low fares to enable the public to take full advantage of this fall season, and the C.N.R. is co-operating whole-heartedly. While all the attractive schedules which are usual at this season of the year are available, there are being provided additional inducements to travel by C.N.R.

A new autumn feature which goes into effect on Canadian railways on the twenty-first of September and continues in force until the second of October is the cent-a-mile rate between Eastern and Western Canada. This entitles the traveller to modern and comfortable standard coach accommodation, while for a cent and a quarter per mile and a low price for berth, sleeping accommodation in the well-equipped and pleasant tourist coaches may be had. These berths can be reserved in advance and the total cost of a journey can be obtained on enquiry from any station or ticket office. Travel on these terms is indeed economical and gratifying. And, of course, the excellent dining car services are available to all passengers.

For shorter journeys, the C.N.R. is providing numerous short limit special fare excursions, as well as low fares for trips extending over longer periods and week-ends.

To those whose time is limited and to those who have been hesitant about taking a long vacation, the special provisions for this season should particularly appeal. But whatever be the duration of a trip or whatever be the class of accommodation used, the passenger on a C.N.R. train is a welcome guest and will receive nothing but the best. Every servant of the railway is the passenger's servant. May we suggest that you should use this railway to see a little more of Canada than you have already done?

When accompanied by adults children under five years of age travel free, and between that age and twelve, at half fare.

1,346 ARE KILLED 4,203 INJURED 120-MILE GALE

Osaka City, Hardest Hit, Suffers Loss of Millions in Property Damage.

Hundreds of Children Victims —Floods Take Heavy Toll.

BY GLENN BABB
Associated Press Foreign Staff

TOKYO, Sept. 21.—(AP)—At least 1,346 persons were killed, and 4,203 injured to-day by a typhoon which swept Central and Western Japan.

The steadily mounting toll of casualties indicated that hundreds of persons were missing. No immediate estimate could be made of the property damage, but it was obvious that it would amount to millions of dollars.

In the city of Osaka, probably the hardest hit of all, police report 1,067 persons were dead and 3,057 injured. There also, the police said 181 were unaccounted for. The storm swept from Angasaki to Nagano.

Only a hazy picture of the full sweep of destruction has yet reached Tokyo for communications were badly battered by the wind which in places reached a velocity of 120 miles an hour and carried with it sea floods which reached tidal wave proportions.

The casualties appeared to have been concentrated in the cities of Osaka and Kyoto.

Millions of dollars worth of property was ruined.

Newspapers estimate that Osaka City alone suffered damages of 300,000,000 yen.—About 90,000,000.

The bitterest tragedy was enacted in the flimsily built schoolhouses of Osaka and Kyoto where the children were just beginning their lessons when the gale roared up from the south with death-dealing fury.

The governor of Osaka reported that in Osaka City, 67 schoolhouses collapsed killing 421 pupils and teachers and injuring 1,100.

Anglicans Approve Book Praise Revision

By A. J. McKenna, C. P. Staff Writer

MONTREAL, Sept. 21. —(CP)— Moving rapidly toward conclusion of its 18th session, the general synod of the Church of England in Canada today considered the report of the Anglican National commission and approved the report of the Hymnal Committee which has been preparing for a revision of the Book of Common Praise.

J. E. Jones, Toronto magistrate who is convener and secretary of the Hymnal committee, told the delegates many hymns in the present hymnal were outdated while many other fine hymns should be included. He said the expense for the new book would not be heavy.

Winter May Halt Priests' Rescue Ship

CHURCHILL, Man., Sept. 21 (C. P.) — Winter's grip threatened to-day to cut short the voyage of the Roman Catholic supply ship Pius XI and force Rev. Father H. N. Bazyn to spend a fifth winter alone in the desolate Arctic regions.

Sailing into Manitoba's northern seaport in bright weather, the Hudson's Bay Company schooner Fort Severn returned here after a northern trip and brought word the Pius XI feared winter would force return and abandonment of the effort to rescue Father Bazyn.

Four years ago Father Bazyn started from Pond Inlet, on the far northeast coast of Baffin Land, and made his way on foot 400 miles to Igloolik. He went to minister to Eskimos and repeated efforts to reach the far-away spot have all been rebuffed by winter's approach.

EVIDENCE WEAK CASE AGAINST MANVERS' MAN

EVIDENCE CIRCUMSTANTIAL

Defense Argues Case is All Guess Work on Part of the Crown.

(See Page 11 For Thursday Morning's Evidence.)

BETHANY, Sept. 21.—(By A Staff Reporter).—On the Crown's structure of circumstantial evidence, Magistrate W. A. M. Campbell of Port Hope committed Dmytro Bolejczuk for trial on a charge of having murdered Peter Rogouski Sunday, July 29 last, at the conclusion yesterday evening at 7 o'clock of a tedious day's preliminary hearing.

"I realize that the evidence is not very strong," Mr. Campbell said as the case was brought to a close with a large audience from the village and township waiting for His Worship's decision. "There is considerable circumstantial evidence in connection with this matter, and I believe that I am justified in committing this man for trial and putting him on his defense. It will mean considerable expense to the united counties, no doubt, but we have got to enforce the law the best way we can in this country. There is a foreign element in this part of the country. A foreigner got off through lack of evidence in a murder that was committed near here more than a year ago. They must not get the idea that they can revenge their quarrels, take the

With the promise of a continuance of more seasonable weather the theremometer stood at 78 degrees early this afternoon, according to Walter Peters, official weatherman.

For the past ten days the mercury had been unable to rise beyond the 65 degree mark, while at nights it sank to a minimum of 44 degrees, for several nights in a row. It sunk to an equally low and unseasonable level last night, but present indications that there will be higher readings both by day and night.

Two Cattle Rustlers Given Three Years

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Sept. 21 (C.P.).—Rocco Marshall and Wellington Huffman, truck driver and assistant near Fonthill, were sentenced to three years in Kingston Penitentiary here to-day by Magistrate Campbell on pleas of guilty of three charges of cattle rustling in Gainsboro Township during the month of August. The cattle were pure-bred breeding stock in one case, the carcasses being disposed of to wholesale butchers. Last month another cattle thief was sentenced to three years on the same charge.

Refrigerator Car Alleged Pilfered

Informations were this morning sworn to by C. P. R. Constable W. Ramsay of Toronto before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., charging eight local children—five boys and three girls, with breaking seals of a refrigerator car, and theft of a quantity of bananas.

Constable Ramsay said that while the railway company hesitated to prosecute on account of the youthfulness of the offenders, the company had been forced to take drastic action as pilfering from box cars had been prevalent locally. The constable stated, he had made numerous trips to this city in the past few weeks investigating complaints of theft from the company's property, and in the present instance he alleged he practically caught the children "red handed." The alleged offences were committed on the C.P.R. Water street sidings at the rear of the National Grocers premises. The bananas, he said, were on consignment to National Grocers.

Blackmail Suspects Are Remanded Week

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 21 (CP) — Four persons held here on extortion cases, appeared in police court today and were remanded for preliminary hearing one week. Acting Crown Attorney Newton stated he had received instructions from the Attorney General's Department, Toronto, to refuse bail to all four.

It is likely they will appear for trial at the Fall Assizes here in October.

The four are: Frank Taylor, Jr., and his wife Rosa, of Chester street; Frank Taylor, Sr., father of Frank Jr.; Mrs. Mae Turnbull, former wife of Taylor, Sr.

Defence counsel stated none of his clients had had anything to do with "threat" letters recently sent to the Acting Crown Attorney and predicted two of his clients would go free at the preliminary hearing. Refrigerator car

EXPLORER AIMS TO FIND DIARIES FRANKLIN LEFT

Intrepid Britisher E. H. Pease Heads for Unnamed Island in Arctic.

MAY STAY 2 YEARS.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 21 (CP)—Certain in the belief he knows the location of the base where Sir John Franklin deposited diaries of his ill-fated expedition 87 years ago, E. K. Pease, intrepid British explorer, to-day was Arctic-bound. His objective is an unnamed island, 200 miles south of the north pole.

With no other companion than his 15-months' old terrier, Jil, the 36-year-old adventurer said he was prepared to isolate himself in the snowy wastes for two years, if necessary, to find an answer to the near-century old mystery of the disappearance of Franklin's ships and party.

Mr. Pease rested here to-day before leaving for Churchill on Hudson Bay where he will say farewell to civilization for an indefinite period. At the northern Manitoba port a coastwise trading vessel will transport him to Chesterfield inlet, 300 miles north, where he will pick up a dog team that will carry him north.

GOLD RUSH BOON TO PORT ARTHUR

Hotels Crowded With Prospectors, Mining Men on Way to New Field.

35 MILES AWAY.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Sept. 21 (C.P.).—The depression is over for Port Arthur, the 'stepping-off place' of prospectors in Canada's newest gold rush. Not an able-bodied man in the city is on relief. The city's relief list has dwindled to the lowest point in four years. Port Arthur bears the appearance of a convention city.

Hotels are crowded to near-capacity with prospectors, workers and just plain gold-seekers. A train that leaves here daily for the new yellow metal fields of the Sturgeon River area looks like an excursion train. Prosperity is in the air.

Port Arthur has become headquarters for promoters, engineers, mining men and prospectors from all parts of Canada and the United States. The mine recorders' office is crowded by those fyling or transferring claims. Outfits are being purchased in city stores. Business is booming.

The Sturgeon River rush started in late June. The field then was owered only by "wire" and veteran prospectors from Kirkland Lake, Porcupine and Rouyn. They made at least 20 distinct finds and several old-established mining companies moved in. Fresh finds — more miners.

This gold rush may lack the color of the Klondike stampede of 99 or the earlier overland rush to find gold in California, but it has brought prosperity to the Lakehead and rich finds of gold within 35 miles of the city. Some companies have staked claims along three miles of the Trans-Canada highway.

GERMAN NAMED AS EXTORTIONER LINDBERGH CASE

Caught With Ransom Money —$13,750 Found Hidden in Garage.

BABY KILLING UNSOLVED.

Warrant For Extradition to New Jersey on Homicide Charge is Signed.

BY DALE HARRISON

NEW YORK.—Belief that the Lindbergh kidnapping was not a "one-man job" was expressed today by Acting Chief Inspector John J. Sullivan, who quizzed Richard Hauptmann at the police line-up.

"It was not a one-man job," he declared. "If this man Hauptmann was not actually at the scene of the kidnapping, he had a hand in the machinery."

NEW YORK, Sept. 21. — (AP) — A mild-mannered, tightlipped German was named today as the man who extorted $50,000 from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh for the return of the kidnap Lindbergh baby.

The formal charge of extortion was entered early today, naming Bruno Richard Hauptmann, a carpenter. Immediately after the charge was fyled, Hauptmann, weary from long questioning that began following his arrest last Tuesday morning, was taken from the Bronx County Courthouse to police headquarters.

The more sinister angle of the Lindbergh case—the United States most horrifying crime, it has been called—appeared today to be unsolved. That is the actual kidnapping and murder of baby Charles A. Lindbergh from his crib in his Hopewell, N.J., home the night of March 1, 1932.

Faces More Serious Count.

Hauptmann fidgeted under the glare of spotlights on the police line-up platform to-day and heard Assistant Chief Inspector John J. Sullivan declare he will "have to answer a more serious charge" than extortion in the Lindbergh kidnap case.

A short time later it was disclosed that last night a warrant for Hauptmann's extradition on a charge of homicide had been signed last night by Governor A. Harry Moore, of New Jersey, where the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped and murdered.

Sullivan told detectives assembled at the line-up that the police have "a perfect extortion case against this man," and added: "There is no doubt in my mind that he will have to answer a more serious charge."

Meanwhile, the Labor Department in Washington disclosed Hauptmann's record showed he was a "bad boy" in his native town of Kamenz, Germany, and at one time robbed a mayor's home of about 1,000 marks.

Held Without Bail.

When he appeared in West Farms Police Court to-day Hauptmann was ordered held without bail until Monday by Magistrate Richard McKinery. He was arraigned on a charge of extortion of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom.

The State Attorney at Bautzen, Germany, to-day revealed that Hauptmann, apparently was planning to return to Germany shortly.

When asked if the arrest of Hauptmann could be interpreted as solving the Lindbergh case, Commissioner O'Ryan said he thought it could.

Hauptmann, who was arrested on Tuesday morning after being kept under police surveillance for several days, continued to deny that he was the "John" who received the ransom money from Jafsie in St. Raymond's Cemetery.

The case against Hauptmann, on the basis of information given out by Commissioner O'Ryan, is this:

1. He has been identified as, and has admitted himself to be, the man

DOCTOR MOVES DIONNE BABIES INTO HOSPITAL

Fears Quintuplets May Contract Whooping Cough Prevalent in District.

100 YARD JOURNEY.

Babes, Heavily Wrapped, Carried by Three Nurses, Make Trip in Auto.

CALLANDER, Ont., Sept. 21. — (C.P.).—Fearing they might contract whooping cough, Dr. A. R. Dafoe moved the Dionne quintuplets from their parents' home into their new hospital to-day.

The disease is prevalent in the district, and the five older children of Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne have colds which may develop into whooping cough. The Callander physician has been unable to detect colds in any of the quintuplets but fears they may have become infected.

Two Weeks Early.

The move to the new building, opened September 14 by Hon. David A. Croll, Ontario Minister of Welfare, was not planned for two weeks but the illness of the older children in the Dionne residence prompted Dr. Dafoe to hurry his 116-day-old charges into their hospital-home.

The quintuplets, suffering for more than a week from intestinal toxaemia, had practically recovered when the new threat to their health appeared. Dr. Dafoe reported their

BEER INSPECTOR ISSUES WARNING

Peterborough is in the Inspectorate of C. H. Curtis of Warkworth.

MUST KEEP THE LAW.

Peterborough is included in the group of Central Ontario counties comprising the district in which C. H. Curtis of Warkworth has been appointed inspector of public beverage rooms under the Liquor Control Commissioner.

Mr. Curtis, who is Reeve of Percy township, told The Examiner that he had already begun his duties in the eastern counties of his circuit, and expects to visit Peterborough in the near future.

"So far I have been trying to impress upon the hotelmen the necessity in their own interests of keeping the spirit as well as the letter of the law," Mr. Curtis said.

If they will do that, and it is largely up to themselves, I believe that the beverage rooms would meet with general satisfaction. Inspection in seven counties from Lennox, Addington and Frontenac to Durham and Victoria is a big job for it is a large field to cover, but it can be carried out satisfactorily if the hotelmen will do their part. I was in Belleville a short time ago, and I told the hotelmen there a fact which experience must have impressed upon them, that they were closed up once before and the same thing can happen again unless they do their part to demonstrate to the general public that the present system is far better than the conditions which drove the sale of beer into the hands of bootleggers."

From a local source, a man who is well known to Premier Hepburn, it was recently reported that the Commission is gradually tightening the supervision of beverage rooms, and that after the new authorities are issued in November regulations are likely to be stricter than ever.

ARREST CERTAIN IN FEW DAYS POLICE CLAIM

Ontario to Start Extradition Proceedings for Meisner at Once.

MAY WAIVE RIGHTS.

Prisoner Surrenders Thursday, Claiming to Have Perfect Alibi.

TORONTO, Sept. 21.—(CP)—Ontario police today expressed the view Albert Pegram, suspect in the Labatt kidnapping, will be captured or will surrender within a few days.

They said they reached this conclusion following the surrender yesterday at Detroit of David Meisner, second suspect whose name and description were published by the Attorney-General's Department here.

One official who declined to permit use of his name said: "We expect Pegram to follow Meisner's lead and surrender, but if this does not happen we anticipate his arrest shortly.

Proceedings to extradite David Meisner from Detroit to stand trial probably at Sarnia, for the kidnapping of John Labatt, London brewer, will be started immediately unless Meisner, who surrendered to police at Detroit yesterday, waives extradition rights, Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Ontario Attorney General announced today.

The Attorney-General said he had appointed Joseph Sedgwick, K.C., and Clifford Magone, of his department, to institute the proceedings unless Meisner, wanted along with Albert Pegram, for the Labatt abduction last August 14, would consent to come to Canada for trial.

Trial Likely at Sarnia.

The scene of the trial probably will be at Sarnia, legal centre of Lambton County, in which the millionaire was taken from his car on the way from his summer home to his London office.

The Attorney-General said evidence of identification will be taken and sent to Detroit for a hearing before a commissioner there.

"We merely have to prove a prime facie case," said Mr. Roebuck. "It is not necessary to weigh alibi evidence against evidence of identification. It is just like a committal for trial and all we have to prove is that we have a case against Meisner."

It would not be necessary for Labatt or the other half-dozen Crown witnesses to go to Detroit to identify Meisner, it was pointed out, as their evidence would be sworn before a magistrate in Ontario and then submitted to the commissioner's hearing in Detroit.

Events leading to Meisner's surrender were not revealed but Inspector Hoffman said there had been negotiations between Detroit and Fort Covington, Ky., where Meisner was staying, that lasted three days. "You know how these things are arranged," he said, without divulging the details.

"Had Meisner ever come under your professional care before?" Hoffman was asked. "No," was the answer, "but some of his friends had."

Awaiting Orders.

Hoffman told the Canadian Press that nothing further would be done about the case until Detroit authorities received word from Provincial Police headquarters in Toronto and Attorney-General Arthur W. Roebuck's department. Detroit's chief of detectives, Fred W. Frahm, who has been investigating the case in Northern Ontario, has been recalled.

Though Meisner told police that Covington was his home town, a wire was received from Covington police last night saying he was not known in that city. At the time of the Labatt abduction Meisner insisted he was in Cincinnati and could provide "all the witnesses in the world—even policemen," to prove it.

Shortly after his surrender Meisner said he would fight extradition

Typhoon Takes Terrific Toll in Japan

400 KNOWN DEAD LIST MOUNTING 120 MILE GALE

Scores of Million Yen Damage in Worst Disaster Since 1923 Quake.

HUNDREDS INJURED.

86 Children Are Victims as School Collapses at Kyoto —Heavy Flooding.

BY GLENN BABB
Associated Press Foreign Staff

TOKYO, Sept. 21.—(AP) — A typhoon which tore through the industrial heart of Japan today snuffed out more than 400 lives and did incalculable damage.

The Osaka Meteorological Observatory said the typhoon attained the highest velocity ever recorded in Japan—more than 120 miles an hour.

Fears were expressed of a large increase in the death list. Workers dug through the debris of scores of collapsed schoolhouses and other buildings searching for victims.

Hundreds were injured, property damage amounted to scores of million yen.

Police reported 305 were known dead in the important seaport of Osaka; 86 school children were crushed to death at Kyoto, former capital of Japan; 16 were known dead at Kobe.

Winds lashed the sea inland, flooding 15 square miles in the centre of Osaka and 167,000 houses were at least partially inundated.

It was called the nation's worst disaster since the 1923 earthquake.

Many Boats Missing

Coastal shipping was endangered and many fishing boats were missing. The 5,460-ton steamer Kashu Maru sent out SOS signals.

Many were believed to have drowned when the sea rushed in at Fukura, near Kobe, and inundated 2,000 houses.

So strong was the typhoon, frequent in the Orient during the Autumnal equinox, that it overturned two passenger trains near Kyoto. Twenty or more passengers were killed and injured. The roofs of the Stock Exchange at Kyoto was carried away. Reports from Gifu said the storm had a velocity of 78 miles an hour when it struck there at 10.30 this morning.

More than 50 schoolhouses, the newspaper Asahi reported, collapsed in Osaka alone. Police there said 100 were known dead. A primary school with 500 children inside was shattered at Kyoto. Two hundred casualties were reported.

Little damage was reported in Tokyo, which missed the center of the storm. Business was halted in many cities as power was shut off and in some troops were called out to do relief work.

Charges Liberals Offered No Constructive Suggestion on Marketing or New Bank.

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HARROWSMITH, Ont., Sept. 21 (C.P.) — Seeking to break the stranglehold of big interests on the processing and marketing of farm products, the Bennett Government had enacted the Natural Products Marketing Act, a measure which went too far to suit Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, said as he pressed the Conservative cause in the Frontenac-Addington by-election.

Because of the Marketing Act, he told an audience of farmers here last night, Mr. King had called Premier R. B. Bennett a dictator. The Liberal chief's real difficulty was that the measure placed too many obstacles in the way of the exploiters of the farmer. It was a democratic measure, designed to enable the farmer through co-operation to market his products, free from the heavy exactions of big trading organizations.

Continuing his crusade against wages for the factory worker, Mr. Stevens to-day moved into the home town of Ontario's Liberal Premier, Hon. Mitchell Hepburn. There he will address a meeting tonight on behalf of the Conservative candidate in the West Elgin by-election.

Vigorously defending himself against the criticism levelled by Mr. King at his utterances as chairman of the committee investigating price spreads and mass buying, Mr. Stev-

Useful

GUELPH, Ont., Sept. 21. (CP)—Landscape gardens at the Ontario Reformatory are no longer to be merely viewed from a distance and praised. A bride, a groom, and a photographer discovered another function for the scenery. A gaily decorated automobile drew up to one of the particularly beautiful spots in the garden. Out stepped the bridal party and a photographer. He placed them in a picturesque spot and then clocked the shutter.

Is It Really German Soil?

Germany's oratorical big guns are booming in an effort to bring rich Saar Valley into the German fold, by vote of the people in 1935 plebiscite. Barrage has been directed by Adolf Hitler in person, ably supported by his minister of propaganda, Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels. "The Saar is German, and will remain German," declared Goebbels, as he received a basin of Saar earth, during mass demonstration at Zweibrucken. Voters will be asked to say whether they prefer to stay under supervision of the League of Nations, to join France, or as Goebbels and Hitler desire, return to Germany.

Bridgenorth

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Bell and son, are visiting with Mrs. Bell's parents in St. Marys. They were accompanied by Mrs. Wylma Telford.

Mrs. Burritt Jopling is visiting with her mother.

Miss Olive Sidey is with friends at Harwood.

The first regular meeting of the Young People will be at Bridgenorth, Wednesday evening, September 26th, Selwyn Thursday evening, and Fairview, Friday evening. Subject for discussion "What is Life?" Recreation at each meeting. All young people are invited.

The young people of Bridgenorth met in the basement of the church on Wednesday evening for a social. Games, stunts and contests were enjoyed. Lunch was served and the young people asked to attend regularly on Wednesday evening from now on.

Selwyn Fowl Dinner is to be on the evening of Oct. 2. The program is to be a play entitled "Her Gloves." This play is to be given by the Dramatic Club of Knox Church, Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Telford are holidaying with friends in London.

Still Going

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Sept. 21. (CP)—Dan McIntyre is looking forward to the West Elgin by-election Monday because it will further extend his long service record in political campaigns. Chairman of the same subdivision for 40 years, he has taken part in 21 general and three by-elections. He made a check at the recent provincial election and found five of the persons who voted when he started his job had cast ballots again.

Milk Producers And Distributors Are Pleased With Work Of Board In City

While talk of legal opposition to the dictates of the Ontario Milk Control Board is rife in Hamilton and voices disapproving of the Board's "big stick" methods have been heard in other centers, local producers and distributors of milk are praising the Board for the work it did in this city last month.

"The action the Board took here may have seemed dictatorial but I believe both the producers and distributors are well satisfied," V. S. Milburn, secretary of the Peterborough Milk Producers' Association said today. Mr. Milburn, who has been active for some time in efforts to smooth out troubles of both the producers and distributors here, said dissention over minor points in the code existed but that the men were satisfied with the were being smoothed out rapidly.

"The milk business was in a bad way before the Milk Board showed up," Mr. Milburn declared. "Neither the producer nor the distributor was making a living. The Board came along and put the business back to a basis on which, I believe, all concerned can profit fairly. Without the intervention of the Board, this would not have been done."

On August 15, the Board in a sitting here supervised the signing of a code for a general retail price of 10 cents per quart for milk in Peterborough and a rate of $1.70 per hundred pounds to the producer. The former retail price of milk ranged from 5 to 9 cents per quart and the rate to the producer stood at $1.20.

THAT "LIKE THE DICKENS" FEELING IS LIVER

Wake Up Your Liver Bile. Feel Fit. You Needn't use Calomel To Do It.

It's your Liver, failing to pour out the vital two pounds of bile, daily, into your bowels, that makes you feel so all-overish.

Lack of bile means poor digestion. Food stays too long in your bowels and decays. Your system is poisoned. You go through the misery of gas, bloating, pain, heartburn. You have a dark, brown coated tongue, foul breath, and bad breath. Your skin's unhealthy and often your head aches. Your whole system seems out of kilter.

How can you reasonably expect to clear up a condition like this by merely taking salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum, or roughage? These only move the bowels, and that's not enough. You must wake up your liver bile.

Avoid calomel (mercury). Take Carter's Little Liver Pills. They're purely vegetable, gentle, sure and safe. They'll make you feel a hundred per cent better in a very short time.

Don't waste your money on substitutes. Be definite. Ask for Carter's by name—and get them! Look for the name, Carter's, on the red label. 25c. at all druggists. 45

Toronto Livestock Review

TORONTO, Sept. 21 (C.P.).—The Toronto livestock market witnessed a lowering of prices this week in both the cattle and hog divisions. Packers continued to dig hog prices lower until by Thursday's close they were 50 cents below last week's close. The cattle run was too heavy for requirements, and prices in this division dropped about 25 cents on all grades except fed calves and stockers. Stocker cattle buying was more active this week than for any week since the spring. Fed calves were greatly in demand, and closed about 25 cents higher than last week, quality considered.

Supplies of calves, hogs and lambs were heavier than for last week. Although there was little change in the cattle receipts they were still too heavy. A holdover of 2,600 cattle from Monday was cut down to around 700 by the close of the week. Cables from England anticipated a drop in hog prices.

Weighty steers were lower at $3 to $5 cwt. for the majority with a few tops on Monday at $5.50. Butcher cattle sold mostly between $3 and $4 with closing tops at $4.25. Boners sold as low as $1.50 cwt. Fed calves closed 25 cents higher than last week at $6.50 to $7.25 for choice, with mediums at $5 to $6.25. Good butcher cows were down 25 cents at $2.25 to $2.50 while canners closed lower at 75 cents to $1 cwt. A few heavy bulls sold for export at $2.50 to $3 while bolognas were slow at $1.75 to $2.

Trading in stocker cattle was more active than for some time with ordinary light stockers bringing $2 to $2.50. A few herefords from western Canada brought $3 cwt. Milkers and springers were slower than last week with tops practically at $45 each.

The calf market was strong on all grades. Top vealers sold at $6.50 to $7, and a few koshers brought $7.50. Common, light vealers sold at $3.50 to $4.50 and heavy grassers made $3 to $4.50. Eastern grass calves sold mostly at $2.50 cwt.

The hog division was weak from the opening, with packers bidding for lower prices. Closing prices were down 50 cents for the week at $7.50 f.o.b. for bacons, at $7.85 off trucks and at $8.25 off cars.

The lamb market was firm at last week's close of $5.75 for good ewes and wethers. Culls, bucks and heavy lambs of 100 pounds and over sold at $4.75. A few peked lots of handyweight lambs topped the market $6. Sheep were again unchanged at $1 to $3.50 cwt. for the majority, with good, light ewes up to $3 cwt.

MEISNER TELLS POLICE HE HAS PERFECT ALIBI

unless he was sure of a "square deal in Ontario." He was said to be a Canadian citizen. But later he amended his statement. "If I can't satisfy these people that I didn't have anything too do with this kidnapping, I'll go to Canada under arrest without an extradition fight," he said.

Meisner was plainly anxious to have the affair settled in Detroit. He was willing, he told police, to bring witnesses from Cincinnati in support of his alibi if the Canadian authorities would have witnesses come to Detroit. "We'll go to bat here," he said, obviously meaning informally.

Start Extradition Action

TORONTO, Sept. 21. (CP).—Behind a thin veil of offical silence, Ontario authorities prepared today for the attempted extradition from Detroit of David Meisner, long-sought suspect in the John S. Labatt kidnapping who surrendered to Detroit police yesterday with a "perfect alibi."

First steps in the move to bring Meisner to justice were made last night, a few hours after news of the border development reached here. Clifford R. Magon, a solicitor in the department of Attorney-General Arthur W. Roebuck of Ontario, wired the British Consul at Detroit to issue a provisional warrant for Meisner's extradition.

Only one of all provincial officials active in direction of the abduction case search commented on the Detroit development. "I expected that," remarked Inspector John Miller of the Ontario Provincial police. He would not enlarge the observation.

The Attorney-General has personally directed police efforts ever since Labatt was kidnapped between London and Sarnia on Aug. 14 and released three days later. But he refused to discuss Meisner's surrender last night. Magone's wire to the British Consul at Detroit, it was believed, was sent at Mr. Roebuck's order.

Witnesses Ready

To combat Meisner's claim he was in Cincinnati at the time of the kidnapping, Ontario authorities probably will produce six witnesses who already have identified photographs of Meisner as one of the kidnappers. Chief of these is Horace Prowse, Leonard Lake, Ontario., who rented the Muskoka district cottage where Labatt was held captive for three days.

Prowse was said to have identified Meisner's photograph as that of the man who rented the cottage a week before the abduction. Norman Prowse, his brother, was near the cottage prison and saw the kidnappers "at a distance."

There was no information on the possibility of Labatt himself going to Detroit in an attempt to identify Meisner. He was able, despite the fact his eyes were taped, to obtain a partial view of his captors in the Muskoka cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Douglas Crewes, Toronto, who occupied a cabin near the hide-out on Leonard Lake and George Bannister, a clerk in a Port Carling, Ont. store who believes he sold the kidnappers the same dog-chain with which Labatt was chained to his 'prison' bed, are other prospective witnesses.

Albert Pegram, former Detroit bootlegger, also sought as a Labatt kidnap suspect, was thought to be with Meisner and police had concentrated their search in the Timmins area of Northern Ontario. A man resembling Pegram was reported seen in Timmins and also at Elmira, Ont.

Pupils From Seven Sections Take Part in Annual Parade.

HIGH CLASS OF EXHIBIS.

LIFFORD LINE, Sept. 21 (Examiner Correspondence). — The annual rural school fair for North Manvers was held on Monday afternoon, Sept. 17, on the school ground at S.S. No. 6 Fleetwood, with a large attendance of pupils, teachers, parents and friends.

A sport program including a variety of races for pupils and one for the teachers, was carried out before the noon hour.

In the early afternoon a ring was formed by the crowd and the livestock led out for exhibition. Mr. Summers, Agricultural Representative, Port Hope and Bruce Beer, eighth line, Manvers, acted as judges. Mr. Summers explained the reasons for the judges' decisions, pointing out considerable helpful information.

Prize Winners.

The winners in these classes were:

Draft Colt (4 entries): Marguerite Neals, Lifford; Gerald Mulligan, Lifford; Clifford Veals, Franklin; Jack Davidson, Fleetwood.

Beef Calf (3 entries): Marguerite Neals, Joe Davidson, Earl Shea.

Dairy Heifer: Marguerite Neals, Aileen Cummiskey, Grant Earl, Murray Shea, Norman Brown.

Market Lambs: Bertram Shea, Murray Shea, Marguerite Shea, Helen Shea, Norman Shea, Clayton Brown.

Showmanship: Marguerite Neals, Jack Davidson, Gerald Mulligan, Earl Shea, Roy Shea, Aileen Cummiskey.

A new feature of the poultry judging was the requirement of each pupil to hold his bird for inspection during the judging. A large number of exhibits of Barred Rock pullets and cockerels also White Leghorn pullets and cockerels were placed with Bernice White, Beryl McGill, Fledda Veals, Emery Shea, Marguerite Neals, Stewart Staples and others winning prizes.

Seven Schools Parade.

There were seven schools lined up for parade.

S.S. No. 1, Yelverton, teacher Miss White; S.S. No. 5, Lifford, teacher Miss Stephenson; S.S. No. 6, Fleetwood, teacher Miss Shea; S.S. No. 10, Bethel, teacher Miss Stacey; S.S. No. 11, Franklin, teacher Mr. Wansm; S.S. No. 16, North Janetville, teacher Miss Wilson; S.S. No. 7, South Janetville, Mr. Hamilton.

Miss Stacey was requested by Col. Snider, Inspector of Manvers schools, to come forward and lead the schools in devotional exercises, including Psalm 23 and Lord's Prayer. Mr. Stanely Supervisor of Music for South Manvers, led the pupils in singing "O, Canada", "God Save The King", and in saluting the Union Jack, held aloft by two pupils.

Each school had a suitable yell, which was given with great vim in every case. The physical exercises, which were lead by Miss Wilson, were taken simultaneously with all schools rather than individually as on former occasions. The various attractive costumes and decorations of the pupils made a gay appearance during this feature of the program.

Mr. Sutton, of Bowmanville, and Mr. Stanley led the pupils in singing a variety of songs, which were a credit to pupils and supervisors of music in the schools.

Yelverton Wins.

Judge Stewart of Hope Township, after an instructive address, placed the winners as follows; 1st, Yelverton school; 2nd, Bethel school; 3rd, North Janetville.

The public-speaking contest was a most entertaining feature of the program with the following pupils taking part: (1) Grant Earl; (2) Marie Armstrong; (3) Helen Armitage; (4) Murray Hogg; (5) Jean Dainard; (6) Beryl McGill. The winners were: Beryl McGill, Murray Hogg and Marie Armstrong.

Mr. Ed. Staples, a former teacher at Fleetwood, acted as judge, and made many constructive remarks.

The Best Speaker.

The winners for impromptu speaking were: (1) Isobel Marshal, who spoke on "Brown Sugar Candy"; (2) Audrey Stinson, on "How I spent my Summer Holidays"; (3) Wanda Heaslip, "My First Visit to the City."

In the mouth organ contest the winners were: Bryce Capstick, Aileen Cummiskey, Omar Capstick, Jean Cook, Lila McGee.

In the stock judging competition, when 22 head were included, the winners were: Jack Davidson, Floyd Stinson.

Weed Naming contest: Norman Brown, Marguerite Neals, Lloyd Stinson, Audrey McGill.

Sewing contest: Marion Thompson, Laura Ferguson, Beryl McGill, Audrey Stinson, Fledda Veals.

An unfortunate feature of the afternoon was the fact that during exhibition of the colts, one of the showmen in the person of Ralph Veals, of Franklin, received a sharp kick from the colt which was being led directly ahead.

who passed some of the ransom money recently.

2. The sum of $13,750 in bills identified as having been part of the ransom money, were found hidden in his garage.

3. He answers in a general way the description given by "Jafsie" of the man to whom he paid the ransom.

4. His handwriting has been found to tally with that on ransom notes written in the Lindbergh case.

5. He is by trade a carpenter—an important point because the ladder used by the baby kidnappers seemed to point to the fact that its owner had made it himself.

6. He formerly worked at Hopewell, near the Lindbergh home, and had access to a lumber company where could be obtained the lumber of the peculiar marking that was noted in the wood used in the kidnappers' ladder.

No Work, Plenty of Money

7. Hauptmann has not worked at his trade since about the time of the kidnapping, yet appeared to have money to meet his expenses easily.

8. He is understood to have entered the United States illegally, as a stowaway 11 years ago while on parole from a German prison camp.

Hauptmann insists he knows nothing about the origin of the money found in his possession.

He told Bronx questioners this morning that he got the money about three weeks ago 'from a man named "Fish." "Fish" has since died, Hauptmann added.

The reason the money was concealed in his garade—under the floor and in the sash of the door—Hauptmann said, was because he "had no confidence in banks."

Since Hauptmann's arrest Tuesday morning he has been constantly questioned, first by New York police, then by New Jersey state police (who are directing the hunt for the baby killer), then by Federal agents (whom former President Hoover told to "make the Lindbergh kidnapping a live and neverto-be-forgotten case"), and finally by Bronx officers.

Story Said to Differ

In this uninterrupted interrogation Hauptmann's story has changed in several respects, officers said. His reticence has been a shield against questioners, who nevertheless have found pertinent points at variance with known facts, they say.

The story of getting the money from 'a man named Fish", for instance, contradicted an earlier story he is said to have told that he got the money from a bank. A check at the bank failed to substantiate his story.

"Jafsie," who now is 74 years old, spent many hours yesterday and last night with officers. He spent more than an hour early to-day closeted with Hauptmann and District Attorney Foley at the Bronx court house. When he left he had failed to make positive identification of the suspect as the man to whom he paid the ransom money.

The Gold Certificate.

The importance that past figures have played in the Lindbergh case was emphasized in the events that led to Hauptmann's arrest. He tendered a gold certificate to a gas station attendant in payment for gasoline. The rarity of gold certificates since the bills were called in by President Roosevelt several months ago, aroused the interest of the station attendant, and he jotted the man's automobile license numbers down on the bill.

The gold certificate was taken to a bank and its serial number was checked against the list of bills that made up the ransom payment. Thus it was found that the bill was part of the ransom money, and police were notified.

The license number was traced to Hauptmann. Picked detectives were put on his trail. The surveillance for days was disappointing. Hauptman did nothing to arouse the officers' suspicions.

On Tuesday morning, however, he left his house, a two story Bronx dwelling, and the officers believed that Hauptmann had suspected he was being watched and that he was bent on getting away.

They arrested him and found another of the ransom bills on his person.

Hauptmann was locked up and immediately put on the grill of police interrogation. His wife, Anna—like himself, a German—also was taken for questioning.

With the recovery of the $13,750 in the Hauptmann garage, there still is approximately $31,000 of the ransom payment unaccounted for. Futher search of the Hauptmann premises is under way to-day.

MILLBROOK

An Institute branch meeting on Friday evening, had as guest speaker the sister of the hostess, an active social service worker in Toronto, who by special request gave an interesting talk on "Conversation versus Chatter."

A general smile went round the group when the title of the address was announced, and one lady remarked audibly: "I suppose now we are in for a slam on gossip," but the speaker answered "No; but a hostess who really extends hospitality and a good time finds her guests leaving with a sense almost of intoxication of mind and spirit from the stimulating exchange of ideas, and the genuine conversation that has characterised her dinner table, or social evening. 'A delicious warmth of heart' is the way I heard one lady term it."

"When conversation degenerates into mere gossip our entertaining of guests, or of our own family, becomes simply commonplace, and the inner life suffers a decided slump. Real conversation is the product of a well-stored mind, and the result of intercourse with society, of knowledge of current events (so spend fifteen minutes at least with the papers each day) and of the great writer of all times. Did it ever occur to you that a hobby of the right sort, and well followed, makes a fruitful source of conversation, providing one does not ride it so hard that you are labelled a bore. A hobby of my own, taken up during a lengthy period of ill-health and consequent 'rest cure' was to collect and memorize quotations from poets and authors. It has since helped me out many a time when I have met celebrities and had to 'make' conversation until we found a topic of mutual interest upon which to talk, and quite often some line or two quoted was the starting-point for a delightful 'talk fest' together."

"In this day of the cocktail shaker people chatter, as a result of imbibing alcohol, I fully realize that I am risking unpopularity by that statement, but it is absolutely true. Theodore Roosevelt once said, during a social drinking period: "There isn't a thought in a hogshead of alcohol; there isn't an idea in a whole brewery. Nothing of merit has ever been written, or done, under the inspiration of alcohol, because it stupifies without invigorating, and its effect upon the brain is to stagnate thought." And yet not long since I heard one woman say to another, "Do you drink cocktails because you like them?" "No," was the reply, "but when I am going out for an evening I don't want to be dumb, and after a gin cocktail I am just full of pep and conversation." She failed to state, what I had already noticed through meeting her several times at social affairs, that later in the evening she became dull and stupid, unless she had had more cocktails when her talk was just silly chatter, or worse."

"If your home is to be a centre of culture and intellectual life, you cannot afford to offer artificial stimulation—be too proud, and self-sufficient, to admit dependence on such things for giving your family, or your guests, entertainment. Learn to know people and find out what they are interested in, and then you have a point of contact that will make conversation just flow along, and there will not be a dull moment when you entertain, or are entertained, and everyone will carry away a charming impression of your home, and your personality. It really is more of a social achievement to-day in the American capital to provide entertainment of a stimulating character without cocktail, or highballs, than with them. I have that information from an intimate friend who does newspaper work at Washington."

"Conversation of an inspiring character never lags if the hostess, or the homemaker, has the gift, naturally or cultivated, of 'blending' her family or her guests happily quickening interest in local projects, Institute activities, world news, and advancing ideals for public servce. Study to improve your conversational powers in the spirit of a great adventure, or of good sportsmanship, so that round your table, or in your family circle, whether guests are present or not, there is talk of a 'building' character that imposs to knowledge acquired in order to keep up their end when mother 'starts the conversational ball rolling'. It is not wise, often, to deliberately snub the one who brings out some morsel of gossip but to be clever enough to turn the talk in another channel, and the former thing will be forgotten in the new idea suggested."

The thanks of the members were warmly tendered the speaker, the one regret being lack of time for a lengthier pursuance of the fascinating topic.

GOT FAT ON LIGHT WORK

Then Took 6 Inches Off His Waist With Kruschen

Here's a man who soon found that there was at least one drawback to having an easy job—it made him fat. He writes:—

"Lately, having a light job, after being used to heavy work for years, I began to put on weight. I used to weigh ordinarily 163 lbs., but after about two years on my present job, I weighed 204 lbs. Now, after about twelve months taking half a teaspoonful of Kruschen in hot water every morning, I weigh 166 lbs., and I can bend about like I used to before. I may say I do not diet myself, but eat the same as I always have been used to. I am at least six inches smaller round the waist."—E. F.

The "little daily dose" of Kruschen Salts keeps the organs functioning properly every day, and fills you with such a feeling of radiant vitality and vigor that before you know it you are fairly alive with energy, instead of moping around—and reduction follows as a matter of course.

STEVENS DENIES BEING HYPOCRITE

ens reiterated his determination to see the inquiry to a finish and to press for legislation next session to remedy the evils.

Mr. King, he said, now claimed to have known about sweat-shops since 1896, and said the problem of bad industrial conditions had been the passion of his life. "What," asked the minister, had Mr. King been doing in 36 years? Why should Mr. King accuse another man of being a traitor and a hypocrit for speaking out where he had kept silent."

Further revelations were promised in connection with the inquiry. Mr. Stevens said not one tenth of the story had been told. He cited a few instances of low wages and went on to farm products. Low prices for livestock, he said, laid at the doors of the packers. He had stepped on no one's toes by speaking out unless it had been the people who had made $1,500,000 last year while paying farmers four cents a pound for choice steers.

An Active Government

The Bennett Government, he maintained, had at least not been idle in the face of the country's difficulties, as its Liberal predecessor had been. It had, through the Empire Trade Pacts, secured markets for Canadian products. It had enacted a democratic marketing measure, established a new central banking system and was now grappling with the problems arising out of the price spreads investigation.

During all this time, not a single constructive suggestion had come from the Liberals. If Mr. King had any suggestions in connection with sweatshops, he was ready to listen to them, he said.

To accomplish anything, however, one had to prove one's case, and the only assistance "Mr. King and his crowd" had to offer was obstruction and abuse.

AN ENCOURAGING REPORT.

The most satisfactory feature about the latest returns on Canada's trade is the fact that the increase of $16,500,000 reported for August was due entirely to the gain in trade with countries of the British Empire.

According to figures issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, there was a gain of $11,123,000 or 60 per cent. in exports to British countries, while trade with the rest of the world showed a decline of 2 per cent.

To practically every Empire country there were larger exports, with trade with the United Kingdom setting the pace so far as volume was concerned, but with the greatest percentage increase found in exports to British South Africa and to the Straits Settlement.

One interesting feature of world trade that appears in the statement is the fact that while exports to the United States during August revealed a decrease of 3 per cent., the total being $17,251,000, increased exports went to Argentina, Belgium, Brazil, Denmark, France, Japan, Mexico, San Domingo and a number of other countries.

The August statement is in every respect an encouraging one—and the gains shown in trade with the British Empire demonstrates once again that the Ottawa trade pacts are continuing to play an important part in providing for Canada's producers a market for their wares at a time when world trade in general has been far below its normal mark.

FALSE ALARMS.

Chief Gimblett's anxiety to find the identity of the individual who turned in a false alarm from a fire box in the business section the other night—the second occurrence of the kind recently—is easy to understand.

In the first place, such a call involves a great deal of unnecessary work on the part of the fire department as all alarms from the business section mean that the whole department and all the apparatus is rushed to the scene.

In addition to this inconvenience, there is always the danger that while the brigade is away on a wild goose chase, a genuine alarm from some other section of the city might come in and there would necessarily be a delay in responding.

The main reason, however, for seeking to eliminate the pest of false alarms is that in these days of motorized fire appliances and heavy motor traffic, the danger of an accident is always present every time a run is made, and while the firemen accept the risk as part of their duties when there is real need of their services, they have a natural objection to running risks just because some hare-brained individual with a distorted sense of humor thinks it a good joke to pull a fire alarm box and call out the department.

There is a heavy fine for this offence, and it is to be hoped that the magistrate will soon have a chance to inflict it upon the person who has been tampering with alarm boxes in this city.

WILL BALANCE THE BUDGET.

That Canada at the end of the present fiscal year will be able to show a "balanced budget" on ordinary expenditure is the cheery prediction of Financial Counsel in commenting upon the gains in federal revenue in recent months.

Financial Counsel points out that the revenues of the Dominion arising out of taxation continue to show substantial increases month by month.

While it is true that August slipped back a little in relative gains, being up $1,427,568 as compared with a combined increase in the four proceeding months of $19,325,469 or an average of $4,831,000 per month, the financial paper submits that this is only natural in view of the sharp upturn in business and Dominion revenue that developed this time last year.

It seems probably, however, declares the article, that in the remaining seven months of the fiscal year increase in federal revenue will run from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000, making the gain for the entire year from $30,000,000 to $35,000,000.

"What is the significance of this in determining a national policy for Canada?" asks Financial Counsel. "Balancing the budget is an official but highly-important phase of the national situation. Canada's foreign trade during the past year or so has improved remarkably and general business is recovering steadily and decisively. No strike of labor of any magnitude exists in Canada. It is pardonable perhaps for Canadians to feel a certain amount of satisfaction, indeed, at the absence in this country of industrial upheavals and general business and financial uncertainty that appear to be developing on an increasing scale in the United States—while in most directions the percentages of recovery stand far ahead of corresponding business indices of the U. S."

HOW IT IS WORKING OUT.

There is naturally great interest in the subject of industrial codes in Ontario, particulars of which are to be brought down shortly, Attorney-General Roebuck has announced.

A minimum wage law for men is championed by many workers, and just as vigorously assailed by others, who declare that a minimum wage law usually becomes a maximum wage measure.

There is another angle to the question, too, that should not be overlooked, namely the effect of such legislation upon industry.

In this connection the Vancouver Sun, a staunch supporter of the Pattullo administration in British Columbia, points out the disadvantages of a minimum wage law as it has worked out in that province.

Noting that Premier Pattullo is congratulating himself upon the fact that the legislation he introduced has added half a million dollars to the monthly pay-roll of British Columbia, the Sun admits that the measure has added a much needed element of protection to the employees' set-up.

"However," says the Sun, "if the law has increased the wages of certain employees, it has just as noticeably thrown many out of work. And in many cases thrown business out of business.

"All over the city," declares the Vancouver paper, "little side-street stores that were just getting along by handing out a few dollars a week to their clerks and assistants have been forced to close their doors or do all the work themselves.

"What British Columbia needs," it adds, "is not a bit of bookkeeping jugglery that shoves up a few salaries by throwing fellow-employees out on the street and putting employers into bankruptcy, but a program of public works that will create new employment on a big scale throughout the province."

In this coast criticism we submit there is food for thought on the part of the Ontario Government before it commits itself to a policy that may prove a boomerang.

THE DAY'S WORK.

Shouting "Let's get the militia!" a crowd estimated at more than 2,000 started a wild battle with 250 National Guardsmen . . . at least two men and a woman of 76 were shot in the legs . . . that brings the total number shot up to seven.

Additional troops were ordered out to-day as the governor had been informed fresh trouble would start to-morrow.

More than 1,200 pickets in sixty trucks descended on Kannapolis this morning . . . they were met by deputies and troopers armed to the teeth with rifles and machine guns . . . they did not stay long.

A number of children in the mill districts are staying home from school because parents are afraid to have them on the streets alone.

Representatives of the workers and manufacturers sat in almost continuous session for two days in New York, and at the end of that time announced they had made no progress.

The extracts given above were taken from an issue of the New York Times where columns are given each day to the progress of the textile strike in United States.

There was a time when a day's work in the cotton mills would consist of making something useful. The raw cotton would be advanced toward the completed article so that those who needed it could be provided for.

Now the day's work is different. It consists of picking up people who have been shot, or attending to deputies who have been struck with rocks, or of seeing to it that the children are not allowed to go out on the streets.

It is apparent, too, that to some people the day's work had consisted of making certain that greater production was secured for less money . . . the average rate of pay for a textile worker is $10.86 per week . . . and while all this is going on there no doubt are devout people who are praying God's blessing on the missionaries who go from United States to teach Christianity to heathen nations.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

SMALLER CITIES BEST.

The advantages which smaller cities possess in comparison with the larger centres is again emphasized by the report of the Slum Clearing the House Committee presented recently to the Trades and Labor Congress at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto.

For some months this committee headed by the Hon. Dr. H. A. Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor, has been studying the housing conditions in Toronto, and its report indicates a serious problem demanding strong and courageous action. It has been found that many of the dwellings occupied by the poor are lacking in even the elementary amenities and are unfit for human habitation. Many of these houses are situated in blighted areas suffering from unsanitary environment, causing a heavy health and social problem. A lack of suitable dwellings has resulted in unsanitary and unsocial overcrowding, and fully 25,000 new homes will be needed when fuller employment conditions return. It is added that many tenants cannot afford to pay rents high enough to provide them with decent houses even when the heads of families are employed. Existing legislation is ineffective in dealing with the slum problem, and it is suggested that a new town plan be adopted, under a permanent town planning commission, to lay out schemes for development of housing which would conform with a master plan to cover the needs of the whole city.

Slums are a great evil to any community. They represent a need for huge expenditures in social and religious effort. They are a menace to the health of the whole community. Squalor produces dissatisfaction and degradation, ignorance and vice.

They are found only in the larger cities of the land, due to overcrowding of population. There seems to be an uncontrollable desire to migrate to the big centres in search of success, and this means that under depressed conditions such as we have gone through for the past few years deplorable conditions are established. Even under normal conditions, this excess of population constitutes a problem which it is almost impossible to handle successfully.

One of the reasons for it is, the tendency of industrialists to seek locations in big cities. This is a great mistake even from the standpoint of industry. In all of the smaller cities of Ontario, and especially in Chatham, there are complete facilities for success in industry without these drawbacks of slums which produce dissatisfied labor, inefficient, under-nourished and diseased workmen, ignorance and degradation which destroys competence—and all of the other unfortunate features which place a handicap upon industrial success.

Toronto is a wonderful city, and the pride of the people of Ontario, but, in the past, too much attention has been paid to rapid growth, which has exceeded the ability of that city to keep pace, in the matter of proper surroundings for decent and contented living. Big cities are desirable only when adequate conveniences for proper living keep pace with growth.

Just at the present time there seems to be a revival of industry in this country. Industrialists will be looking for opportunities to expand and they would be wise, in their own interests and also the interests of the workmen from whom they expect co-operation, to consider the advantages of the smaller cities, such as Chatham.—Chatham Daily News.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Belleville folks are probably quite content to let Detroit keep Schoolboy Rowe as long as they have Chief Johnny Williams.

Mr. Stevens seems to be the centre figure in the by-elections as voting day draws near. The Minister of Trade and Commerce has undoubtedly stirred things up.

Unless all provinces agree upon a common policy in regard to industrial codes it cannot be expected that Ontario on its own initiative will do anything drastic along this line.

ON THIS DATE
A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY
By Red Williams

RECIPROCITY EIGHTY YEARS AGO.

On this date, in 1854, a bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Canada to ratify the treaty for reciprocity with the United States which had been negotiated at Washington by Lord Elgin, the governor general. The situation was peculiar. All previous attempts by the British provinces to secure better trade relations from Washington had failed, but Elgin went down to the American capital, spent money lavishly on banquets and receptions at the British embassy; and, it is rumored, handed out large sums for propaganda, some of which may have got into the pockets of some of the legislators. Anyway the governor succeeded where the politicians had failed, and Hon. Francis Hincks not only adopted the viceregal baby, but adopted it as his own and took the credit for it.

The Canadian Legislature had asked the British government to secure a reciprocity treaty as early as 1849; Hincks went to Washington in 1850 and secured favorable treatment from the House but could make no headway with the Senate. Where he failed Elgin and his champagne and his slush fund succeeded and for ten years, from March 17, 1855, there was a steady flow of trade across the border to the benefit of the farmers of all the four provinces, but to the detriment of British traders who protested that their trade with Canada was badly hit.

There is no doubt that when the United States gave notice of abrogation of the treaty in 1865, it believed it could starve Canada into annexation, but were mistaken. Instead it aided the confederation movement. Since then Canada has stood on her dignity, willing to trade with the States, but only on fair terms.

The secret history of the negotiations for the treaty of 1854 read like a romance of bribery and propaganda. The Americans paid out money lavishly at the start; the Canadians did the same later; it was a harvest time for the lobbyists and the statesmen with itching palms and no credit to either country.

What's in The NAME of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

LUNENGURG, N.S.

This port of the greatest fishing fleet on the continent and the home of the champion schooner, Bluenose, was at one time the site of an Indian encampment and afterwards a French fishery post. Between 1751 and 1753, 200 families from Luneberg, Hanover, were induced to settle in the district. In June, 1753, they founded the town which received the name of the old town in the fatherland. But for some unaccountable reason the spelling of the name was changed to its present form with the passage of years.

The town is 65 miles from Halifax and 174 miles from Yarmouth, and abounds in ancient history.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

I . . . I . . . I

I like to do the right thing, but I don't like to nudge into doing it.

What I like to remember about one little girl is her sweet amazement that first time she saw an orchestra making music. She amused an entire restaurant with her delight.

Whenever I see the ocean after I have been away from it for a while, I think of the first time I ever saw it, and I know how those old Greek soldiers felt when they shouted "The Sea! The Sea!" . . . Joy flooded them and their hearts were like to burst.

When I was a kid, I used to visit 36 saloons once a month to collect for newspaper subscriptions. . . . No bartender ever tried to get me to take a drink.

My secret hero in those days was the town gambler.

The only time I ever have any "inspirations" is when I'm sitting in front of a typewriter and trying hard to think of one.

If I close my eyes and think of war, I remember a sunny morning in France and the stink of a battlefield and I see a thousand men in horizon blue, blinded by gas, stumbling through the fields helping each other back from the horror of the front line—and nobody helping them.

I haven't a sense of humor.

I have never taken my own temperature. (I can't read a fever thermometer).

Theoretically I haven't much faith in doctors. Actually, I believe nearly everything they say to me.

I do not believe there is such a thing as Conscience. (Then what is it that makes me unhappy, when my memory rakes out of the past something I'd rather forget? Is that Conscience or does my pride hate to remember things that do not fit in with my better opinion of myself?)

I suspect flattery, but who am I to examine it too closely?

It takes quite a while for a baby to learn the word "I", but once he acquires it he doesn't forget it.

In ancient Rome, concrete attained a high degree of use, particularly in the walls of buildings, many of which are now in existence.

LEADERS OF LABOR

Editor of The Examiner:
Sir:

Your editorial on the unemployment insurance question is very complimentary towards the leaders and representatives of organized labor who attended the annual meeting of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress in Toronto last week. It credits them with being another proof of its sane leadership and its common sense appreciation of the problems of the day, also of being free from radicalism. Let us hope that one with the ability to give expression to their opinions is not classed as radical in the sense of the word. In quoting Milton, who says: "Give me liberty to know, to utter, and to argue freely, according to conscience above all liberties." During the Winnipeg strike of 1919 a number of its leaders who made free use of the freedom of speech were arrested. Indicted for seditious conspiracy and common nuisance, to go into detail of the above indictment would be imposing too much upon your kind and generous manner in which you provide space for the Voice of the People. I will confine myself to one of the leaders, F. J. Dixon, M.L.A., at that time, who conducted his own defence. His address to the jury in defence of freedom of speech is considered the most powerful address ever delivered in the courts of Manitoba, being acquitted of the charge, the court congratulating him on the verdict.

Leaders of organized labor, whether they be termed radical or otherwise, should at all times have the courage of their convictions hewing to the line regardless of where the chips fall and not conduct themselves as if they were sent to a love feast.

ALEX MURRAY.

SIX YEARS OF DROUGHT

The Manse, Kincaid, Sask.
September 18, 1934.

The Editor,
Dear sir:

Will you kindly print the following appeal in your esteemed and valuable paper, and so give your readers an opportunity of helping to meet the needs of the people in the drought area?

Thanking you in anticipation, I remain, gratefully yours,

Rev. J. T. Crawthrop, Minister, United Church.

Dear Reader:

For the sixth successive year this district has experienced drought and consequently, crop failure. Our Minister of Agriculture, Hon. J. G. Taggart, says this is the worst year since the drought commenced. Can you visualize what this means to people who have passed through these six years to meet each year with worn out farm machinery, with inadequate clothing and bedding, and with many things in the home in need of replacement? It has been a heart breaking experience this past summer after such a promising start to see the crops wither and burn up under the scorching July sun.

The outlook for the future seems dark, and unless rains come this fall what hope is there for a crop in 1935? Sloughs are drying up, wells are giving out and many farmers are hauling water for miles to keep their stock alive. But we are people who live in HOPE, and we hope to be able to carry on until better times come, for surely the drought cannot last much longer.

For the past five years I have been engaged in relief work, and during these years have received help from many parts of Canada which I distributed to the needy people of this district. Last year much clothing, food and Christmas gifts to children were distributed; and were greatly appreciated by those who received them.

We are again planning to carry on our work and I am again appealing to you for help to carry on this most necessary work. We shall not soon forget all that the kind people of Canada have done for us during the past five years and it is this generous help which we have received in the past that makes me confident to make this further appeal.

It is impossible for me to describe the condition of many people in the drought area but the least that can be said is that the condition is a most desperate one and it is through no fault of their own that the people are faced with such hard times.

Will you kindly remember our work in your prayers, and if it is possible for you to assist us with money, used clothing, and Christmas gifts for children, will you kindly do so?

Thanking you in anticipation of your sympathy and help,

I remain, gratefully yours,
Rev. J. T. Crawthrop,
Minister, United Church.

DEFENDS LANDLORDS

To the Editor of The Examiner.
Dear Fellowman

Now that the landlord grievances have been raised I would like to put in a word of explanation. The letter the other night spoke of "half-wits" but it is because they see ahead where all their hard-earned savings are going after taking care not to spend a cent foolishly while the great majority on relief spent as it was earned regardless of the future. Now about accepting relief rent, which you say covers taxes and a half I think I can safely say three-quarters of people supposed to be owning houses have mortgages, the interest on which equals or exceeds the amount of taxes, then we have insurance on buildings and repairs which include plumbing bills, a new roof occasionally and hundreds of smaller items. Now add to that the loss of from two months to a year of back rent where the landlord has been good natured enough to leave the tenant in the hope he may get work. Just here I don't mean from people on relief but from a tenant who refused to pay or apply for relief. Personally I have lost around $100 three different times from tenants moving out after getting behind six months or so. Where is the income for unemployed landlords to live on. From the tone of the letter from "Wife of Unemployed" I say it was written by a sensible woman but there are so many dishonest and out-to-do the owner of the house if humanly possible. Let us both deal honestly with one another and try to make this a better world to live in. More landlords die from worry from dealing with unreasonable tenants that unemployed die for want of food or other necessaries.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS
By H. W. L. MAHOOD

CALIFORNIA, Upton Sinclair

The press in the United States is in an uproar. The press in the large is conservative. Once in a while a radical newspaper wins the attention of the public. Folks soon get fed up on radicalism. The conservative press throughout the United States is hurling rocks at Upton Sinclair. It is out to organize a national combine to defeat him at the November election. If he did not have a fifty-fifty chance to be elected there would not be such a stir among the die-hards. The problem for the conservative element is to find a man strong enough to carry the state. He must command the support of both Republicans and Democrats. Certain it is that neither a Democratic candidate nor a Republican has a chance against Sinclair. The majority of the Democrats are in favor with the Sinclair candidacy. He polled more votes in the primary than all his opponents combined. California is Democratic rather than Republican. The outlook is that while he will lose some conservative Democrats, some progressive Republicans will espouse his cause.

California is in politics more fluid than the Eastern states. Especially the Republicans are committed to a program of social legislation. Hiram Johnson has been an outstanding progressive. California under his leadership has for some years been in transformation from old line conservative to a new alignment with more progressive ideals.

The question has been raised: "What new progressive legislation can he give the people?" He proposes a sales tax. To bring about the Epic Plan by constitutional procedure. Would prevent any strikes. "Give me six months to get the plan under way and take the unemployed off the market, and then you won't have to strike."

What He Claims.

Our opponents have told you that we cannot put this plan through. Let me answer this, thus: If you should give me a chance to end poverty in California, and if I should fail to do it, life would mean nothing to me thereafter. All that I have taught all through the years would be without meaning. Believe me, I shall not fail. Stick by me and we together shall not fail. We shall give a job to every man and woman in the state who is able and willing to work, and it will be a job with modern machinery and modern technique, whereby those who work will produce wealth in great quantities.

Upton Sinclair,
Pasadena, California.

Upton Sinclair is building on the prospect of taking over all the idle land and the idle factories. They will be operated by the unemployed. The products will be distributed among the needy. California has but few factories. Still, there are a considerable number of them. At present they are operating below capacity. New factories would be built. They would be built for the people. The revenue would be for the communities.

Nearly two-thirds of the California surface is idle. Most of the idle land is mountain or desert. The desert can be turned into profitable property. Give it plenty of water and the barren will blossom into plenty. It has the climate. Desert and climate and water united give back rich reward. Italian mountain sides are covered with terraced vineyards. California mountain sides are just as full of promise.

If California was not as full of discontent there would be no opening in the political realm for Upton Sinclair. California has been held to be ultra-conservative. If that was true it would be sign that harmony with the present order of things prevailed.

Social Discontent.

The victory of Sinclair is evidence of the deep discontent pervading the state. The violence meted out to the strikers during and after the walk-out reacted to the advantage of labor. During the strike the utmost was done to discredit the striker. Toughs and roughnecks were hired to start trouble. If anyone was hurt the blame was put on the strikers. Tactics of this kind have been practised by employers in other strikes Investigation has brought to light that in Milwaukee the strikers were wrongfully blamed for all the casualties. The majority of the people took the part of labor. At the primary election they voted for Sinclair. They will vote for him at the November election for Governor.

If labor weeds out of its ranks all Communists and violent radicals, the employer must come to just terms with the employee. And predatory capital will be compelled to capitulate. Force is slow to yield. The employee has been the victim of intimidation. Coercion has made him defiant. No self-respecting person will give in. Human nature has been built out of just rights. Right in all industries has reached its day. The adjustment is not an easy task. The way will be found. Christianity points the way. The solution is to be found in the religious conception of life. The solution is there and it is nowhere else to be found. Even the Socialism of Upton Sinclair does not hold the secret.

Should Sinclair win at the November election, the American people will have in hand an engaging experiment. Can he succeed? Can any man without cohesive support reform a state? Are the people of California in the mood to go the length purposed by Sinclair? Will he com promise? If he does not what?

Alabama, like most of the other southern states, is pre-eminently agricultural.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping points—Wheat, 97c to 99c; oats, 35c to 36c; barley, 50c to 54c; corn, 85c to 86c; rye, 55c to 57c; buckwheat, 55c to 56c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Broader buying power went hand in hand with higher prices here yesterday for gains, a result largely of right-about-face action of European markets.

Abrupt upturns of wheat quotations at Liverpool in particular were attributed to a natural rally after a decline of eight cents there in the last nine days. Word that fully 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been taken yesterday for shipment overseas was also a strengthening influence, together with Canadian harvest delays because of wintry conditions.

Wheat in Chicago closed firm at nearly the day's top level, ⅞c to 1⅛c above Thursday's finish, Dec. new $1.04¼ to $1.04⅛, corn 1¼c to 1⅜c up, oats ⅝c to 1¼c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5 cents.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Eggs and potatoes decline in price on the Montreal produce and dairy market yesterday. Cheese quotations also tended easier, while butter was unchanged in price. Graded shipments of eggs in cartons or less were quoted at 26 cents a dozen for "A" large, as compared with 27 to 29 cents; 26 cents for "A" medium, as compared with 25 to 27 cents; 21 cents for "B," and 19 to 19½ cents for "C." Receipts were 902 cases.

On the cheese market, Ontario colored brought 9¾ to 10¼ cents a pound, against 10 to 10⅛ cents, while Quebec cheese was 9¾ to 9¼ cents a pound, in comparison with 9½ cents straight. Arrivals totalled 1,853 boxes.

Fresh No. 1 butter was again quoted at 19¾ cents a pound in cartons or less. To retailers small lots were 20¼ cents a pound for solids and 21¼ cents for prints. Receipts totalled 1,003 boxes.

New Quebec potatoes declined in price, No. 1 grade being 35 to 45 cents per 80 pound bag, as compared with 40 to 50 cents. Old stock continued to bring 20 to 25 cents per 80 pound bag.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Heavy Canadian export sales and wide gains at Liverpool yesterday ran Winnipeg Grain Exchange wheat futures up for net gains of ¾c to ⅞c.

Top levels were not maintained, but the close was firm, with October wheat at 83½c, December at 83½c, and May at 87⅝c. Maximum gains were about 1¼c, but a light selling flurry near the close pared the advance.

Hedging pressure accounted for most of the selling orders, with export interests the only noticeable buyers. Trading reached only moderate volume.

The rally at Liverpool and Buenos Aires, where extreme weakness has been displayed for some days, was the turning point in the Winnipeg price trend. The English market closed 1⅜d to 1⅝d higher.

Cash grain spreads gained fractions, and coarse grains advanced in sympathy with strength in outside markets.

ESSEX COUNTY TURNKEY GIVEN 6 MONTHS' TERM

SANDWICH, Ont., Sept. 21 (C.P.). — Gordon Pillon, suspended head turnkey at Essex County Jail, was sentenced to-day to six months' determinate and six months' indeterminate in Guelph Reformatory, after conviction yesterday on a charge of manslaughter. Remi Van Leare died last month as a result of facial infection caused by blows struck by Pillon in a quarrel in a local restaurant which continued in the Sandwich police station.

Evidence showed that Van Leare was intoxicated and had been creating a disturbance. Mr. Justice Hope told the accused that he had changed his mind on the extent of punishment after hearing character testimony from local citizens.

PROGRESS OF DIAMOND DRILLING ON ARCADIA

The present hole has reached a depth of 620 feet and has cut a new ore zone not in evidence on the surface showing a width of approximately 15 feet. Many narrow dykes of acid porphyry were evidenced in the core.

Mr. Douglas C. H. Wright, Consulting Engineer for the Company, has reported the foregoing, and expresses himself as quite pleased with the progress to date.

The new ore body discovered adds materially to the information previously given out on this property.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

BLAME BUDGET AS CHIEF CAUSE OF UNCERTAINTY

Secret Session Completes Financial Credo Attacking Every Detail of New System.

CAN'T TAX WAY.

Declare Continued Debasement of Dollar Threatens Greater Business Collapse.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (CP).—More than 100 financial experts and industrial leaders, after conferring in utmost secrecy, have completed a financial credo which attacks practically every detail of the monetary program of the Roosevelt administration, according to the Herald Tribune today.

Meeting Sept. 12, 13 and 14 at the Lido Country club on Long Island under the auspices of the American Management Association, the group heard addresses by bankers and industrialists, then decided, according to the Tribune:

"That the continuance of a heavily unbalanced Federal budget, combined with the inconvertibility of United States money is probably the major factor in increasing business uncertainty; that the country can neither spend nor tax its way back to prosperity, and that a continued debasement of the dollar with the issuing of fiat money will threaten a collapse in business worse than anything the country has ever known."

Avert Disaster.

To avert this disaster, the conference urged the President to give assurance there will be no further debasement of the monetary standard; that it will be the intention to stabilize the dollar as near to the old par as practicable; that paper and silver money be again made convertible into gold, with all restrictions on the private holding of gold removed; that all silver legislation passed by the recent congress shall be repealed at the next session, and that the so-called "Inflation" or "Thomas" Act, which gave the President such broad discretionary powers in money matters shall also be repealed.

The formal statement had been intended only for the eyes of the 3,000 members of the American Management Association and was specially marked "confidential", but it became known today that Col. M. C. Rorty, president of the association, had an appointment with Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., to discuss the contents of the report, and so it was decided to disclose its contents.

HEAVY VOLUME IN FEW GOLDS

Mining Board is Draggy With Losses About Equalling Gains on Day.

SILVER FIRM.

TORONTO, Sept. 21 (CP).—Although the gold shares continued to hold the main interest with volume heavy in a half dozen of the development issues and in Teck Hughes and Hollinger, the mining board as a whole presented a somewhat draggy appearance. Gains and losses were about equally divided in the golds, while Base Metal and Oils were barely steady and the silver stocks firm.

Lake Shore encouraged the market by rising to a new all-time high mark, at 58.25. Teck Hughes, after selling down to a new bottom for the year at 4.16, firmed to close at 4.35 for a net loss of 10 cents. Bralorne advanced 65 cents and Wright Hargreaves added 5 cents, while small recessions were registered for Hollinger, Dome and Pioneer.

LATE DEALINGS BRING ADVANCES

Merchandising Shares Lead Upward Swing During Afternoon on Wall Street.

GENERAL GAINS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (AP).—Stocks moved forward under a moderate increase in trading today. Advances of one to around three points predominated in the late dealings. The upward trend got under way in the forenoon, with merchandising shares leading. Spiegel-May-Stern rose more than 5 points. Du Pont gained 3, while U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Celanese and Sears Roebuck were up 1 to 2. Transfers approximated 700,000 shares.

Canadian shares traded quietly. Dome and International Nickel were fairly even, while McIntyre improved fractionally. On the curb, Lake Shore advanced a major fraction. Dominion Government bonds were steady. The Canadian dollar was unchanged at 103 1-8 cents.

Shares of Spiegel-May-Stern jumped about 5 points, while Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward and Marshall Field advanced a point or so each. Johns-Manville, American Woollen Preferred and U. S. Smelting gained 2 each, and others, up fractionally to more than a point, included American Telephone, U. S. Steel, American Can, Consolidated Gas, Chrysler, General Motors and Du Pont.

It costs $3.72 to produce a ton of coal at South Wales mines, and only $2.72 in Northumberland and Scotland.

Obituary

GEORGE ALEXANDER BARRIE.

HASTINGS, Sept. 21 (Examiner Correspondence). — Death yesterday removed one of Asphodel Township's most prominent farmers in the person of Mr. George Alexander Barrie.

The late Mr. Barrie, who was injured when struck by a train a few years ago, had not been in real good health for some time, but he had only been confined to his bed the past four weeks.

The deceased, who was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Barrie, pioneer farmers of Dummer township, was born on November 12, 1863. In 1893 he married Miss Sarah Longmuir. Since coming to Asphodel twenty-five years ago, Mr. Barrie made a host of friends who were greatly shocked to hear of his death.

There is left to mourn his loss his sorrowing widow, six daughters and two sons: Mrs. Don Cameron and Mrs. T. Cardwell, of Westwood, Miss Florence Barrie, of Toronto, Misses Helen and Kathleen, teachers at Roseneath; and Mary at home; Earl, of Detroit and Jack at home.

Also left to mourn the loss of a brother are two sisters and one brother, Mrs. Todd, of Manitoba, Mrs. Baptie, of Lakefield and Mr. Tom Barrie, of Campbellford.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon with services at the family residence at two o'clock.

Interment will be made in Westwood Cemetery.

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

ADULT EDUCATION NOT WHOLLY FOR UNDERPRIVILEGED PERSON

W. J. Dunlop, Director of Extension Work, Addresses Kiwanis Club.

AID IS SOUGHT.

A plea for assistance in the promotion of adult educational work in Peterborough was voiced by W. J. Dunlop, director of extension work in Toronto University in an address to Kiwanians at luncheon to-day.

"My subject is 'education'," Mr. Dunlop said. "It may seem a dry one but it shouldn't be dry. It is a field in which organizations such as Kiwanians can take an active interest with great profit to their communities."

Speaking particularly of adult education, Mr. Dunlop explained that the present move in the direction of adult education has not particularly the underprivileged adult as its object. The college graduate, himself, can benefit. Our object is to gather into groups persons with common interests in order that profitable discussion and authoritative instruction may be afforded, he said.

Some Pioneer Features

The University of Toronto is not the pioneer in extension educational work, the speaker continued. It has, however, introduced some pioneer features in the work. The work of the university began with the provision of instruction for school teachers, making it possible for them to improve their standings through extra-mural study. The establishment of night classes for working men in a number of different centers followed and the move met an enthusiastic welcome. Extension classes for the general public are a later development in the general scheme, he said.

"The object of the university is to carry out its responsibilities as a university in the widest sense. We believe we have the duty of serving not only those who come to the university but also the general public. We hope the day will come when all of us in our own home communities will be enjoying one night of instruction each week in the particular fields of our interests."

250,000 Enrolled

He estimated that a total of about 250,000 persons in Canada are now taking advantage of some other form of adult education. In Peterborough a whole-hearted response has been accorded classes provided for working men.

The university has been providing lecturers for meetings of the general public at the Y.M.C.A. during the past three years but there has been no demand from Peterborough for the regular extension classes for the general public. When there is a demand, the University will be ready to extend its work in this particular field to Peterborough, he said.

Mr. Dunlop was introduced to the club by Dr. J. J. Craig who recalled that, during a period of three years up to 1917 he held principalships in the King Edward and Queen Alexandra Schools here.

Guest artists at the luncheon ere Miss Marion Ralston and Mrs. C. Searles, Accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Searles, Miss Ralston sang "Waltz Song" and "Tommy, Lad."

SOPWITH TRIES NEW GENOA JIB

Sail Expected to Give British Better Chance With Rainbow in Light Airs.

STILL FAVORITE.

BY ANDREW MERKEL

Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEWPORT, Sept. 21.—(CP)—Endeavour left her moorings late this morning to try out her new Genoa jib, rushed to completion during the night. The new sail seemed to fit perfectly, as the challenger ghosted about in the light air.

Tomorrow she will go to the starting line better prepared to do battle with the defending Rainbow, on the wind in light breezes. Harold S. Vanderbilt, victor in yesterday's contest kept his charge at her anchorage.

The score stood two to one for T. O. M. Sopwith in his quest for the Americas Cup. As a result of yesterday's performance there seemed little doubt the blue-hulled challenger would lift the cup. Even Mr. Vanderbilt was not unduly elated over his win of yesterday richly deserved as it was. It would almost seem he realizes Sopwith has a faster boat on every point of sailing apart from close reaching in light airs.

It is now known Rainbow sailed through approximately two miles more water than Endeavour in the run down the wind in yesterday's race.

This was balanced by Endeavour's two legs to port made necessary by an ill-fitting jib and a haul in the wind. Endeavour's last five minutes tack to port to escape Rainbow's back wind, placed her just that five minutes farther away from the finish. Once she settled down on the long starboard run to the line the challenger did better in the freshening breeze and if anything gained a little. Her last mile done at a little better than an eight knot clip, misfitting genoa and all was the fastest of the day.

YOUTH IS GUILTY ON FOUR COUNTS

Ottawa Youth Resisted Arrest By Shooting at Officers.

STOLE MINISTER'S CAR.

OTTAWA, Sept. 21 (CP)—Daniel Nigra, 17, pleaded guilty before Judge E. J. Daly, in County Court, to four charges, arising out of the holdup of a drug store on August 14, and was remanded until Sept. 27 for sentence.

Nigra pleaded guilty to armed robbery at the William Blair Drug Store, theft of a $4,500 automobile belonging to Hon. Charles Murphy, shooting at Detective Edgar Kedey while resisting arrest, and shooting at R.C.M.P. Corporal Edward Tutin also while resisting arrest.

Dillinger Literature

In remanding Nigra, Judge Daly condemned the easy access youths have to firearms and expressed surprise that literature such as the Life Story of John Dillinger should be printed in Canada.

"The minimum sentence for automobile theft is one year, and I have no power to change that," Judge Daly said. The maximum for each of the other charges is life imprisonment. "I will have to give the matter a good deal of consideration," he said.

Of the 567,170 found guilty in England of criminal offenses last year about 45 per cent were guilty of traffic violations.

Sraddha was the funeral ceremony of the Hindus, in which offerings of water were made to deceased ancestors.

GAINS SPRINKLE TORONTO MART

Industrials Work to Strong Close on Rumors of Strike Settlement in States.

BANKS ARE STRONG.

TORONTO, Sept. 21 (CP).—The industrial section of the Toronto Exchange worked along to a strong close today, as rumors got about that the strike in the United States was moving towards a settlement. Distillery, oil, metal and bank shares showed almost uniform strength in the final transactions. Old country buying was reported in the banking group.

A mildly soft tone prevailed at the opening with sales slow, but in the early afternoon the bids firmed to sprinkle the board with gains. Nickel traded in good volume at a small advance and in the oils, International Petroleum made up recovered a midday recession. Imperial was a volume leader without, however, making any headway from a price angle.

Further selling of Canada Malting developed, some nervousness having been caused by the report that a new malting concern was organizing for business. The price touched 27½ before showing some recovery. The banks were all definitely strong.

Trading was heavy in International Nickel and the final price of 24 1-8 for a small gain. Brazilian was also taken in quantity at an advance, while Ford "A" and C.P.R. also moved ahead. In the last half hour Walkers Common pushed up to 26 1-4 for a gain of a point, while narrow fractional advances were registered for Industrial Alcohol "A" and Distillers Seagrams.

EXPLORER AIMS TO FIND DIARIES

real project commences. Travelling by dog team I intend to head straight for Boothia, 400 miles to the north-east on the southern tip of Boothia Peninsula."

The unnamed island where Mr. Pease hopes to make his discovery lies about 50 miles from Boothia, the north magnetic pole. To reach the island he will make his way across 50 miles of frozen sea. Those 50 miles may take four weeks of slow, painful travel, especially if the sumemr blizzard causes a holdup," he said with a smile.

"Once on the island, however, exploration work will start immediately. The island's area is about 15 by 20 miles. From a base set up in the centre I shall cover every foot of its surface, setting out for the shore line and returning with a change of direction each day.

"It is my belief," he said, "that after Franklin's ships broke up he divided his party into three sections. At a base there must be a full explanation of the tragedy, written in log books or diaries. I am prepared to remain until I find the relics, returning only to my base when supplies run short."

"ALL-BRAN WILL ALWAYS BE A PART OF MY DIET"

Delicious Cereal Corrected His Constipation

If you suffer from constipation, read this fine letter:

"I have been troubled for years with constipation. During this time, I have tried almost every known remedy. Then some one recommended eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and the proper results followed immediately.

"Since eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN each morning, there has been a general improvement in my health without the ill effects that I formerly experienced when taking laxatives. Hereafter, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will always be a part of my diet."—Mr. E. G. Himes (address furnished upon request).

Research shows Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Isn't this "cereal way" safer than risking patent medicines?

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient to relieve ordinary constipation. With each meal in serious cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Be sure to ask for Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It contains much more needed "bulk" than part-bran products. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

law into their own hands, just as they like. I think the Crown will have to pick up their evidence, but summing it all up I think the evidence warrants committing the prisoner for trial."

Fred A. Richardson, Cobourg, defence counsel, had argued that Bolejcsuk (pronounced Boleychuk, and say it fast) was not the man who killed Pete Rougouski.

"It is all guess work on the Crown's part," he declared. "The counties should not be put to needless expense in trying to convict this man on the evidence that has been submitted to Your Worship here today."

Crown Attorney Fred D. Boggs, K.C., asked for committal. The motive behind the killing had been shown in the prisoner's statement that if he did not marry Olive Romanic no one else would; that he was seen lurking around Romanic's house the night before the murder, all tended to show that the accused was following up the matter. It had also been brought out that Bolejcsuk, on Sunday, July 29, was living at the nearby home of John Sarhanuk, and that his movements and whereabouts that evening had not been accounted for. It was only a few minutes' walk from Sarahuk's to the place where the murder took place, there were not many people living in that section, and Rogouski was not known to have any enemies, with the possible exception of his rival, Bolejcsuk. Near the place where the body was found in a creek on August 22 the police picked up a rope similar to three pieces of rope of the same size which were used about the Sarhanuk farm. Marks on the body indicated that a rope of that size had been used, tightly drawn about the dead man's neck. The evidence that the prisoner had tendered a twenty dollar bill at Pontypool, that he had earned very little money during the summer, and also that the murdered man had received a twenty dollar bill late in April from Mike Romanic; these and other details, Colonel Boggs said, should influence the court in sending Bolejcsuk before the next grand jury.

Prisoner's Threat

Mrs. A. Rogouski, sister-in-law of the deceased Peter Rogouski, saw him last on Sunday July 29 at her home, where he had called to see about getting a room for himself and Olive Romanic after they were married.

Peter had told her of Dmytro demanding that he stay away from Olive.

"Peter told me Dmytro said to him, 'If you don't keep away from that girl I'll fix you up', and I said to Peter he should be careful," Mrs. Romanic recalled.

Defence counsel questioned the admissability of this evidence and asked Magistrate Campbell to direct the press not to publish it. His Worship, however, admitted the statement regarding the alleged threat.

Frank Rogouski declared that Peter had told him he had $50 on July 29. Frank was an uncle of the dead man.

Heard Screams

Mrs. Helena Vanderyegt objected to taking an oath on the bible because of some religious scruple.

"Yes is yes and no is no for me," she repeated several times and was sworn by affirmation.

She told the court that she had seen Peter Rogouski going toward Romanic's Sunday evening about six o'clock after visiting his sister-in-law. Half an hour later she sent her two boys for the cows. Pete, the elder, told his mother that he had heard some screams.

"I paid no attention to what he said, but I heard three or four screams one after the other. I paid no more notice to it."

Mrs. Vanderyegt told Mr. Richardson that she heard the screams quite plainly. They sounded like a man being choked. Mr. Argue came along about that time, but witness did not mention the screams to him.

"I didn't pay more notice because the children were there with the cows and there was some noise. I mentioned them afterwards to Constable Smith when he asked me."

Animal Frightened

Wm. Argue, farmer, informed the court that he was returning home over the road past Vanderyegt's about 7.30 p.m.

"My mare took fright suddenly at a place in the road about 10 or 15 rods east of the bridge. It was all trampled down as if four or five men had been tramping around in the road for half an hour. My mare swerved toward the south side of the road. It may have seen something in the bush on the north side."

The bridge mentioned by Mr. Argue is 185 feet from the place where the body of Rogouski was found.

John Fallis, farmer, described the search for Rogouski's body. It was found face down in the creek, covered with poles, black muck sod and small sticks. The prisoner was one of the searching party. A piece of rope was found near the creek on the following day when the coroner's jury visited the scene.

Wm. Damcyuk recalled that last April he paid Rogouski for three days' work.

"I didn't have any small change. I owed him $3.50, but the smallest bill I had was a $20 bill. He had enough to make up the difference and I gave him the $20. He said he had never seen a bill of that size before."

Paid Bill With $20

Mrs. A. McMahon, storekeeper at Pontypool, testified that on August 11 the prisoner had bought from her a pair of boots and a dress, and tendered her a $20 in payment.

"They are not as numerous as they used to be," Mrs. McMahon said. "This man stood looking at the $16.40 change I gave him and was saying something about a mistake, so I counted it over to him again."

Julie Kulchycke gave evidence of a conversation some time ago with the prisoner Bolejcyuk.

"He told me he wanted to marry Olive Romanic. I said I thought Pete Rogouski wanted to marry her.

Dmytro said to me: "Is Pete better than me. If I don't get Olive no one else will."

Fought With Prisoner

Another day we had a fight. I telephoned to Mike Romanic's house and Olive answered, so I spoke to her. Dmytro must have been listening in at Sarhanuk's or some place, and heard what I said. The next time I went to Romanic's Dmytro was there and he asked me what business of mine was it to talk to Olive. I pointed to the baby carriage Olive had. Dmytro got up and started to fight with me."

Death By Drowning

Dr. Edgar Frankish of the Attorney-General's Department, said he found marks on the front and back of the neck as if caused by a rope tightly drawn around the neck. Further examination disclosed a fracture of the larynx. Witness said that death occurred probably two hours after Rogouski's last meal. None of the bones in the head and body was broken.

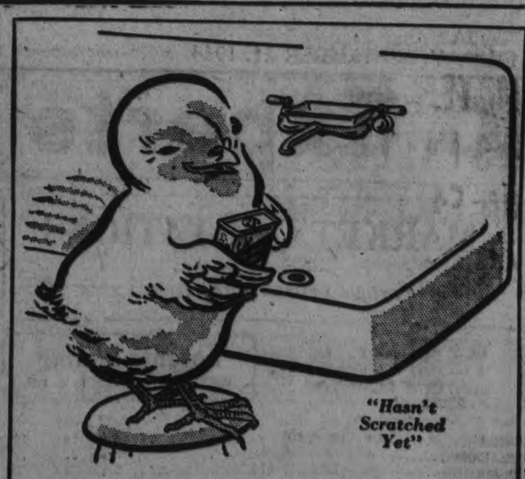
"I could not establish any cause of death other than having been drowned," Dr. Frankish said.

This opinion was based on the finding of debris in his lungs similar to material ordinarily seen in small streams. Marks also noticed below the back of the neck and near the shoulder indicated severe blows probably by a club of some kind.

Concluding witnesses were Constable Smith of Bowmanville and the members of the Sarhanuk family who were questioned about the movements of the prisoner on the Sunday afternoon of the murder. They could recall only that Bolejcsuk had tea with them in the summer kitchen, but they were not certain about the time. It was late in the afternoon. Then the accused went into the front of the house, and the Sarhanuk's were not sure whether he went out or stayed in. They did not see him again until about eight o'clock.

Sarhanuk said he engaged Dmytro (called "Mit") to work the sandy farm on shares, the accused to get one-sixth of the receipts. The only reference to cash received by the prisoner was a sum of ten dollars for his share of the hay. Any other division has been delayed because the partner had been in Cobourg jail since August 22. Yet, on August 11, "Mit" paid for boots and the cheap dress for Olive Romanic at Pontypool with a twenty dollar bill.

William Igel of Oshawa was interpreter for some of the witnesses.



"Hasn't Scratched Yet"

"You'll find no scratches where I have been . . !"

"For my job is to clean—and get done in a wink, without marring or dulling your nice kitchen sink!"

Bon Ami is different from other cleaners. It absorbs—"blots up"—the dirt instead of scratching and scraping it off as coarse, gritty materials do.

And Bon Ami does more, it leaves a beautiful polish—a nice velvet-like gloss that keeps your sink not only new-looking but easier to keep clean.

Use Bon Ami for all your household cleaning. You'll like it because it cleans so well yet is so soft and fine . . . so odorless . . . so harmless to your hands.

MOYEN AGE HAS ITS INFLUENCE ON FALL STYLES

Alice T. Williams' Character Clothes Shown in Fashion Show.

FUR AND FEATHERS.

By JEANETTE.

The Moyen Age, the great Middle Age of the world's history, has its influence on present-day fashions. The Renaissance with its gorgeous fabrics, the Directoire with its high waistline, the old Russian regime influencing tunics and Cossack hats, the monastic cowl—all have their day again as they step out in the mode of to-day.

And many of them were illustrated last evening in the showing of smart wearables which took place at Alice T. Williams' Character Clothes Shoppe to a gathering of ladies that filled to overflowing and lined the hallway of the upper showrooms.

Skirts that trail in fascinating trains for evening wear and that climb to ten and twelve inches above the floor for daytime; sleeves that bell and flare to the wrist or proceed in skin-fitting tightness to the fingertips; skirts form-fitting or with little kick pleats; coats belted and unbelted, with wide notched revers to their luxurious furred collars; decolletage for evening that covers the neckbone in front and descends to the waist behind, or taken another angle and descends in long, careful V's both ways; dull crepes and "sheeny" velvets—these are some of the highlights of the mode.

There are tricky and smart combinations and trimmings, like the sleeve slashings of white, lined faintly with gilt thread, on a black gown that had two cube buttons, black, white and gold, at the neck fastening, over a tab of black silk fringe, or the deep gilet of Roman-striped velvet with narrow cowl collar that brightened a frock of brown crepe. And doesn't this sound intriguing? A dress of black French crepe sheer with a floral design in black cellophane embroidery outlined on yoke and sleeves of net. A wide-brimmed hat of hatter's plush was worn with this, with delicate strands of uncurled ostrich laid flatly over its crown.

Furs and Feathers.

For the beguiling and fascinating feather is with us again. Many of the smart hats (which, like the equally up-to-date gloves and bags, came from the Robert Fair store), showed feather trimming, either in little sprays resembling the old-time ospreys and aigrettes, or tiny adornments of Robin Hood type on felt sport hats.

You can be severely plain this season and wear brown and white checked dresses that button at the neck, or trim three-piece suits like the one of dark brown tweed with a seven-eighths coat trimmed with collar and longbands to the hem of dark moleskin. Or you can be gorgeous, glamorous and glittering. For glistening satins are in and the smooth, "sheeny" velvets that are so flattering. And metallic cloth is beautiful this season as trimming.

One rich "hostess' frock of the popular black had a metallic top and sleeves of gilt cloth in diamond pattern, colored with scarlet and bright green panels. The clip at the corsage matched it in its scarlet, green and gilt sections.

A floral pattern in gilt and emerald green made the design of the metallic material that formed the long cuffs and deep pointed yoke of another gown.

There was a gay girlishness to the "young" dress of black crepe that showed a box-like, free-swinging effect in the back and a belted front, while a wide collar of white was finished with a bow of black and white silk.

But sophistication reigned supreme in the black crepe satin with short capelet sleeves and deep decolletage, back and front, that boasted entirely unrelieved black except for the stiff pointed girdle, like an old-time stomacher, that was encrusted heavily with steel beads. Black bugle beads and silk braiding, along with looped silk fringe, were trimmings of other black frocks, while solid sequins in red and silver, in lovers' knot pattern, formed the exquisite trimming on the bell sleeves of georgette on a frock of rust color.

Soft Velvets.

Black velvet for evening was demonstraed in several lovely models, one with a train and floating straps from the shoulders to the waist at the back having tiny gilt bars sprinkled over the bodice portion.

Brown velvet and French claret velvet made striking dinner gowns with long sleeves and a modish combination of black and white was developed with a bolero-like jacket of black with flaring revers embroidered solidly in cellophane and opening over a blouse of heavy white crepe.

A new idea in alpaca crepe, which is like parchment in its suede-like finish, was braiding executed like embroidery, making the long cuffs and deep collar.

Cut velvet in dark blue made an evening frock, and dark sky blue lace another. For afternoon wear there was a stylish model of Carioca red, brown fur edging the two collar tabs in the front, and gilt sections separating pieces of brown snakeskin for the belt.

A stunning evening robe was in black crepe satin with deep decolletage, and a high note of color in a long cherry red scarf of tulle, cherry red moire slippers, and a corsage of satin flowers in the same shade.

A beautiful evening gown of heavy white crepe with pointed deep collar banded heavily with rhinestones was worn with a long black velvet wrap collared deeply with snow-white lapin.

The coats and suits were interesting also. Knitted suits were smart, one of clear rust ones being worn with a dusty yellow blouse.

There were three-piece suits of English tweed and coats of many varieties. Black treebark material in one coat of unbelted type was finished by a high Queen Anne collar of Russian caracul. A smoke blue coat of material with soft, velour-like finish had a luxurious collar of grey wolf, and a black coat was collared with astrakhan fur. Fur collars narrow at the back and widening out deeply, with revers, are used this year with great effectiveness. Dark brown tweed collared with matching Jeanette fur was a striking model, as was a bottle-green model with elbow cape of black seal fur.

To the strains of the "Blue Danube" waltzes, the mannequins illustrated these and many other handsome things. The young ladies who modelled for the showing were Miss Anne Gallagher, Miss Lenore Lyle and Miss Mary Menzies.

JUST AMONG US GIRLS

SECTIONAL RALLY IS HELD AT COTTESLOE

Morning and Afternoon Sessions Held by W. M. S. Members.

Fall is the rallying time for all church workers, and especially is this true of the Woman's Missionary Society. Cottesloe United Church, an old historic landmark, was the scene of yesterday's enthusiastic gathering of over seventy W.M.S. women.

Under the direction of Mrs. Hugh Robb, 2nd vice-president of Peterborough Presbyterial, a very worthwhile program was presented at both morning and afternoon sessions.

The convention opened at ten o'clock with a worship period by members of Norwood Auxiliary.

The usual business routine included the appointment of Miss Minnie Williams of Havelock as secretary-treasurer, who read the minutes of the last annual gathering. Of unusual interest were the reports which followed, showing the high-lights of the work accomplished in the various locals, as follows: Cottesloe, Hastings, Havelock, Norwood and Westwood by their respective representatives.

Many helpful methods of work were gleaned, such as a birthday cake for Mission Bands, with its candles for paid members, as used in Havelock Band. Another unique idea was that of a "travelling apron" from Norwood Evening Auxiliary, while from Havelock comes a report of ten dollars donated for the board of two children during a two weeks' outing.

In Westwood a birthday box is used with good results, and a conundrum tea and sale netted a fine amount for Norwood Band. A lively discussion followed the presentation of the reports in which Miss Mitchell, the guest speaker, solved many knotty problems. Prayer on behalf of the cause was offered by Mrs. Comstock of Westwood, while a beautiful sacred solo, "There's a Work for You," was contributed by Mrs. Reneaud of Norwood.

The Quiet Half Hour, conducted by Havelock members, was a fitting conclusion to the morning's activities.

The noon hour brought a pleasant interlude, when luncheon was served the delegates and visitors at the lovely home of Mrs. A. Webster. During the hour, an address of welcome was graciously tendered on behalf of Cottesloe W.M.S. by Mrs. Forsythe, to which Mrs. C. Breckenridge of Westwood fittingly responded.

The afternoon devotions were in charge of the Hastings Society, and the roll call and offertory followed.

In a pithy little talk on her department of Missionary Periodicals, Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe, Presbyterial superintendent, explained her work with the help of a chart, which she advised every organization to use at its monthly meeting.

Can we claim we have been loyal to this department by just subscribing to our periodicals when we realize that 65% of our members are not taking the Missionary Monthly. Then, too, we should see that "World Friends" gets into the hands of our children in Mission Bands. As secretary of Mission Bands, Mrs. Basil Tucker presented an intensly interesting outline of the work done last year and of the duties and responsibilities of Mission Band leaders. She said this is a work into which a leader must put her whole soul for a child is very quick to judge half-hearted efforts.

"The reality of religion" was the keynote of the inspiring report given by the Presbyterial delegate, Mrs. B. L. Barns, who attended the four-day session of the W.M.S. leadership training school, held in Whitby Ladies College in August. She outlined the work of the school in an interesting resume of the class work under the direction of many eminent leaders. A new slogan was introduced which she passed on to this convention, namely, "I'd love to do it." In closing she made a plea for an increased attendance next year and for the co-operation of every society represented.

Interespersing these addresses was another delightful duett "The Saviour's Call" sung by Mrs. Arthur Russell and Miss Minnie Williams of Havelock, and prayer was offered by Mrs. Cleland of Norwood in closing the convention.

The presiding officer moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Webster who so kindly gave her home for the entertaining of the rally delegates, and to all who in any way added to the success of the convention.

An invitation for next year's rally was extended by Norwood Auxiliary and accepted.

FIGHT HITLER TO A FINISH SAYS DR. WISE OF BOYCOTT

Points Out U. S. Exports Have Dropped Forty-two Per Cent.

BLOCK CREDITS.

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.
Central Press Canadian Correspondent.

GENEVA, Poland, Sept. 21.—The boycott campaign against Nazi Germany, undertaken by the Jews of the world as the only available defence measure against the anti-Semitic propaganda and cruelty of the Hitler regime, is to be pursued with redoubled energy, declared Dr. Stephen S. Wise of New York city, leader of American Israel, in a statement to your correspondent. Dr. Wise is here as the spokesman and the head of the American delegation to the world Jewish Congress. Dr. Wise's sixtieth birthday was recently commemorated in every Jewish community in Canada and the United States.

"In view of the fact that the economic situation in the Reich is rapidly approaching disaster, a sharpening of the boycott movement will be instigated by us all over the world. It is a war between Hitler and ourselves and there can be no compromise. We will not rest till we have brought Nazidom to its knees," said Dr. Wise. "We can no longer say that we are acting exclusively in defence of our brethren in Germany. We are engaged in a life and death struggle with a movement and a doctrine which is out to destroy the very fundamentals on which the democracies of the West are built. This has been realised by the American Federation of Labor and by a host of liberals and Christians as well as by the radical parties," he said.

"The boycott movement is growing not only in America, but all over the world. We are particularly pleased with the support we are receiving from the Catholic side. American Catholics have had their eyes opened by the ghastly events of June 30 in the Reich when the noblest of the leaders of the Catholic lay-movement, Dr. Klausner, was cowardly assassinated and his ashes sent home to his wife by parcel-post."

Quotes Statistics.

To a question as to the actual achievements of the boycott movement, Dr. Wise replied by saying that so far German export to America had declined 42 per cent. as a direct result of the boycott. "In the next few months we expect to bring this figure up to 75 per cent. and even then we will not rest," he added.

"The journey of Mr. Montagu Norman, president of the board of directors of the Bank of England, to the United States with the object of securing credits for raw materials for Germany has failed completely," Dr. Wise went on to say. "Mr. Norman discovered that public opinion in America is too strongly opposed to the Hitler regime and the English banker was compelled to notify his friend, Dr. Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, that it was futile to expect credits from the United States for Germany.

"Our next step will be the opening of a huge fair in New York. We intend to give an exhibition of products which were formerly imported from Germany and still are to some extent and place side by side with them the same products manufactured by other states. Every country on earth will be asked to participate in this exhibition, with the exception of Hitler-Germany, of course."

Great Exodus.

Dr. Wise gave 75,000 as the official figure of Jews who have fled Nazi-Germany since Hitler came to power and read a telegram from M. Louis Barthou, minister of foreign affairs in the French government, in which M. Barthou said: "There is no more important and pressing task for a world Jewish Congress than the reassertion of the freedom and equality of all races and religions. It is extremely painful and sad that we have to come back to this point once more, one hundred and fifty years after the Emancipation (of the Jews) which was the work of the French Revolution. But events compel us. Civilization must be saved from the menace which hangs over its head. If the Jewish World Congress speaks to the heart and to the reason of the world, its voice will be heard."

I asked Dr. Wise if he did not fear that an accentuation of the boycott action would call forth reprisals against the Jews still inside Germany.

"We are extremely sorry for our co-religionaires in Germany, but whatever their fate, we cannot be coerced by the hostage system. As Jews, we are today only a unit in the general anti-Hitler battle front. Even if we had the possibility of concluding some kind of a separate peace with Hitler, we could not do this without leaving our allies in the lurch and without losing the respect of all decent people. The boycott is no longer a purely Jewish undertaking. Millions and tens of millions of non-Jews are refusing German products, and ever more people are coming to our side."

What of Peace?

I asked Dr. Wise whether he, as head of the American Jewish Congress, and his associates, had ever made a definite peace proposal to Hitler of which the world has not been aware.

D. Wise said that negotiations had been started with the Hitler authorities several times and on each occasion the American Jewish Congress had been assured that the persecutions of Jews in the Reich would cease. "From our side we stopped our action immediately on these occasions," he stated. "But the Hitlerites did not keep word. They went back to their old, tried methods."

"But the Jews in Germany, what do they say?" I asked. "They would have us call off the boycott," said Dr. Wise. "But they forget that our action is no longer an attempt to better the condition of the Jews in Germany. We cannot better their condition. We are defending ourselves against the menace which will become very real to us in America if it is shown that the rights of a religious minority can be trampled underfoot with impunity anywhere on earth. We are not a combative people. We love peace. We have no intention of dipping our fingers in blood. We fight in self-defence with the weapons of the spirit and with the aid of these weapons we will win. We have always come through in the past. We will come through this time," Dr. Wise added.

Driver Is Freed By Lindsay Jury

LINDSAY, Sept. 21 (Examiner Correspondence).—After deliberating for two hours and fifty minutes last night the jury at the sittings of the Supreme Court brought in a verdict of "not guilty" in the charge of criminal negligence preferred against Robert Myers, the former Peterborough boy. This charge arose out of a fatal accident on the Lindsay-Peterborough Highway on June 30th, when a cycle driven by John Fowler, town, crashed into an oil truck in charge of Myers a short distance from Reaboro. Fowler was instantly killed. The hearing of the evidence in this case lasted from Tuesday afternoon until 11 o'clock last night. J. E. Anderson was defended by C. G. Frost.

ROWELL URGES CHURCH BACKING ON WORLD PEACE

No Question More Vital to Canadian Homes Than International Cooperation.

BAN ARMAMENTS.

Blight on Church to Use Pulpits to Get Recruits for Overseas Service.

KINGSTON, Sept. 21 (CP).—A call to the Christian Church to support the great international organizations for the preservation of world peace by Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., of Toronto, stirred commissioners to the Sixth Biennial General Council of the United Church of Canada yesterday.

The commissioners were discussing the report of the sessional committee on evangelism and social service on war and peace in which the committee recommended the general council to declare its belief that armed warfare is contrary to the spirit and teachings of Christ and would therefore declare its unalterable opposition to all war.

Complete abolition of national armaments and the placing under international control of whatever armed forces may be necessary to protect the world's peace in an emergency with the cultivation of true international conference was also urged by the committee.

Mr. Rowell urged the church to come out in the strongest way in support of the international organizations for world peace.

"I am glad our Prime Minister is in Geneva at the present time, notwithstanding the other views expressed. I think that is where he should be," said Mr. Rowell. "There is no question more vital to the homes of Canada than that of international co-operation."

Scores Pulpit Recruiting.

Rev. R. H. Parr, Dresden, Ont., declared it was a blight upon the church that its pulpits were used to get recruits for overseas service. He said that no soldier could spend 24 hours in the front line trenches and come out the same man. "If we used our pulpits during the war for recruiting stations, is it too much to ask that we use them now to stand behind the great cause of peace."

Another recommendation that general council recorded its appreciation of the declaration of the Canadian Government at Geneva favoring complete state control of all manufacture of armaments but would also desire further measures to bring such manufacture under international supervision, was also approved by council.

Protracted discussion followed the introduction of a clause of the committee's report calling for the prevention of the accumulation of wealth in private hands during war time. Rev. Ernest Thomas, DD., Toronto, declared the committee had attempted to define the phrase, "conscription of wealth."

Double Meaning.

Rt. Rev. Richards Roberts, D.D., the Moderator, warned that if the clause inferred conscription of wealth the implication might be that the church condoned the conscription of men.

"Any government that attempted to put such a law on the statute books would not live a day," J. A. Ewing, Montreal, declared.

"Such a resolution would be impossible to enforce and as such is useless."

Rev. Salem Bland, Toronto, declared there would be fewer wars if it was known that financiers and industrialists would make a dollar out of it.

The following ammendment by Very Rev. E. H. Oliver, Saskatoon, was finally adopted: The Canadian government is hereby requested to prepare measures which will ensure that in the event of Canada being engaged in war, adequate steps be taken to prevent, during the war, the exploitation of the exigencies of war to permit the unregulated accumulation of wealth in private hands and that incomes be so regulated that in all cases they shall be in approximate agreement with the pay of the armed forces of the nation."

DOCTOR MOVES DIONNE BABIES

temperatures normal last night and they gained 5¾ ounces yesterday.

Every precaution was taken today to prevent any mishap to the children during the move, 100 yards down the Callander-Corbeil Road. The babies were taken from their beds and laid on pillows on a table while their beds were taken to the ward of their hospital and warmed with hot-water bottles.

First Auto Ride.

Then the youngsters were warmly bundled up and carried by their three nurses into a large automobile. They held the babies in their arms while the car crept down the rocky road and up to the front door of the "Dafoe Hospital." They were then taken into the ward and placed in their warm beds.

Fears of infection that have worried Dr. Dafoe and the nurses for weeks will largely disappear with the move. In the modern, nine-room hospital every facility is present for combatting disease germs that might end the lives of the babies.

The hospital is not completely furnished yet. Camp beds have been brought in for the nurses and they will sleep in the attic until their bedrooms are furnished.

PRESBYTERY Y.P.S. IN LARGE MEETING

Executive Plans Many Activities for Coming Season at Centreville.

CENTREVILLE, Sept. 21. (By Examiner Correspondent)—A meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery Presbyterian Young People's Society executive was held in the Presbyterian Church hall last night, with representatives answering the roll call from societies at Campbellford, Centreville, Cobourg, Millbrook, Norwood and Peterborough.

In the absence of Rev. Dr. Barr of Peterborough, the meeting was presided over by the president, Mr. Howard Shackleton of Peterborough, who welcomed the various societies at the opening of the meeting.

With the adoption of the minutes as read by the secretary, Miss Ethel Pittuck of Cobourg, the treasurer's report was given by Mr. Robert J. A. McGregor of Campbellford.

A report regarding the program of the Presbyterian Young People's Conference to be held in Knox Church Toronto, October 6th, 7th and eighth, was read by the secretary, who announced that there will be a special railway fare for persons attending this Conference.

The president, Mr. Howard Shackleton, was appointed to represent the Peterborough Presbytery at the Provincial Rally in Toronto and to give a resume of the Toronto Conference at the Presbytery Rally in Cobourg the latter part of October.

Following the reports a general discussion and business period ensued.

Moved by Mr. R. J. A McGregor, seconded by Malvern Innes, that the fee of $5 be paid to the Toronto Conference executive. (Carried).

Moved by Mr. Joe Riendall, seconded by Mr. R .McGregor, that the Peterborough Presbytery Young People's Society rally be held after the Provincial Rally in Toronto, at Cobourg, Friday, October 26th. (Carried).

Arrangements for the program at the rally were also discussed.

Moved by Rev. Mr. Williams of Centreville and seconded by Rev. Mr. Rhodes of Cobourg, that only the names on the individual society's membership roll to be counted for the elegibility of the E. F. Mason Cup. (Carried).

Reports in connection with the awards are to be in by October 19, 1934.

An interesting motto was read by Miss Marion Armstrong of Peterborough, editor of the paper at the Glenmohr Presbyterian Summer School.

The meeting closed with prayer by the Rev. Mr. Williams.

Trent River

Messrs. Glen Thompson, A. J. Meyers, Dr. O. C. Watson and Arthur Loucks and Charles Calver, of Campbellford, were at "Dun-Wanderin'" for the opening of the duck hunting season.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Rogers and Miss Iva Aulthouse, of Niagara Falls, Ont., were recent guests with Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Sees.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fairbrother and sons, Dick and Douglas; Mr. and Mrs. Dyer, have returned to Toronto after the season spent at the Fairbrother summer home.

Mrs. A. Wilde, of Havelock, was a Wednesday visitor with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Preston.

Mr. John Lawson spent Thursday as guest with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Preston. Mr. Lawson, notwithstanding his advanced age of 85 years, made the trip from his home on the 13th concession by foot, a distance of about 4 miles each way. He enjoys the best of health and is able to be about his work daily.

FORMER TWEED MAN SLUGGED

Garfield Kincaid Loses $20 When Attacked by Chance Acquaintance.

IN HAMILTON.

TWEED, Sept. 21 (Examiner Correspondence).—Garfield Kincaid, formerly of Tweed, and now residing at 60 Catharine Street S., Hamilton, accepted the invitation of a man he met at Caroline and Cannon Streets of that city to "take a stroll" and as they passed Railway and Cannon Streets the new acquaintance slipped something from under his coat and struck Kincaid on the head. When he regained consciousness, he discovered $20.00 had been taken from his pockets. Kincaid suffered a scalp laceration and abrasions to the right cheek, but after being cared for at the General Hospital was able to proceed home.

Following the alleged firing of beans from a shot gun, Angus Mumby, Huntingdon, was charged with attempting to maim, disfigure or disable St Clair Post, in Monday's police court at Belleville. The incidents culminated the alleged theft of melons from Mumby's melon patch last Friday night, when Post, and four other youths, are alleged by Mumby to have raided the patch. The matter was enlarged for one week by Magistrate Butler.

About 80 per cent of Cuba's leaf tobacco is sold in the United States.

LAKEFIELD BAPTIST CHURCH HOLDS ANNUAL SUPPER PARTY

Pastors and Friends From Surrounding Congregations Attend Delightful Event.

71st ANNIVERSARY

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 21 (Examiner Correspondence).—The social side of the seventy-first anniversary of the Lakefield Baptist Church was stressed on Tuesday evening when the congregation and a large number of their friends gathered in the schoolroom for a supper party, which is like a real family gathering an annual event.

The evening program was held in the church, with the pastor, Rev. W. B. Walker, in the chair, who extended a hearty welcome to the visitors, and expressed appreciation of the courtesy and brotherly spirit shown by the pastors and congregation of the United and Presbyterian churches who waived their evening service on Sunday to permit all joining the Baptists in their anniversary service.

Rev. J. K. Tyler of Peterborough contributed a pleasing violin solo with Mrs. Tyler as his accompanist. Miss Ruth Grotefend gave a humorous dialect reading.

Rev. R. J. Burton gave the greetings and good wishes of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Mr. Walter Alford sang, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginnia," with guitar accompaniment by Mr. Walter Walker.

Rev. W. J. Creighton, M.A., of St. John's Anglican Church, spoke of seeing Miss Jennie Robinson, a returned missionary from India, at a convention held here last spring. Miss Robinson was an old friend whom he remembered in Bobcaygeon where Mr. Creighton was rector for a number of years and where he regarded all the young people of every creed as his boys and girls.

Mr. Walter Walker contributed a pleasing guitar solo. Rev. R. D. Wright of Gilmour Memorial Church, the mother of the Lakefield church, expressed his satisfaction in being present, and related several amusing stories.

"The King's Men"

A high light in the evening's program was the numbers given by the "King's Men," the Park Street Male Quartette (Messrs. George Tranter, George Batley, Maurice Dunkley, Jr., and Clarence Corbett).

Rev. W. R. Archer, B.A., of the Lakefield United Church, brought greetings and good wishes, personal and congregational, for his flock. In company with Mr. Haboush, Mr. Archer spent half an hour in the school on the previous day. Mr. Haboush had a club with 26 pieces of metal in the handle, symbolizing 26 things the Shepherd must do for his sheep; he leads the sheep and never drives them, and the heavy club is to scotch a serpent which may attack the flock. What can we do to scotch the serpent of drink which is rearing its head among us again.

Mrs. Shearer contributed a reading to the program. Mrs. Hull's pleasing soprano was heard to advantage in "The Old-Fashioned Town," a number which is always a favorite and especially suitable to the season.

Rev. G. K. Tyler, pastor of Park Street Baptist Church, Peterborough, brought good wishes and kindly felicitations.

The male quartette contributed another selection, "Hark, a Gentle Whisper," and Mr. Tyler gave another violin number, and the program was closed by Mr. Walker who thanked all who had assisted them in any way.

Trent River

Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre of Claremont were Sunday guests with Mr. and Mrs. George Holmes.

Miss Gladys Hallowell arrived Tuesday from Toronto to holiday with her mother at their summer home.

Mrs. Charles Longmuir and daughters Eleanor and Dorothy, of Seymour East were Tuesday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. James Longmuir and family.

Mrs. J. F. Davidson and Miss Leatha, of West Seymour were Wednesday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. James Longmuir and family.

Miss Ethel Longmuir is spending the week in Peterborough.

Miss McNichol of Peterborough, is a visitor with her sister-in-law, Mrs. M. McNichol at "Sum-er-in."

Mrs. James Wright of "Windermere," is spending a few days in Toronto.

Mrs. Funnell and son Billie have returned to Toronto after holidaying at "Windermere."

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown have returned to Trenton after spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. G. Holmes.

The Misses Georgina Davidson, Marion Dickson, Mary Stephens and Blanche Wright of Campbellford, spent over the week-end at "Sunnyside."

Miss Roberta (Bobby) Boyd arrived Wednesday from Fort William to spend a few days with her grandfather, Mr. John Boyd. She made the trip from Fort William to Toronto by motor.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Jeffreys, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander of New York, are guests with Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Ward.

Working with a fleet of motor boats and fast automobiles, a highly-organized band has been smuggling cheese over the rocky Esterel coast of the French Riviera.

Apart from a few thousand Aborginals, only 4850 people now live in the Northern Territory of Australia, which covers more than 500,000 square miles, according to a census just complete.

Striped Silk Front

Silver and white striped silk gives distinction to this dress worn by Gloria Stuart, blond siren of the screen.

Drawn through a corded collar and caught with a pearl-tipped pin, the larget loop at one side is a new touch.

The belt also is corded, and kick pleats give the necessary fullness to the straight line of the skirt.

TRIAL POSTPONED

MONTREAL.—Trial of Rev. Victor Rahard, pastor of the French Anglican Church of the Redeemer, on charges of blasphemous libel, was yesterday postponed till Dec. 4 owing to continued illness of counsel for Rahard.

SECTIONAL RALLY HELD IN LAKEFIELD

Lakefield, Bridgenorth and Warsaw Societies Hold Meeting.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 21 (Examiner Correspondence).—The autumn sectional rally of the W.M.S. of the United Church of Peterborough Presbytery was held in the schoolroom of the Lakefield Church on Wednesday afternoon, with Mrs. W. Leonard as the presiding officer. Delegates were present from Bridgenorth and Warsaw.

Mrs. Brown, president of the Presbytery organization was present and several other ladies from Peterborough. Following the opening exercises in which Mrs. Archer, Mrs. Burgess, Mrs. Tanner and Mrs. Porter all took part, Mrs. Leonard welcomed the delegates and visitors and reports were given by the visiting branches. Mrs. George Taylor of Warsaw reported nineteen members divided into four groups.

Miss Udy of Bridgenorth reported 12 regular and six associated members.

Mrs. Yale, the Presbytery Temperance secretary, gave a short talk urging a greater vigilance in the task of protecting the youth from the temptations of an abuse which has (as Dr. Shields puts it) scattered licenses like confetti over the province. Pledge cards in the W.M.S. was suggested.

Mrs. Barnes of Peterborough spoke on the wonderful inspiration and importance of attendance at the Leadership Summer School. There were 72 delegates present at the school sponsored by the Bay of Quinte Conference, and only five from Peterborough Presbytery. The keynote was the reality of religion.

Mrs. Arthur B. Burrows contributed a sacred solo which was a real musical treat.

Mrs. Brown commended the zeal and competence of the temperance secretary. Miss Mitchell will return to this Presbytery from November 3rd to 10th for deputation work. Miss Mitchell, whose address was the premier number on the afternoon's program.

Lord Kitchener said, in reviewing the British troops at the outset of the war: "You are soldiers of the King, remember the honor of Britain depends on your individual conduct."

"Let us measure up to the standard set in God's Word and increase our enthusiasm so that our mission work will advance more rapidly. Our Lord gave to a woman His first missionary command when He told the women at the tomb, "Go, tell," and women have heard the call and many have answered, but there is urgent need for more. With the drought area of Saskatchewan stricken again this season, there is an appeal from there which should meet response in every Christian heart, for the need is tremendous, and it is indeed our Lord's work. When we think of the vast sums spent annually on liquor and tobacco we feel that we should spend much more in helping our fellow creatures to have the necessaries of life. This stricken district needs help in every way, the conditions have caused a greater and more pressing need for hospital service."

Miss Mitchell's appeal was a compelling one, a challenge to the women to do more, to pray more and to give more.

Mrs. W. A. Payne and Mrs. G. E. Renwick sponsored a vote of thanks to Miss Mitchell and the other ladies for their splendid addresses.

Mrs. Morton urged the Young Women's Circle as a link between the Junior and Senior work.

Afternoon tea was served and a social hour spent.

Bethany

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stevenson of Allandale, manager of branch Bank of Toronto and formerly of Bethany, were Sunday guests of Dr. and Mrs. Hamilton.

Mr. A. B. Ryley was a business visitor to Toronto on Tuesday.

Mrs. G. Davis is visiting her son Lloyd and other friends in Eldorado this week.

Messrs. Tom Staples and Cecil Tims are engaged renovating the exterior of Mr. Richard Johnston's residence.

Mr. Wm. Davis is rebuilding his carpentry shop and attaching a garage to the main structure.

Miss Lila Davis was a business visitor to Bowmanville on Monday.

Mr. George Dickson of Toronto was a week-end guest of Mr. Wm. Davis.

Mr. J. J. Preston, ex-M.P.P., was in Toronto on Saturday and attended Mr. Aubrey McCartney's marriage to Miss Grace Tudford of North Bay at St. James Cathedral.

The varsity concert under the auspices of St. Paul's W.A., Bethany, held on Monday, Sept. 17th, proved to be one of very high merit, and bids fair to draw a much larger audience on its next appearance here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fallis and Mrs. Jas. McKinnon were visitors to Toronto on Wednesday, Mrs. McKinnon remaining for a longer visit with friends in the city.

Rev. A. Holden is in Montreal this week attending Synod and will remain for the Alumni exercises.

Miss Gladys McKinley, R.N., of Toronto, called at her home here for a short visit with her mother.

ALFRED E. AMES TAKEN BY DEATH TORONTO HOME

Investment Banker Passes Away After Short Illness.

BORN AT LAMBETH.

Rapidly Gained Promotion in the Old Merchants' Bank.

TORONTO, Sept. 21.—Time in its passing removed a landmark in Canadian finance with the death last night of Alfred Ernest Ames, pioneer Toronto investment banker. The end came at 6 o'clock at the financier's home, Glen Stewart, on the Kingston Road. Although ill for the last six weeks, the fatal visitation arrived more rapidly and with greater suddenness than his friends and family expected.

Nearly half a century had elapsed since Mr. Ames, as a youth of 23, opened a small office on King Street as a stock broker with a single office boy as mate of the ship and entire crew. His experience up to that time had been merely that of a youth who had advanced through the various stages of branch banking. At 15 he had entered the Owen Sound branch of the Merchants Bank of Canada, and in 1889 he had resigned from the Ontario Bank as manager of its Lindsay branch.

Business grew rapidly in the little King Street office. Within a short time he took a partner and afterward the firm of A. E. Ames & Company, organized as stock brokers and financial agents, graduated into the investment banking field. At his death, Mr. Ames held the position of President of A. E. Ames & Co., Limited, originators and distributors of Government and corporation bonds, and one of the names to be conjured with where Government, municipal or corporation financing is concerned.

A member of that fast disappearing and sometimes not sufficiently admired group of financiers, whose vision extends over the valleys of depression, and through the peaks of prosperity, Mr. Ames builded slowly but with a sure conception of the importance of permanent realities. In 1889, when he opened the house of A. E. Ames & Company, he was one of three or four who were then engaged in the financial business in Toronto.

T. & N.O. Railway.

Mr. Ames and the late Senator Jaffray are given much of the credit for the initiation of the Timiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway, of which the former was the first Chairman.

Returning later, he took a very active interest in the Toronto Board of Trade, of which he was President in the early part of the present century. In the course of time, he became President of a number of other important public bodies. These included the Bond Dealers' Association of Canada, 1917; Chairman, Board of Trustees, Massey Music Hall, 1911-1929; Regent, Victoria University; President, National Sanitarium Association; Chairman, Finance Committee, United Church of Canada.

Born at Lambeth.

Mr. Ames was born Sept. 3, 1866, at Lambeth, Ont. He received a public school education and attended the Brantford Collegiate Institute. At the age of 15, he entered the Owen Sound branch of the Merchants Bank of Canada. Promotion came rapidly, and at the age of 23 he had served the Ontario Bank as manager at two points.

Mr. Ames suffered a severe loss last December in the death of his only son from wounds received overseas. He is survived by his widow, nee Mary Cox, daughter of the late Senator George A. Cox.

Bailieboro Y.P.S. Holds Weiner Roast

BAILIEBORO, Sept. 21 (Examiner Correspondence)—About forty young people attended the weiner and corn roast held at Barnard's Landing, Rice Lake, as the opening meeting of the United Church Young People's Society for the ensuing season.

The group gathered around a huge fire, built on the lake shore and the bright moon shining through the willow trees made a gorgeous site for the occasion. Games and stunts were indulged in and when they became exhausted they gathered for a real old-fashioned sing-song.

A short business session was conducted by the President, F. Barnard, during which a nominating committee was appointed to name an executive for the ensuing year, and have a slate of officers prepared to present at the annual meeting next Tuesday evening.

The committee appointed consists of Misses Frances Watt, F. Rahmel, Clara Seens, Messrs. H. Dean and A. Dawson.

At the conclusion of the business period the young people went to a nearby cottage where weiners, buns, corn and tea were provided.

Havelock Resident Held For Burglary

Arrested at Havelock at two o'clock this morning, Leon Breen, 24-year-old resident of that village was this afternoon lodged in the lock-up at city police station facing a charge of 'breaking and entering and theft by night."

Constable Chris Roberts stated that the shoemaker's store of Albert Wilson of Havelock had been broken into twice within the past week and a quantity of money stolen. He had the store under observation in the early hours of this morning and arrested Breen, as he was alleged to be in the act of entering the store with a skeleton key.

Obituary

S. A. ANDERSON

Samuel E. Anderson of Chicago, formerly of Peterborough, died suddenly at his home Saturday evening and was buried in Chicago on Tuesday.

Mr. Anderson visited Peterborough two weeks ago, accompanied by his wife, formerly Eva Heard of this city, and enjoyed a vacation at Young's Point and other places in the district as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Heard. He was on the mechanical staff of The Chicago News, and had been engaged with the Review Printing Company here seventeen years ago. Mr. Anderson was cutting the lawn at his home Saturday evening when he was stricken with angina pectoris and died shortly afterward.

DIED

BARRIE.—On Thursday morning, Sept. 20th, George A. Barrie, aged 70 years and 10 months.

Funeral will be held from the family residence, Birdsalls, on Saturday, Sept. 22nd. Service at 2 p.m. Interment in Westwood Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

FRANCIS — In memory of my mother, Mrs. John Francis, who passed away two years ago today,

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's weary troubles and trials are past;
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore,
'Till God called her home to suffer no more.

SOPWITH WAITS UPON NEW SAIL; RACE SATURDAY

Endeavour Continues Prime Favorite Despite Thursday's Defeat.

JIB DRAWS BADLY.

Amateur Crew Proving Handicap During Tacking Matches.

By Tom Horgan
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

NEWPORT, R.I., Sept. 21 (A.P.). — T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour, British challenger for the America's Cup, continued the prime favorite today to lift the ancient yachting trophy, although Rainbow, Harold S. Vanderbilt's defender, yesterday led the invader around in a leeward-windward course by nearly three and a half minutes.

Here are some of the reasons Endeavour is picked to win the series. She has won two out of three races, one a windward-leeward contest and the other triangular, each of thirty miles, as terms of the competition stipulate.

The two courses gave her every point of sailing on the card and she managed to beat the cup record for a leg of the triangular course and the time for the triangular course itself. The records were set despite trouble in handling her canvas. Almost all observers agree that Sopwith's chief handicap is his crew, largely amateur and largely recruited just before he left England.

Waits on New Jib.

There was no race today, because Sopwith asked for a postponement until to-morrow, so a new Genoa jib could arrive to take the place of a badly fitting headsail which yesterday probably contributed much to Endeavour's defeat.

Endeavour utterly outsailed the American boat on the fifteen-mile run downwind before a light easterly yesterday and rounded the buoy 6 minutes 39 second ahead of the American boat, but on the way home Rainbow gained 10 minutes and 5 seconds and led at the finish by 3 minutes 26 seconds. Endeavour still looked like a fast boat, but a badly setting Genoa jib, a bit of bad luck and two tacks that she took and Rainbow didn't, cost her the race.

Yesterday was a light and fluky day, with light shifting easterly airs blowing over a calm sea, and as a result of the shift of wind there was no real windward work on the course. The boats ran and reached out to the outer work, near Block Island, and Rainbow fetched back to the finish line on one tack. It was light weather—the answer to Vanderbilt's hope—but even so, Rainbow was, for the first half of the race at least, not impressive.

Weddings

WARD—REYNOLDS

Mark street United Church was filled at half past one o'clock yesterday afternoon, for the wedding of a popular member of the choir and other organizations of the church, Miss Mabel Edna Reynolds, youngest daughter of Mrs. F. Reynolds of Otonabee and the late Frederick Reynolds, whose marriage to Mr. Arthur F. Ward, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Ward of Dartford, Ontario, was solemnized by the Rev. C. D. Daniel.

The wedding music was played by the organist, Mr. Harold Kitney, and Mrs. W. Hepburn sang, "I Love You Truly" during the signing of the register.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with asters, daisies and large white bells. The ceremony took place beneath an arch of pink and white placed in front of the pulpit, with a white bell in the center and one at either side.

The bride wore a smart outfit of brown triple sheer crepe, with tam of shirred brown velvet and matching accessories. Her corsage bouquet was of pink roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Ethel Reynolds, sister of the bride, was in blue crepe with blue hat and accessories and corsage of roses.

Mr. George Ward was groomsman for his brother.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, after which Mr. and Mrs. Ward left by motor for Hamilton and other points. On their return, they will live in Dartford.

CLANCY—LAPPAN

On Saturday morning an exceedingly pretty wedding took place in St. Patrick's Church, Lansdowne, when Rev. Father Donoghue united in marriage Miss Phyllis Lappan, Reg.N., of Lansdowne, to Mr. Roland Clancy of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Clancy of Rogers street.

The youthful bride was a picture of loveliness as she entered the church with her father, Mr. P. F. Lappan, who gave her in marriage. She was very daintily attired in white mousseline de soie, with large picture hat trimmed with silver, and accessories to match. She carried an arm bouquet of Briar cliff roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Her bridesmaid, Miss Aileen Brynes, Reg.N., of Newburg, was gowned in pale pink mousseline de soie, with accessories to match. She carried a nosegay bouquet.

Mr. Basil Clancy of Peterborough assisted the groom. After the wedding a sumptuous breakfast was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lappan, uncle and aunt of the bride. The house was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, the color scheme of the bride's table being yellow and white and centred with a large wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Clancy left by motor on a trip through Eastern States. The bride travelled in an ensemble of navy and white. On their return they will reside at Belleville.

The out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. C. Clancy and Basil of Peterborough Mr. and Mrs. Arnold of Kingston; Miss Marion Clancy of Cleveland, Ohio; Mr and Mrs. P. Lappan, Jr., of Trenton, N.J.; Mr. and Mrs. W. McFaul of Ithica, N.Y.; P. F. Lappan, Sr., Mrs. James Hickling and Mrs. George Clarke of Toronto, and Miss Jessie Elder of Gananoque.

DISMISS TWO JAIL OFFICERS AFTER FORGERY DISCLOSURES

Probe Reveals Convicts Engaged in Printing False References

RECEIVE BRIBES

London.—Wholesale forgery of government documents alleged to have been carried out by a convict working as a printer in Pentonville jail; the summary dismissal of two prison officers and allegations against others; stories of months of bribery in this jail and others.

This is the sensational state of affairs that has just been disclosed, following twelve months' inquiries, to a hastily-summoned meeting of the prison commissioners.

The commissioners are still sitting at Pentonville, investigating the whole matter. The convict alleged to be responsible has been segregated from his fellow-prisoners, pending consideration of his case by the visiting magistrates.

For more than a year forged official references, similar to those supplied by the board of trade to persons leaving the board's employment, have been discovered in various parts of the country.

Scotland Yard has been making rigid investigations and local police forces have co-operated in trying to track the forgers.

Four months ago, following a raid by Yard men, large quantities of the forged references and documents were discovered at an address in the West End of London.

The documents were impounded and the men concerned arrested and sentenced; it was thought that the source af supply had at last been stopped.

But, to the consternation of the police, the forgeries continued. It was swiftly realized that only a depot for the distribution of the documents had been traced.

Inquiries were redoubled. Then, a month ago, came the most sensational discovery of all—that the forgeries were emanating from Pentonville prison.

A trap was set. A fresh officer was put in charge of the bookbinding shop at the prison while another was on holiday.

One dal, this officer was approached by a convict, who is alleged to have offered him copies of a forged board of trade reference concerning the employment of a cook.

Immediately, the officer reported to his superiors; he was instructed to secure the reference and to appear to fall in with the convict's plans.

The convict asked the officer for tobacco and certain other emenities. These were promised to him and, thereupon, it is stated, he handed over the forged reference.

Immediately afterwards he was segregated from his fellow prisoners in the bookbinder's shop.

Commander R. M. Tabuteau, governor of Pentonville prison, reported the facts to the police commissioners. The home secretary was communicated with, as was the board of trade.

Call in Police

It was established that the documents were definitely forgeries, and a chief inspector of Scotland Yard was deputed to make inquiries.

Many officers of the prison are involved in the inquiries.

A convict is alleged to have admitted printing false references over a long period, and that he did so in other jails where he has served periods of imprisonment.

He is a man with a long record of convictions, and he declared, it is alleged, that he has bribed warders with these documents.

In exchange for the amenities with which they provided him, he supplied the forged references, which, he alleges, the warders sold to outside sources.

666-STOREY TOWER PLANNED FOR FAIR

Edifice, With Aeroplane Landing Platforms, To Be 1937 Attraction

Paris.—A gigantic tower, more than six times as high as the Eiffel Tower, is one of the projected attractions of the 1937 international exhibition in Paris.

The project has been evolved by Henri Lossier, divisional president of the international bridges and scaffolding association.

According to his plan, the tower, in shape like a super-minaret, would be 6,600 feet high (the height of the Eiffel Tower is 1,000 feet), consist of 666 storeys, measure at its base a surface of 700 square feet, and at the summit 133 square feet.

There would be three projecting platforms at respectively 2,000 ft., 4,3000 ft. and 6,000 ft. from the ground. The whole structure would be in reinforced concrete.

M. Lossier, who envisages the tower as a permanency, contends that the enormous cost of its construction would be amply repaid by the services it would render.

He claims that such a tower would be a valuable contribution to the aerial defence of Paris. Aeroplane sheds on the tower platforms are proposed so that in the case of a sudden air attack on Paris aeroplanes would take off from the platforms as soon as the raiders were signalled.

Time would thus be saved which is now lost by rising from the ground.

FINDS ROYAL CHALICE

Market Harborough.—Rev. O. R. Plant has found a number of small silver vessels, hidden by registers and documents, and inscribed with verses and dates.

The gem of the collection is a small hand-beaten silver chalice dated 1570 and believed to have been used at communion by kings of England. It is worth about £20,000.

BOYS' SURPASS GIRLS AT DOMESTIC DUTIES

More "Adaptable" Claims Salaryless Principal

Lyton-on-Tyne.—Boys make better domestic servants than girls. They are more adaptable.

So says Miss Musette Majendie, principal of the most democratic "university" in the country, where she trains lads to become butlers, chauffeurs, gardeners, handymen.

The university—which is under her sole control—has five subsidiary colleges. It has proved so successful—not one of her undergraduates has failed to make good—that there are hundreds on her waiting list, and the ministry of labor pays for 90 per cent. of the upkeep.

Miss Majendie, who is now touring the distressed areas of the north in search of deserving cases, inaugurated the scheme in her own home—Castle Hedingham, Essex—five years ago. And she takes no salary for her work.

ANNE BOLEYN'S HOUSE SOLD TO HENRY FORD

Cottage Where Henry Eighth Courted Wife Becomes Laborers' Quarters

Chelmsford.—The only home Anne Boleyn ever owned—a cottage near here—has been bought by Henry Ford.

He is spending £1,250 on having it rebuilt as it was 400 years ago, when King Henry came down from London to see his sweetheart who changed the course of English history.

Then it will be divided into two cottages, to be occupied by laborers on Mr. Ford's farm. One of Mr. Ford's farm-workers lives there now.

Bull's Lodge—Anne's surnace was often spelled Bullen—stands back in a field behind a tangle of country lanes.

It was here, then one day's march, now an hour's ride, from London, that the Crusaders of the middle ages pitched their first camp on their way to the Holy Land.

And it was here that M. Livermore, a south country shepherd, brought his flocks to graze six years ago.

Down below, in the cellar, he found an underground passage leading to the castle across the fields.

It was along this dark passage that Henry came to visit pretty Anne Boleyn. To-day the castle is a girls' school. And Mr. Livermore gave up his flock to work for Mr. Ford.

'YOU HACKED WAGNER' FLUNG AT DIRECTOR

London.—A member of the audience at the promenade concert recently startled the crowded Queen's Hall and tens of thousands of listeners by shouting at Sir Henry Wood: "Why did you cut out the orchestral crescendo?"

The orchestra had just finished the accompaniment to "Sound an Alarm" from Handel's "Judas Maccabeus," which Frank Titterton had sung.

People standing near the man turned in amazement, but the interrupter took no notice, and again shouted at Sir Henry:

"You hacked Wagner about, why start on Handel now?"

After the second interruption there were boos and hisses from the audience. Then the orchestra started to play and drowned any further interruption.

GIRLS WILL BE "BOYS" ON SPORTS-DAYS

Are you ready?—go! And it's a grand old battle as a dozen or so lassies don men's duds, working against time for the coveted prize. SECRETIVE DUCHESS DROPS WATER ON VISITOR'S HEAD

Duke of Marlborough's Widow Guarded by Servant and 80 Dogs

HIDES IN VILLAGE

Bicester.—For more than four months Gladys Duchess of Marlborough—widow of the ninth duke, who died last month—has been guarding the secret of her whereabouts and identity.

Early last May, unknown to any but her closest friends, she left Blenheim Palace, and took up residence in a small, old-fashioned farmhouse in the remote and tiny Oxfordshire village of Mixbury.

Here she has lived alone but for her companion, Mrs. Grills, and about eighty of the famous Blenheim spaniels. She has rarely appeared outside the farmhouse grounds, and to her neighbors has been known merely as Mrs. Spencer.

A woman who called on her recently told of her reception.

"I went out to Mixbury to call on the duchess," she said. "My reception was to be deluged with water. I did not meet the duchess. Mrs. Grills is more than a companion to her—she is a zealous yatchdog. She met me in the porch and said that Mrs. Spencer was not at home.

"But I had seen a golden head and a mauve, smocked overall lurking behind the upstairs window of the farmhouse.

"'Mrs. Spencer is not here,' repeated Mrs. Grills.

"I explained that the duchess had been seen by villagers only an hour before and that I myself had caught a glimpse of her through the window. Swish! came a deluge of cold water all over my head. Spluttering and gasping, I looked up just in time to see a mauve-clad arm and a golden head hastily withdrawing from an upper window."

SOUTHAMPTON BOOMING

ABERDEEN'S TAG-DAYS NOW BUT A MEMORY

Aberdeen.—You know that picture of Aberdeen on a flag day, with its streets absolutely deserted? Well, it isn't true.

They have a much better way of thwarting the organisers of flag days.

The Aberdonians hang together so closely that no one will sell the flags.

An official of one organization stated that it was impossible to find flag sellers.

BULB PLANTERS SEEK MEN WITH LARGE FEET

Wear Clogs to Tread Down Soil on Lily Beds

Kirton.—Here's good news for medium-sized men with big feet who like the feel of wooden clogs.

Soon they will be in demand among the bulb planters of South Holland (Lincolnshire), who are beating the Dutchmen at their own game.

And here is what they will be paid to do. They will rise early in the morning, put on their big wooden clogs and plod out to a field where lilies have been planted in a shallow sandy bed.

They will then walk casually up and down the lily bed, treading not too lightly and not too heavily, and will go on walking like that until they have covered all the beds.

It is quite an important job, too, because it is yet another step in the advancement of the bulb-growing trade in the British Isles.

GOLDFISH FASCINATE BOY

Aldershot.—A 14-year-old boy's fondness for goldfish was described at a children's court.

The boy, it was stated, used to watch goldfish in his employer's rock pool for hours, and finally his desire to possess a collection himself proved too strong for him.

His employer, a doctor, noticed his fish dwindling in numbers weekly, and the boy confessed that he had taken two or three away periodically in a tin can to his home. He took 36 goldfish and one silver fish. Most of them died. A few were produced in a bowl in court.

The boy was sent to a school.

BURN BOOKS BOUGHT FOR LARGE AMOUNTS

Dealers Ridding Business of Fake First Editions

London.—Booksellers are burning books for which hundreds of pounds were paid a few years ago.

They are catalogued first editions of the Brownings, Wordsworth, Swinburne, and other famous authors, which have been declared by John Carter and Graham Pollard—two young bibliographers—to be forgeries.

Consternation has been caused in both this country, and the United States by the assertion, because the book are not only in the possession of many private collectors, but also in honored places in public libraries and museums.

A number of booksellers who bought the volumes in good faith at auctions are now paying out hundreds of pounds to customers to whom they resold them.

One West End bookseller with a large British and American clientele said: "I have written to all my clients who are in possession of these volumes offering to repay the full purchase price upon their return. As the volumes come back I am burning them."

LEAVES ALL TO HUSBAND

Dorking.—Lady Jeans, who died after 27 years of idyllic happiness with her husband—the astonomer who made the man-in-the-street star-conscious—has left him her entire fortune of £478,000.

FIND PRICELESS PARCHMENTS USED AS TOY DRUM HEADS

Historic Documents To Be Collected Under One Roof

WIDELY SCATTERED

Parchments recording the birth of kings, the execution of queens, love-letters of princes, and the trembling signatures of traitors and thousands of other historic documents may soon be gathered together into one central museum of British records in London.

At present these priceless papers are scattered in various buildings, such as the Records Office, the British Museum, the College of Heralds, the Houses of Parliament, Lambeth Palace and Windsor Castle.

Lord Hanworth, master of the rolls, who is chief of the public records office, is the moving spirit in this plan to bring together these scattered leaves of our national history.

It was he who a few months ago took steps to prevent the destruction of ancient parchments in the hands of owners ignorant of their value.

It is illegal to sell parchment records for commercial purposes until the state has examined them.

Recently it was found that large number of ancient records had been sold to make heads for toy drums. In another case parish records were being used as grease-proof paper in a fried fish shop.

Among the documents which may soon be brought under one roof are the warrant for the execution of Mary Queen of Scots, the last letter of Anne Boleyn to Henry VIII, the wills of the kings and queens of England from Elizabeth to William IV, the death warrant of Charles I, and Magna Carta.

BOY "NIGHTINGALE" FOUND IN DOCKLAND

Unemployed Man's Son Holds Audience of 70,000 Spellbound

London.—Three years ago Johnny Haddon, nine-year-old son of an unemployed man, trudging through the back streets of London's dockland began to sing.

The choirmaster of St. Luke's, Victoria Docks, heard him; stopped the boy; asked him to join his choir. And to-day Johnny has his foot on the bottom rung of the ladder of fame. He has a treble voice that promises great things.

Recently at Southend Carnival he sang a gipsy song and held 70,000 people enthralled.

Johnny and his parents live in two rooms in the Victoria Docks district. His father is still out of work.

Johnny is not able to practice at home. There is no piano. He has weekly lessons at the home of a woman who has interested herself in him. And to familiarise himself with voice production he listens for hours to the radio.

His ambition is to sing on the concert platform. His bell-like voice is often heard in the shabby street where he lives. The neighbors' children hush their cries when they hear it. Johnny's voice is the nearest thing to a nightingale that has ever entered their lives.

He dreams of the time when his voice will bring a little money to the family purse, and take the look of worry off his parents' faces.

JACK TAR TO GET MUCH SMARTER TIE

London.—The black silk handkerchief, or scarf, for many generations a distinguishing feature of the British sailors' uniform, is to be oblong instead of square, state admiralty fleet orders.

Since the latter part of the eighteenth century, the scarf, always 36 inches square, has been tied with a knot to meet the point of the sailor's collar. The new size will be 39 inches by 38 1-2 inches.

A naval officer said that, after a little wear, the square handkerchief when formed into a tie or scarf, is not long enough to make a neat knot. Issues of the new pattern will begin at once.

'PRAYED EVERY NIGHT' BLIND MAN NOW SEES

Regains Sight in One Eye After Case Termed Hopeless

Biggleswade.—"I had prayed every night that I might see. That was all."

The man who said this, Mr. William Norman, of Gamlingay, had been blind for seven years. Now he can see with his right eye. He is seventy-seven years old.

Mr. Norman has seen for the first time his six-year-old granddaughter.

His sight bega to return a fortnight ago. "I was sitting in the house one evening," he said, "when an omnibus passed and lights flashed on my eyes. Then, when my little grandchild came to me as I was in bed, I saw her shadow pass the window. After a little while I could make out the window sashes."

For a time Mr. Norman kept his great secret. He went into the garden and called his grandchildren to him. He looked into their faces; but they did not know he saw them.

Next morning he told his daughter, Mrs. Cope, with whom he lives, that he could see what was on the table.

A specialist told Mr. Norman that his case was hopeless. But now his eyes are free from the film that covered them.

There is no medical explanation; Mr. Norman has had no shock that would account for this seeming miracle.

WOULD WOO GHOST WITH "SOFT" MUSIC

Story of Headless Canon Lures Visitors to Torre Abbey Ruins

Torquay.—Holidaymakers at Torquay who have a taste for the supernatural are visiting the ruins of the ancient Torre Abbey in a particularly lively spirit of curiosity.

They hope to catch a glimpse, one of these moonlit nights, of a 500-year-old ghost.

Torre Abbey, which was acquired a short while ago by the Torquay corporation, was founded in the 12th century. Nothing seriously disturbed its peace until 1390, when a rumor spread that the abbot, William Norton, had cut off the head of his canon, Simon Hastings.

An inquiry was held, and the abbot was absorbed for the very good reason that Simon appeared at the inquiry very much alive. Apparently, however, many people refused to believe that it was the canon himself, and the story continued to spread until at last it was sworn that the spectre of Simon had been seen astride a madly galloping horse and vanish down a long avenue of trees leading to the abbey.

The rider was headless, and eventually the ghostly horse lost its head also.

Some visitors, whose belief in ghosts is very firm, are hoping that it will be found possible to have a concert of soft music in the barn, which stands beside the abbey ruins, so that some sweet melody melting on the moonlit air might lure the headless horseman home once more.

MONEY WON ON LOTTERY BRINGS CARS AND ACCIDENTS

"Lucky" Millionaire Smashes Another Auto, But Lives

WAS ONCE BARBER

Tarascon.—Another car, another crash, is the sad history of Paul Bonhoure, ci-devant barber of Tarascon and at present the owner of the neatest chain of chateaux and stable of plain and fancy automobiles in the Midi.

Since that eventful day last year when he won 5,000,000 francs in the first French National Lottery drawing, Bonhoure has taken his place with Tartarin as the most illustrious citizen of the lengendary town of Tarascon. In fact Tartarin and Bonhoure are kindred spirits, the chief difference being that Tartarin talked about himself, while Bonhoure makes other people talk about him. Lucky in lotteries, unlucky in automobiles, is the reason why.

Since Bonhoure collected his 5,000,000 francs his life has just been one chateau, auto and accident after the other. He started his automotive career modestly with an eight-cylinder super-limousine and a little town car—both of which were in the repair shop a month later. In the months that followed that first purchase he has added sundry runabouts, sedans, roadsters, cabriolets, and what-have-you to his collection. All of them had the same fate—they landed in the garage with some essential part missing, twisted, bent or dented.

Repair Bills Plentiful

"All my life I've wanted an auto, but since the day when I could buy myself several I've had nothing but repair bills," Bonhoure told a friend plaintively in Marseilles some six months ago. So saying, he climbed into a sleek eight-cylinder, stepped on the accelerator—and crashed into a passing truck.

Nothing daunted, the ci-devant barber bought a couple more cars and continued to burn up the roads in the south of France. Recently his bad luck came back from vacation. As Bonhoure was proceeding blithely from Nimes to Tarascon in a neat forward-drive coupe, he hit a puddle of water. The car skidded, bounded against a tree and overturned. From his vice-versa position the barber climbed out just in time to discover that the motor had caught fire.

There was nothing to do but stand by and watch the machine merrily burn up.

RAMPAGING GANGES KILLS AND DESTROYS

Fifty Villages Fall Before Rushing Waters

Calcutta.—Fifty villages have been swept away, thousands of people fled in terror, and anxiety is felt for the safety of the Hardinge bridge, the longest in India, as a result of the flooding of the Ganges and tributary rivers. Hundreds of head of cattle have been lost.

The areas most affected are those already devastated by the recent earthquake, in the region of Muzaffarpur, Darbhangah and Monghyr.

Officials rescued 2,000 people and 150 head of cattle in this area, and all ferry steamers have been commandeered to carry the inhabitants to safety. Loss of life is feared.

WROTE OWN VERDICT

Considerate of Coroner in Taking His Own Life

London.—John Howard Usney of Reading didn't want his death to cause the coroner any undue worry, so he wrote his own verdict on an envelope before committing suicide here.

Usney wrote:

"Cause of death: potassium cyanide for wasps.

"Reason: financial and domestic worry.

"State of mind: probably insane from worry."

The coroner agreed and returned a verdict of "suicide while of unsound mind."

PEASANT SAVES BOY HELD BY CROCODILE

Unable to Swim, Jumps Into River and Stabs Reptile

London.—The Royal Humane Society has awarded a silver medal to Juma Kalansi, a peasant farmer, who saved a boy named Mataka from a ferocious crocodile in the river Nile.

Mataka was talking on an unoccupied steamer, landing when he walked backwards into the water and was seized by a crocodile before he could scramble out. His companions merely shouted and did nothing at all to help. Kalansi, who was some distance away, heard the shouting, and running to the spot, jumped right out into the water, beyond the papyrus-sudd, despite the fact that he could not swim, landing on the muddy bottom with water up to his neck.

The crocodile had seized Mataka by both legs above the knees, and was swimming off, trying to "submerge." Juma seized the boy's arm and tried to drag him above the water, and after a great struggle had succeeded, as the water was too deep for the reptile to get a firm purchase either by its legs or tail. The water was beaten into foam by the lashing of the reptile's tail and the blood from the now unconscious boy. Juma's small son, Salim, seized a spear from a native near by and threw it to his father, who with a great effort jumped up in the water and stabbed the reptile in the back.

Although the point only just entered the crocodile's back, it caused it to tear its teeth out of the boy's legs, and to attack Juma by seizing him by the hand and wrist, and permanently damaging the arm holding the boy. With the other arm he continued to stab the reptile underneath, until it let go, and he was able to return with the boy to the bank. Juma, apart from the injuries to his arm, was also hurt internally, and had to find his way to a hospital over 100 miles away for a severe operation.

CONSTABLE HAS TOWN FREE FROM ACCIDENTS

Gets Co-operation of Pedestrians and Motorists in Safety Drive

Sunderland.—This is the safest town in Britain—and one man makes it so.

There has not been a fatal accident for 22 weeks. Accidents of any kind are rare.

Sunderland has few traffic lights, no white lines, no "sanctuary lanes" for harried pedestrians. But Sunderland has Chief Constable Ruddick.

Minister of Transport Hore-Belisha wrote and asked Sunderland how it is done.

A reporter drove round the city with Chief Constable Ruddick. This is the answer: The discretion of pedestrians and motorists is relied upon.

Where there are traffic lights motorists are allowed to turn left when the red signal faces them. Observation by the corporation has proved that this prevents congestion.

There are no signs telling one to look right or left.

There were only a few steel studs in certain roads to indicate essential pulling-up points and the limit of encroachment to the centre of the road. There are many street crossings near schools where constables are posted to see that school children cross the road properly.

The children seem to appreciate the interest of the police in their welfare and take a pride in learning to look after themselves. More than 20,000 pamphlets teaching them safety-first principles are to be distributed among school children by the constables.

Chief Constable Ruddick's view of the traffic question is: "Motorists are hardly ever to blame for road accidents. It is nearly always the pedestrian."

GLAD HE GOT INSURED

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Robert Broadwater's wife got very angry 16 years ago when he spent $20 for an accident policy. To-day, Broadwater figures a $21,000 profit from his investment. He fell downstairs shortly after the purchase and has been unable to walk since.

YOUTH MUST PASS 21 TESTS ERE COVETED BADGE GIVEN

Sports, Physical Jerks and Military Training Required

FIRST AID TAUGHT

London.—Anyone going about the streets of Soviet Russia, especially in the larger towns, will see a great number of people, nearly all young wearing a red and white metal badge.

It shows an athlete striding across a five-pointed star. On it are the word: "Gotov k trudu i oborone"—"Ready for work and defence."

It is the G.T.O. badge. Those initials, Gey Tey Aw, still mean nothing outside Russia. But though the words they stand for do not even mention sport, they represent the mass power which among other things is likely to put the U.S.S.R. on the sport map of the world.

There are three standards for the badge, according to sex and age. A man of 18 to 25 has to pass 21 tests, which include:

Running 100 metres (109 yards 1 foot) in 14.5 seconds and 1,000 metres (1,093 yards 2 feet) in 3 minutes 20 seconds; leaping four metres (13 feet 1 inch) in a long and 1.2 metres (3 feet 11 inches) in a high jump; swimming 100 metres in 2 minutes 20 seconds, and also for ten minutes; and cycling ten kilometres (6 miles 376 yards) in 40 minutes. He has to carry out the regulation "physical jerks" which are broadcast each morning, know how to keep himself generally fit, and have an elementary knowledge of sports rules.

And he has also—a shock to orthodox sports ideas—to be able to use a rifle, a hand grenade, and a gas mask, sling about a cartridge box weighing 70 pounds and give first aid.

BREAKS LEG 20 TIMES

Lancaster, Wis.—The parents of Alfred Stohlmeyer, 12, have repeatedly issued strict orders against any sort of rough play, but he has broken his leg 20 times scuffling and climbing.

BRAVE ACT THOUGHT ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE

Hold Rescuer For Observation —Apology Follows

Budapest.—To be locked up as a would-be suicide was the fate of a young English art student after he had made a gallant leap into the Danube to rescue a Hungarian girl in distress.

He was walking along the river bank in the centre of the city when he saw the girl in the water.

A motor-boat arrived to complete the rescue and the Englishman and the girl were taken to hospital. As the student could speak no Hungarian and the hospital staff could speak no English, a little misunderstanding arose, and it was assumed that because he had been picked out of the river he was a would-be suicide.

Accordingly he was put for the night in an observation ward. The morning brought an interpreter, an explanation and an apology.

MOTHER DIES UPON MEETING 'DEAD' SON

Bucharest.—A typing error which is said to have caused a woman's death is the basis of a suit for damages against the Roumanian department of posts and telegraphs.

John Dumbali, a young Bucharest pharmacist, obtained a post in a hospital. His wife wired the good news to his mother.

In Roumanian the word for "appointed" ("numit") may be mistaken for the word "murit" (meaning "died") if not written legibly.

A clerk at the telegraph office is alleged to have made the error. The telegram which John Dumbali's mother received read: "John died district hospital," instead of "John appointed district hospital."

Grief-stricken, she hastened to Bucharest. When she arrived at her son's home the door was opened by him.

The shock of seeing her "dead" son alive was too great. She dropped dead.

BOY PUSHED INTO POND BY SUICIDAL PARENTS

14-Year-Old Saves Self But Mother and Father Drown

Salisbury.—A dramatic story of the drowning of his father and mother in a pond, into which they had also pushed him, was told by a 14-year-old boy at a Tilbury (Wiltshire) inquest.

The boy was Norman Samuel Barter, and the coroner found that his parents, Walter Barter and Edith Barter, of East Knoyle, committed suicide while of unsound mind.

According to the boy he was dragged along by his father and mother when they left home. They told him that they were going to end their lives.

"Father made us kneel down and offer a prayer," he continued. "Then he pushed me under the wire round the pond and into the water.

"They then jumped in and caught hold of me. I sank first, but managed to get away and swam to the shore. I tried to get mother out but she was too heavy. I got out on to the bank and fell down and do not know how long I stayed there."

LANDS 812-POUND TUNNY

Huge Fish Puts Up Fight for Fifty Minutes

Scarborough.—Col. E. T. Peel brought ashore three fish weighing 571, 641 and 812 pounds, respectively.

The 812-pound fish is the heaviest ever caught under the British Tunny club's sporting rules and it is the record certificated fish.

It was caught 46 miles off Scarborough after a 50-minute fight. This brings Col. Peel's bag up to five for this season.

Be Beautiful

It is said that when that famous comedian, Will Rogers, finds himself becoming a bit tubby, he always goes on an onion diet. Of course, those dieting periods must be rather rough on the entire Rogers family, for onions are hardly what you might call fragrant. But that doesn't disturb Will. For while he isn't aiming for the proportions of an Adonis, he does insist on keeping his body firm, supple and free from excess flesh.

Out in Hollywood, however, it is usually the female of the species who worries about figure proportions. Screen beauties, you know, must keep their figures lithe and slender, because the cinema cameras exaggerate things so. And a good many of the lassies go in for calorie counting, in order to preserve the slenderness of their silhouettes.

As a method of reduction, calorie counting has its good and its bad points. The woman who hasn't much spare time at her disposal, and who dislikes to plan her own menus, would probably find it unsatisfactory. For her a reducing routine that is fully outlined, one that is well planned, such as the one in my "New Figure" booklet, is best. But some women get a great kick out of planning their menus and counting calories. And if they do it properly, a most pleasing reduction in weight can be effected.

The first thing you must determine when attempting to reduce by this method, is how many calories your daily diet should contain. If you're a normally active woman, your normal intake of food should range from 15 to 20 calories a day for each pound of your weight. If, for example, your normal weight is 130 pounds, your diet should represent from 1,950 to 2,600 calories a day. And if you wish to reduce, you should reduce your intake of food by about 1,000 calories a day.

The second thing you must consider is what foods you're going to eliminate to cut down the number of calories your diet contains. Keep in mind, when planning your menus, that your body's demand for proteins, mineral salts, bulky foods and vitamins remains, even when you are reducing. It is fats, sugars and starches that make fat in the body. And so it is on these foods that you should cut down, if you wish to reduce your weight healthfully.

Fashion Service

Novelty rayons that look like woolens, are having quite a run in Paris this season. At almost every great house they are being shown.

In the original, green, verging towards dark evergreen was chosen, and the trim very pliable velvet the same color, as the dress. The belt fastened with a green buckle.

Or maybe for fall, you'd prefer a woolen. Then how about a plaid in grey, red and white, with trim of plain grey or red?

Canton or satin crepe black or colors is also lovely for it.

Style No. 3199 is designed for sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3 ½yards of 39-inch material with ½ yard of 39-inch contrasting.

THEATRES

W. C. FIELDS IN "THE OLD-FASHIONED WAY."

W. C. Fields, who has risen to prominence in recent times by reason of the funniness of his acting, has the star role in this feature, and he proves again just how good he is as an entertainer of an extremely natural type. When things happen to Mr. Fields, they don't appear premeditated, but as natural as can be. He has the same quality as the late Marie Dressler of lamented memory in being very funny without seeming to want to be. The Saturday Evening Post, in a recent article entitled "I Wish I Had Said That," refers to Mr. Fields in very flattering terms, calling him a "universal principle which good luck has brought to the moving picture screen". At any rate, universal principle or no, he is as funny as a barrel of monkeys.

His career in this picture is a constant succession of chuckles. See him euchre the passenger out of his sleeping berth; see him take the salute at the station and listen to the old ruin, Cleopatra Pepperday, as she sings him a simple ditty, "Gathering Shells" to enslave his fancy; see him fall into the drum and then go through the agonizing episodes of a real "mellerdrammer" of the "ten, twent, thirt" variety. And then see him make a graceful exit by the door of pathos, always such an excellent foil for humor, and reappear in a characteristic role.

Certainly, Mr. Fields knows how to get the laughs.—Jeanette.

Policemen Plan To Hold Annual Dance

Decision was made at a meeting of Peterborough Police Benevolent and Burial Fund Association last evening to stage a Policemen's Ball at the Canadian Legion Hall on October 26. The meeting was called by President Sergeant Arthur Thomas.

A general committee to handle details in connection with the dance was appointed as follows: Sergeant Arthur Thomas, chairman; Inspector James Reid, secretary-treasurer; Detective-Sergeant Wm. Meagher; Constables William Piercy, Jack Deannard, and Gordon Puffer.

The event will constitute the second annual Policemen's Ball, and preliminary plans promise that it will be one of the outstanding social events of the season.

2000-YEAR-OLD COIN

OAKVILLE, Ont., Sept. 21 (CP)—A coin minted 2000 years ago and bearing the likeness of a Persian Emperor, presumably Darius, is in the possession of a local resident. It was picked up in Mesopotamia in 1917.

Your Health

by DR LOGAN CLENDENING

"When should the baby begin to walk?"

Nothing, except perhaps the twin inquiry, "When should my baby begin to talk?" gives the young parents so much concern.

If the Jones baby across the street, who was born a week later, has succeeded in taking a few steps unassisted and alone, while theirs is still ignominiously crawling on all fours, the humiliation is almost more than can be borne.

But really it makes very little difference. In the absence, of course, of any actual disease of the bones, muscles or nervous system. A few weeks or months' difference, more or less, is no sign of either advanced or retarded development.

The act of walking alone itself is preceded, prepared for, by a long series of other acts by which the muscles are gradually strengthened and taught control. Thus voluntary, purposeful movements, such as grasping an object held out to the baby, begin about the fourth month. At about the same period the head is held erect when the trunk is supported. The baby is usually able to sit up about the eighth month.

Standing with support, but perfectly erect, is learned at the end of the first year. Soon after the youngster begins to take some steps with support. And at the fifteenth month, in the average case, true walking independently of any help is seen. Even so, only a few steps can be taken at a time at first. And the time when independent walking begins may be as late as the seventeenth month of life.

If it is delayed beyond that time the first thing to think about is rickets. Sometimes mental deficiency, or involvement of the central nervous system causing paralysis, is present. But these should be evident before the time of walking begins. Rickets is suggested by a protuberant abdomen, a row of enlargements along the ribs just along the outside the breast bone (the rickety rosary), a square-shaped head with prominent forehead, and a marked disinclination to stand even when supported.

Contrivances for teaching or helping infants to walk are unnecessary. The baby should not be restrained from walking if it wants to, or urged to walk if it doesn't.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS.

M. S.: "Four years ago the fingernail on the middle finger of my right hand began to thicken from the root to the thickness of one-fourth inch. Since that time the trouble has spread until now I have three fingers on my right hand and one on my left in this condition. What could it be?"

Answer: Probably ringworm infection of the nail root. X-ray treatment is the best. It takes time to cure under any circumstances.

F. W.: "You said that amidopyrine might cause a blood destruction. Is there any amidopyrine in aspirin?"

Answer: No.

The first thing to check up on is to be sure that there is no focus of infection such as diseased tonsils, bad teeth, or sinus trouble. Secondly check on your food habits and be sure that you are eating as adequate diet. Thirdly see that you are getting enough rest. A tired body is unable to withstand the attack of germs and a cold makes it even more tired, so that it may take you a long time to get over even a common cold.

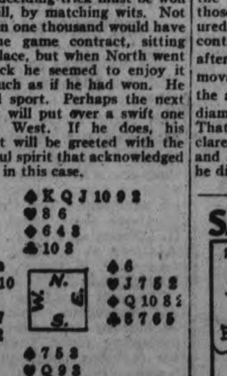
CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

A WORTHY FOE.

Unless playing for too high stakes, so that the financial end of the game overshadows all else, the greatest pleasure enjoyed by able players is being pitted against worthy foes, so that every deciding trick must be won through skill, by matching wits. Not one player in one thousand would have defeated the game contract, sitting in West's place, but when North went down a trick he seemed to enjoy it quite as much as if he had won. He was a good sport. Perhaps the next time North will put over a swift one and defeat West. If he does, his achievement will be greeted with the same cheerful spirit that acknowledged West's skill in this case.



Bidding went: South, 1-club; West, 1-heart; North, 2-spades, to show his powerful suit; East, 3-hearts, to disclose some strength, even if not much; South, 3-spades, due chiefly to his partner's jump call; West, 4-hearts, because his partner had supported; North, 4-spades, which West doubled.

The opening lead was the 2 of hearts, enabling West to mark 2 of that suit in the declaring hand, and 4 in partner's. Dummy played low. West finessed his 10, as the odds were 2 to 1 that East held the missing J. Players must consider these chances. West did not want to establish the Q in dummy, to allow the declarer later on to use for a discard of a loser in diamonds. West then took his K of hearts.

Most players sitting West would have led the ace of hearts, allowing North to ruff, then pull trumps. Had West done this the doubled contract would have been fulfilled—East and West winning only 2 defensive tricks in hearts and one in trumps. The chance to win a diamond trick never would have come, as most West players would have expected. West figured correctly. North's jump spade showed at least 6 strong trumps. He also held 2 hearts. The major suits accounted for 8 cards, leaving only 5 cards in the minor suits. The ace of diamonds and the 4 solid clubs would take care of those, giving a sure game. West figured the only way of defeating the contract was to win a diamond trick, after removing dummy's ace. This removal had to be made before losing the ace of spades. West led his K of diamonds, forcing the ace in dummy. That ruined the contract for the declarer. He had to lose a trump trick and a diamond trick, no matter what he did. It was a clever play.

10,000 Fans See Leafs Take Second Straight Win

COME FROM BEHIND IN SEVENTH TO WIN FREE-HITTING 5-4 VICTORY

Need Only Two More Wins to Earn Right to Continue in Little World Series.

USE THREE HURLERS.

TORONTO, Sept. 21 (C.P.)—Riding the crest of a wave that swept them into third place in the league standing, then overcame the champion Newark Bears and has swamped Rochester Red Wings twice in the final International League play-off series, Toronto Maple Leafs to-day needed only two more victories in five games to earn the right to represent the league in the Little World Series.

With 10,000 cash customers—the second largest crowd of the season—looking on, the Leafs made it two straight over St. Louis Cardinals' farmhands last night with a close 5-4 victory. The teams moved to Rochester after the game where three more, if necessary, will be played.

Offensive Better

The offensives of both teams worked better than in the first game with 21 safeties going into the records, the Leafs garnering 11. Both starting pitchers, Norbert Kleinke for the Wings and Gene Schott for the Leafs failed to last and Al "Steamer" Lucas, Toronto sandlotter gained credit for the victory. Ira Smith relieved Kleinke in the eighth and was in there long enough to be dubbed with the loss.

Leafs took an early lead when they scored once in the first inning but the game was tied in the third. The Red Wings forged to the front in the sixth with a brace of tallies and it appeared the series would be evened. The Leafs got one back in their half of the sixth and then went ahead with two runs in the seventh.

Pinch hitter Joe Moore kept Rochester in the game when he came through to send home the tying run in the eighth but in their half of inning successive singles by Regan, Richardson and Heving gave Ike Boone's outfit the winning run.

LONDOS RETAINS WRESTLING TITLE

Largest Crowd in History of Wrestling Watches Bout to End Long Feud.

LEWIS VANQUISHED.

WRIGLEY FIELD, Chicago, Sept. 21—The ten-year wrestling feud between Jim Londos of Greece and Ed "Strangler" Lewis of Beverly Hills, Calif., was settled to-night when Londos retained his world's heavyweight wrestling championship by throwing the former titleholder before a crowd estimated at 32,000.

The crowd was believed to be the largest ever to see a wrestling match, exceeding by several thousand the 30,000 who witnessed the match between Frank Gotch and George Hackenschmidt at Comiskey Park, Chicago, 23 years ago.

Londos, recognized as champion since he threw Dick Shikat at Philadelphia in 1930, pinned Lewis' shoulders to the mat with a hammerlock and three-quarters Nelson. The time was 49 minutes, 27 seconds.

Lewis withstood the punishment of the hammerlock, which Londos put on first, without distress, but succumbed when the Greek manoeuvred him into a three-quarter Nelson, which decided the bout.

Whitely Loses in Pitchers' Battle

TORONTO, Sept. 21.—Staving off a desperate ninth inning rally, Toronto Orange Crush drew first blood in their O.A.-S.A. Intermediate quarter-final series with Oshawa New Service Cleaners at Conboy Park last night, when they captured a thrilling 3 to 1 decision. The game was a replica of the 3-3 deadlock the teams waged in the Motor City on Tuesday night, with the verdict in doubt until the last man was out.

PETES TO FACE CHIEF WILLIAMS

Hopes of Belleville Team Depend on Indian's Arm in To-morrow's Game.

BIG FINAL CLASH

Can the Chief do it again? That is the question that has thousands of ball fans in Belleville and Peterborough worried on the eve of the fifth and final game of the C.O.B.L. playoffs. The Nats and Petes clash in their last fixture of the year at three o'clock Saturday in Riverside Park, and the league title depends on the outcome. Chief Jack Williams has won the two Belleville games and he is slated to hurl again to-morrow. The hopes of Peeney Mills and his batting Belleville team depends on the Indian's good left arm. The fate of the Petes may also depend on it.

Knotty Lee's gang have been unable to hit Williams the last twice they've faced him, but with their backs to the wall they are more than likely to knock him out before the home crowd Saturday. They must do this or hang up their spikes for a year. Bill Calladine is the logical choice to twirl for the Petes, but Knotty Lee has not named his starting pitcher. It may be Kitchen, Scriver, Rose or Deyell. With so much at stake and another great ball game assured, the biggest crowd to pack Riverside in years is expected at this time. Neutral umpires from Toronto will handle the game.

BURTON LEADS FIELDERS

The Petes, now in the throes of a thrilling C.O.B.L. playoff series with Belleville, had a good season so far. They finished their schedule in first place, despite repeated injuries to players, and will be 1934-35 champions of the league if they win Saturday's game here. On their season's play, the team batted .267 and fielded .952. None of the pitchers went below the .500 mark. Tommy Foley led the regulars at bat again with an average of .314. Of the regular fielders, Burton and Hollingsworth were tops with 1.000 percent, with the whole team showing up well defensively. Orillia Terriers Are New Champs

ORILLIA, Sept. 21 (C.P.)—The Orillia Terriers won the provincial senior lacrosse championship here last night, taking a second straight win from Cornwall Island Indians by a score of 10 to 4. Despite the fact that the Terriers more than doubled the score, the Indians gave the Orillia team the best opposition they have met this season. The dusky Islanders didn't know how to quit and the pace never slackened during the game.

RUGBY BATTLES GET UNDERWAY

Senior Football Squads Speed Up Training With Inter-Divisional Games.

GAMES TO WATCH.

By ELMER DULMAGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Sept. 21 (C.P.)—All but two of the East's senior football squadrons, two weeks away from official campaigning, speed up training activities Saturday with inter-divisional battles that will bring the gridiron sport squarely under the spotlight for the first time in 1934.

The day carries a schedule that would create plenty of interest in mid-November and at this early date may have more than a little to do with the business by fandom of selecting favorites in the Inter-provincial, Intercollegiate and Ontario Unions. The tests are real.

Sarnia Imperials, O.R.F.U. champions and finalists for the Canadian title last fall, make their debut at home against University of Western Ontario Mustangs, the team Coach Joe Breen hopes will make a lasting impression on its Intercollegiate foes. It will be the first seasonal engagement for both teams.

Queens at Tigers

Another College—Big Four encounter sends Ted Reeve's Queen's brigade against the Hamilton Tigers at Hamilton. This will be a test for the Bengals and Coach Johnny Ferraro, former Cornell University backfielder. Ferraro will send his squad into a style of gridiron warfare of which he knows little. He has never played the Canadian game.

Hamilton's O.R.F.U. team moved into Kitchener for an exhibition engagement with the Twin City Panthers, an intermediate club. Montreal Wheelers, who last week downed Toronto Balmy Beach of the O.R.F.U., will play Montreal Canadian Nationals, Quebec Union intermediates.

All Four in Action

Toronto will have its four senior teams in action in one stadium as the annual Reg DeGruchy Memorial Cup series opens to determine the city championship. The Canadian champion Argonauts, also cup defenders, face Balmy Beach and University of Toronto's Intercollegiate title defenders play St. Michael's College.

The following Saturday the winners play for the trophy and city title and the losers battle for the practice. Saturday's only idle senior teams are Ottawa Roughriders and McGill.

Scheduled O.R.F.U. games are: Intermediate—Chatham at London; Sarnia at St. Thomas. Junior—Niagara Falls at Port Colborne; Thorold at St. Catharines; Welland at Fort Erie; Tilbury at Windsor Border Cities Grads; Sarnia at Petrolia; St. Thomas at Woodstock.

CARDINALS REDUCE GIANTS' LEAD AND HAVE CHANCE OF CATCHING UP

Tigers End Series With Yankees and Still Lead League by 5½ Games.

CARDS WIN TWO.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

The fluctuating fortunes of the major league pennant contenders to-day left the Tigers at the top of their important series with the Yankees just where they started it—5½ games in the van—but with a much better chance of holding the lead.

After the even break between the American League rivals, ending with New York's 11-7 triumph yesterday, the centre of attention moved to the National League, where the Giants' lead over St. Louis again had been reduced to 3½ games and the situation was becoming acute.

The Cards wound up their affairs at Boston yesterday with a double triumph, 4-1 and 1-0 as Tex Carleton and Bill Walker allowed only 11 hits in two contests and clipped a half game off the New Yorkers' margin.

The Giants won a single contest from the Reds 4-3 when Carl Hubbell ended his own duel with Paul Derringer with a ninth-inning single that drove in the winning run.

Go To Brooklyn.

The Cards moved to Brooklyn to-day to clean up two previously postponed games with the Dean brothers slated for mound duty, and the Giants opened a four-game series in Boston. With three more games left on the St. Louis' schedule than on New York's, the Cardinals still appeared to have a good chance of catching up.

Close to the clinching point, the Tigers eased up along with their rivals in yesterday's fray. Each team made four errors, the Yanks hit 17 times and Detroit 14 in the free-for-all. A crowd of 20,000 saw the contest to set a Detroit record of 121,000 for the four-game series.

Another possible contender in the National League was all but eliminated when the Cubs wilted before Philadelphia hitting in the eighth and took their third straight defeat, 9-7. The Phils scored six times in that inning to put the Cubs where the best they can possibly do is to finish one point ahead of the Giants.

Athletics Win

A couple of second division clubs, the Athletics and Dodgers, dominated the rest of the program. The A's recorded their seventh straight triumph, downing the White Sox 6-5 on the combination of good hurling by Johnny Marcum and long range hits which included Jimmie Foxx's 43rd homer. The Dodgers scored their sixth in a row, beating their favorite victims, the Pirates, 3-1 behind Leslie Munn's five-hit elbowing.

The Indians breezed through to a 6-1 triumph over Washington behind Mel Harder while the Browns won over the Red Sox 4-3 when Jack Burns socked a homer with one on in the ninth.

Browning Secures One Fall In Bout

TORONTO, Sept. 21.—For a few seconds Giant Hans Steinke weakened his guard against Jim Browning's leg locks but the lapse was long enough to send him to defeat in the main bout of the wrestling show at the Maple Leaf Gardens last night before a crowd that numbered around 8,000. Steinke seemed master over the recent world champion until he was trapped in the leg lock and twirled twice for a fall.

Browning made the most of the opportunity, refusing to release his grip until certain that the Giant German, almost a super-man of the mat, was pinned firmly and he was declared the winner.

The fall was the only one of an hour match, Steinke being unable to pin the Browning shoulders to the carpet to even the bout although he was the aggressor most of the time.

St. James' Juniors Again Are Victors

St. James' Juniors won the second straight game from Mark Street Intermediates, 18-14, last night at the Oval in the post-season Church Softball League series. Like the previous game, both teams, and Mark Street in particular, played below their usual form, and the game was slow with but five innings played. Mark Street got off to a good start with eight runs in the first frame and led, 12-4, going into the fourth. The junior champs went berserk then to tally twelve and sew it up. The losers lost a fine chance then when R. Hunter was out trying to stretch a triple into a homer. Both hurlers, Mowry and Hunter, were hit hard. Heal, Mowry, McGoverin, Parsons, R. Hunter, Sager, G. Hunter and Brady all got a bunch of hits. The teams:

St. James—Heal 2b, B. Leggett c, S. Leggett ss, Mowry p, English 3b, Smart cf, McGoverin 1b, Ridley lf, Gross rf.

Mark Street—Ferguson c, Parsons ss, Brady 1b, M. Hunter 3b, Darwin lf, R. Hunter p, Sager 2b, G. Hunter cf, Wright rf.

FAMILY LIFE

GRIMSBY, Ont., Sept. 21 (CP)—Affection and assault were a couple of words hard to distinguish when Mrs. Steve Koday, appearing in police court here, swore her husband had knocked her down, choked her and kicked her following an argument over some work on their farm. Asked how long she wanted her husband in jail, she replied she didn't know if she wanted him to go to jail at all. Whereupon the court advised the pair return home and end the quarreling.

PETES ORGANIZE SPEEDY OUTFIT FOR GRID GAMES

First Time in Many Years That City Will be Represented in O.R.F.U.

BELLEVILLE ENTRY.

Large Squad of Players Are Working Out at Exhibition Park Each Evening.

This autumn for the first time in many years, Peterborough will have a representative in the Ontario Rugby Football Union. An Intermediate O.R.F.U. grouping is being formed which, unless unexpected obstacles arise, will consist of Peterborough, Belleville and Lindsay. The first two are sure entries, and Lindsay is making efforts at present.

The local club has been accepted now into the Union and informed by the secretary that if a group up this way could not be organized, the Peterborough club would draw a bye into the semi-finals. As was pointed out, one club alone in this part of the province would entail too much travelling to be entered in any group, but one in Central Ontario, but in any case the local team would be gladly accepted into the O.R.F.U.

Carson is Manager

Charlie Carson has been doing the organizing and managing of the partly-formed squad. Gord. Young—who played for P.C.I. and for a time at Queen's—has been acting as coach and putting the players through a nightly drill at the Exhibition Grounds. Jack Taylor—Argonaut's star half-back—has also promised to assist in the coaching of the Peterborough squad as he is in town several days a week on business. The prospects for a good team here is considered exceptionally bright.

Among the Players

Among the players working out every evening so far are: Young, Gardner, Magee, Weir, Creighton, Mesley, Routley, Sloan, Dinesen, Spencely, Whitaker, Kirkwood, Janeway, Ridyard, Gerow, Reynolds, Richardson, Jack Hope, Broadley, Ashmore, Ellis and others. The team, when ready, is expected to average about 180 pounds a player, and made up mostly of experienced footballers with speed and science as taught to many of while while playing in past years for P.C.I. It will be a young squad and in fine condition. Arrangements will be made shortly to properly equip the players.

They have been drilling a week or so now, going through slightly stiffer workouts each night. The approved training methods of noted coaches have been used to get the prospects in perfect shape for this arduous and red-blooded sport. The players and those in charge are quite confident that Peterborough rugby rooters will once again see a strong competitor from here in a good grouping of the O.R.F.U. for this fall. Play in likely to start in about two weeks, and something definite on a group and schedule should be known inside of a week.

FORMER CHAMP MEETS BRITON

Miss Ada Mackenzie Matches Games Against British Survivor in Canadian Open.

SEMI-FINAL ROUND.

(By Edwin S. Johnson, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO GOLF AND COUNTRY CLUB, Toronto, Sept. 21 (CP)—Two to one on the Canucks to retain the Canadian ladies' open golf crown were the odds as four contenders by right of conquest, marched out on the fairways here to-day in the semi-final round of the championship event.

Fighting desperately in defence of her title and gunning for her fifth term as proud golfing queen, Miss Ada Mackenzie, Toronto, will match her prowess against the lone British survivor, Miss Molly Gourlay, member of the strong Curtis Cup squad.

In the lower half of the brackets, two of the Dominion's foremost players, Mrs. W. G. Fraser of Ottawa, and Mrs. C. B. Ford, Vancouver, will duel for the right to enter the final.

All four, who previously have been in the limelight of championship struggles advanced along the title trail yesterday by outlasting and outplaying a coterie of game opponents.

Difficult Round

Miss Mackenzie, who has had a difficult journey in her progress, gained the distinction of accounting for the second member of the British International team in two days. She brushed aside the challenge of Miss Doris Chambers, captain of the team, two up and one to play, in the quarter finals, although she was still afflicted with unsteadiness around the greens. It was this same trouble that almost sent her into the gallery the day before. But on that occasion, Mrs. J. B. Walker, Irish internationalist, was in a more helpless putting slump to drop the decision on the 18th green.

Miss Gourlay, however, gained an easier victory, blasting out of contention Montreal's ace and last contender, Mrs. A. B. Darling, by a 4 and 3 count. Frequent trips into deep traps and occasional lapses around the greens spelled the defeat of the Montreal player.

In Top Form

Mrs. Fraser, former holder of the Canadian and United States open crowns, was at the top of her form when the occasion required to shatter the hopes of Miss Diana Plumpton, the second of the British challengers to fall by the wayside during the day. Mrs. Fraser was as steady as a rock under pressure and finished the match on the home green by sinking a three-footer before a gallery of several hundred.

Yet another stirring battle was provided between Mrs. Ford and Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen, Toronto, with the Pacific Coast player on the right end of a 2 to 1 decision. Mrs. Ford blazed away at the Toronto club's stiff layout to shatter par on five holes and otherwise met the test brilliantly despite her opponent's gallant fight to avoid elimination.

DANGEROUS GAME

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 21. (CP) Police scoured the mountain to-day for the individual who has been having such a great time tossing stones over the side. A motorist driving up the mountain road heard a thud on the roof of the car and then discovered a hole six inches square in the top. The stone reposed on the floor of the auto.

Well, folks, you pay your money and you take your choice. We imagine the majority of fans are still banking on the Petes copping the C.O.B.L. title here tomorrow, but no doubt there are some who like Belleville's chances now. The Petes took the first two games of the 5-game series with the greatest of ease—like the bird on the trapeze—but they lost the next two. And so we come to the last act. Jack Williams is going back to the mound here Saturday as sure as you're a foot high in a gallant attempt to win the title for the Nats single-handed. He won two for them and might possibly have enough left for another victory.

• • • • • • •

But we don't think so. We think the Petes are bound to start hitting again and the Chief's arm is only human—it can't pitch championship ball in three tough games in eight days. At least, that's what we think and we've got a few berries left to lay on the line with anyone that thinks differently! True, the veteran Indian forkrider hurled much better ball in his second win over the Lee gang than he did in the first, but if he can repeat once more—well, he's a miracle man, and let the hammer-throwers do their darndest.

• • • • • • •

Knotty Lee, grouchy as a bear with a toothache, will have the Petes in there battling tomorrow till the cows come home. He has not said who will start pitching for us, but we sort of half expect Bill Calladine to get the job. It's now or never with them, and we'll ride along with the local lads. As for the dumb clucks around who hint the series was fixed to go five games—after that heart-breaking game hurled by Deyell Wednesday, too—well, just phooey to them. We know better words but the boss won't let us print 'em. Anyway, those punks aren't worth arguing with. The biggest crowd of the year will attend Saturday, if the weather's halfway decent, and the most exciting game of the year is on the books. Come on, you Petes!

• • • • • • •

We sashayed down to the Exhibition Grounds yester eve and saw the local O.R.F.U. team—in formative stages of course—having a stiff workout under Gordie Young. Chiefly through the efforts of Charlie Carson, this team has been organized—or is being organized, rather—and accepted into the Ontario Rugby Union. It's many years since we had a team in this Union, but from the class of husky, young and experienced footballers working out nightly down there, we ought to be well represented this fall. They hope to be grouped with Belleville and Lindsay, and will know shortly. If not, they will get a bye into the O.R.F.U. semi-finals. The dope appears elswhere in today's issue.

• • • • • • •

Also, in another spot today, we've run the Petes' complete averages for their C.O.B.L. scheduled games. While they didn't hit any too hot for the year, they still finished in first place, and their fielding has been exceptionally good for a youthful outfit—and so has their pitching. The figures are worth wading through to get an idea as to just what each individual has done in each department. Later on, after we run the other teams' averages—on successive days—we'll compare the players of the loop as a whole. And believe you us, pals, it's tougher'n shaking off the in-laws when you got dough to compile these doggone averages. The old bean has been throbbing for a week now.

• • • • • • •

Four local teams hit the trail again this week-end, three of them playing out-of-town. Kiwanis lacrosse team plays Scarboro Grads in Agincourt to-night, trying to make up a six-goal deficit. Dorsey Davis' Cogs open their O.B.A.A. intermediate series in Milton tomorrow, return game being here next Wednesday. And Herb Ralph's juvenile Terriers travel to Viaduct Park in Toronto tomorrow to play the first of the O.B.A.A. semi-finals with Arlingtons at three bells (that's daylight saving time). And, of course, the Petes clash with Belleville here Saturday. Or hadn't you heard of that one, yet?

• • • • • • •

The Southend Softball League finalists meet tomorrow at one in the Brinton Field, with a fifth and deciding game, if necessary, down there the following Saturday. As the players have trouble getting off work early, it has been decided to finish out the string on Saturdays instead of evenings. The Orioles, fighting desperately to stave off elimination the last time out, were in front, 8-6, when rain and darkness combined to have the tilt called in the sixth, it being declared no contest. Might have been a break for Albions at that.

• • • • • • •

Houses are being divided among themselves in Ashburnham and elsewhere these fine fall days and all 'cause two softball teams composed of young and chomming dahlinks are doing battle for a title and trophy. They are ye oldtime rivals, Keene and Westclox, and have old boys in the neighborhood of eighty arguing as hotly as their grandchildren over the respective merits of the mademoiselles. Personally, we're a little too smart to put ourselves in the middle and get into a battle with the gals by saying one team is better than the other—regardless of the winner, we know we would lose. Westclox won the first game by one run and Keene took the second by two runs. It's a dandy five-game series, with next one at five tomorrow in the Bowl. Fourth one will be in Keene Monday. And don't forget to bring along a big nickel or two to feed the kitty.

• • • • • • •

Kicking the gong around: Joe Spring and Fred Walsh, two of the best umps in Toronto, will handle the game here tomorrow . . . . Cogs had a hard practise last eve and look in shape for Milton . . . . Don't be too surprised if Russ Kitchen is sent back against Belleville Sat'day . . . . Western City League of Toronto has withdrawn from the T.A.B.A. till that body is reorganized 'cause of that trouble over Kruschens' team . . . . Hillcrest Juniors copped the Toronto title and may play Belleville next . . . . Oshawa softballers lost, 2-1, to Orange Crush of Hogtown yestiddy . . . . Some 33,000 rasslin' fans in Chi last pm. saw Londos beat Lewis, but that's fair enough as the Strangler had previously beaten Jeem just fourteen times . . . . Lindsay O. I. footballers will average 170 pounds this fall.

PERRY MISSING FROM WHEELERS

Montreal is Formidable Force Reinforced by American Grid Stars.

WELCH TO KICK.

By WALLACE WARD
(Canadian Press Sports Writer)

MONTREAL, Sept. 21. (CP).—For the first time in half a dozen Interprovincial Football Union campaigns, zero hour will find the Montreal football forces under General Clary Foran advancing to the football wars without galloping Gordie Perry, crack light cavalry man of the Wheelers' backfield division.

The wiry little catching half this year has regretfully retired from the gridiron due to pressure of business and the responsibilities of married life. Despite the loss of the scintillant Perry, the Foran Legion of 1934 will be a formidable force, reinforced with some heavy artillery enlisted from United States colleges, revitalized by some young blood from intermediate ranks, and solidly strengthened by cool and wily veterans of other years.

Supporters Satisfied

Supporters of the Red and Blue team were not a little complacent at the preview of the team they were given as the Wheelers beat Balmy Beach 10-7 in the first exhibition game here.

Despite obvious lack of sufficient scrimmage and signal drills and the dullness of early season play, the fans were satisfied with the steadiness and power of the front line saw the potential effectiveness of the new Armerican players once they get used to the Canadian game, and were agreed that the back division would do. They saw Huck Welch kicking perhaps a little better than last year, Johnny Bennett replacing Perry as catching half with Huck, and other new backfield material shaping up well.

Foran will throw over a ton of wingmen at the enemy. He has many choices for the front line, including 10 men with an average of 200 pounds each. Lou Newton, ex-Syracuse University star, will repeat this year at snapback. Lou is a great blocker and his charging on the attack has carried him through opposing lines to break up many a play. Bert Adams, sarting his 11th season with the Wheelers, will be alongside of Lou at inside wing, with George Pigeon fitting into his old notch on the other side of the snapback. Carl Palombo, 235-pound tackle from University of Pennsylvania, will fit into one of the middlewing berths, partnered at times by Pete Jotkus, the line bucking juggernaut, Steve Stevenson, Jack McBrearty, Dave Ryan, or Mike Jotkus.

Well, To-night will be Friday night—and you all know just what that means.

We Just Want to point out, once again, that maybe this will be the last mixed event of the season, so why not make it a real one.

Everybody Is coming. The president with all the directors will be there. "Bob" Hendry will be out, just by way of a change. Every "Mr. and Mrs." are taking a night off, Nellie and Mary are coming; Dr. Lawrence is coming—for no tournament is complete without the Doc; and then just to make it unanimous "Doris and Shirley" have already sent in their entry—so you see everything points to one big night.

We Understand that there will be five sets of prizes and will be entirely new and different.

Of Course, all this depends on the weather—and we have reasons to believe that it is going to be good.

So Be On Time; come early; telephone your name in and make a "B" line for the greens.

If You Are left out don't blame anybody but yourself—we can only accommodate thirty rinks.

Friday Unlucky In Sailing Events

GOSPORT, Eng., Sept. 21 (AP)—The old nautical superstition that its unlucky to sail on Friday is believed here to have been as much responsible as anything else for T. O. M. Sopwith's request for a 24-hour postponement of the fourth race for the America's Cup.

Sopwith believes heartily in the superstition, Gosport seafaring men say, and point out that he refused to let Endeavour start for the United States and the cup race on a Friday although all hands were anxious to reach Newport as soon as possible.

TO-MORROW afternoon beautiful Woodbine will open it's fall session. Everything is in perfect order, the whole plant has been freshly painted and extensive improvements have been made since the spring meeting of last May. A large consignment of horses have arrived from Western Canada, among whom are the well known George E. Miller and the Duchess of York and we will miss our guess badly if both of these mavericks do not cop several heats between now and the time the snow flies. Duchess of York who is now twelve years old always had a liking for the Woodbine racing strip and do not be surprised if she is returned a winner at the first asking and the price will be right too.

Down at Rhode Island they have suspended J. D. Mikel and his large string of thirty-five hoyses for the balance of this year. Believe you us this is some penalty even more so than the average casual observer would think. Just imagine the feed bills that this man will have to pay from now until the first of January next besides stable help, exercise boys, etc. and without the chance of taking in a five cent piece. We have an idea that this penalty will be modified a little later on to the extent of allowing those horses of his to start providing they are looked after by a different trainer. Of course this is only guess work on our part but watch closely and see how far we are wrong.

SWEEPSTAFF who raced around here this spring in the colors of Harry Hatch has bobbed up again in Western Canada where he won a big handicap event the other day and among the ones who finished behind him was George E. Miller whom we mentioned above. Down at Rockingham they have made elaborate arrangements to combat the doping evil. If a trainer or any of his assistants are discovered on the premises with dope in their possession it will mean expulsion for life and down at this place they don't fool. Did you notice where our good thing Frumper went over on Wednesday at Detroit?

Phil R. who paid such a big price in the last race on closing day at Thorncliffe is in a rare state of the pink at the present time and should account for another win in the near future. This one is strictly a fall horse and always reaches the peak of his form at this season of the year. Lindsay is another that seems to go better in the cool of the autumn than at any other time during the year and the wise boys around the track tell us he is turning in some wonderful workouts. Deedie the big long striding horse from the Smallman stable who has won his last two starts in fairly easy fashion seems to have regained his good form of two years ago and will be dangerous from now on any time they see fit to start him.

HORNETS ARE WINNERS

GALT, Ont., Sept. 21 (CP)—In the third game of the O.R.B.A. finals, played at Lynden last night, before a crowd of 1,200, the largest to ever attend a rural game, Blair Hornets defeated Cainsville in a wild hitting game, 16-13, to take the Hepburn Cup, won last year by Innerkip.

Wins Another

Stan. "Steamer" Lucas, whose specialty is relief pitching assignments for the Leafs, and who has done a lion's share of the work in the team's recent successes.

SILVER SLIPPERS BY Temple Bailey

CHAPTER 45

Joan was crying now, stormily. "Poor lamb," Farley said, and patted her shoulder and then presently she suggested her perennial panacea. "You must have a hot bath and I'll get out the white dress with the silver."

"Yes . . . Drew will like that. He hates black."

More flowers came up presently, orchids and valley lilies. But it was the shoulder knot of violets that Joan wore with the white and silver. Nancy coming in with Drew to go down with her said: "Joan, you darling . . .! May I kiss my sister-in-law?"

Joan's voice was startled. "Did Drew tell you?"

"My dear, he's shouting it from the housetops."

Joan turned to her lover, "Do you mean we are to announce it?"

"Why not?"

"Oh, I thought . . . it was just our business."

"Why hide it . . ." he let it go at that, and went on to say, "Joan, you are perfect in that gown."

"She is perfect in any gown," Nancy stated, "and now may I break the news gently that Rose and her mother are coming over after dinner."

"They won't see us," Drew announced, "Joan and I are to ride up the mountains in the moonlight . . ."

"I am not sure," Joan told him, "that I like Spanish moons."

"You will like this one."

"You can't leave Rose high and dry like that," Nancy protested, "what shall I tell her?"

"That I am going to marry Joan, and that this is our first evening together."

Nancy laughed. "There's no reason why I should turn the knife. And you wrote to her, Drew."

"A desperate man will do anything."

Joan let it go at that. Why spoil this supreme moment with doubts?

"Put on your fur coat," Drew advised her, "we are having a closed car but the winds are biting."

It was amazing the difference in moons! Last night Joan had hated the heavy-hanging copper disc in the sable sky. It had seemed sinister — spectral. Tonight, as she looked at it as she sat by her lover's side, her head against his shoulder, the moon was like a beneficent goddess—smiling.

It seemed to her as they sped on and on that all the romance of the ages was pressing in upon them. Along these roads of Spain under other moons had come lovers with their ladies . . . vows had been breathed . . . troths plighted . . .

But no lover more wonderful than hers . . .!

"Do you love me ——" she whispered.

"Je vous adore."

When they came very late into the hotel lobby, they found Rose and her mother with Nancy.

"Runaways," Rose said, and held out her hand to Drew, "Nancy tells me you are to be congratulated."

His radiance shone upon her: "Wish me happiness, Rose."

Her reply was cryptic: "I wish you all that you deserve."

He laughed, and left them to go to the desk for the night mail. Rose turned to Joan, "How long shall you be staying on?"

"Until we are married."

Rose looked startled. "Is it to be as soon as that?"

"In April. I shall be running down to Paris for some clothes, but I shall come back here."

Rose drew her wrap about her. "We must be going, mother," she said, "Nancy wants us over for bridge tomorrow, We'll see you then, Joan."

Joan hardly heard her. Rose had no place at the moment in her shining world. Drew was coming towards her, letters and papers in his hands. As she went to meet him, Joan was aware that the eyes of the men in the lobby were upon them. Most of them knew Hallam, but they were wondering about this white and silver child who seemed to draw light to herself as she moved forward. Her beauty had a spiritual quality which tugged at the hearts of those watching sophisticates. It was as if she embodied some dream of youth which they had lost.

Drew handed Joan a letter: "It seems to have gone the rounds," he remarked.

Joan glanced at it. The writing had a familiar look, but she did not place it. It had been forwarded apparently, from Baltimore, to Maine, to Paris.

She tucked it into her bag. She would read it with other letters when she went upstairs.

It was late, however, before she looked at it, then propped up among her pillows she opened it and knew it was from Giles Armiger.

"My dear—

"May I call you that? You are always that in my heart . . .

"I have just learned that you believe me married. It clears away much that has been hard for me to understand. I have been ill, and when I grew better Scripps told me what he had said to you. Amelie is his wife, not mine. Her mind was disturbed by the horrors of the war. She lost a brother, and thinks I am that brother. So I am bound to the two of them in a strange way, of which I will tell you more when I see you. Scripps guessed that I loved you, and feared the desolation and horror which might come if you cared for me . . . You see? How much sorrow has come out of his fantastic imaginings?

"And now I can say that I love you, and you will know I have the right to say it. I ask nothing, dear child, except that you will let me see you. Perhaps you love Hallam. Perhaps by this time you are already promised to him. I hope not. Even if you are never mine, I want something for you that he cannot give. If you are to be happy love will mean for you . . . constancy, gentle living, a God in your little world of home, children, a husband in whom your heart can rest. Hallam's sails are not set for serene harbors. Forgive me for saying this. I could not do it if you had not in my dim old shop opened your heart to me. And always I am your friend. You know that? Surely you know it.

"May I come to you, Joan? I have so much to say. Things I cannot put on paper. But this I will say in all humility, that I believe I could still your heart as Hallam has not stilled it. Don't you know this is true? Don't you? I pray God I may prove it to you before it is too late."

The letter ended there. Joan lay back on her pillows, shaken and white. Oh, why should this word have come in the midst of her happiness? What had she to do with Giles Armiger or he with her? She was promised to Drew. . .

She thrust the letter from her . . . her thoughts swung to her ride with Drew, to the moonlight . . . to Drew's whisper, "Je vous adore."

What had she to fear? Nothing. She snapped off the light, then groped in the darkness for the violets she had worn and which Drew had kissed. She laid them on her pillow so that they touched her cheek. Presently she slept.

And in the morning, Farley found Giles' letter where it had fallen on the floor.

In the days that followed Joan lived a life of enchantment. Farley shook her head over it. "It can't last—poor lamb." But she dared not speak her thoughts to Joan. The child was bewitched. Changed. She lived in a mad rush. She bought clothes and more clothes. Jewels. With Nancy helping her. She danced, she motored, she dined, she rode. She would come in after a day of excitement and fling off her wraps and say: "I'm dead for sleep, Farley. Will you shut everything out until I can get 40 winks," and Farley would put her to bed and cover her up and draw the curtains, and watch over her until she awoke refreshed. Then would come the dinner gown, and Joan would go off ecstatic, only to return in the early hours of the morning, flushed and excited, while the maid expostulated, "Dear lamb, you can't stand this life."

"I can stand anything, Farley, when I am with Drew."

Drew and Nancy knew everybody and, with the announcement of the engagement, invitations poured in. Joan having doffed her mourning entered enthusiastically into the social whirl. It was a gay set in which the Hallams moved, a rather rackety set, indeed, but stimulating. Now and then Joan, thinking of the woods in Maine, wondered how she had lived in such monotony. She wrote to Penelope to announce her engagement. "Of course you won't like it. But you would if you could see my happiness."

Then, as was inevitable, there came one day a reaction. Joan, wandering into a quaint old shop with Drew had bought a fan . . . a lovely thing . . . chicken-skin, delicately painted with rose-wreaths and cupids and lovers'-knots. Rare old lace was set in the border and the sticks of ivory and silver were exquisitely wrought. The price was staggering, but Joan bought it. Drew laughed at her but commended her extravagance. "I like to see you spend. I could do if myself if I had the money. The price of that fan would pay all my gambling debts."

She was startled, "Gambling debts?"

"Bridge," succinctly, "I've been losing."

She had her check book in her hand. A flush came into her cheeks. "If," she began uncertainly.

He touched her cheek with the tip of his finger, "I know what you are thinking . . . but you mustn't. I'll pay my debts, my darling, even if I'm not made of money."

That was, apparently, the end of it. But the thought jarred. Who would pay Drew's gambling debts after they were married? And why should there be such debts?

But there were more debts than gambling debts. She learned gradually that it was Nancy who held the purse strings. "If I didn't, Joan, we should be in bankruptcy. Drew's a child when it comes to finances."

Joan ventured to speak of the Spanish investments. Nancy shrugged: "They are not doing as well as we hoped. But don't worry about us, we shall weather it, as we have weathered other storms."

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, September 22

Judging by the mutual and lunar aspects holding away on the affairs of this day, again the subtle, the mysterious and intriguing seems to dominate, particularly in the realm of the social, cultural, domestic and romantic. While serious duties may not be neglected, yet the allure of the occult, mystical and curious may monopolize the attention and the activities. Forces and faculties may be prone to turn inward rather than to express in the commonplace.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which their major efforts may be turned toward the intriguing, subtle, visional, romantic or curious. The mind will be studiously, seriously and mystically inclined. But there may be an element of success and satisfaction in these peculiar endeavors.

A child born on this day may have some unusual or peculiar genius, to which it may seriously apply itself, achieving success and maybe renown. Unique expressions of poetry, music, art, occultism, may be its forte and give much gratification.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

MILK SITUATION IS UNDER DISCUSSION

Producers of This District Hold Meeting to Iron Out Difficulties.

A number of minor details in the milk situation were discussed and ironed out as a group of milk producers of this district met in the Department of Agriculture offices last evening. A feeling of general satisfaction with the producers' and distributors' code adopted during August prevailed.

Several farmers complained that the distributors are not giving them a "square deal" in connection with their surplus milk but explanations by V. S. Milburn, secretary of the Peterborough Milk Producers' Association, satisfied them that their camplaints were founded on misunderstandings of the code. One instance in which a local distributor failed to abide by the code regulation regarding the retail price of milk was discussed.

Although it was felt that there are a few additions and adjustments to be made to the code, the producers were confident that all can be worked out among the producers and distributors themselves without the further intervention of the Milk Control Board. Among other things, a conviction that there are still certain classes of distributors, aside from the regular distributors, who can afford to pay fairer prices to the producer, will be investigated.

BALL PLAYERS MUST BE DRIVEN BELIEVES BILL TERRY OF GIANTS

Mickey Cochrane Uses Leadership and Not Driving Methods With Detroit.

BOTH SUCCESSFUL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (A.P.). — William Harold Terry and Gordon Stanley Cochrane, the two favorite pupils of the two greatest managers in the history of baseball, will lead the New York Giants and the Detroit Tigers to the world series this year, if these teams gain the National and American League championships.

Terry learned his baseball from John McGraw. He never played for another major league manager. So it was too with Cochrane, who came to the Philadelphia Athletics in 1925 from the Portland club and stayed there under the guidance of Connie Mack until Frank Navin, president of the Detroit club, bartered him away for $100,000.

Neither Terry nor Cochrane knows what it is to manage an unsuccessful club. Terry batted 1,000 in his first year as manager of the Giants, taking a second division team and driving it to the National League and world series titles. The only man in the game to-day who has a chance to equal this mark is Cochrane.

Question With Managers.

Whether to drive the players or lead them has always been the question before baseball managers. Terry was taught to drive them and he does. Cochrane learned the other way.

"I hear a lot about the men having changed," says Terry, "but I don't believe it. We just eat in swanky hotels now, that's all. They're more careful about their jobs now, because they get more money for being careful, but ball players are just as lazy as ever. You have to drive them. If you don't you're whipped.

Cochrane does not exactly subscribe to Terry's belief and he seems to be doing pretty well. Mickey's not exactly the timid soul, and he doesn't go around philosophizing with the boys, but he still tries to lead them, and seldom drives.

Both managers are having great years. Terry has been in the fight for the National League batting crown all season, with an average of around .355, while Cochrane, who is batting around .330, is given credit for doing the greatest work of his career in handling the inexperienced young Detroit pitchers.

Great Britain has appointed an "air mail adviser" for its postal service to insure that the department is kept in closest touch with air developments.

MOTOR TRIP TO PACIFIC COAST IS DESCRIBED

Mrs. B. W. Harvey Addresses Meeting of Local Council of Women.

BUTCHART GARDENS

A very pleasing and graphic little account of a trip to Western Canada, the Pacific Coast and return through the United States, by way of the World's Fair at Chicago, all by motor, was given to the members of the Local Council of Women yesterday afternoon, at their first meeting for this season, by their president, Mrs. B. W. Harvey, who, with Mr. Harvey and other members of their family, spent six weeks this summer in a motor tour of many places in Canada.

Mrs. Harvey emphasized only the highlights of the trip. She spoke of the significance attached to several words in her vocabulary since her return; rivers having impressed her much by their importance in travel of this type, and gardens and mountains.

She spoke of the marvellous Butchart Gardens in Victoria, the property of a man who formerly was in the cement business in Lakefield. One of these, a tropical garden, was transformed by Mrs. Butchart from an old abandoned quarry. Mrs. Harvey also referred to the profusion of blue hydrangea encountered in the far West, where iron and rusty fillings placed about the feet of the plants is declared to be responsible for their blue coloring.

The party had many interesting and thrilling experiences in the mountain ranges around Banff, Coast, Sulphur (where the very hot-water springs are located), Temple and Cascade Mountains were mentioned, famous in a region where the tourists' horses nibble grass nonchalantly on the edges of precipices falling away thousands of feet to canyons below.

Mrs. Harvey mentioned the orchards of dead peaches and the English owner who cultivated them by irrigation and abandoned them in the time of the Great War by leaving England and never returning. She also spoke of the extreme natural fertility of Canada as compared with the United States, and alluded to the corn belts as regions where wealthy people live and have their being from the funds amassed by the sale of corn and pigs.

Mrs. E. Wand, who spent some time at the World's Fair in Chicago, gave a very brief idea of her visit there, emphasizing the impression made upon her mind by the great Hall of Religion, where people of all faiths had little 'churches' of their own and where a curtained enclosure at one end concealed a beautiful facsimile of The Last Supper, carved in pearl.

The little villages and model homes were also noted, one of the latter being contrived entirely of steel and glass, and another having a flat roof used in lieu of a garden.

Mrs. Harvey presided for the regular business session, which included the reading of the minutes by Mrs. J. Cridland, the financial statement by Mrs. H. Tremain, showing a balance of $34.62 in the treasury, and the reading of the correspondence by Mrs. E. Law, including a letter from the National President, Miss Winnifred Kydd, inviting all ladies who are interested to attend the meeting of the National Council in Ottawa from October 15th to 19th.

URGE YEAR'S SERVICE

KINGSTON, Ont.—The General Council of the United Church of Canada yesterday adopted a resolution sponsored by Very Rev. E. H. Oliver, Saskatoon, to the effect that all candidates before ordination should be required to give one year's continuous service in preaching or pastoral work unless they had already done so during the time they were taking their courses.

It was just Nature's little joke when the voice of Dr. Dan Mackenzie, who was addressing the Rotary Club at Wimbledon, England, on the anti-noise campaign, was drowned by thunder.

INQUEST INTO DEATH OF CHILD

Coroner's Jury Returns Open Verdict—Struck by C.N.R. Train.

DID NOT SEE CHILD

The coroner's jury sitting under Dr. T. W. H. Young last night returned a verdict that Jimmie Batley, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Batley, 263 Townsend street, met his death from shock and haemorrhage after being struck by a Canadian National Railways freight train on the afternoon of September 13.

Three employees of the Canadian General Electric, porcelain department, testified to being eye-witnesses of the fatality, and while they were not all agreed as to how the accident occurred, each gave evidence that the child was struck by a box car that was being pushed by a locomotive across the Townsend street tracks into the C.G.E. sidings.

Did Not See Child.

In contrast to that evidence, the five members of the train crew swore positively that they had not observed the child, and that they were not aware that an accident had occurred until twenty minutes later when they learned of it as the train was proceeding on the return trip from the plant.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., conducted the examination of the witnesses, while Alfred Edge, division claims agent of the Canadian National Railway Company, was present in the interests of the company.

Ross Nicholls, R. R. 2, Peterborough, who described himself as a porcelain moulder, was standing by his press in the porcelain department, overlooking the scene of the accident, he told the court.

"I saw the boy catching hold of the back step of the box car. He was backing up with the car and fell," witness testified.

Car Backing Slowly.

In reply to the crown attorney, the witness stated the car was being backed in a southerly direction at a slow walking pace. The child was not between the tracks, but was on the ties at the west side of the tracks. He believed the oil box on the axle was the portion of the car that had struck the child and thrown him to one side.

Frances Corey, 61 Crescent street, was working on the ground floor in the porcelain works. She noticed the child walking between the tracks ahead of the box car. He had his back to the train and was walking in a southerly direction.

The end of the box car was about two feet from the child when witness saw the child stumble and fall, she testified. "I shut my eyes, and when I looked back the child was lying on the grass at the side of the tracks."

In reply to further questioning by the crown, witness thought the child was in the act of stepping off the tracks when the step of the car caught him.

Dorothy Custance, 269 Wolfe street, in the witness box said: "I saw him just as the train struck him. He rolled over twice and then lay still."

The child was between the tracks walking ahead of the train in a southerly direction. Witness did not see the child holding on to the box car.

Engineer Testifies.

A railroader of over thirty-one years' experience, Andrew Clegg, 260 Stewart street, engineer of the train involved, testified that the locomotive coupled onto the car almost on the crossing near the porcelain works. He did not know that anything was wrong, he said, until twenty minutes later when the train was returning from the plant at 3.40 p.m.

The bell was ringing continuously throughout the switching operations, the engineer stated in the witness box.

William Strickland, the fireman, also denied any knowledge of an accident having occurred until it was later called to the attention of the crew. He said the bell was ringing as the train proceeded over the crossing, and also during the whole time of the switching operations.

Had Clear View.

Joseph Maher, one of the three brakemen on the train, was on the front end of the top of the car, standing six feet from the end of the car, he said. He testified that he had clear observation of the crossing and did not see any sign of the child. "I swear positively there was no boy in front of the train," he declared.

Mr. McElderry—But you couldn't see directly in front of the train. You were standing six feet from the edge of the car and it would be impossible for you to see within about ten feet of the front of the car.

Witness—Anything would have to come in front awfully suddenly for me not to have seen it. I did not see the boy at all.

Mr. McElderry suggested to the witness that it would be wise under such circumstances for brakemen to walk in front of the train.

Witness did not agree. "We never do it. It is unwise to walk in front of any moving car."

Was Looking Ahead.

James DeFinney, another brakeman, also swore that he did not see the boy. He was standing on top of the car just at the rear of the previous witness, he said, and was looking ahead ready to signal back to the engineer in case of any emergency.

Harvey Staunton, also described as a brakeman, was on the rear of the car. His duty was to look for signals from the brakemen ahead of him and to communicate any signals to the engineer. He stated positively that he did not see the child.

Dr. A. G. Howson and Dr. Herbert N. Young described the injuries sustained by the child. Death, they testified, was due to shock and to internal haemorrhage. The former, who was called to the scene of the accident, stated that the child had a rupture of the muscles of the abdominal wall on the left side above the hip bone. The peritoneal cavity had also been ruptured, he said, and there was extensive bleeding.

"Could the injuries have been inflicted if the child had been struck by some part of a slow moving train?" Mr. McElderry asked Dr. Howson.

Dr. Howson—That is a very difficult question to answer. After he received such injuries the boy would be immediately prostrated. It must have been a very severe blow. Beyond that I cannot say.

William E. Lech was foreman of the jury, other members being as follows: Messrs. John McGrath, Percy Golds, Aubrey Crowley, J. Weyer, E. Hollingsworth, W. Allen, William Mowry, David Crowley, George Lackie, Peter Collins and Ted Boyer.

Weddings

GAMBLE—REDCLIFFE

MARMORA, Sept. 21.—The wedding was solemnized at the United Church parsonage, Marmora, on Saturday evening by the Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth, of Peter Harold Gamble, of Haultain and Carmel Helen Redcliffe of Marmora.

ELLIS—RILEY.

MARMORA, Sept. 2.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. William McCallum, when Ruby Loretta Riley was united in marriage to Roy Wilfrid, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ellis of Havelock. Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth officiated.

The youthful bride wore a becoming military blue crepe dress with grey hat, shoes and accessories. She was attended by Miss Dorothy Rogers as bridesmaid, who was attired in willow green crepe with white hat and shoes.

Miss Grace Burridge was the flower girl. Mr. Robert A. McPaul, of Blairton, discharged the duties of best man.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of about thirty guests, after which a delicious wedding supper was served. Later in the evening a dance was given in honor of the happy couple, who were also showered with many useful gifts. After a short honeymoon they will reside in Lakefield.

KEHOE—BOSLEY.

TWEED, Sept. 21 (Examiner Correspondence).—St. Henry's Church was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday morning, when Miss Agnes Bosley became the bride of Mr. Joseph Kehoe. The wedding party entered the church to the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, the bride looking very charming in a blue silk crepe costume with lace yoke and matching hat and shoes. She carried an arm bouquet of white gladioli and baby breath. The bridesmaid, Miss Irene Lorton, of Belleville, was in a brown tailored costume and carried autumn flowers in bronze and yellow shades.

Mr. Fred Bosley supported the groom, and Rev. Father Meagher celebrated nuptial mass. During the ceremony the organist, Mrs. F. Barry, and the choir rendered appropriate musical selections.

A reception was held later at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Bosley.

COBOURG—Douglas B. Free, former Cobourg citizen, facing a fine of $500 or a jail term of one year for non-apport of a child of his first marriage, had the conviction quashed when Judge J. McGibbon heard the appeal. Judge McGibbon granted the appeal when Free settled for support of the child of the first wife he had divorced at Reno. The judge refused to recognize the Reno divorce.

WASHINGTON—The United States Senate Munitions Committee met to-day to determine whether it will reveal names of Chinese Generals and officials accused of taking bribes in connection with orders for implements of war.

The Nanking government has asked that the cammittee identify those involved in testimony at the inquiry so that an investigation can be started in China.

BOWMANVILLE — Marking the completion of 100 years as a congregation, St. Paul's United Church to-morrow will start a week-long series of special services. The congregation was founded in 1834, the present church biult in 1871. Rev. C. W. Gordon (Ralph Connor), of Winnipeg will be guest speaker at the concluding service on Oct. 7.

KEARNEY, N. J. —A fire, fed by oil and fireworks, raced through the Seacost Refining Company plant to-day and spread to storehouses of the Lincoln Tidewater Terminal Company on the Passaic River.

Eleven oil storage tanks burst and a number of frame warehouses, one holding fireworks, were levelled before the fire burned itself out. Damage was estimated unofficially at $100,000 to $500,000.

STE. PERPETUE, Que.—The whirring knives of a binder to-day fatally injured Jean Paul Leclerc, three, on his father's farm. The child was playing in a field with Ange Alice Leclerc, four, his sister.

The little boy crept into the tall wheat. His father drove the cutter and binder unwittingly right over his little son.

KABUL, Afghanistan. — A large-scale revolt broke out during the night in Kazakstan, one of the four provinces of Russian Turkistan, according to refugee rebels streaming across the Afghanistan border early to-day. From 10,000 to 15,000 rebels were taken prisoner, they declared.

NEW YORK.— Adoption of a penalty shot and a reduction in club and individual salary limits for the season were the high spots of to-day's session of the semi-annual meeting of the National Hockey League.

The penalty shot has been in general use by teams on the Pacific Coast. The rule will apply any time a team is making a shot for the goal, when, in the referee's opinion, what would have been a sure shot is fouled.

TORONTO.—A Kitchener dealer to-day was possessor of the beautiful mahogany Grand piano which once graced the home of the late Sir Adam Beck, founder of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission. Sale of the piano for $975 provided the highlight last night at the auction sale.

BRANTFORD.—A case of infantile paralysis has been reported to the Health Department here. The patient is a 17 year old girl. Immediately on diagnosis the patient who was showing all the preliminary symptoms of poliumyelitis, was given the anti-paralysis serum and thus far no paralysis has developed.

BRITISH YACHT TRAILS AT LINE BY 75 SECONDS

Defender Walked Away From Challenger on Last Twenty Miles.

SERIES TIED UP.

Both Skippers Agree to Hold Fifth Race on Monday.

By ANDREW MERKEL.
(Canadian Press Writer.)

ABOARD U. S. COASTGUARD CUTTER MENDOTA, Newport, R. I., Sept. 22.—(C.P.)—The American defender Rainbow led the British challenger Endeavour over the finish line in the fourth race for the America's cup to-day, tieing up the series. Rainbow won by one minute 16 second.

The defender sailed superbly throughout and walked away from the challenger on the last two 10-mile reaches, Rainbow's best point of sailing.

Lost Two Minutes.

Trailing the Rainbow by 20 seconds at the start, T. O. M. Sopwith, Endeavour's owner-skipper, threw away two minutes in a tacking duel and then settling down to a long starboard tack, rounded the weather mark, 27 seconds in the lead.

Poor sailing after turning the mark gave Rainbow a lead which she gradually increased to the second buoy, going around 50 seconds ahead.

Sopwith pulled up in the weather berth on the last reach, and in the latter stages came boiling down to nearly snatch a victory.

The official times for the race were: Rainbow, 1:55:38; Endeavour, 1:56:53

The series now stands at two races apiece. Best four out of seven is the test.

Rainbow Heads at 20 Miles.

In a thrilling see-saw encounter the Rainbow regained the lead from the Endeavour, which she had trailed by 27 seconds at the first

SUSPECT THREE LINDBERGH CASE

Dr. Condon Sure Hauptmann Did Not Play Lone Hand.

THINKS FISCHER SLAIN.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP)—Belief that at least three persons were involved in the Lindbergh kidnap and ransom plot and that one of them was murdered was expressed to-day by Dr. John F. Condon, the 74-year-old educationist who has followed the criminals' trail since the night he passed $50,000 ransom to a man he knew as "John" in a Bronx cemetery.

The "Jafsie" of the celebrated criminal case said he was convinced that Bruno Richard Hauptmann, held by New York police as the man who got the ransom, was involved but did not play a lone hand.

Recalling that Hauptmann had attempted to explain his possession of the ransom money with a story that it was entrusted to him by Isadore Fische, when he went to Germany, Dr. Condon said he thought the police investigated Fische's death in Leipsig March 29, 1934.

"I believe the body should be exhumed and an autopsy performed. I suspect foul play. I believe he was murdered."

Hunting a Woman

NEW YORK, Sept. 22. (AP)—Assisting Chief Inspector John J. Sullivan to-day sent his detectives in search of a woman he believes aided Bruno Richard Hauptmann in his alleged part in the Lindbergh kidnapping

Notes The Same

TRENTON, N.J., Sept. 22.—(AP) Albert S. Osborn, New York handwriting expert, informed Col. H. Norman Schwarzkoff, superintendent of the New Jersey state police, to-day, that he was "positive" all the Lindbergh baby kidnapping notes were written by Bruno Richard Hauptmann, suspect held in New York.

ITALIAN GUILTY IN RUMBLE SEAT MURDER CASE

Alisero is Sentenced by Montreal Judge to Hang January 11, 1935.

KILLED SWEETHEART.

MONTREAL, Sept. 22.—(CP)— A court of King's Bench jury today found Joseph Alisero, youthful Italian, guilty of murdering Graziella Viens, his sweetheart. The body of Miss Viens, riddled with bullets, was found crammed in the rumble seat of Alisero's roadster which was abandoned on a suburban street.

Mr. Justice L. J. Loranger formally sentenced Alisero to be hanged at Montreal jail at Bordeaux on Jan. 11, 1935. Evidence and charges of counsel and judge were completed yesterday.

Evidence during the trial showed that the Viens girls had left home Saturday, May 12, to go away for a week-end in the mountains. Alisero said he had loaned his car to the girl. The girl's body was found May 14 in the rumble seat of the parked roadster. Alisero's counsel attempted to prove an alibi for the young Italian, but the Crown maintained bloddy fingerprints on the death car were made by accused and that he had been seen in the car with Grabiella Viens starting out on the night of May 12. There was much conflicting evidence as to whether the girl could drive a car or not and some confusion in evidence of witnesses, some of whom said they saw the girl alive after she was supposed to have been killed.

Border Cities Radial Will Be Continued

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 22.— (C. P). — The Sandwich, Windsor and Amherstburg railway will not cease to operate at midnight to-night, as announced yesterday afternoon after a meeting of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission.

Taken entirely by surprise by the announcement from Toronto that the road would be closed down immediately because the Hydro Commission is not prepared to pay the interest charges on the bonded indebtedness of the road, the board of directors met here early to-day and decided to continue operations, at least until the board has an opportunity of discussing the matter with the interested municipalities.

F. A. McGill, local superintendent of the street railway, was appointed general manager pro-tem at to-day's meeting of the board.

Mine Disasters

LONDON, Eng., Sept. 22.—(C.P.)—Mine disasters have taken a heavy toll in the British Isles during the last 30 years. Six major disasters during this period have taken 1,244 lives and to-day's Wrexham blast, it is feared, will add substantially to this total.

Following is a list of mine disasters and the number killed since the summer of 1905.

CONVICTED OF SHOPBREAKING

Havelock Youth is Sent to the Reformatory For Three Months.

CYCLE THEFT.

Leon Breen, 20-year-old Havelock youth was this morning sentenced to Ontario Reformatory for a period of not less than three months and an indeterminate term not to exceed one year.

Electing summary trial and pleading guilty in Magistrate's court he was convicted of "unlawfully breaking and entering by night."

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., told the court that Breen was arrested by Constable Chris Roberts in the early hours of Friday morning after he had obtained entry to the store premises of Albert Wilson at Havelock with a skeleton key.

Following a series of thefts at the store during which about twenty dollars had been stolen, the proprietor lay in wait in the store and caught Breen, the Crown Attorney stated, as he was about to open the cash register. Mr. McElderry made reference to previous trouble in which the accused had been and for which he was placed on suspended sentence.

Frederick Hamilton of Sherbrooke street pleaded "not guilty" to a charge of stealing a bicycle on July 7 last, the property of Percy Killingbeck. On application of the Crown the accused was remanded until Thursday next, bail being stipulated in the sum of $200.

Donkey Steaks

NANKING, Sept. 22.—(CP)—An average of 70 donkeys and horses are eaten here every month. This large consumption is due largely to the presence of several thousand Chinese Mohammedans who abstain from pork, which, to the average Chinese is what chicken is to the American Negro. About 3,000 hogs are slaughtered here every month.

POLICE GRILL KIDNAP SUSPECT WITHOUT MERCY

Confident of Iron-clad Extortion Charge Against Hauptmann.

IN LINDBERGH CASE.

Link Ladder Used in Baby's Abduction With Prisoner Who Worked at Mill.

By SOM HAGENBUCH

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (A.P.)—Investigators concentrated to-day to bring together links of evidence into a final solution of the kidnapping and slaying of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr. This already had woven an "ironclad" extortion case around Bruno Richard Hauptmann, stolid German carpenter, in whose possession part of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom money was found.

Further, they had connected Hauptmann with the ladder used to bring the Lindbergh baby down from the bedroom from which he was kidnapped on a dark night in March, 1932.

Still, the authorities sought to forge stronger the chain of evidence they have built up in one of the United States most spectacular crimes.

Steady Questioning

Hauptmann, the 35-year-old alien who was arrested after a $10 bill he used to pay for gasoline was identified as part of the ransom money, was subjected to further steady questioning until early this morning by District Attorney Samuel J. Foley of the Bronx. At the conclusion of the questioning, Foley said:

"I feel satisfied we have an ironclad case in the Bronx." Charge, he made clear, applied only to the extortion on which Hauptmann is held. So far as the kidnapping and homicide is concerned, Foley said "New Jersey will have to speak for itself."

New Jersey, with an extradition warrant already issued against Hauptmann, will proceed, Gov. A. Harry Moore said, "When the evidence warrants it."

It was evident from the Governor's statement that that New Jersey authorities are not yet satisfied they have the strongest evidence against Hauptmann.

Worked in Lumber Yard

Information that the former carpenter was definitely connected with the kidnap ladder came from Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey State Police, who said that Hauptmann had worked in the Bronx lumber yard from whence came the lumber to build the crude ladder down which the Lindbergh baby was carried to his death.

This, Schwarzkopf admitted, is one of the police's best points.

Federal investigators continued their painstaking tracing of the $50,000 ransom money of which $13,750 was found in the garage behind Hauptmann's home in the Bronx.

Following Hauptmann's assertion in the police lineup that he had played the stock market in 1932, police and federal investigators turned to Wall Street for an answer to the question of what became of the money not yet accounted for.

BRITISH AIRMAN HOPS FOR INDIA NON-STOP FLIGHT

Sir Alan Cobham, "Pioneer of Empire Airways," Aims to Refuel in Air.

AT THREE POINTS.

Expects to Cover 5,200 Mile Trip from London in 48 Hours.

AYLESBURY, Buckinghamshire, Eng., Sept. 22. (AP).—Four fliers were killed to-day when their aeroplane, with which they had refuelled Sir Alan Cosham's plane as he started out on an attempted non-stop flight to India, crashed in flames on the main London highway near here.

PORTSMOUTH, England, Sept. 22. —(A.P.)—Sir Alan Cobham took off at dawn to-day in an attempt to fly non stop to India by refueling in the air.

Accompanied by Squadron Leader Helmore of the Royal Air Force, Sir Alan hopes to reach Karachi, distant 5,200 miles, in 48 hours. At three points en route the fliers will take on food, gasoline and oil from aerial "tankers."

Before the take-off Sir Alan, who is called the "pioneer of Empire Airways," said "the proposed non-stop dash to India is the culmination of the two years' extensive and very laborious experiments designed for the purpose of demonstrating the practicability of refueling in the air while in flight.

"With the rapid growth of commercial flying on long transcontinental journeys the system of refueling in the air has become imperative. This is not a 'stunt flight.'

First Load at Malta.

At dusk the fliers planned to be over Malta where a refueling plane will service them and at the following dawn over Alexandria where a Royal Air Force troop carrier is to provide fuel and food. Another air force machine will refuel the ship at Shaiba, Basro, when the final lap to Karachi will be flown.

Sir Alan's plane flew seaward accompanied by an air liner outfitted with a tank. When the plane was 20 miles from the airport, a gasoline pipe lowered nearly 100 gallons to the Cobham machine which then uncoupled the pipe and sped onward.

TWO GANGSTERS SERIOUSLY SHOT

Dillinger Aides Awaiting Execution Fail to Work Fake Gun Trick.

JAIL BREAK FAILS.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 22. —(A.P.). —Harry Pierpont and Charles Makley Dillinger gangsters awaiting execution in Ohio penitentiary, were shot in their cells in the prison to-day. One was shot through the head and the other through the hand when they attempted to break jail with fake guns. Both were seriously injured.

Makley was the man shot in the head. He also was shot in the shoulder. Both men were shot through the spine.

Guard Harold Whetstone was shot in the hand.

The guards shot the two prisoners when they rushed to the block after the alarm bell was sounded.

KIDNAP SUSPECT AIMS TO FIGHT HIS EXTRADITION

Ontario Immediately Presses Action to Get Meisner Over Line.

MAY BE DEPORTED.

TORONTO, Sept. 22. (CP).—Official notification from the British consulate in Detroit was received by Attorney General Roebuck to-day that David Meisner, suspect in the Labatt kidnapping, intends fighting extradition. The proceedings in Detroit will be held October 5th.

In consequence of this, Mr. Roebuck immediately directed that Joseph Sedgwick, K.C., and Clifford R. Magone, proceed with arrangements for taking depositions and have Meisner extradited.

The depositions will be taken before a magistrate yet to be named in Toronto, and probably will commence on Tuesday of next week.

"Our witnesses will not cross the border," Mr. Roebuck declared. "From this information Meisner has decided not to cross the border voluntarily, though there is a possibility the United States authorities may deport him; it is said he is a Canadian citizen."

Mr. Roebuck could not say whether deportation might arise before the extradition proceedings, the matter being in the hands of the U.S. authorities.

May Deport Him.

"We are going to proceed with our extradition proceedings, and if the Federal authorities desire, to save us the expense, they may gently ooze him across the line in deportation," said Mr. Roebuck.

"It is quite clear that Meisner is fighting extradition," Mr. Roebuck denied any agreement or arrangement being made with Meisner as to having witnesses sent to Detroit to identify him.

"There was no agreement made by us for his surrender or of having witnesses taken there," said Mr. Roebuck.

"Is there any suggestion that witnesses might not want to go to Detroit for fear of some interferences," he was asked.

"We are not the least afraid of gangsters. If we wanted to send witnesses there, they would be amply protected. We will take the depositions here as is the procedure and the evidence will be sent to the U. S. commissioner on extradition."

Mr. Roebuck could not discuss the report that Albert Pegram, second suspect in the case, might surrender, or be arrested shortly.

"There is no basis for that rumour," said Mr. Roebuck.

Claims Faith Broken

DETROIT, Sept. 22. (CP). Claiming that Detroit police have violated the agreement under which he surrendered as a suspect in the Labatt kidnapping, David Meisner this morning made arrangements to battle extradition and also to combat deportation if he is proved to be a Canadian citizen.

Meisner, who was taken to Wayne County jail from police headquarters yesterday on a federal warrant, was brought back from Wayne county jail to federal headquarters this morning. He declares that he surrendered on the understanding that witnesses who seek to identify Labatt's kidnappers would be brought to Detroit, and that instead arrangements have been made for extradition and investigation started to establish his Canadian citizenship and liability to deportation.

Meisner, who has engaged counsel, states that a private investigator has checked what he claims a perfect alibi, the sleuth having found out, he says, that Al Seiter and Leo Hall, two Cincinnati detectives, have been trailing him daily for two or three months in that city.

ONLY 16 BODIES ARE RECOVERED 9-HOUR BATTLE

Flames, Fire Damp Sweep Through Depths Following Explosion.

RESCUE CREWS GASSED.

Extra Heavy Shift on Duty to be Free for Saturday Football Game.

WREXHAM, Wales, Sept. 22. —(AP)— Hope was abandoned at dusk today for 100 coalminers caught in an explosion and fire in Gresford colliery. Rescuers worked all day to enter the pit but were unable to reach the lost miners. The first rescue squad to enter the mine brought out the charred bodies of five men. Later 11 more were recovered.

There were nearly 400 men in the mine at the time of the explosion. More than half of this number were in an unaffected section and were brought to the surface. The others were trapped more than a mile and a half from the mouth of the pit.

Huge rock falls after the explosion, coupled with the raging fire below, made any attempt at rescue work most difficult. Many of the rescue workers were gassed and had to be removed to the surface for treatment.

Fire extinguishers and showers of stone dust and sand were used in an attempt to smother the flames, while those engaged in rescue work frantically erected barriers to screen themselves from the searing flames.

Fire damp is believed to be another danger facing the entombed miners.

The repair shed at the pithead was converted into a temporary mortuary and dressing room where a large staff of physicians and nurses and ambulance drivers established their headquarters.

Wives Wait News

In a driving rain, the wives and children of the men gathered at the mine to await the meagre news.

The Wrexham fire brigade was called but was unable to reach the fire with hose lines because of the depth.

The chief of the brigade said there was little hope of rescuing the men.

There was more than the usual number of men in the mine during the night shift because of a football game scheduled at Wrexham this afternoon, miners preferring to work the night shift in order to be free to attend the game.

Nine hours after the blast 16 bodies had been recovered, five of the miners escaped unharmed and two were rescued but were seriously injured.

Rescue parties said fire was raging below the surface of the mine and they were finding progress impossible. The recovered bodies were found near the mouth of the pit.

Pastors Lend Hand

A number of clergymen assisted in filling the sand bags which were being carried down to fight the fire. One of the clergymen was crying quietly as he worked: two of his choir boys were trapped below in the mine.

Despite the dangers of the rescue work, dozens of hands were raised into the air, signifying willingness to go, when a call was made for volunteers to go down into the fire and gas inferno.

It was feared that the captain of the rescue team had perished. He did not come out with the rescue party which retreated to the surface carrying two dead companions.

Prospects Brighten For Textile Peace

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22. —(A. P.). — An end to the most widespread textile strike in the history of the United States appeared an imminent possibility to-day.

Despite smouldering hostility and scattered violence a personal appeal from President Roosevelt apparently brightened prospects for quick peace as the executive council of the United Textile Workers gathered for a crucial meeting today.

There was every indication that the strike might be called off, effective Monday if employers agreed to accept the recommendations of the presidential mediation board headed by Governor John G. Winant of New Hampshire.

RAINBOW TO USE YANKEE'S SAIL AND DESIGNER

Vanderbilt Also Adds 2 Tons Ballast in Determined Effort to Hold Cup.

DIFFERENCES FORGOTTEN.

Sopwith Ready With New Genoa Gib for "Light Wind" Battle.

BY ANDREW MERKEL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEWPORT, R.I., Sept. 21.—(CP)—Harold S. Vanderbilt, Rainbow's resourceful skipper, took the United States defender out this morning with two tons of extra ballast, Yankee's huge parachute spinnaker and most wonderful to relate, with Yankee's designer, Frank C. Paine, in a determined effort to tie up the series for the America's Cup now standing two to one for T. O. M. Sopwith and his British Endeavour.

Rainbow's showing down the wind, in ideal Rainbow weather, was so disappointing Thursday Vanderbilt decided he must have a spinnaker to match the huge perforated kite that had carried Endeavour to a six-minute lead in 15 miles of running before a zephyr.

Some Added Help

The only spinnaker meeting the requirements, available in the crisis, was Yankee's. But Yankee had been Rainbow's rival in a bitterly and most closely contested elimination series to select a defender. Moreover, having Yankee's spinnaker aboard would mean having Yankee's designer in the same after guard with Rainbow's designer, W. Starling Burgess, a former partner, contained the germ at least of complications.

It is a tribute to United States sportemanship that at Mr. Vanderbilt's call all differences have been swept by the board, all rival factions have rallied around him in a supreme effort to hold the cup.

Endeavour, towed out to the line with her new Genoa jib, was tried out and found satisfactory yesterday. Sopwith has taken good care he will not be caught with an ill-fitting sail as he was Thursday.

Early indications were that moderate easterly winds would prevail.

If Yankee's spinnaker works as well on Rainbow as it did when Yankee wore it, the whole complexion of the series may be changed. She consistently ran away from Rainbow running before the wind.

Thus far Endeavour has shown that her strongest point of sailing is a spinnaker run before the wind.

In fact, many, who may well be prejudiced, have not hesitated to air their views that the New York Yacht Club was hasty in its selection of Rainbow over Yankee, and the enlistment of Paine and the confiscation of Yankee's spinnaker go a considerable distance in support of such sentiments.

Fort Built 1786 Found In Manitoba

SOURIS, Man., Sept. 22. (C.P.)—Ash House, a fort built in 1786, by the Northwest Fur Trading Company, to-day is being rediscovered by S. H. Forrest, K.C., Souris, after a search lasting 25 years.

Long interested in historical points in Manitoba, Mr. Forrest and several other associates have attempted to find the exact location of Ash House for many a month during the past 25 years. Their efforts met success last week.

Ruins of the old trading post were found a few miles north of Lauder, Manitoba, 180 miles southwest of Winnipeg.

E. H. Hetherington, G. A. McMorran, and H. Forrest, of Souris, and George Landreth, Lauder, accompanied Mr. Forrest on the successful trip.

DEER CHANGE HAUNTS

FLAMBORO CENTRE, Ont., Sept. 22. Clinton denied the identity but upon the girls' insistence that he was Clark Gable of the screen he signed their autograph books.

TYPHOON DEAD MOUNT TO 1,651

Japanese Manufacturing Area Laid in Ruins—Rice Crop Flattened.

$300,000,000 LOSS.

(By Glenn Babb)

TOKYO, Sept. 22 (AP)—Shaken by the ravages of a typhoon, described as the second greatest catastrophe of modern Japan, the empire to-day counted at least 1,651 dead and the nation's manufacturing area laid in ruins.

Ripening rice fields fell before the screaming gales in the farm areas, and officials estimated the crop will be reduced 20 per cent.

Early estimates of the property damage ran to more than $300,000,000, a serious threat to the empire's ambitious industrial export program.

The newspaper Asahi described the typhoon's material damage as second only to that wrought by the earthquake of 1923.

Only land casualties could be established, there being no attempt to estimate the loss of life at sea. Officials' compilations numbered 4,975 injured and hundreds missing.

In the harbor of Osaka, where 1,600 small craft foundered or were hurled to the shore, at least 100 drowned. Hundreds of fishermen may have been lost, according to Rengo (Japanese) dispatches, as 2,360 fishing craft failed to return to Shikoko Island.

13,674 Buildings Fall

Hundreds of school buildings were among the 13,674 structures demolished, while a greater number of buildings were damaged.

A story of the frantic attempt of lepers at the Sotojima Hospital at Osaka to escape the gale, was told by an eyewitness. They clambered to trees and telephone poles to escape the flood water, only to be hurled down again by the peak force of the gale. There are 260 missing, and these were believed drowned.

The populous textile region of Osaka reported 1,067 dead, 3,057 injured, and 181 missing. More than 3,000 factory buildings were destroyed and thousands of others damaged.

At Kyoto, seat of the empire until the last century, there were 203 dead and 858 injured. The city of 999,963 population is a centre of the pottery, porcelain and velvet industry.

A Rengo dispatch from Koshi reported the huge tidal waves swept over the southeastern end of Shikoko, destroyed two small towns and drowned 42 of the villagers.

Okuyama was seriously flooded, and without adequate food supplies.

IRISH FREE STATE-INDIA TRADE DEAL PROGRESSING

LONDON, September 22. (C. P. Cable).—Protracted negotiations between representatives of India and the Irish Free State, which opened this spring here with a view to implementing the trade agreement the two signed at Ottawa, are approaching partial conclusion.

The discussions have revealed a number of thorny points which will be left over for future consideration, it was learned to-day. It is believed a draft agreement covering the points on which concurrence is possible will be forwarded to India for definite decision, in the hope that it may be signed in the near future.

Fear of Middle Age

Severe Strain on the Nerves

The dread of middle age
Has ruined the health of many a woman.
To some it is a worry that brings a nervous breakdown.
This period in life has its difficulties,
But they are greatly exaggerated by the imagination.
It is the fear and worry that depletes the nervous system,
Rather than the natural change at this time of life.
By keeping the blood rich and red
And thereby supplying nutrition to the nervous system,
You need have no fear of middle age.
By using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food regularly,
Throughout this period of change,
You can usually avoid any serious trouble.
With a good supply of nerve force
To ensure the health and vigor of mind and body,
You dismiss from your mind any worry
You may have had about middle life.

BORDER CITIES RAILWAY LINE WILL BE CLOSED

220 Employees Given Week's Pay, Told Service Ends at Midnight.

OWNED BY HYDRO.

TORONTO, Sept 22. (CP).—The Sandwich, Windsor and Amherstburg Railway, a municipally-owned line, will cease operations at midnight. The 220 employees will receive a week's salary and the radial line will cease to function.

Decision to close down came from the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission following a meeting here yesterday. T. Stewart Lyon, chairman of the Commission, announced the company had insufficient funds to meet interest charges on bonds due Oct. 1 and he notified the Ontario Government and the municipalities concerned of the Commission's decision.

The government guaranteed payment of the interest charges but deficits suffered by the railway since it was taken over by the municipalities Jan. 14, 1920, led to the Commission's decision, and this was concurred in by Premier Mitchell F. Heburn. The Premier said the matter would be considered next Tuesday when he returned to his office from the Ontario federal by-elections campaign, and he added if a bus line could serve the municipalities this would be given consideration.

Municipalities who voted to buy the road for $2,039,000 from the Detroit United Railway in 1920, were Windsor, East, Windsor, Walkerville, Sandwich, Ojibway and Amherstburg, and Tecumseh, Riverside and La Salle villages along with Sandwich East and Sandwich West townships.

The Weather

This is the season of the year when the days and nights are equal, and when the sun rises in the true east, and sets in the true west. It may surprise you if you watch the setting sun these evenings to discover that you were a little astray as to the true west. It is also the season when days and nights are equal. It is also the time when equinoctial storms are due, according to our forefathers. But in this day of knowlege, Science has ridiculed this.—W.P.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point.—Wheat, 97c to 99c; oats, 35c to 36c; barley, 60c to 64c; corn, 85c to 86c; rye, 56c to 57c; buckwheat, 55c to 58c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Prices were mainly unchanged on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

Fresh No. 1 butter was quoted at 19¾c to 19¾c a pound in car lots as compared with 19¾c Thursday. To retailers, small lots were 20½c a pound for solids and 21½c for prints. Receipts totalled 1,561 boxes.

Ontario colored cheese brought 9¾c to 10c a pound, against 9⅝ to 10¼c Thursday. Quebec cheese was again priced at 9¾c to 9½c a pound. Arrivals totalled 4,933 boxes.

On the egg market no price changes occurred, graded shipments in car lots or less being 28c a dozen for A large, 26c for A medium, 21c for Z, and 19c to 19½c for C. Receipts were 4,933 cases.

Potatoes were steady in price, new Quebecs being 35c to 40c per 80-pound bag of No. 1 grade, while old stock brought 20c to 25c per 80-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Faced by renewal of acute weakness in wheat quotations at Liverpool and by cheap Argentine offerings, the Chicago wheat market averaged lower yesterday.

Late rallies of wheat prices here, however, were aided by firmness of stocks and of cotton. Another help to wheat values at the last was the fact that domestic mills were better buyers of spot wheat yesterday and that premiums paid for cash delivery were ¼c to 1c higher, reversing Thursday's setback.

Wheat futures in Chicago closed unsettled at the same as Thursday's finish to ¼c lower. Dec. new, $1.04 to $1.04⅛; corn, ¼c off to ¼c up; Dec., new, 78c to 78¼c; oats, unchanged to ⅝c higher, and provisions varying from 10c decline to 5c gain.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Grain values on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday were depressed by weakness in outside markets and sagged fractionally to close to ⅛c to ⅝c on the downside.

At bottom levels quotations were off ⅝c. October wheat closed at 83c, December at 82⅝c and May at 87¼c.

Further losses were checked by support from the Government agency, but, on the whole, market operations were dull and routine in character. Exporters took 250,000 bushels of Canadian wheat, and selling came in the form of light hedging pressure.

The bearish influence was the sliding of Liverpool wheat prices, which ended 1⅝d to 1⅞d lower due to weakness at Buenos Aires and substantial rains in Australia. Buenos Aires values were off 2½ cents.

Argentine wheat shipments for the past week totalled nearly 3,250,000 bushels, compared with nearly 4,250,000 bushels a week ago and 2,000,000 bushels last year.

Cash grains spreads eased under indifferent demand and coarse grains dropped with wheat.

Delegates Chosen By Percy Institute

WARKWORTH, Sept. 22 (Examiner Correspondence)—The September meeting of the Percy Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. James Black, with a splendid attendance. After the usual routine of business, reports were heard from the sunshine and sick committees. Mrs. George Helson and Miss Edna Greenly were chosen as delegates to attend the Belleville convention.

Mrs. James Black gave a very interesting paper on "Pitfalls and Pinnacles on Institute Path." This paper was prepared by Mrs. Margaret Dudley, but ably given by Mrs. Black. Mrs. Dave Massey also gave a splendid paper on "Things Money Cannot Buy."

A splendid program of community singing; song by Sammie Black; duet by Bruce Morgan and Sammie Black, and mouth organ music by Sammie Black and Fred Anderson were enjoyed by all. A guessing contest was put on and the prize was won by Mrs. Charles Puffer.

ELECTION DRIVE REACHES CLIMAX ON FIVE FRONTS

Liberals Centre Efforts on Toronto West, North York, Frontenac-Addington.

CLAIM 4 SEATS SURE.

Stevens and King Play Leading Parts in Brief, Brilliant Campaign.

TORONTO, Sept. 22 (C.P.).—After a brief and brilliant campaign in which two of the country's leading parliamentary figures — Liberal Leader Mackenzie King and Minister of Trade and Commerce H. H. Stevens—carried on a running verbal warfare, Canada's "little general election," moved close to the polling booths to-day.

All the balloting on Monday will be done in Ontario, but interest in the outcome is countrywide. The by-elections in Toronto East, North York, Elgin West, Frontenac-Addington and Kenora-Rainy River achieved immediate national significance when voting for each of them was set on the same day.

Liberalism's five-fronted attack on the Bennett Government points particularly at three seats—Toronto West, North York and Frontenac-Addington. They are Conservative strongholds, though Mr. King himself once held North York for a four-year term. And in two of them are straight Liberal-Conservative duels.

The Lineup.

Here is the complete lineup of candidates:

Toronto East—Major H. P. Snelgrove, Lib.; Thomas L. Church, Cons.; Graham Spry, C.C.F.

North York—W. P. Mulock, Lib.; Harold Bruels, Cons.

Elgin West—W. H. Mills, Lib.; H. C. Borbridge, Cons.; R. W. MacDonald, Ind.

Frontenac-Addington — W. R. Aylesworth, Con.; Colin Campbell, Lib.

Kenora-Rainy River—H. B. McKinnon, Lib.; Joseph Derry, Cons.

Toronto East, held by the Conservatives for 25 years without a break, was made vacant by the death of Hon. E. B. Ryckman. Here the veteran Mr. Church, many times Mayor of Toronto and member of parliament from 1921 to 1930, will make his attempted comeback under the Government banner.

25 O.A.C. STAFF ASKED TO QUIT

Marshall Also Rumored About to Revamp Agricultural Representatives Branch.

EXENT UNKNOWN.

TORONTO, Sept. 22. — Notwithstanding the official claim of Queen's Park that no reorganization of the permanent staff of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, has yet been attempted, it is learned on reliable authority that the resignations of 25 officials of this institution were demanded by Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, more than a week ago, and that they will all be out of their respective jobs by October 31.

Two of the most senior officials who are "getting the axe" in this initial reorganization are said to be Professor J. C. Steckley, head of the Animal Husbandry Department, and Prof. A. H. MacLennan, head of the Horticulture Department. A number of leading lecturers of the college are also being fired. After November 1, when the Hepburn Government embarks on a new fiscal year, the present list of dismissals will, it is understood, be augmented considerably.

Further Queen's Park rumor of yesterday had it that Hon. Mr. Marshall will soon announce a revamping of his Agricultural Representatives Branch. To what extent he is prepared to cut this service, in order to effect the economy program he is reported to have set for his department, cannot be ascertained.

Ladies Arrange for Refreshments at Dances October 1and 6.

MARMORA, Sept. 22. (Examiner Correspondent) The regular monthly meeting of the Marmora Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. W. C. Spry on Thursday evening. The roll call was "A favorite recipe and sample of same."

Arrangements were made for the handling of refreshments at the dances to be held in the Exhibition building on the Fair Grounds on Oct. 1st and Oct. 6th and for the operating of the booth on Marmora Fair day, Oct. 6th.

The program consisted of "Current Events" by Mrs. H. R. Haacke and a demonstration of dress designing by the Springbrook team, Misses Nellie Webb, Kathleen McComb and Roma Mumby. A delicious lunch was served before the members dispersed. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. U.

"Polly — I just don't dare take baby out! She's been behaving terribly lately. I can't imagine why she's so cross!"

"She's sallow, Louise, just the way Bobby was when he had that whiney spell last month. She probably needs a laxative. Try Castoria."

"See how baby enjoys her ride today, Polly. I think Castoria has done perfect wonders for her!"

"Yes, I see it has, Louise. Castoria has helped thousands of children. It's especially good for acid stomach. You know, it doesn't contain any of the harmful drugs that often are in adult laxatives. Castoria is pleasant to take, too — tastes awfully good."

Here's Way Science Now Relieves Pain in Minutes

BAD HEADACHES, NEURITIS AND RHEUMATIC PAINS EASED ALMOST AT ONCE

Remember the pictures below when you want fast relief from pain. Aspirin eases even a bad headache or neuralgia often in a few minutes!

An Aspirin tablet begins "taking hold" of your pain practically as soon as you swallow it. And Aspirin is safe. For Aspirin does not harm the heart.

Remember these two points: Aspirin Speed and Aspirin Safety. And, see that you get ASPIRIN, the method doctors prescribe. It is made in Canada, and all druggists have it. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every Aspirin tablet. Get tin of 12 tablets or economical bottle of 24 or 100 tablets.

Why Aspirin Works So Fast

Drop an Aspirin tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches the bottom, it is disintegrating.

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH

An Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.

What happens in these glasses happens in your stomach—ASPIRIN tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

Sabbath Message For The Shut-Ins

Written for The Examiner by the Ministers of the City and District.

"KEEP UP YOUR COURAGE."

By REV. J. H. SUTCLIFFE, M.A., B.D., Pastor of Murray St. Baptist Church.

OUR Lord was not a foolish optimist. He was not blind to the conditions which surrounded Him. Full well did He know that the world was not "altogether good" and that there were many things that brought sorrow, pain and heartache. Often was He troubled and perplexed about many things, but He was never succumbed by them. Ever and always He was the master. Never did He surrender to the external. Instead of the external dominating Him, He dominated it. And when He set His face to go to Jerusalem it was with unwavering step. No outward circumstances of any kind could cause Him to deviate from that course.

Jesus was about to leave His disciples and go back to His Father. He was warning them that they would have a struggle and a very bitter one. They would be hard pressed and have "tribulation." War would be their lot. It would be a warfare between them and all that were opposed to the establishment of the rule of God in the earth. They were to be witnesses to the highest values—to the unseen and eternal. There would be many who would live their lives in terms of the outward. They were to live their lives in terms of the inward. Others would champion the cause of that which is seen; they were to champion the cause of that which is unseen. And what a war it was! The disciples soon discovered the truth of their Master's words. After telling them that they were to be called upon to endure hardships and that they would have "tribulation," He exhorted them to "Be of good cheer." How strange for One to urge them to "Be of good cheer" and to be happy, knowing that they were to have some hard experiences! But Jesus did not mean that they were to be happy and cheerful in the sense in which we understand these words. They were being exhorted to keep up their courage. Modern translators translate the words, "Be of good cheer," thus: "Keep up your courage." It was not a call to a light and gay mood. Life's hard facts faced them and Jesus was calling His disciples to "patient endurance" and to a life of "strenuous endeavor."

The Master of men was not thinking of courage as that which pertains to the physical self. It was something much greater than that. Without doubt, Jesus admired physical courage—He must have had it Himself to a great degree—but He admired spiritual courage the more. To be unafraid physically was good, but to be unafraid spiritually was better. In the mind of Jesus, he who had a vital faith in the living God was courageous. It was the conviction that whatever the outward conditions of life man could, through the power of God, rise above them and be their master. What confidence Jesus had in God! With what fearlessness He met changing conditions and circumstances!! It was the inner and the eternal that shaped His ends.

There was no spirit of the braggart or any conceit in Jesus when He said to His disciples, "I have overcome the world." It was His faith in God, His union with Him and His purpose, and His knowledge that His Father would not fail Him, that prompted Him to say, "I have overcome the world." No natural courage could say that.

What a message for such a time as this! What needs there are for the exercise of such a faith! No natural courage suffices. Only by exercising true faith in a personal God can we be the masters of that which is about us. "This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith"—in God. Jesus overcame the world. We need not be afraid. Let us take courage! Through Him we can overcome the world, too.

We strip for heaven by flinging sense to hell.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Religious and Social Questions Answered By DR. WYLIE CLARK

Do you believe God is omnipotent? FEDORO.

Yes, no other God would be sufficient to meet the situation. A God which would explain creation and life as we see it must be all powerful. A God who was not omnipotent would all the time be getting into trouble and find himself so hampered that the universe would become a chaos.

Dr. Wylie Clark

Would you consider it a hard thing to be a Christian or do you think it is easy? J.P.H.

To be a Christian is to be what God wants us to be and to do what God wants us to do. That is life's highest standard and demands the best we can give. To seek to attain this we must ever be on the watch to fulfil in ourselves our relationships both to God and man. Yet such is the joy of Christian service that there is nothing irksome about it, but rather an ever growing easiness of action and fellowship.

Should knowledge make us humble or should it make us self-satisfied? K.R.S.

Perhaps it should do both. Knowledge to the mind is like food to the body. It satisfies and gives strength. While a good meal gives us satisfaction, yet if we think about it we have a sense of humiliation for we know that we must go on eating if we want to live—we are not self-sufficient.

So it is with knowledge. There is such an abundance of it that we must get if we are to continue to grow, that we are humbled by our need.

What do you think of the liquor question in Ontario? A.R.B.

I have been living so far away from it that I have been out of actual touch with conditions; but a month's holidays this summer gave me some opportunity of hearing what others think about it. The wets are having a fine time and see great drinking days ahead. They are aiming to produce a new generation of drinkers and drunkards. The temperance leaders foresee such an orgy of drunkenness that even the drinkers will become sick of the conditions and demand some kind of reform—time will tell.

Two men who are elders in our church will not speak to each other, neither will their wives. What ought to be done about it? J.D.

Good friends of the church should bring them together and insist on a reconciliation. These small scandals in a church are silly things. Just think of grown-up men and women who have had sense enough to hold a high place in church life falling out about some trifling matter and refusing to speak to each other and thus casting a slur upon the whole church. The thing is childish and should be ended at once.

Is there such a thing as liberty apart from the teachings of the church? F.T.

I suppose this question means that the church teaches that there is a God and that men have relationships to Him.

True liberty is living in harmony with the arranged order of things and possessing the privileges offered under these conditions.

Any liberty claimed or indulged in that would destroy or prevent this harmony would be injurious to those who acted upon such conceptions of liberty.

There is a liberty which is a mere license to do what we please, whether it is good or bad: when we work at that kind of liberty we are soon held up by the laws of decency and order.

The liberty offered by the church is the freedom to do good and live

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

MAN is not discouraged nor disheartened in his quest for perfection by learning from experience that there are certain immutable laws universally established. Nor is he checked in his determination to attain the heights of his ambition, by discovering that these laws are IMPERSONAL and IMPARTIAL. That these laws affect all of God's children, and even every specie of living things, regardless of paternal heritage, social standing, financial power or Divine attunements, makes man see in and through them a principle of real justice.

The mystic claims that it is the continued demonstration of the immutable laws of nature which proves the existence of an Infinite Mind and an Omnipotent Power, inspired by Love, Mercy and Justice.

Unquestionably it is the evidence of the working of these immutable laws that has maintained and sustained the faith of millions of men, in all ages, in the existence of some fair, just and Infinite Intelligence ruling the universe. It has been this faith—aye conviction—that has saved the world from self-damnation and self-destruction, and it is this same conviction, growing more and more convincing through test and demonstration in science and every phase of common experience, that is responsible for the world-wide challenge of the truth of certain theological doctrines.

Man is truly becoming more and more religious in his thinking and living, and less theological. This is detrimental to some of the churches, but joyous for the Kingdom of God. . . . What a marvellous conception in the beginning! What wonderful system, order and law of equity! How our hopes rise and our fears fade away in the knowledge of sublime justice for all—every created and living thing! Truly God was just and fair—in the beginning! Why should we doubt that God is STILL just?—From "The Mansions of the Soul," by H. Spencer Lewis, Imperator of the Rosicrucian Order, San Jose, Calif.

Poor and content is rich and rich enough.

Memory

By DEAN O'SULLIVAN.

CLOSELY associated with the faculty of the imagination is that of memory. There are two kinds of memory, the intellectual memory, to which we shall refer later, whose seat is in the passive intellect and which stores up and reproduces ideas formerly conceived, and the sensory memory which is located in the bodily organism, and which is the storehouse of all the impressions that we have received through the senses. It is this latter kind which is classed among the internal sensuous faculties with which we are now concerned.

That it is a sensuous faculty is clear from the fact that it is found in animals. It is by means of it that the showman trains his horses, dogs and seals to perform the antics that we have witnessed at a circus. The recollection of former rewards or punishments is the motive power that impels the dumb beasts to go through the various manoeuvres. It is possessed in a much higher degree by some than by others, but all the higher animals remember. I have been witness of the proof that even the unemotional cow remembers. At the first sound of the voice of my sexton, who had been absent more than a year in the trenches, the Jersey bounded across the field and began to lick his tunic.

Another proof that memory is a sensuous faculty may be deduced from the fact that many old people, whose intelligence is still quite bright, have lost altogether the power to recollect the events of the recent past. They can remember what happened long years ago, but have no recollection of recent events, proving that this faculty has lost its receptive power. The exercise of the memory is often unaccompanied by any mental cognition. I have heard a seminary student, when he was being removed from the operating table, sing very piously, "Holy God, we raise Thy name," much to the edification of the good nuns. It was a very appropriate act, but it goes without saying that the young man was wholly unconscious of the appropriateness and of the act itself. It would seem that one word almost mechanically releases the next. It is thus, I fear, that we sometimes say our prayers.

While man possesses over the animal creation the gift of reason, there is good ground for believing that much that is attributed to the intellect is due rather to the sensory memory. The loudly-applauded orator, who has perhaps stolen the greater part of his speech, may be acclaimed as an intellectual giant, whereas he has simply given proof of a good memory. Of course, a certain amount of intellectual perception was necessary to recognize a good thing when it was seen and to give fitting expression to it. It is the sensory memory that plays the chief role in the acquisition of knowledge. The child remembers that the battle of Waterloo was fought in the year 1815, because the series of figures, 1-8-1-5, are associated in its mind with the set of letters, W-a-t-e-r-l-o-o. When we read history the imagination clothes each actor with flesh and blood and distinctive features, and, like the cinema, throws the whole scene upon the canvas of the brain, where it is stored away, to be reproduced by the memory.

How do we remember? To that question I can give no answer. I have read pages about "cerebral traces," the liberation of the phantasm by the action of acids upon the tissues of the brain, and similar theories. I heard a lady remark that she believed the sudden recollection of some past sensation was due to the bursting of a cell in the brain, which liberated the image; and I find that this fantastic idea has its defenders among those who have written professionally on the subject. In the last analysis the matter remains as great a mystery to the philosophers as was to the wondering rustics how one small head could carry all the wisdom that Goldsmith's schoolmaster possessed. It would seem that the reason why the memory of man is so much more enduring than that of animals is that it is not wholly dependent upon the physical organism, but that some impression is left on the unchanging and imperishable soul.

The subject of memory suggests the interesting question: Are any of the impressions that we once received wholly obliterated so that they may not be recalled; or are they hidden somewhere in memory's halls and liable to disclose themselves through some fortuitous incident or association of ideas? How often in our mental rummagings have we not come upon new vistas of past experiences, stowed away like the old copy-books of our boyhood? It is probable that every definite impression is retained in our subconsciousness, and may be released at any time when the proper key is applied.

A short time ago, while walking through the orchard of one of my parishioners, I took a bite from an apple, and, strange to say, I found myself in fancy once again in the old orchard of my boyhood, for this particular kind of apple I had not tasted in over forty years. Immediately, a whole series of persons and events, that I thought to be forgotten, were flashed upon the canvas of my memory. The taste of that apple would seem to have been the key that unlocked the storehouse.

The value of memory is revealed by the fact that we actually know only what we remember, what we can definitely recall. A mere hazy conception of knowledge once possessed is of no practical value. As the power to recollect begins to wane when we have reached middle life, it is not wise to depend too much on our memory. It is a good plan to keep a scrap-book and store away in it information that would be of value later on, and the literary jewels which we have picked up in our ramblings. A scrap-book, kept through life, affords an interesting index to our mental development. The flowery passages and rotund periods that appealed to our youthful fancy give place later on to less ornate but really more meaty selections. Apart from their intrinsic value, those little scraps of prose and verse afford us much pleasure by the associations which they recall. By their aid we are led by the hand step by step back across the bridge of years till we see once again the scenes of childhood. And through it all we catch frequent glimpses of the unwearledness and minuteness of the loving providence of Him who does not forget.

Isaiah Counsels Rulers

Scripture—Isaiah, Chapters 7, 31, 36, 37.

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Isaiah served as God's prophet for nearly fifty years under four kings of Judah, Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah. When Ahaz was fearful of an alliance between Syria and Israel, Isaiah assured the king of God's help if he would trust Jehovah, which Ahaz was unwilling to do.

During the reign of the good King Hezekiah, the Assyrian King Senacherib sent his servant to demand Jerusalem's surrender. He mocked the men on the wall for their folly in thinking God could protect them from the threatening Assyrian hosts.

Hezekiah took the Assyrian's message into the temple and spread it out before him in prayer to God, calling upon God to see and hear the mocking taunts of his enemies and come to the rescue of those who trusted and honored him as God of all the kingdoms of the earth.

Isaiah was sent of God to comfort the good king and assure him God's help without any battle on their part. God sent his angel and smote the Assyrians in the night and they fled, destroying one another to the number of 185,000. (GOLDEN TEXT—Isaiah 26:3).

A GOOD TEST FOR THE C.C.F.

The by-election in East Toronto on Monday will provide another opportunity to test the strength of the C.C.F. movement, which so far has made little real progress in winning the supporters of the electorate.

With many unemployed industrial workers living in that constituency and with the usual tendency on the part of voters to favor a change in administration when times are not good, this particular stamping ground should be fertile soil for the Co-operative Commonwealth cause.

The C.C.F. candidate is one of the strongest men in the movement in Ontario, Graham Spry, a man of pleasing personality, an eloquent speaker and one quite capable of taking care of himself before any kind of an audience.

If under these conditions and with such a candidate the C.C.F. forces do not make a good showing in Toronto East, there seems little prospect of the movement making a great deal of headway anywhere.

The contest promises to be the most interesting of the five to be fought on Monday, for ex-Mayor T. L. Church, the Government candidate, is a colorful politician and a great canvasser, while Major Sneigrove, the Liberal standard-bearer, has been the centre of an unusual publicity campaign conducted chiefly by the Toronto Star and running into columns of news matter and photographs.

SUPERVISING THE BEER ACT.

As was intimated a few days ago, C. H. Curtis, of Warkworth, has been appointed an inspector of beverage rooms for seven counties in this section of the province, including Peterborough.

So far as the appointment itself is concerned, The Examiner has no criticism; Mr. Curtis will undoubtedly prove a capable inspector.

But it seems to us that in view of the complaints against the working out of the new beer law and the charges of selling to minors and to those under the influence of liquor and the permitting of rowdy conduct on licensed premises, it is too much to expect that any one inspector, however able and zealous and active he may be, can guarantee a strict enforcement of the law in the beverage rooms of seven counties.

When the Henry Government introduced this beer measure it was intimated that the freer sale of beer and wine provided for under the legislation would be strictly supervised and controlled, and when that promise was made the former Government undoubtedly had in mind something more adequate than the appointment of one inspector for seven counties.

The new administration has taken over and put into effect the act brought down by its predecessors in office, and in so doing must assume the responsibility for seeing that the law is enforced and that so far as possible abuses are eliminated.

If it can discharge that responsibility with a system of inspection that calls for one official to look after an area such as Mr. Curtis has been appointed to supervise, it will surprise a great many people who have been watching conditions under the new act with considerable misgiving.

UNCLE SAM'S RELIEF PROBLEM.

Large as Canada's relief bill may seem to the harassed taxpayer, it is after all small in comparison with the cost of relief measures in the United States.

The federal relief grants to states for the June-August period of this year, we are told, reached the enormous sum of $386,000,000, which was $61,000,000 higher than the total for the whole June-December period last year.

The actual relief expenditures for July alone skyrocketed to $132,000,000, and the winter peak that is now beginning to loom on the Washington horizon is expected to climb 25 per cent. above that total.

According to Business Week, there will be no fundamental change in the existing relief system before April at the earliest, after which Congress may get around to acting on an anticipated unemployment insurance proposal calling for a $12 weekly dole to the jobless from employers, employees and the Federal Government.

Meanwhile the business world in the United States is worried over the outlook because a stiffer tax program is heralded, and business will naturally have to pay a very substantial share of that.

In addition, private business and industry is concerned about the distribution of relief supplies by the Government.

If the Government is going into business it looks as though some business men were going out, and the situation both as to the cost of relief and as to some of the methods that are being followed by Uncle Sam is not encouraging.

CANADA DOING WELL.

Some interesting arguments have arisen over the question of whether the United States with the aid of the artificial stimulation provided by President Roosevelt's policies has made greater strides toward recovery than has Canada without depending upon similar methods.

Figures just issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics go far to prove that the Dominion has progressed much further than the United States in the march back to better times.

Thus the index of industrial production as given out by the Federal Reserve Bulletin shows that the lowest point for the United States was reached in July, 1932.

There was an advance in the third quarter of that year, followed by a slight recession that ended in March, 1933. Then began a rapid recovery with an increase of 67 per cent. in the index up to July, 1933. Once again reaction followed until in July of the present year the index had fallen to 70 as contrasted with 93 twelve months before.

Canada, on the other hand, reached her lowest industrial production in February, 1933, eight months later, than the United States, and from that month there has been a substantial and steady gain, increasing this year until in July, 1934, the index stood at 96 as against 83 in July, 1933.

Thus the percentage increase of this index for Canada was 37 per cent. over that of the United States.

A comparison of the index of manufacturing in both countries reveals Canada ahead in this field as well.

From the low point in February, 1933, there has been recorded a most satisfactory gain, the index climbing from 59 in February to 88 in July of last year and to 99 in July, 1934.

In the United States the manufacturing index was lowest in March, 1933, then showed a sharp gain until July of last year, and since then there has been a decline. The United States index rose from 56 in February, 1933, to 94 in July, 1933, and then dropped back to 69 in July of this year.

The percentage increase for July in Canada was therefore 43 per cent. higher than that of the United States.

At the same time the mining index in Canada has shown a steady gain as compared with a recession across the border, and the percentage increase in Canada's favor was 48 per cent.

THE REVISING OFFICERS.

Very fairly, we think, the Government at Ottawa agreed when the new Franchise Act was under review that its operation should be removed as much as possible from partizan influences, and it was accordingly decided, after conference with representatives of the other parties, that the franchise commissioner should be solely entrusted with appointment of those who might be chosen to serve as revising officers, in actual charge of the preparation of the voters' lists, and that he should be allowed to have his own way, regardless of political consequences, in naming these important election officers.

Lt.-Col. John Thompson, the newly-appointed franchise commissioner, has proceeded to act upon this authority without bothering to consider whether the appointees are normally Conservatives or Liberals and great is the hue and cry, particularly in the city of Montreal, where leading Conservatives are threatening their parliamentary representatives with all manner of retaliation because Liberals, and not Conservatives, have been occasionally selected.

No sooner was the list of revising officers announced than protests began to reach Ottawa from Conservative circles in different parts of the Dominion. It was represented in these protests that too many Liberals had been appointed and that the jobs should have gone almost exclusively to Conservatives. They should have become part of the party patronage, it was said—meaning, of course, that no Liberals need have applied or even thought of applying. One of the malcontents expressed himself as follows to the Montreal Gazette: "After all, the Conservative party is in power at Ottawa and jobs—if any—should go to supporters of that party. If the Liberals were in power, only Liberals would be appointed revising officers. Why should not the Conservatives, then, help their own partizans?"

One of those with whom protests have been lodged is Sir George Perley who has replied that "as a matter of fact the statute gives sole and complete authority to Lt.-Col. John Thompson, the franchise commissioner, in regard to appointments under the Dominion Franchise Act. Any protest that you may have to make should, therefore, be addressed to him."

It was perhaps to be expected that Conservatives would view with anything but favor the appointment to office of Liberals under a Conservative Government. And yet it is much fairer that members of that party should be recognized in the choice of officials to prepare the voters' lists than that they should be completely neglected. Lt.-Col. Thompson—himself the son of a Conservative Prime Minister of the Dominion—has undoubtedly chosen wisely in regard to revising officers, assuring that the work will be well done and that too much partisanship should not enter into the preparation of the lists. He should be allowed to continue to exercise that authority with which he is clothed under the statute without interference from political quarters.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Anyway the yacht races are serving to educate the public as to the mysteries of the Genoa jib—and that should be a general boon.

Mr. Bennett is certainly to be congratulated upon being on the other side of the Atlantic at the present time. He does not even have to read the by-election speeches.

Regardless of the results on Monday, it is safe to predict that there will be no general election until next year. Prophecies to the contrary are made simply for campaign purposes.

If the Lindbergh case is cleared up, law enforcement in the United States will be enormously strengthened. It will do away with the idea that crime is safe and profitable.

Automobile fatalities in Toronto this month are so numerous that safety authorities are redoubling their efforts to wipe out reckless driving and careless walking.

Even the Toronto Star now admits that Skipper Sopwith and his Endeavour crew know something about the fine art of sailing.

A Liberal patronage committee in Toronto complains that jobs are not being created fast enough for the party workers. Most people will feel that that condition entitles Mr. Hepburn to a credit mark.

NEWS OF OUR OWN VILLAGE

Not so many from here has been taking in the yacht races off Long Island, east of here, this week, between Tom Sopwith's Endeavor from England, well to the east, and Mike Vanderbilt's Rainbow of the United States.

Our senior ball team was down to Belleville, east of here, Wed., and didn't do so well, the Bellevilles getting the only run and us getting none. Them kind is tough to lose, lads, say we.

Vin Eastwood is getting ready to compile a list of voters in these parts on orders from Ottawa, east of us, and a lotta villagers is going to get a week's work preparing the same, which will be welcome, think we.

Our new Judge, Shel. Smoke, from Paris, west of this place, is now on the job, having been sworn in Mon. Our worthy Mayor, R. Denne, and the Warden, R. Ferguson, was on the job to give him a welcoming hand.

Joe Duffus was down to Enterprise, east of us, the other nite helping Billy King of Ottawa to spread the Liberal doctrine before the natives of those parts.

Many of the villagers has been shown on the screen at Jack Stewart's main street cinema this week, the picture breaking one record when it showed a speeder being nailed on Water street, that being the 1st time such a thing ever happened there, many opine.

Geo. Gimblett is after the miscreant who turned in a false alarm the other nite and called our fire dept. out for nothing. It is time such skulduggery was put an end to, submit we.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

(1)

Questions are being asked. If Russia enters the League, what about Poland? Russias has been on the way for a year. Soon she will arrive at the gates of Geneva. Her arrival is timed for this September. The event will be notable. It may start some fireworks. President Wilson courted her entrance. Russia informed him that she could take no real interest in the League because it was impotent to remove the root causes of war. To the Russian mind the strength of that reason has not changed. Nationalism has pervaded the League ever since its organization. France is the embodiment of that impulse. The Imperial Impulse will not down. Every nation is bent on its own advantage more than on the welfare of all the nations. Wonder is that the League of Nations has held together as long as it has. The Communists of the world have been furious against Labor because it backed the League in its efforts. Labor expected more than it has realized. Labor is not as optimistic about ability of the League to prevent armed hostilities. Russia did not expect much and has not been eager to become a part of an organization so handicapped. In every adventure Russia is realistic. Realism is planted deeply in the Russian character.

Is the League likely to be of help to Russia in the event of war with Japan?

Another question is to the fore. If Russia should be attacked by Japan, will the League come to her aid? Why should the League to be consistent with the implanted ideal in the organization, and come to the assistance of Russia, after leaving China to her fate? Russia is not blind. She knows that in the event of attack by Japan she must defend herself without the co-operation of any other nation.

Afraid of Germany.

Germany and Japan are friends. If Japan should be involved in war with any European power, Germany would be on the battle field with all her available military forces. Japan is the world threat in the East. Germany is in the West. Russia is realistic. Germany is always well timed. If war should break out as we have intimated here, the League would be compelled to take positive action, or cease to exist.

The League of Nations is foundationed on sand. The purpose of the League is idealistic and far reaching in its aims. A stone palace could be erected on sand. The Versailles Treaty is the foundation of the League of Nations. France has dominated the Treaty since its formulation. Since the days of Napoleon, Russia and France have been antagonistic in all their relationships. Something new has in their attitudes attracted the attention of Europe. France is doing the utmost to build a steel ring about Germany. She knows that the Treaty of Versailles will be revised. She knows also that now is the time to make ready to meet advantages Germany is sure to receive from the revision. France has been opposed to the entry of Russia into the League. Her chief reason for opposition to such a move goes back to the desertion of the Russian army during the Great War. France is eager that Russia come in. With France withdrawing her opposition all other nations will second her motion.

Russia is not enthusiastic about the League. But she is solicitous to win the confidence of the world. Too long she has had the experience of being a pariah among the nations. France is a little shy about being credited with the entry of Russia. To her, desertion is a crime.

Capitalistic Nations.

If you wish to know why so many of the nations have stood aloof from Russia, it is because Russia is Socialistic and not capitalistic. In every other nation capitalism is dominant. Capitalism has become the world's battlefield. Many isms are attacking. But the isms will not solve the problem. There is only one solution. To the church has been committed the key. Both the isms and capitalism must by choice yield to Christianity.

Russia has held apart from any alliances with capitalistic nations. Trade treaties have been made. But alliances have not. Nor will she enter any alliance with France. They may conclude a treaty of mutual insurance against aggression.

It is to the interest of France to be a loyal supporter of the League of Nations. By it their conquests are guaranteed. The map of Europe as drawn when the Versailles Treaty was built the League insists must stand until all the nations signatory are unanimous for a revision. The League is the ideal safeguard against unwanted change.

France made one stipulation concerning the entry of Russia into the League. She must bring her pact of peace with her. That is, Russia should subscribe to the articles of the Versailles Treaty. This she is ready to do. The action of Russia will not only make the approach to revision of the Treaty more difficult, but will delay indefinitely. European complications at the moment seem to grow more complicated. The climax of a high fever means either recovery or death. Europe is approaching a crisis.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

NEW WATERFORD, NOVA SCOTIA.

This is one of the comparatively few towns in the maritimes that can trace its history back only a few years, since it had its genesis in 1908, when the Dominion Coal Co. opened a slope on a seam of coal located at a place called Barasois.

At that time there were living in what is New Waterford only five families, but as soon as the mine opened there was a rush of settlers and the population had grown to several hundred.

Since the settlers had to go two afid one-half miles for their mail it was decided to apply for a new post office. Kendalville, Curranville, Ellsworthville, and other names were proposed, but choice eventually was fixed on Waterford, proposed by W. J. Hinchey, how the mayor. Mr. Hinchey proposed the name because of the fact one of the earliest settlers came from Waterford, Ireland. Upon application to the post-office department it was learned there already existed a town by that name in Nova Scotia. The department suggested the difficulty be solved by using the prefix "New" and this was done. The population of the town now is 8,000.

Stealing Flowers Why That Is Nothing?

The crime of stealing flowers from other people's property is not regarded as serious in Cobourg. Even His Worship the Magistrate indulges in it.

It seems that Jack Erskine of that town was brought before Magistrate Campbell on a flower stealing charge just the other day. John Cunningham, the complainant, stated that on September 7 he saw Erskine pick the posies in question.

"What value were the flowers?" queried the Cadi.

"About twenty-five cents," replied Cunningham.

"Why all this fuss about twenty-five cents worth of flowers?"

"Well, he stole them. It's the principle of the thing."

"Why, I often pick a flower on my way down past a property in Port Hope and I haven't been charged," declared the Magistrate.

"You should have been," retorted Cunningham. "You were stealing them."

Without adequate proof that Erskine had taken the flowers, Magistrate Campbell dismissed the case.

While investigating to find out why his vineyard was sinking, a farmer near Kaub, Prussia, dug into an underground lake.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

PURITAN FOUNDED CATHOLIC FAMILY.

On this date, in 1852, there died at St. Gregoire, Lower Canada, Dr. Calvin Alexander. Just a country doctor, but an illustration of how family history can be altered by a change of religion. The doctor had been born at Cambridge, Mass., June 20, 1775, of stock which traced its ancestry right back to the Mayflower or some other of the fleet of the Pilgrim Fathers. His first name is proof of his father's religious faith. Calvin went to college got his degree in medicine and then came to Canada in search of a practice. He had little with him, but his medical diploma, which he got endorsed at Quebec and then settled down at Melbourne, on the St. Francis river, in the midst of the Eastern townships, where he made a living by teaching English to the French Canadian children whilst he was ministering to the health of the district.

There he met and loved Mary Ann Hicks. There was no clergyman at Melbourne in those days, so taking a canoe the two lovers paddled their way down to the St. Lawrence and then across to Three Rivers where they were married by Rev. R. Q. Short, the witnesses being Gedeon Alexander, a brother of the groom, and Margaret Hicks, a sister of the bride, who apparently also did the journey by canoe.

The date of the death of Mrs. Alexander is not known, but it was before 1831, for in that year Dr. Alexander took a second wife, at Drummondville, Mary Louisa Gee. Eleven years later the doctor and his wife abjured Protestantism and were received into the Roman Catholic Church at Nicolet, July 11, 1842. Soon after that the doctor moved to St. Gregoire where he died.

So much for him. What is remarkable is that he was the founder of a family which had, up to 1903 (the latest date I have in le Bulletin des Recherches Historiques of Quebec) produced several doctors, two noted musicians, three priests and two nuns. The probability is that this record has been added to in the thirty years that have since passed. Thus the blood of the Puritans runs through the veins of priests and religeuses of the Roman Catholic Church. One wonders what was the reaction of the Puritan family back in New England to this paradox.

SOCIETY: A CO-OPERATIVE UNION

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir: Although I was not at the C.C.F. meeting addressed by Mr. Irvine, M.P., and Dr. Lorna Cotton, the report of their speeches shows a very distinct advance on the old system of a struggle between political parties for the privilege of picking the bones of the taxpayers. However, the solution of our economic difficulties cannot be said to have been found with the re-discovery that society is an organic body which means that like the human body one part depends upon the others. It is no doubt a step nearer the truth to say that Society is a co-operative union and that it must function by co-operation. But there is a "great gulf fixed," as a matter of fact between any theory, and the fact of individualism, which is the basic fact of humanity. All theories must be constructed under that assumption, or they cannot function. Unlike any possible comparison that may be made between human society and any natural or mechanical body, which preachers of new gospels are so fond of referring to, the human being is first and foremost, and finally, a lover of his own liberty, and a believer in his individualistic destiny. If he cannot get on as an individual, he must go down and out. Charity or the help of one to another, is a virtue which of course we should all practice, but the law of humanity on account of a man's peculiar position as a separate and distinct creation is either that he must give up his liberty as such, or retain it. He cannot do both. This matter, therefore, depends upon his consideration and it would be well for lecturers to ascertain definitely before they go any further whether people are willing to do that. If not their preaching and their theories are in vain.

Evangelist Gives Series Of Sermons

"The Need of Vital Religion," is the theme upon which Captain H. Gibson, Evangelist, of the Church Army, is basing his discourses night by night this week in St. George's Church, Braidwood Avenue.

"Religion to be vital must be a personal experience," declared the missioner at the outset of the mission; and in no unmistakable manner, Captain Gibson deals with hindrances to a vital religion, and sets forth what are the evidences where it is a reality. Sincerity of purpose to reproduce the love of God in the life; Salvation by repentance and faith; the redeeming Love of God in Christ; Calvary; the power of the risen Christ to save; and the call to seek those things that are above, where Christ sitteth—all are notes that have been sounded so far during the first four days of the mission.

To increasing congregations the mission is appealing, for the missioner's presentation of the Gospel message is clear and distinct, forceful in appeal, personal in application, yet entirely devoid of anything savoring of sensationalism. But two more nights remain for Capt. Gibson to be heard at St. George's Church, to-night, Friday at 8 o'clock, and Sunday at 7 o'clock.

THE BROWSER.

When a man writes a novel and wins a $10,000 prize for it, you can't be letting his book pass without picking it up and looking it over and sitting yourself down to read it. . . . There may be some land on this earth where there is no pecuniary standard at all about these matters, but the Browser has never been there and he doesn't believe it exists. When a publisher gives $10,000 for a novel by an obscure novelist, he puts a challenge upon it, and fellows like the Browser say to themselves, with chips on their shoulders: "Let's see if your novel is worth all that money?" . . . What is the Browser talking about, anyway! He is talking about Samuel Rogers' "Dusk at the Grove" which is the Atlantic's prize novel for 1934. . . . Mr. Rogers is an associate professor of French contemporary literature at the University of Wisconsin. He likes music and plays the piano and has three children, two girls and a boy. (So has the Browser but he can't play the piano.) His father was an Episcopal clergyman. (The Browser's uncle is an Episcopal missionary in China.) Rogers went to the war as an ambulance driver. (So did the Browser, because he thought it would be safer than being in the infantry; but it never was as safe as he wanted it to be.) . . . Dr. Rogers may, for all the Browser knows, like his book. (Which, in a measure, more or less, is where the Browser differs from the professor.) . . . The Browser has a very simple way of deciding about books. He turns to the first page and starts reading. If he doesn't stop, there must be something about the book that he likes; and then he decides what it is. If he stops or falls asleep, that's a criticism of the book. . . . Frank confession about "Dusk at the Grove": The Browser fell asleep twice over the first 75 pages of Professor Rogers' book. But once he got into it, he read the last 237 pages in one gulp and stayed awake until half past one in the morning to do it. Which means, according to his calculations, that "Dusk at the Grove" starts slowly but gathers speed, and finally gets somewhere. Readers with a preference for the hard-boiled school of literature will not consider it worth 10 grand. The Browser is inclined to believe there is $10,000 worth of good writing and shrewd observations between its covers.

One thousand three hundred and forty manuscripts competed with "D forty manuscripts competed with 'Dusk at the Grove' for the prize. Of these 233 came from New York, California was second, with 153, Illinois was third with 94. . . . Nobody in Nevada cared enough about $10,000 to write a novel, but Canadians sent 50; four manuscripts came across the world from New Zealand; and Jamaica, Japan, Scotland, Syria, Turkey and the Virgin Islands each sent one manuscript. . . . The Browser thinks that even he might write a novel some day, but he intends to wait until he gets a plot.

Katharine Brush is allouting about John O'Hara's "Appointment in Samarra" and hopes it sells a million copies. . . . Albert Rhys Williams is writing a handbook of the U. S. S. R. . . . Epigram from Virginia Faulkner's "Friends and Romans": "Nobody loves a new opera and the old ones are just habits that will eventually be gotten out of. I hope not, because nothing is more fun than going somewhere after an opera." . . . The French edition of Celine's "Journey to the End of the Night" was purified before American publication." . . .

Thomas Lennon has written a book that will please, shock, annoy, and delight. Its name is "The Laughing Journey". And it's just the sort of book you'd expect Tom Lennon to write. . . . The Browser doesn't exactly know Tom Lennon but he's been hearing about him for many a year, and he always knew that if Lennon ever wrote a book it would be a mad performance, sulphurous, rollicking, bitter and intensely serious under a cloak of laughter. The sort of book only an Irishman could write, and all other Irishmen except Jim Tully would be hating. The publishers say that Lennon's manner is "reminiscent of Donn Byrne" It is NOT. Tom Lennon himself would be saying: "It's not Byrne, it's not Jim Tully, either, nor James Stephens. If there's any Irishman at all in my book, there's some of that terrible Dean Swift who wrote Gilliver's Travels because he hated men so and laughed himself mad because men thought it a children's tale." . . . At any rate, there's strength in this book, and vulgarity; there's beauty in it, and there's savagery; there's nonsense and crazy invention, but there's cool sanity in it, as well. If you hate it, you will throw it in the fire. If you like it, you will write your name in it and lend it immediately to a trusted friend. But in any case, give no thanks to

STORES DISCOUNT AMERICAN COINS

Many of City Stores Now Refusing American Coins at Par.

Have you any American coins in your purse? United States silver coins have become decidedly unpopular about the city during the past week.

Although the coins have been circulating freely at their face values all summer despite the fact that the banks have been discounting them at rates around 10 per cent, merchants began asking two and three cents on quarters and five cents on fifty-cent pieces this week. Citizens are now scrutinizing their change carefully.

American paper currency has discounted regularly at 3 to 5 percent for the past three months. Two of the chain grocery stores, it is understood, began the discount on silver also on orders from their headquarters. Many other stores on George street followed suit, but some, while discounting the paper currency, which still accept silver at its face value. Collectors for the Gas Department of the Utilities Commission are now refusing to take American quarters found in their meters.

A criticism to the effect that several of the merchants who are discounting incoming United States coins are passing them out to customers at face values has been heard.

With a discount of 4¾ percent being exacted on paper currency, the banks were this morning demanding 10 percent on coins. The The heavy discount on coins is necessitated by high shipping costs, the banks claim.

Sharpshooters Versus Strikers: Photographer a Casualty

Sharpshooting riflemen of the Rhode Island national guard have been playing an important role in textile strike rioting at Saylesville wheer the list of those shot or injured by rocks and clubs mounted well past 125. They are shown above holding at bay a crowd of strikers and strike sympathizers. Below, a cameraman who got too close receieves first aid.

GOOD DEMAND AT HORSE SALE

Much Produce on Farmers' Market and Prices Hold Firm.

'POTATOES 50 CENTS.'

A great deal of interest was taken in the sale of horses by auction, on the market this morning. Mr. Hancock disposed of five in short order. A young bay in excellent condition brought $120, a black went for $30 and an old white horse for $26, and a pair of mares, evidently the pets of the people who sold them, and in splendid shape, sold for $74 each, to the same buyer.

Produce was at the usual ranges, with plenty of everything on sale. Potatoes were quoted at 75 and 80 cents a bag, red tomatoes at 15 and 20 cents a basket and green tomatoes at 25 cents. Late beans were 5 cents a quart, Brussels sprouts 2 quarts for 15 cents, carrots 20 cents a peck, corn 15 cents a dozen, seedless little cucumbers, 75 cents a basket.

Cranberries were offered at 75 cents in 6 quart baskets.

Dark comb honey was priced at 15 cents and the light variety at 20 cents.

Eggs sold from 25 to 30 cents a dozen, butter was 21 to 23 cents a pound, and chickens ranged in price from 18 to 22 cents a pound.

BRITISH YACHT TRAILS AT LINE

mark, to show the way around the 20-mile buoy by 59 seconds.

The times at the second mark were: Rainbow 1.00.39; Endeavour 1.01.38.

Rainbow had made the second leg, a broad reach of 10 miles, in 54 minutes 46 seconds, a minute and 26 seconds faster than had Endeavour.

Endeavour's First Leg

Recovering magnificently after a slow start, the British challenger, Endeavours, in a 10-mile beat to windward overtook and passed Rainbow to round the first buoy .27 second ahead.

The official times at the mark were: Endeavour 12:06:26; Rainbow 12:05:58.

Challenger made up most of her early disadvantage in the last mile of the course, charging along to take the weather berth from the defender as they bore down on the mark almost bow to bow.

It was the most exciting point of the series.

Endeavour, reeled off the 10 miles against an 8 knot breese in one hour, 26 minutes, 26 seconds, only eight seconds under the new cup record for a 10 mile windward leg she set in Tuesday's contest.

Costly Tacks

After losing two minutes in short tacks and trailing Rainbow most of the first leg the challenger made it up and rounded the turn considerably ahead. Sopwith immediately threw his advantage away bearing off to leeward of the course in order to break out his genoa jib allowing Rainbow to blanket him. He luffed to stop him but was too late the defender working through his weather. Endeavour again proved to be the faster boat but was not being handled as well as defender.

Signals Up

The signals went up at 10:15 setting the course as 10 miles east, 10 miles southwest and thence back to the starting point.

The wind had hauled around to the east making the first leg a beat, and the second and third reaches.

Frank C. Paine, designer of the defense candidate Yankee which was beaten out for the honor by Rainbow and who was added to Rainbow's afterguard yesterday could be seen on the defender's deck consulting with C. Sherman Hoyt on the setting of her headsails.

The breese was steadily lightening as the starting time approached and at 10:35 had dropped away to about eight knots from 14 a few minutes before.

Endeavour had a double clewed jib sail, her Greta Garbo rig, in stops while Rainbow already had broken out her jib when the warning signal was set at 10.30.

The Start

The starting signal was given at 10:30 a.m., E.S.T.

Both were tardy crossing the line but Rainbow appeared to be leading by three lengths.

She crossed 25 seconds after the signal with Endeavour following 20 seconds later.

Five minutes after the start Rainbow had increased her lead to at least five boat lengths and was working to weather of the challenger.

She was boiling along like a scared rabbit, a plume of white under her bow.

The defender worked so rapidly to weather that at 10:55 she held what appeared to be at least 300 yards advantage over Endeavour.

Endeavour began to foot better as they settled down for the long beat and at 11:10 appeared to be holding Rainbow to her early-gained lead.

The British boat went over on the port tack at 11:12 and Rainbow immediately came about to keep her covered.

They did not hold on the port tack long, Rainbow going about at 11:17 to be followed a few seconds later by Endeavour.

There was no change in the relative positions at 11:35. Rainbow holding a 300-yard lead as they both bore toward Cuttyhunk on the starboard tack

Making Good Time.

At 11:40, an hour after the start, the two boats were approximately two miles from the 10-mile turning mark and making excellent time.

It appeared they had a good chance to break the cup record for a 10-mile windward beat.

As the boats approached the turning buoy at the end of the first 10 mile leg it could be esen that C. Sherman Hoyt, who generallyl handles her to windward, was at the helm of Rainbow.

The two boats were only about a mile away from the mark at 11:55 with Endeavour coming up so fast it appeared doubtful Rainbow would have room to cross the Britishers's bow in making the turn.

Bow to Bow.

Endeavour had wiped away Rainbow's lead and they were bow to bow, with the British boat in the windward berth, as they bore down on the 10 mile mark.

Endeavour set her new genoa jib as they began the second 10 mile leg, a broad reach.

Five minutes after the turn they were about two boat lengths apart heading away from Vineyard Sound lightship on the port tack.

At 12:25 Vanderbilt took Rainbow off to the southeast apparently looking for a favorable slant of air while Sopwith held endeavor to the course.

The British boat was carrying a staysail in addition to her new Genoa.

After working well to weather of the course Rainbow began to bear down on Endeavour.

An observation by an Argo officer at 12:45 showed she had wiped out most of the Britisher's lead and that there was little to choose between the two.

Rainbow Passes

Three minutes later Rainbow had definitely passed the invader although slightly to weather of a true course to the second marker.

The wind was freshening and a sea was kicking up.

At 12:55 Rainbow had extended her lead to several boat lengths. The 20-mile mark appeared less than two miles away.

Parkinson At Helm.

John Parkinson had held the helm on Rainbow through most of the second 10 miles, but Vanderbilt took it back as Rainbow headed back for home.

The breeze had freshened to 12 knots but the sea was not kicking up badly, the defender riding along easily. Endeavour, however, did not seem to like the weather and was pitching and plunging.

The British boat seemed to be going faster though, and closing the gap on Rainbow.

A squall was making up in the north-west.

Endeavour still trailer by several boat lengths at 1.30 but appeared to be working up to weather of the Defender

It was apparent Sopwith was trying to do the same thing to Vanderbilt the latter had done to him on the second leg.

A sight by the Argos officers showed Rainbow leading by 300 yards at 1:35 but also that Endeavor had cut 100 yards from the previous lead in 10 minutes.

At 1:45 it was estimated the two racing sloops had about three miles to go to the finish. Rainbow's margin there was figured as about 275 yards. Endeavour was gaining with every minute.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

MONTREAL EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, Sept. 22.—(C.P.) — The trend was mainly irregular on the Montreal stock exchange at the close of to-day's short and featureless session.

Brazilian traction held steady at 11. Bank of Commerce at 156. Hollinger was unchanged at 21.05.

Massey Harris and Montreal Power were fractions higher. International Nickel at 24¼ was unchanged.

MINING EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, Sept. 22 (C.P.). — Business tapered off in the short week-end session of the Mining Market with prices closing few and unimportant variations from Friday's final figures. Trading was very thin in the senior gold.

Another attempt was made to lift Oiga and a price of 19 was marked up but selling soon cut the quotation to 18 unchanged.

Kirkland Lake recorded an advance of three cents. Paymaster picked up two cents and Northern Canada gained 4 cents to 34.

Trading in Teck Hughes was back to almost normal volume with the price showing less than 10-cent drop. Dome lost 25 cents and recessions of 5 to 10 cents appeared for Wright Hargreaves and Hollinger.

INDUSTRIALS SECTION.

TORONTO, Sept. 22.—(C.P.) — The industrial section of the Toronto exchange dragged along to a quiet close to-day, leaving a record of mixed losses and gains for the season.

Nickel was among the most active and it closed unchanged at 24. Ford A dropped a fraction of Friday's advance. Walkers common dropped ¼ and the other Distillery issues closed unchanged in the brewery group. Brewery Corporatnon preferred weakened more than a point and Canada Malting edged up to 26 for a narrow gain.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22. —(A. P.). —With most of the recent good news out of the way, the forward push of the stock market slowed down somewhat to-day and prices turned rather spotty under quiet profit taking. Resistance was shown by some groups, however, and quotations fluctuated narrowly. The close was irregular. Transfers approximated 320,000 shares.

Claim Child Hit By Drunken Man

Claiming that she was struck in the face by some unknown man, whom she believed to be intoxicated, Shirley Plumpton, 10 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Plumpton, 88 McDonnel street, was treated at the office of Dr. H. M. Yelland for nose bleed early last evening.

According to the father's report to the police, some time after the alleged incident, the child was walking north on Water street near the post office, with her 14 year old sister Marjorie at about seven-thirty o'clock when she was struck in the face by a man, who wore a dark suit. She could give no reason for the action of the man, except to believe that he might have been intoxicated.

When the child reached home, according to her father, she fainted and suffered an attack of vomiting.

One of the most successful of the many successful affairs at the Young Women's Christian Association was the High Tea which was held yesterday in the gymnasium, in celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of the establishment in the Simcoe street buildings of Peterborough's branch of the Y.W.C.A. It is forty-three years since the 'Y' was formed in Peterborough, but for thirteen years thereafter the institution flourished in other quarters. Of the long list of Board members at that meeting, thirty years ago, the only ladies still resident in Peterborough are Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. M. A. Morrison, Miss Fanny Dixon and Miss Emma Morrow. Yesterday, over two hundred people attended the sumptuous High Tea which was served at long, white-clothed tables placed in the big gymnasium, which was gay with foliage and greenery, bittersweet hawes and apples. Dahlias and large zinnias decorated the serving table and the individual tea tables were centered by bowls of midget zinnias in varied tints. On the large central table where tea and coffee were poured, the centerpiece of the filet net cloth was a gorgeous bouquet of large gladioli, placed in a big bowl of green crystal. At either end of the table were branching candelabra holding yellow tapers. The white effect of the big hall was festive and gay and the company thoroughly enjoyed the excellent repast which was served in cafeteria style., the guests helping themselves first to big plates and passing along to receive cold meat, salads, rolls and dessert form various sections presided over by hospitable ladies. Pouring tea during the hours from 5.30 to 7.30 were the president of the 'Y,' Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, and the immediate past president, Mrs. E. E. Harvey, also Mrs. G. B. Boucher and Mrs. R. M. Waddell. The two last-named represented also, at this anniversary celebration, their mothers-in-law, the late Mrs. Boucher and the late Mrs. Waddell, both of whom were Board members thirty years ago. Other ladies concerned with different items in the affair included the Supervision committee: Mesdames Kenner, V. Eastwood, Harvey; the Decoration committee: Mesdames R. H. Parsons, H. C. Sophisticated Sheer black satin makes this sophisticated dinner frock worn by pretty Gertrude Michael. A silver cord knotted about her waist gives an ecclesiastical effect.

The skirt is split, but conservatively, and the crepe jacket is trimmed with satin.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Girls talk from two to four months earlier than boys. This is a sober statement found in a conservative textbook on children. Anybody who wants to can make up their own jokes on the subject with that as a basis.

Speech depends upon the development of the special senses—sight and hearing. When a remarkable person like Helen Keller, who was early deprived of both senses, is able to learn to speak, it is not much like normal speech, and almost unrecognizable.

Sight and sound arouse curiosity, which is the basis of speech. You could not expect an infant to say "dog" unless the sight of a dog had stimulated its interest, nor, of course, to say it unless the word had been repeated with the dog itself, or a picture of it, in sight.

Names of people who are around all the time are learned first, and then familiar objects. Verbs come later. From the first to the second year a baby learns from 100 to 500 words, and should be using two-word sentences. By the age of five the child of average mentality uses from 2,000 to 4,000 words correctly. Few of us increase our vocabulary much more than that. There are only about 200 different words in this article.

The habit which increases the vocabulary most is interest in rhyming. Children take vast delight in simple rhymes. The child's mind is like the savage, or primitive, person; they indulge in simple rhymes endlessly repeated. And an interest in poetry is strongest in youth, and wanes as one grows mature.

With rhyming goes the further development of the sense of hearing and the beginning of an appreciation of music. Only about 40 per cent. of children under six years of age can reproduce a tune.

Later a help in developing speech is punning and making jokes. Punning is the simplest form of joking and it, too, though delighting children, is a mark of immaturity. But no matter how they may bore you, never suppress a child's jokes. Heaven knows there is no equipment in life which is calculated to make for more happiness than the ability to see and make a joke. And it must be learned gradually. Remember Carolyn Wells' story of her aunt who had no sense of humor? Some member of the family undertook to teach her to like jokes and started with, "Why does a chicken cross the road?" It took her weeks to see it, but after that her progress was so rapid she saw something funny in everything and used to throw the congregations at funerals into convulsions.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

B. W.: "(a) How many calories in a glass of beer? (b) How many calories in a tablespoon of olive oil? How does it help in digesting food?"

Answer: (a) About 100, depending on the size of the glass. (b) 150. It does not "help" in digesting food—nor hinder.

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

C.D.S. FASHION REVUE AND ROBERT MONTGOMERY IN "HIDE OUT."

There was a splendid crowd last night for the Fall Fashion Revue of the Canadian Department Stores (which is reportid fully in another column), and an excellent feature with Robert Montgomery in the main role.

There is no doubt about it that this young man has what it takes. He may, and undoubtedly has, a very unlikeable, loose mouth, which he takes no pains to conceal, and he isn't very careful about his screen deportment and articulation, as so many of the older men stars are. But he has the most natural manner imaginable. No matter what role he essays, it seems to been built for him. And that is certainly a great asset. He never appears to be stiff or uncomfortable.

And even Maureen O'Sullivan, the little poseur with an accent that really doesn't harmonize much with an all-American background, grows more natural also in this movie. She gives a very fine characterization of the young, innocent girl who enslaves the fancy of a New York racketeer, 'hiding out' by chance in her father's home.

The picture, thank goodness, doesn't go in for heavy, passionate episodes. When Ma and Pa Miller departed for town for the day, and the bold, bad man from the city even bribed little, interfering Willie to accompany them, we shuddered inwardly. It looked like the old hokum. But, mercifully, this picture has a new angle 'Lucky' Wilson knew a good thing when he saw it, and it remained untarnished. Considering his record with women, smeared carefully, by picturesque means, all over the first reels of the feature, he conducted himself admirably and deserved the consideration he received from his hard-boiled friends, accompanying him on a return journey to the bright lights of the city and the prospect of eighteen months 'put away.' The man who directed that picture had an imagination that worked just right.

There is a girl in this feature singing a gooey song in a night-club with a voice as smooth as melted honey.

—Jeanette.

MAKE THESE "SELF-HELP" NIGHT DRAWERS AT SAVING

It's outstanding feature is its front closing which enables a youngster to slip into it without any help. It has a drop seat. It may be made with a cunning standing collar that hugs the neck or it may be collarless. It may have long or short sleeves, and be made with or without feet.

Brother will probably like it in pale blue flannel or striped percale. For sister, choose a pretty flannel in pink floral pattern or pink satiny finish cotton broadcloth.

Tiny tots will just adore it in cotton crepe in amusing nursery print, and mother will like it too, for it needs no ironing after it is tubbed.

Style No. 3036 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. Size 4 requires 2⅛ yards of 36-inch material.

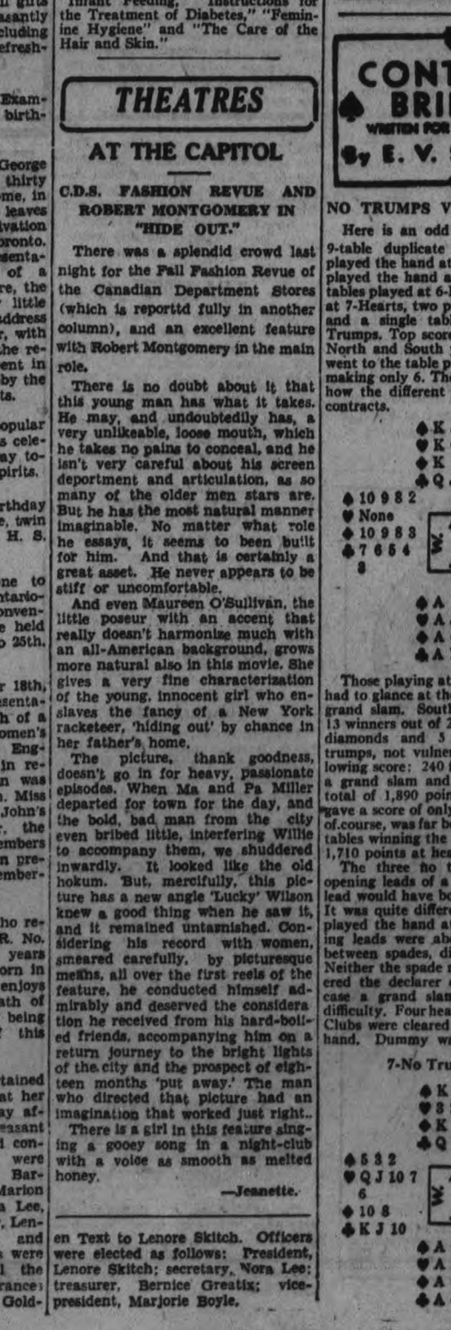
CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

NO TRUMPS VERSUS HEARTS.

Here is an odd hand, played in a 9-table duplicate game. Six tables played the hand at hearts and 3 tables played the hand at no trumps. Three tables played at 6-Hearts, three played at 7-Hearts, two played 6-No Trumps and a single table played at 7-No Trumps. Top score went to the latter North and South pair. Bottom score went to the table playing 7-Hearts and making only 6. There was no record of how the different pairs reached their contracts.



Those playing at no trumps scarcely had to glance at their hands to make a grand slam. South only had to pick 13 winners out of 2 spades, 5 hearts, 2 diamonds and 5 clubs. Seven no trumps, not vulnerable, gave the following score: 240 for points, 1,500 for a grand slam and 150 for honors; a total of 1,890 points. Six no trumps gave a score of only 860 points, which, of course, was far below that of the two tables winning the grand slam score of 1,710 points at hearts.

The three no trump bidders had opening leads of a club, but no other lead would have bothered in the least. It was quite different with those who played the hand at hearts. The opening leads were about evenly divided between spades, diamonds and clubs. Neither the spade nor club leads bothered the declarer of hearts. In each case a grand slam resulted without difficulty. Four heart tricks were taken. Clubs were cleared from the declaring hand. Dummy was put in the lead with its K of diamonds, and the hands were a spread.

The opening diamond lead prevented South from making more than 6-odd. The declarer could not run off 4 trump tricks and be left in dummy without having his clubs block the run of that suit. If he took the last trump trick in his own hand, before taking his 2 clubs, dummy could not be entered. The player who tried to take his 2 club tricks before pulling trumps had the second club trick ruffed. That diamond lead ruined chances for a heartgrand slam.

Before Monday see how many South can win against an opening lead of the Q of hearts.

CAPACITY AUDIENCE IN CAPITOL VIEWS THE FALL FASHION REVUE CANADIAN DEPARTMENT STORES

Highlights of the Season's Mode Are Shown on Capitol Stage.

BEAUTIFUL FROCKS.

Show Reveals That Fall of 1934 is a Season of Contracts.

(By Jeanette)

American Beauty red satin, gleaming, tightly-fitting, its 'butcher-boy' jacket, as the mode entitles these loose-hanging, coolie-like coats, finishing at the neckline with with a 'sausage roll' of the satin, was one of the striking "cocktail hour" or "double duty" frocks, which disported itself last night on the stage of the Capitol Theatre, where the Canadian Department Stores presented a Fall Fashion Revue.

Pretty models from the store staff demonstrated these and other highlights of the mode in slender, medium and 'stylish stout' sizes. High shades, like this shining red satin, and sombre shades, like the much-favored black, alternated in the display.

For it is a season of contrasts; lively and severe, grave and gay, simple and flamboyant. You can swank in 'sheeny' velvets and lustruos metallic cloths, or you can be simple and trim in 'oatmeal' and 'sand crepes and novelty wools.

These double duty" frocks that are so named because they can be transferred, by slipping out of the jacket, into slinky evening models, are fascinating things. Carioca red crepe with capellike sleeves and a 'butcher' boy coat, hanging loose in the back and belted in front, made one of them, with a trio of large white rabbit fur pompoms at the left side of the bodice. Corn color crepe was in another beautiful example of this mode, with a stand-up collar of brown mole on the jacket.

Soft velvets for dinner wear were made in clinging effects, the majority having long tight sleeves. A midnight blue model was lovely with capes over the shoulders and a deep round yoke formed of silver beads in circles. A stunning wine-colored velvet with a cowl collar had three-quarter length sleeves banded deeply with silver. And pine-needle green fashioned one more of these "portrait" dresses that are the rage of the season.

Breakfast Dish Crepes

Street dresses showed the liking for tunics and for crepes of odd titles, that run the gamut from cereal and oatmeal, to sand and pebble, alpaca and triple sheer.

One modish model in black cereal crepe had gauntlet cuffs and a rolled collar with large tab bow, developed in black taffeta. A novelty clip and belt buckle showed a clever red and silver combination. And a 'Lyolene' model in black oatmeal crepe was trimmed with cuffs and wide, flaring revers of pale baby blue crepe threaded with silver. Two large circular silver buttons added a finishing touch to a smart frock.

A two-piecegown of black had skirt and sleeves jacket of crepe, while the top was of taffeta patterned in gold thread, with three large golden balls, "a la pawnbroker", at the neck fastening. This was a Molyneaux model. A dress of soft Carioca red was trimmed with black celophane and silver, with black patent leather belt, while a model of dark navy in sand crepe had a top section reaching to the hipline and stitched vertically in white. White narrow cuffs and little collar were of white moire and the belt buckle and shoulder clips were tiny of red composition, shaped exactly like hands, with all five fingers.

The fur coats demonstrated the season's fondness for luxurious elegance and swathing furs. Grey tones were in the squirrel coat and also the broadtail that was trimmed with grey squirrel in Ascot tie collar mode. Grey Persian lamb trimmed a Hudson seal with stand-up collar at the back, and silver fox adorned another seal garment.

Fur, with its soft warmth and flattering appearance, with shawl, cape and Queen Christina collarings, trimmed many of the fabric coats also. Imported tweeds, tree-barks and suede coatings and the nigger knob cloth that is new this year, were in evidence, with trimmings of French beaver, natural and cinnamon wolf, grey and brown squirrel and the lovey azure blue wolf.

A coat of brown suede cloth had tight cuffs belling out to the shoulder with a triple row of tucks. A notched, cape collar of fur opened in front over a vestee of the coat material in a garment of brown curry curl cloth with Russian squirrel collar and effective little gussets set in between the elbow and cuff of the sleeve. A spring coat of wonderfully soft imported English camelhair had a finely harmonizing color combination in a collar of cinnamon wolf.

Evening Star Frocks

The gowns and wraps for evening wear deserve a special paragraph for themselves. Individually and 'en tableau,' they were modelled last evening, their colors showing the season's contrasting likes for dark, sombre tones and high, gay colors.

"These stars will shine at night" was the foreword for this section of the Revue.

A pure white crepe satin gown, long, straight-lined, form-fitting, with a slightly squared neckline and fullness in soft godet back draperies, shining rhinestone ornaments on either shoulder, was worn with cerise moire slippers and a gorgeous long velvet wrap of the glowing crimson called Mephisto. This was lined with white crepe satin and had a deep shawl collar of white lapin.

Harmonizing in their lovely "blueness" were the wrap of sapphire velvet with the same soft white lapin fur making the collar and long Ascot tie fastening and the wide cuffs which finished the loose sleeves, and the frock which accompanied it in crepe satin of forget-me-not blue, with deep V decolletage and little jacket which had cape sleeves edged with soft brown fur.

An exquisite color combination was demonstrated in the dress of bright gold satin, its separate jacket showing a three-cornered puffy mode to the sleeve tops. With it was worn a marvellous myrtle green velvet wrap that had long tight cuffs to the elbow and bulged from there to the shoulder in a melon-shaped luxury of beige lapin fur.

Carioca red moire, with godets inset for freedom in the back of the skirt and tiny pin tucking emphasizing the wide petal-like collar and shoulder flares, was another evening model, along with a matronly black crepe banded heavily with silver.

But the pick of the lot, exquisite in its dainty aloofness, was a pebbly crepe of dusty pink tint, with much shirring, edged with ruffles, on the deep oval of the back decolletage and the high line of the front neckline that was finished with a large silver and brilliant clip. It had a skirt slit at different paces and a little melon-shaped muff of the same shirred and ruffled material.

Suits were trim and trig in fashioning, and warm and comfy as to materials. The soft Angora rabbits' hair cloth made a two-piece sports model developed in the zinnia tint that is exactly like the rusty henna hue of that flower. It had fastenings of black suede buttons. The same smooth novelty wool material was in a one-piece suit of forest green trimmed with narrow bands of white angora wool, threaded with silver. Gloria blue was another lovely tone.

Little Men and Women

Tiny tots had some of the most interesting things for juniors. Miniature men and women came out to stand entranced by the bright lights and the noise, and, in the finale, one little white-clad man went on strike altogether and ,refusing to model any more, climbed on the chesterfield on the stage and let the seniors carry on.

A duo of little people that were exceptionally cunning had little "Shorty" suits of llama, one bright green, the other pale blue, while pure white snow suits, right to the toes, were another novelty.

Party frocks worn by the tiny girls, one of whom entranced the watchers by waltzing carefully about the stage, were of different tints, corn color, henna, pink and green, all smocked heavily on the yokes and shoulders.

A military laddie, for whom the orchestra played, "There is Something about a Soldier," came out in the flag colors. His "Buckingham" suit had navy leggings with a broad red side stripe, a scarlet jacket belted in white leather and decorated with many brass buttons, and there were blue epaulettes on his shoulders. He wore a darling little black fur busby with red chin strap. White gloves completed this small warrior's outfit.

And we mustn't forget the dog, a cinnamon-colored Chow with a pink ribbon bow and a surprised expression for the applause which greeted him, along with one of the mannequins in a shining gold frock. He is a much-travelled doggie and has been pretty well over the world in his time. He is the property of Mrs. Beers of Toronto, at present a guest of her sister, Mrs. C. D. Hewitt.

The showing ended with a tableau on the stage, the models in evening frocks grouped in threes, on either side of the children, with the smart little lady who came out to usher in the various sections, and who wore the trimmest of outfits, a butcher boy blouse of cerise velveteen with a black skirt and red-feathered black beret. This was Miss 'Jerry' Campbell.

Hats must not be overlooked. They were excellent complements to the lovely models that made such a glittering display on the brightly-lighted stage. They came in broad-brimmed effects, in the felts, tricornes, tams and toques of the mode, mainly in black and brown, with tiny veils and perky feather trims. Shoes and bags were appropriate accessories and the mannequins wore "Braemore" chiffon hose of the Biscayne or mid-fawn tint that harmonizes with every color.

Coiffures were done in G. Downer's Beauty Parlor.

Music was played by Mrs. E. Foster, pianist, Miss 'Mickey' Foster, saxaphoniste, and Harry Northrop, violinist. The stage was decorated with a profusion of Al Spenceley's superb gladioli, from his 'Pastime Gardens.'

The mannequins, who were assisted by Percy McDonald in removing their evening wraps, were Mrs. L. Brown, Mrs. Rae McKinlay, Miss Dorothy Marshall, Miss Phyllis Payne, Miss Maisie Collins, and Miss Jean Wheeler, who was in charge of the display. Little tots modelling children's wear were two small boys, t six-year-old Glennie Grierson, and two-year-old 'Sonny' Johnson, and two little girls, the five-year-old Barbara Lang, and Marilyn Lewington, just a year and a half in age.

There was a line-up for the first show and the Fashion Revue which followed. The Capitol was filled right up to the stage and the loge and balcony seats were all taken. The applause that was accorded the Revue showed the general interest taken in this smart showing of advance season styles.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Brazil nuts can be used in so many different ways in preparing food, and they have such splendid food value that we are going to give you a few recipes that include them:

* * * * * * *

BRAZIL NUT STUFFING

2 chopped onions, ½ cup melted fat, 2 cups sliced Brazil nuts, sage or other herbs, salt, pepper, 6 cups soft bread crumbs.

Mince onions and cook two minutes in the fat. Mix seasonings and nuts with bread crumbs and stir into fat. Cook two minutes more, stirring constantly. If a moist stuffing is desired, add a little water. This amount of stuffing is enough for a ten-pound turkey.

* * * * * * *

CREAMED ONIONS WITH BRAZIL NUTS

2 pounds small white onions, ¼ cup butter, ½ cup sliced Brazil nuts, salt, pepper, 2 cups milk, ¼ cup sliced Brazil nuts, ¼ cup flour.

Cook the onions with a dash of sugar and a dash of salt in a small amount of water in a heavy covered utensil. When tender, drain. Melt butter, brown nuts, add flour and when well blended, add milk slowly, stirring constantly. Season. Add onions and pour into serving dish and sprinkle the top with the remaining Brazil nuts.

* * * * * * *

MASHED SQUASH WITH BRAZIL NUTS

Bake Hubbard squash in the shell, cut in pieces, in a slow oven, 325 degrees F., for one hour, or until tender. Remove seeds and stringy portion. Scoop out of shell. Mash, add cream or melted butter enough to moisten and season to taste with salt, pepper and nutmeg. Add one cup of sliced toasted Brazil nuts to about a quart of squash.

* * * * * * *

BRAZIL NUT FUDGE

2 squares chocolate, ½ cup cold water, 2 cups granulated sugar, 2-3 cup milk, 1 cup finely cut or crushed Brazil nuts, 1 cup cut Brazil nuts.

Cut chocolate into five or six pieces and put with water in a heavy saucepan. Stir over a low fire until the chocolate is melted. Stir in the sugar and add the milk. Then stir over fire until the sugar is dissolved. Boil over a medium flame until the thermometer reads 228 degrees F. or until a soft ball will form when a little of the candy is dropped in cold water. Put pan in cold water and cool to 110 degrees F.

A new and attractive way of serving the breakfast bacon and eggs is included in today's recipes. Or you may make it a luncheon dish, instead, if you wish.

Today's Recipes

Eggs in Bacon Nest.—Cook strips of bacon until almost done. Line the sides of hot muffin cups with a long strip of the nearly-done bacon. Break an egg into the center. The bacon makes a ring to hold the egg in place. Season and cook in moderate oven (325 degrees) long enough to set eggs.

Escalloped Cabbage.—In the top of a double boiler cook until well blended one-half pound American cheese, one-half cup milk, one teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, one-fourth teaspoon paprika. In a buttered casserole place a layer of cabbage that has been chopped coarsely and cooked until tender, then a layer of the cheese sauce and top with buttered bread crumbs. Repeat until the dish is full. Dot with butter and bake until nicely browned in a moderate oven.

FORTY-FIVE LIVES

One of the well-known tonsorial artists of the city is suffering from an embarrassment of riches—in the way of pets. And he doesn't know what to do about it. Some time ago, a stray cat with gentle manners made friends with his establishment. She arrived one evening this week accompanied by a tiny kitten, fat, purry, with creamy soft fur, and dropped it experimentally at the feet of the owner of the store. It was welcomed enthusiastically, so next day she brought along its brother — or sister. Anyway, then there were three cats to look after and a box filled with sawdust was provided for them, along with sundry saucers of milk and bits of fish and meat, for the kittens appeared to be several weeks old. And yesterday the mother cat provided two more bits of warm grey fur. Two wasn't so bad, but when it came to four! Oh, well, they are kind-hearted people, so a bigger box was found and now they are five. And the owner and his staff are wondering if the tale is complete. They are getting just a little nervous.

To Say Farewell To Three Cadets

Farewell services for three young women who have been selected by examination for entrance to the Salvation Army Training College at Toronto, are being held at the Salvation Army Temple here over the week-end. The services will be in charge of Adutant and Mrs. Neal Warrander.

The young women who are to enter upon a nine months course of training next week are: Cadet Faith Boorman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Boorman of McDonnel street; Cadet Jean Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cox, Dalhousie street and Cadet Geraldine McDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie McDonald of Rubidge street. Each of the young women have been active members of the Songster Brigade.

Officers of the local corps are pleased at the acceptance of three of their members into the Training College in view of the fact that only ninety entrants are accepted from the whole Dominion.

Police Examine Lindbergh Ransom Money Found With Suspect

Four New York police officers examine the large sum of banknotes, identified as part of the ransom paid in a vain effort to effect the release of Baby Charles Lindbergh by kidnappers, and found near the property of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, a New York carpenter, who was immediately arrested. The arrest climaxed a man hunt conducted for more than two years by metropolitan and state police and federal department of justice agents. An attempt by Hauptmann to pass a $10 bill brought about his arrest.

OTHER RESULTS.

LONDON, Sept. 22. —(C. P. Cable). — Leadership changed in the first division of the English Football League to-day as Manchester City, the cupholders, and Preston North End, up from the second division, overtook Sunderland and went into the joint leadership of the section, Sunderland, hitherto the pace-setters, lost on their own grounds to Derby County by 4-1.

Manchester City went to Leicester City to earn a 3-1 victory while the surprising recruits, on their own grounds, beat Chelsea 2-0. As a result Manchester and Preston went into a one point advantage over Sunderland and Everton, who beat Huddersfield 4-2.

The Arsenal could do no better than split points in a scoreless duel at Sheffield Wednesday's park, and were left in fifth position just two points back of the leaders.

Bolton Wanderers remained the only team in the entire league with a record of straight wins from the start of the season, chalking up their seventh victory at the expense of Bradford City to retain a solid leadership of the second section. Brentford kept second place by beating Bury 2-1.

Dr. Stanley Stacey, a native of Peterborough, has returned to the city to conduct a dental practice in a newly-established office at 53 Park Street South.

Son of the late Ben Stacey, Dr. Stacey is well-known here. He received his primary and secondary education in local schools, and in 1928 graduated from the Royal College of Dental Surgeons. During the past six years, he has practiced in Newcastle.

Fond of sport, he served as secretary of the Lakeshore Baseball League during the past two years, and managed the Newcastle baseball team. He acted also as secretary of the Newcastle Lawn Bowling Club.

His dental office is located over McLeod's Drug Store.

TOURISTS AND GUIDE FINED

Americans Convicted at Port Hope for Fishing Without Non-resident Permits.

WARNING TO GUIDES.

Three convictions secured by game and fisheries officers at Port Hope police court yesterday emphasize the fact that guides are obligated under the Act to see that non-residents of the province who engage their services, must be in possession of fishing or hunting licenses as the case might be.

Inspector Fred Marshall, fish and game overseer, stated the case served to warn guides that failure to comply with these requirements renders guides liable to seizure of their equipment and the cancellation of their own licenses.

Convictions were secured against two American tourists from the State of Ohio for fishing without a non-resident license, and also against the guide in their employ for "guiding non-residents of the province, they not being in possession of the required license." Each of the three defendants was fined the sum of $10 and $3.50 costs, while in addition the boat and equipment used by the party was seized, and the guide's license was cancelled.

Inspector Fred Marshall of Peterborough and Inspector R. D. Windsor of Lindsay laid the charges following a patrol undertaken this week in the course of their duties, over a section of the Trent Waterway system and Rice Lake.

The tourists were holidaying at Harwood, and one of them, it is stated, was in possession of a 3-day fishing license which had, however, expired two days prior to the commission of the offences charged.

The boat, which is still under seizure, was a large motor boat which the guide had hired for the purpose of the fishing trip.

O'DUFFY QUITS HIS LEADERSHIP OVER 2 PARTIES

Disgusted With Dissention in Blueshirts, Fine Gael Ranks.

COSGRAVE TAKES REINS.

BY MICHAEL ROONEY

DUBLIN, Sept. 22.—(AP)—Beset by dissensions within the party's ranks, General Eoin O'Duffy today resigned from his leadership of both the fine Gael (the United Ireland Party) and its military adjunct, the "Blueshirts."

William T. Cosgrave, former president of the Free State, as vice president of the Fine Gael automatically became the party's head while E. J. Cronin, general secretary of the party and deputy leader of the Blueshirts, became the head of the Blueshirt organization.

Although O'Duffy's resignation was submitted four days ago, for unannounced reasons, it was not accepted until early today after the Fine Gael executive committee had come to an agreement after an all-night session. The committee accepted "with very deep regret."

In accepting the resignation of O'Duffy, the executive of the party said they desired "to express deep appreciation of the general's great services to the country and their conviction that the cause of Ireland's freedom will always find in him a sincere and strenuous friend."

There has been dissension in the Fine Gael ranks in recent weeks, including a rift between O'Duffy and Cosgrave over party policies. These, however, apparently had been agreed upon by party executives in August.

Cronin is known as a military United Ireland party worker. Three months ago he was "on the run" because of his activities with the "Blueshirts," the semi-military branch of the party.

Toronto Leafs Win 3-2 in 13 Innings For Third Straight

AFTER EIGHT SCORELESS FRAMES LEAFS BUNCH TWO HITS TO SCORE

Winners Are Outhit 15-5 But Walks and Errors Aid Them.

STRANGLEHOLD ON SERIES.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Sept. 22 (AP) Toronto Maple Leafs were one slim game away from the Little World Series to-day.

The Leafs earned their third successive victory over Rochester Redwings in the International Leagues' final playoffs last night, 3-2 in 13 innings, and now need only one more victory to gain the right to represent the league in the Little World Series against the American Association champions.

Walter (Whitey) Hilcher of Toronto and Pete (Jablonowski) Appleton of Rochester were the probable pitching selections for the fourth game to-day. Rochester must win all four remaining games of the series in order to qualify for the Little World Series, an all but impossible task.

Toronto was outhit 15-5 last night, but they finally succeeded in bunching two hits in one inning against Ray Harrell, and won the game. Harrell had allowed only three hits going into the first half of the 13th, but Joe Morrissey led off with a single, went to second on Benny Borgmann's third error of the game, to third on George McQuinn's infield out, and home with the winning run when Murray (Red) Howell came through with a single.

One Hit to Ninth

Harrell allowed only one hit in the first nine frames but that one, an infield roller by Nolen Richardson, enabled Toronto to score two runs and tie the score at 2-2 in the fourth. The bases were filled as a result of three passes when Richardson hit a slow bounder past Harrell. Manager Ike Boone came home with one run and Howell scored the second when Borgman, after fielding the ball, threw wild. Don Brennan went the route for the winners and was exceedingly effective in the pinches although he was hit freely.

Buster Mills scored both Redwing runs, counting on an error in the second and on Tommy Carey's hit in the third. Brennan fanned nine men and walked only two. Harrell fanned eight but passed nine.

BENGAL SQUAD STRENGTHENED FOR GRID WARS

Johnny Ferraro, former Cornell University Star, as Coach Adds Much Pep.

HEAVY LINE.

BY IVAN MILLER
Canadian Press Correspondent

HAMILTON, Sept. 22.—(CP)—Perhaps the installation of American methods in the heretofore staid and strictly Canadian Hamilton Tigers may not be rewarded with success in the Interprovincial Union football campaign this fall. But there appears to be little doubt that the virus injected into the Bengals by Johnny Ferraro, former Cornell university ace, now chief coach of the Tigers, has stirred players and fandom alike.

In fact the lads who like added zest with their gridiron dishes are busily engaged in saying with wagers that the jungle kings will not again trail the big four. From the title heights of 1932, the Bengals dropped to last place in 1933, winning only one scheduled game.

Those Bengal brigades of other years were experienced, hard bitted machines. They weren't enthusiastic—they were cold. But they were tough. It seems Ferraro and his four assistants, Fred Veale, Danny Webster, Finlayson and Hunter, have completely transformed the spirit of the Tigers. There are only a few newcomers to the squad.

Ferraro, who may or may not be a factor on the Hamilton backfield himself, took the legacy of a fine wigline with such strongmen as old Brian Timmis and Bill Friday and a rear-division that will always be spectacular as long as Frank Turville is there. Turville has impressed observers with his form in practice.

Two years ago the long-legged, blackhaired lawyer was the greatest running and kicking half in the country. Injuries prevented him from reached anything like his best condition last fall. Ferraro will have many problems solved if Turville stages a comeback.

To help the big fellow are Eddie Wright, Boley Heffers, Smiley, Parker and Bob Craig, star of the Tiger Cubs, O.R.F.U. team last season. A fine punter and ball-carrier, Craig is expected to develop into a brilliant big four performer. Jeffers, a Windsor boy, made his senior debut last season and carried the brunt of the backfield attack while Turville was out of action.

"Bus" Blum, formerly of Colgate University's Red Raiders, will fit into the wingline. He has shown fine plunging ability in workouts and, with the veteran Timmins still able to plough through opposing barriers, the Bengals expect to present a strong ground attack.

Carl Dettman, formerly of Windsor, has worked out with the team at half and so has Mike Valeriote, fleet Guelph, Ont., youth who played last season with Argonsuts. Valeriote may commute from Guelph, 30 miles away, to help Tigers. Several O.R.F.U. players are still on the trial list.

Ferraro will put his theories to the test for the first time to-day against Ted Reeve's Queen's intercollegiate squad. Next Saturday the Bengals hook up in an exhibition duel with University of Western Ontario.

Hockey Moguls Have Talk Fest

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—With the equinox at hand and forecasters predicting stormy weather, National Hockey League magnates gathered here last night for today's semi-annual meeting. The meeting, originally scheduled for a week ago, was advanced, it is understood, in view of the far from encouraging situations at Boston and Chicago.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, I ain't got nothing but a tail of woe for the customers to-day. Since my last our senior ball club has took 2 on the chin from the Belleville Nats, our bantams has been slaughtered in a serious with the T.A.B.A. winners, and along come the Scarboro Grads Wed. to put the skids under our boxla outfit to the tune of 12 to 6.

I thought the Central title would of been decided long before I had to write my weekly epistle, but Belleville dropped in here last Sat. and took the Lee lads into camp 5 to 1, and then Wed., with Mister Williams again on the firing line, they win a thrilling 10 innings heavers' battle by squeezing home a run in the 10th and winning the argument by that solitary marker. Here Sat. Mister Williams seemed to just stagger through the engagement. The Petes got to him for 9 hits, he passed 4 and hit another bataman, but out of all that the homesters got only 1 run, and that came when Mister Vinnie Uironki muffed a fly. The Lee talent could get men on the runways, but every time when a hit woulda meant trouble they couldn't click. Our Mister Kitchen tossed a good game, but he hurt his own cause when he gummed up a double play, and with some loose ball on top of that mischance, the Nats kicked in with a 3-run frame which was plenty to win the ball game.

The setback wasn't pleasant, but nobody worried a great deal. The Chief couldn't possibly come back Wed. with another air-tight performance every 1 agreed, so what? However, the redskin southpaw fooled all and sundry, including your scribe, because he trotted out there on his home diamond and held the Petes scoreless for ten frames and hitless for the last 4, and finally got his reward when his teammates obsed a million dollar run over the counting station with 2 out in the 10th. Our Mister Dayell, pitching 1 of the finest games of his ball career, was the victim, for after shutting out the Nats for 9 frames, allowing only 4 scattered singles and whiffing 10, he was finally robbed of a win in the extra frame because his teammates couldn't make a run for him. It was the greatest pitching duel of the year, a great 1 for Belleville to win and a tough 1 for the Petes to drop. The loss evened up the serious at 2 wins each, and by the time this gets out the whole affair will be over, provided old Jupiter Pluvius don't do his stuff Sat. p.m.

The uncertainty of baseball has been showed up in this playoff serious. The Petes took the 1st 2 games by a city block, the opener 5 to 1 against Mister Williams and the second 16 to 4 with a flock of Nat heavers on the mound. Then the Petes' attack collapsed, and in the next 2 games they only scored 1 unearned run and was beat twice in a row.

Well, Mac, the 5th oughta to be a real battle—and so should the series with the G. and W. Grads that will follow.

That's about all for now, so so-long.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

THE WOODBINE fall meeting opened this afternoon and all indications point to a record crowd. The feature contest of today's program sees Shady Well, the speedy Seagram miss carrying top weight, but even with the heavy impost she should be returned the winner as she is just now reaching the top of her form. Among the contingent that checked in from Western Canada is one called The Miner whom they say is a sure fire winner. We hear that Butch Keeling's good Canadian bred Easter Hatter is right in the pink of condition and ready to run for a king's ransom. This former Hatch color bearer when right does not have to take a back seat from any of them. Another feature of the opening day's program is the appearance of Stefan Jr. the real good sprinter in the role of a steeplechaser. He may surprise the timber toppers at that and if he can take the jumps all right he will sure have the speed of the party on the flat.

We notice that down at Havre de Gras an old timer by the name of Aegis came to life on Thursday and paid off at better than nine to one. This baby will win a few more now that he has reached winning form and it will pay you to remember that not so very long ago it took as good a horse as Gallant Knight to defeat him. Down at the same track is our old friend Syrise who is just crying to run and it will not be long until they hang out a nice price on this one.

OVER AT Rockingham there is one called On Sir who is much better than a green hand at turning in winning performances and always at a good price. Mamma's Choice is also down there and is in the proverbial pink and what he will do to a smart field one of these days is nobody's business.

Pepo is at Detroit and will be heard from in a big way. Always remember that he is one of the smoothest platers on the continent and when they decide to level with him it takes an awful good horse to kick dust in his eyes. We also look for Burgoo to turn in a winning performance at this same track especially if the track becomes a little muddy as this one likes mud so well it is often hinted that they feed him a little with his oats.

Defending Defeats Last of Invaders for Fourth International Victory.

COMES FROM BEHIND.

(By Edwin S. Johnson, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Toronto Golf and Country Club, Toronto, Sept. 22. (CP).—Because she won the Canadian open and close titles in the same year, sports writers called Ada Mackenzie, Toronto's super golfer, the outstanding woman athete in the Dominion in 1933. To-day they regarded her more highly than ever—an internationalist of the first rank.

Whether or not she retains her title in the 36-hole final duel today against Mrs. W. G. Fraser of Ottawa, herself an ace of the international golfing wars for many years, Miss Mackenzie has already achieved a triumph which excels her march to the double victory in Winnipeg a year ago.

It was a battle between homebreds at the Manitoba capital—an uphill fight against ranking British stars and two United States contenders here this week. Miss Mackenzie has accounted for four invaders in her progress to the final, topping off the rout with a brilliant 5 and 4 victory yesterday over Molly Gourlay, of England.

Outstanding Athlete

Miss Mackenzie was selected as the outstanding athlete in a nation-wide poll of sports writers conducted last year by The Canadian Press.

Mrs. Fraser had the more arduous trip to the last line of attack and of the two her victory was the most spectacular. The Ottawan disposed of Mrs. C. B. Ford of Vancouver, B.C., but had to come from behind with one of the great exhibitions of shot-making to which the galleries have been treated during the week, to eke out a 2 and 1 decision.

Takes Advantage

While Miss Mackenzie was capitalizing the frequent lapses of Miss Gourlay, and was never seriously threatened, the Ottawa star was trailing most of the way, but always fighting gamely and methodically. At one time she was two holes in arrears and it was through sheer force of her own brilliance that she succeeded in squaring the match with an eagle three on the 407-yard 15th. She then went on with a further show of superlative golf to win the next two holes and the match.

It was one of the most dramatic finishes of the tournament, with the treacherous "graveyard" 17th once again taking its toll as Mrs. Ford sliced her tee shot into the pine cluttered ravine near the green. The Pacific Coast star recovered from her predicament in brilliant fashion, but a birdie three for Mrs. Fraser settled the issue beyond redemption.

Paul Dean Bears Down Like Rascal; Has Arm Working Like a Sling Shot

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—Young Paul Dean knew he was pitching his first major league no-hit, no-run game yesterday at the end of the seventh inning.

Going into the dugout, after that session, the long, lean Texan told Catcher Delancy, "I'm pitching a no-hit game today. Now watch me. I'm goin' out there and bear down like a rascal."

And he bore down with such vigor that the Brooklyn Dodgers didn't get a single hit in their nightcap game, winding up in a blaze of glory one of the greatest brother acts the major leagues ever saw.

"I felt mighty good when I went out to pitch that second game," Paul said afterward. "I always feel fine after my brother Dizzy wins a game. Well, he allowed those Dodgers only three hits in the opener and no runs. My arm felt fine. It was working just like an old sling-shot. I could have gone 27 innings without getting tired."

Green Has Average of .319 for Season and Veteran Catcher .310.

CHIEF WINS EIGHT.

Belleville Nationals finished the C.O.B.L. schedule this year in second place, half a game back of the Petes. Peeney Mills' crew proved something of a surprise, upsetting the dope chiefly through the great comeback of Chief Williams on the mound. They were lucky to get into the playoffs—Oshawa and Kingston cutting each other's throats at every meeting—but the Nats have an even chance now of copping the loop title. While the team shaded the Petes slightly in the fielding average, they were down considerably in hitting. Following are the official league game averages of the Quinte club for the past season:

GIVE PLAYERS AWARDS FOR SOFTBALL LEAGUE

HASTINGS, Sept. 22 (Examiner Correspondence).—At a largely-attended softball meeting this week the cups for the most valuable player during the season also in the play-offs were awarded.

Three players ranked high in the voting for the "Three Generations Cup" for the season's play. Jack Preston, stocky backstop for Elgin, was awarded the cup with seven votes; Earl Hahn, of the Tanners, was second with six, and "Tony" Philips, left fielder of the Outlaws was third with five

In voting for the Frank Gilbert Cup for the play-offs, Earl Hahn, ace twirler for the champion Tannery crew, received the award with eight votes. "Duke" Wilson, first baseman, and "Eve" Whitred, pitcher, both of the Clerks, were tied with five each.

The cups will be presented at the annual softball At Home in Lynch's hall on Monday evening.

PERFECT GAME IS TURNED IN BY PAUL DEAN

Cards' 20 Year Old Pitcher Hurls No-hit No-run Contest Against Dodgers.

DIZZY WINS, TOO.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

The amazing Dean brothers, whose pitching is neither as dizzy nor as daffy as their nicknames, have come close to tossing the Cardinals right into the National League pennant, and if they can only persaude the Giants to lose a few games during the coming week they may do it yet.

Jerome and Paul Dean started the Cards big drive last Sunday when they pitched a double victory over the league leaders and they repeated the brother act yesterday at Brooklyn with one of the greatest two-man hurling feats ever seen in baseball to clip New York's lead to three games with only nine days of the season left. After Dizzy had blanked the Dodgers with three hits to win the opener 13-0 and record his 27th victory of the season, the "Kid" brother came through with a no-hit game that was the nearest possible thing to perfection without actually attaining the peak. The score was 3-0.

One Gets to First

Paul, nearing the end of his first big league season, let only one Dodger touch first base as he recorded the first no-hit-no-run performance in the big leagues since 1931 and the first in the senior circuit since 1929. He passed Len Koenecke after two were out in the first, then retired 25 men in order. To cap the feat he scored the first run off Ray Benge after hitting a double in the sixth.

Dizzy, who pitched seven hitless innings in the opener and received the support of 17 blows, including Jim Collins' 24th homer, had one complaint to make. He didn't know he had held the Dodgers hitless so long, so he didn't bear down in the last two frames.

Giants Defeat Braves.

The Giants, according to their recent custom, held their loss to a minimum by defeating the Braves 8-1 in their single game. After letting Freddy Fitzsimmons toil through his 32nd and 33rd consecutive innings during which he hadn't received the benefit of a Giant run, the New Yorkers suddenly broke loose against Buck Betts in the third and scored four runs on four hits and a Boston error to sew up the ball game. Lee Mangum and Bob Smith were victims of two run bursts later while Fritz pitched shutout ball except for Wally Berger's 33rd homer in the second.

The Giant victory, incidentally, served to erase the idle Cubs from the list of teams which had a mathematical chance to win the flag. Up to yesterday Chicago club had the possibility of finishing one point ahead of New York.

Pittsburgh's Pirates, breaking a four-game losing streak, hammered out a double victory over Cincinnati, 9-3 and 16-3, which left them only a half game behind the fourth place Braves. The Bucs put together clusters of six and seven runs in the after-piece as they collected 27 hits for the day.

The entire American League was idle as the Detroit-St. Louis contest, the only one scheduled, was rained out.

DEFEAT PETES IN SECOND GAME OF SEMI-FINALS

Poor Start Gives Winners Big Advantage for 10-7 Victory.

SPEEDY BATTLE.

Peterborough Kiwanis were eliminated in the O.A.L.A. quarter-finals in Agincourt last night when Scarboro Grads won, 10-7, to take the series by a 22-13 score. Some two hundred fans saw a thrilling game with the locals outclassing the Grads all through the last half. A five-goal jump on Kiwanis in the opening quarter—before the losers had the kinks of the long trip out of them—put the game on ice for the Toronto winners.

It was a clean, speedy affair with only a couple of minor penalties each being drawn. The Kiwanis were wobbly at the start and the Grads took advantage of this, but the Peterborough team came back strong in the second, third and fourth to almost pull up on even terms. The score was 5-0 for Scarboro to end the first frame, 5-3 for them in the second, 6-5 for the Grads going into the fourth and they had a little more punch to keep in front the final fifteen minutes.

Hawes, Hibbard and Hurd were the scoring aces for the winners, with Johnson and A. Hurd good on defence. Creighton saved a bunch in the Kiwanis' net and his defence bumped the homesters hard the last part. King, Magee, Jack and Hatton all went good offensively, but there were no real outstanding stars, the whole team fighting hard. The teams.

Kiwanis — Goal, Creighton defence, Miller and Cadd centre, Dundas; wings, Bovin and King; rover, Hatton; alternates, Magee, Jack, Routley, McConnell, LeBarr, Puffer, Meyette.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse, Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By G. J. F.

By the time this hits the street, the 1934-35 C.O.B.L. title will be settled—that is, unless the elements intervene too much. We wonder just how many ball fans know that the Central Ontario Baseball League was started practically single-handed by a Peterborough resident. Jake Solomon is the guy who put this town on the baseball map in 1918. He came here that winter from New Liskeard to take charge of the Water St. Bowling Alleys. It didn't take Jake long to find that baseball was dead locally—had been dead in fact several years, ever since the pros had quit. Cows were pasturing in Riverside Park then!

• • • • • •

Well, Jake hung around the summer of '18—the same year the O.B.A.A. was organized—and got a thriving 4-team senior city loop going. He affiliated with the O.B.A.A. and the winner represented Peterborough in the playdowns. That's why Peterborough is one of the eight charter members of the Ontario Association. Solomon tried hard to talk up an inter-city league for Central Ontario but the local sportsmen laughed at him. Not a chance, he was told, amateur ball here would never pay. The fans had been used to seeing good pro ball a few years before and they wouldn't be interested in the simon pures.

• • • • • •

But this didn't slow the Hebrew sportsman down a bit. No, sir, he spent the winter travelling around to Lindsay, Belleville, Port Hope, Cobourg, Oshawa—all over this part of the province—seeing guys and talking it up. He was a persuasive talker and got someone interested in all these burgs, and doggone if he didn't have a Central Ontario League going in '19 with Peterborough, Belleville, Oshawa, Cobourg, Port Hope and Lindsay in it. They had a fine season, drew big crowds, dished up smart ball, made money, and added Leaside and Bowmanville within two years to make it an 8-team loop. The C.O.B.L. never slumped from then on, not as long as Jake had anything to do with it.

• • • • • • •

He was a great organizer and a good sport. He had intermediate loops going in several parts of this district, became vice-president of the O.B.A.A. and was quite a power in the east in organized ball. Of course, Solomon eventually left here to take up residence in the States. All the older players and fans around Central Ontario recall this colorful figure as being a smart coach, a popular leader in this sport and a great friend of the fans. But we thought many of them might not know just how much Jake had to do with getting the C.O.B.L. going—and that's our excuse for digging back into the past, back to the good old pre-depression days when everyone had dough and they all blew it.

• • • • • •

Yesterday's averages of the Petes for the past season seemed to interest a lot of our readers, and no doubt the figures on Belleville in today's sheet will also prove interesting. Statistics are pretty dry in most cases, but there is a fairly large percentage of ball fans who eat up batting and fielding averages, etc. We sort of like them ourselves, and they give a pretty accurate figure—without any embroidery or alibis—as to just what this or that player did all summer, just how good he was. Figures don't lie. The Oshawa averages will be published Monday, and those of Kingston on Tuesday.

• • • • • •

Dizzy Dean's little brother, Paul, of St. Louis' Cards' pitching staff came through in the clutch yesterday to hang up a no-hit, no-run game against Brooklyn Dodgers after Dizzy had won the first end of the double-header, 13-0, with a three-hit performance. You've got to like this pair of braggarts who are as good as their word and between them have hung up forty-five wins this summer! That comic strike of their early in the summer is quite likely to cost St. Louis the pennant yet, as the Cards are just three back of the Giants now and will hardly catch 'em. Meantime, it looks in the bag for Detroit in the American League.

• • • • • •

Don't forget that gals' softball setto at five this eve in the Ashburnham Bowl. Folks from the senior baseball tilt can stop on their way out of Riverside Park and see the whole thing without being too late getting home. Both Keene and Westclox will have their large followings of rooters on deck and there should be high pinks at the east end of the bridge before the boy hangs up the final score. With a win apiece so far in the five-game series, the title still rests in the laps of the gods.

• • • • • •

Kiwanis lacrosse rs were eliminated from the O.A.L.A. playdowns in Agincourt last p.m. when they lost, 10-7, to Scarboro Grads. The Grads won the round by a 22 to 13 score and earned it. But the local lads put up a fine showing on foreign territory last night, battling back gamely to make it a good game after the homesters took a sizeable lead right at the start. They did their best but were up against a little better team, and they have no alibi. Kiwanis had a pretty fair year and make a good showing to win honors in this part of the province, and we hope they're back bigger and better than ever next year.

TIGER'S BIG BATTING ADVANTAGE MAY PROVE NOTHING IN SERIES

Terry Leads Greenberg, But Tiger Man Hits in Most Runs.

COMPARING OTHERS.

By James B. Reston
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (A.P.). — Figures—those black-faced, two-faced monsters of professional baseball, which give the Detroit Tigers' infield a 42 point batting advantage over the New York Giants'—may mean nothing in the world series if these teams meet in the fall classic.

For evidence, you have the case of Henry Greenberg vs. William Terry. Even the boys who dislike Memphis Bill Terry will admit that he is one of the best first basemen in the recent history of the game. His record this year is indisputable. He has been in the fight for the National League batting crown all year with a mark of around .351, and in the field he has been just as calm and reliable as the Brooklyn Bridge.

Though Greenberg is batting approximately 15 points below Terry, he has driven in about 42 more runs. Greenberg's hitting has been so vicious when the Detroits were in the tightest spots, that the big Jewish boy cannot be rated below anyone—not even Terry.

Terry Better Afield.

In the field, Terry clearly has the advantage. He is the cool, methodical campaigner, the perfect first baseman. Greenberg is still complaining about the length of his legs. They get in his way, but he has a big stick, and there's no way to field a home run.

It would be a good story to write that Hughie Critz, idol of all the kids in Cincinnati, will be the standout second baseman in the series. Unfortunately, he is not likely to be, for there is Charley Gehringer to compare him with, and Gehringer, a graduate from Toronto Maple Leafs is so clearly the best second baseman in the business today, that you can't mention little Hughie in the same breath, eveh for sentimental reasons.

Charley's batting average of .358 is 115 points higher than Hughie's, and Charley's arm is stronger.

Shortstops Best.

At shortstop are two of the finest players in the game to-day. Bill Rogell of the Tigers and Captain Travis Jackson of the Giants, Jackson could have the strongest arm in the game and still not be anything like the player he has been this year. He has what is respectably known as "heart."

One of the greatest money players in the game, he is batting only .283, yet he is driving in more runs than Rogell, who has been around the .300 mark all season.

Fortunately for the Giants, a baseball team can be stronger than its weakest link. Bill Terry would not be making world series plans to-day if his pitching staff were no stronger than his third basemen. When a manager uses one player and then another at one position, you can generally be sure that that position is one of the weakest on his team.

So it is at third base for the Giants, where Terry is waving between Blondy Ryan and Johnny Vergez. Vergez was good enough to play the hot corner most of the year, but he has slumped at bat so miserably (batting average, .197) that Terry had to put Ryan in his place. Ryan is the Giants' luck piece.

All this is one way of saying that the Tigers are better fortified at third base with youthful Marvin Owen. Manager Mickey Cochrane tried to get Pinkey Higgins from the Athletics to play third base, but Connie Mack wouldn't let him go, and Owen had to be used. Cochrane is glad to-day that the Higgins deal fell through.

"GOSSIP AND SUCH"

IF JIMMY McLARNIN does give Barney Ross that second chance at the world's welterweight title, an opportunity so many believe he should give the Chicago scrapper—it would be our early prediction that Master Ross would win.

This belief is based on the fact that Barney gets better against McLarnin each time they fight. By the time they meet for a third encounter Barney should be good to win so decisively that there can be no question of the outcome.

Strangely enough, though Barney showed improvement in the second McLarnin fight over the first clash between the two—Barney got credit for winning the first and lost the decision in the second.

These verdicts, of course, were only the total judgment of three people out of many thousands who saw the fight. But each time the three people were two judges and a referee.

As this is to be no argument over the value of the present system of judging victors in fights in which no knockout or disqualification takes place, we'll let that ride and get back to the point.

Barney fought a smarter fight the other night than he did in the early summer against Jimmy. He fought McLarnin, using Jimmy's style as well as his own, and did it successfully—the second time. He was just Barney Ross fighting in Ross fashion the first time and, say many experts who sat at the ringside during that bout, if McLarnin had stuck to his own knitting in that first scrap he might have won easily.

Ross is constantly improving. McLarnin is past his peak. However, even though he may be certain that Ross will defeat him in a third encounter, McLarnin should postpone his prospective retirement to give Ross another date. And that before the year is out. Ross gave him a chance to get the crown back, so it would only be a sporting gesture on the part of the sporting little fighter, Jimmy McLarnin.

Made from certain by-products of coal, bakelite being tested in England for making automobile bodies is said to be stronger than a metal body, lighter than one of aluminum and impervious to fire.

SPORTS VETERAN DIES IN CAPITAL

Peter Greene, Former Ottawa Coach, Passes After Brief Illness.

WIDELY KNOWN.

OTTAWA, Sept. 22 (CP)—Peter Greene, widely known coach of Ottawa hockey, football and lacrosse teams and one of the stars of the Capital team of 1890, died in hospital here early to-day after a brief illness. He was 66 years of age.

Born in Montreal, "Petie," as he was familiary known, was brought to Ottawa to play lacrosse with the Capitals in 1890 and later played for and coached Ottawa teams in other lines of sport.

In 1900 he led the Ottawa Rough Riders football team and the Ottawa hockey team to Dominion championships. In 1905 he was closely identified with the famous Ottawa Silver Seven, of hockey fame, when the team defeated the Kenora team to win the Stanley Cup in Ottawa and remained with the team for three years.

In 1920 he was coach of the Ottawa Senators when they carried off the Stanley Cup, and repeated in the following year. Losing out in 1922 they came back under his coaching to take the cup again in 1923. He was largely instrumental in developing the "kitty-bar-the-door" tactics in professional hockey, which his teams used with such great effect, although the system brought much criticism from the public of other cities.

Developed Clancy

Among the famous players Petie Greene developed were Frank "King" Clancy, George Boucher, Eddie Gerard, Clint Benedict, Jack Darragh, and Hamby Shore.

Speaking of him to-day "King" Clancy said:

"Petie Green took me from the City League here in 1920. Any success that I later made of the game was largely due to his coaching in those first seasons with the Ottawas. He was a man of dynamic energy and had the faculty of getting the best out of every player without appearing to drive the team. Many other players of to-day will agree with me when I say that he was 'one of the best.' I am deeply grieved to hear of his death."

His wife predeceased him many years ago. He had no children. The funeral will be held Monday to Notre Dame Cemetery.

CHAPTER 46

But Joan did worry. She had so much and Drew had so little. With all her generous soul she wanted to help him, and to do it without hurting his pride. She thought a great deal about it, and one night when he came into her sitting room, moody and unlike himself and stood staring out of the window, she tucked her arm in his, "Don't you like me?"

He repeated his lover's formula, "I love you," but he did not turn to her.

She leaned her cheek against his coat, "What has happened?"

"Oh, a lot of beastly luck."

"Bridge again?"

"Yes. And other things."

"Yes. And other things."

She stood opening and shutting her fan, "If you'll only let me help."

"No. I'm not dependent on your check book—yet."

His tone was sharp and stung her. She gave him a startled look: "Are you feeling that way about it, Drew?"

"Yes. A man should give, not take."

"No," she said, quietly, "not if a woman loves him. My dearest dear, when we are married you shall be the head of the house . . . its master. You know that . . ."

He put his arm about her shoulders, and they stood there together, gazing out, "You're too good for me, Joan," he said, at last.

"No. Oh, Drew, don't let my money come between us . . . you break my heart . . ." She clung to him, tears on her cheeks.

"It isn't that. But I'm a weak fellow with a lot of faults. And some day you'll find me out—and hate me ——"

"Never that," she shivered a little, although the room was hot.

The Carters dined with them that night. Rose asked towards the end of dinner, "What about the bullfight? Can't we make up a party?"

"We might," Drew said, "if it wasn't for Joan. I've been trying to make her think she can go. But she won't hear of it."

"I'd hate seeing the poor beasts," Joan explained.

"You'd forget that," Rose said. "It's a rather gorgeous show."

Joan shook her head, "I'll stay at home, the rest of you can do as you please."

"Drew will do as you please," Rose said, with a touch of venom, "he is quite tied to your apron strings."

"No, he's not," Joan smiled with undisturbed serenity, as she waved her lovely fan to and fro.

Mrs. Carter asked, "Joan, where did you get that fan? It's exquisite."

"Isn't it?" Joan told of its purchase, and Drew added, "This extravagant child paid a fortune for it. There are real pearls in the design."

Rose was critical. "You don't know how to use it, Joan. Not in the Spanish manner. Let me show you." She reached across the table and took the fan from Joan, shook it open with a flourish, and held it before her face, her eyes challenging Drew above it.

Joan had watched her smilingly, but now her smile faded, for it seemed to her that Drew accepted the challenge of Rose's eyes! She did not want to believe it, but there it was, Rose bold and bewitching . . . Drew held by the boldness . . . Bewitched by that flashing glance.

She chided herself for caring. But she did care. She wanted Drew's eyes for her . . . not for other women. Perhaps it was silly . . . in Drew's world men paid court to charming femininity wherever they found it . . . married or single, the game went on. She wondered if when she was married she could stand it to have Drew playing the game?

She told herself that she was not really afraid of Rose. Drew treated her for the most part with a sort of easy tolerance. She amused and flattered him.

She was of his world—and that world was not Joan's. More and more she was aware of it. In spite of her love for Drew, she found herself wondering what her life would be with him. Their standards were utterly different.

She was to him adorable, but a bit mid-Victorian. "It adds to your charm, my sweet, and I wouldn't have you like the others."

Yet he did not take her seriously. Her ideals were, he felt, commendable, but not practical. His plans for their future had an Arabian Nights atmosphere—the old house in Baltimore was to be done over—"Not that we'll be in it a great deal—we'll keep it as headquarters." There would be winters in the south of France, and in Florida, summers at Deauville or Bar Harbor spring in the Carolinas, autumn at the Virginia Springs—hunting, motoring, flying—these were all a part of his exciting program. "We'll make life a corking adventure, Joan."

And set beside this she would dwell now and then on the things Giles Armiger had said in his letter—I want something for you which he cannot give . . . Was it true? Couldn't Drew give her all that she craved? Wouldn't he, after they were married?

She brought herself back now to the matter of the bullfight, which Rose and Drew were still discussing. "Please don't let me keep you away."

"Drew won't go if you don't," Rose said, "so that settles it."

She still held Joan's fan, but as she handed it back, "Some day I am going to steal it."

Joan found herself saying unexpectedly, "Why should I tempt you to do that? You can have it now, Rose."

They all stared at her, and Rose said, "Of course you don't mean that."

"I do. Really." Her tone was light, "Some day I'll find another for myself."

"Little Lady Midas," said Rose slowly, "how wonderful to be rich!"

Mrs. Carter expostulated, "Rose mustn't take it."

"Oh, yes, she must," Joan insisted. "Please, it seems so perfectly to suit you."

Afterwards she wondered why she had done it. It was a lovely thing and she had liked it. And it had been rather bad taste to thrust upon Rose such an expensive present. Yet Rose had seemed to have no hesitancy in accepting it. And anyhow the thing was done and she might as well stop thinking about it.

On the following Sunday she sent Drew away with Rose and the others to the bullfight: "I think you are all a bit bloodthirsty."

And Rose said, impudently, "You'd better envy us our good red blood. We haven't milk in our veins."

Joan's cheeks flamed, but she said nothing. She was conscious that she had been a bit upstage in sending Rose off with Drew. She had wanted to prove to herself—what? That she could trust him? She must trust Drew or her world would fall.

Yet while they were gone, she was restless. Why hadn't she braved it out and gone with them? She could have shut her eyes when the horses were hored, or when the poor bulls were tormented and tortured. And hadn't she red blood? As red as Rose's? Or Drew's? Or Nancy's? Or old Mrs. Carter's? One could have courage while hating cruelty.

She went off finally for a ride with Farley, and because of tire trouble was late in getting back. She had promised to have tea with Drew and the rest of them, so telephoned that she was delayed, that they were not to wait and she would join them at their table.

When she came in, therefore, she found the room crowded with tables, and many couples dancing in the cleared circle in the center. Everybody had been to the bullfight, and there were gathered together people of all nationalities—a brilliant and cosmopolitan group. A tango was being played, and Joan stopped for a moment to watch the slow and graceful measure. And suddenly as she watched, she was swept by a feeling of loneliness and detachment. What had she to do with this mad world, this restless crowd? She thought of other Sunday afternoons, quiet ones in churches . . . when a child with her mother . . . later when she had gone alone . . . and not so long ago when she and Penelope had walked through the woods . . .

She thought of the children she had taught before she lived with Aunt Adelaide . . . Oranges and lemons, said the bells of St. Clemens . . . you owe me five farthings, said the bells of St. Martin's . . . She thought of little John Briggs and of his sister, Priscilla, she thought of old John Alden . . .

Oh, the wind in the pines, the sound of the sea . . . ! Loneliness? Yes. But she was lonely here . . . in the midst of a multitude.

And now as she looked, she saw Drew and Rose swinging and swaying among the others. Rose was a beautiful dancer, exotic in her methods, yet with a touch of reticence which saved her from over-exuberance. She wore a shawl of lacquer-red crepe, a shining Spanish sailor hat, and she carried the fan that Joan had given her. The fan was utterly out of place with an afternoon costume, but Rose made it seem in place. Letting it for the most part swing loose from her wrist, she now and then swept it open in time to the music and gradually it seemed to Joan that the play of the fan had a meaning, as if Rose while she talked and laughed and danced with Drew was weaving a spell. The idea was fantastic, of course, but Joan was glad when the dance was over, and Drew joined her.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, September 23

Sunday's horoscope holds auguries of many pleasant and diverting activities with possibly short journeys, visiting and some novel recreations. These, however, may prove detrimental to those in employment; and all are enjoined to prudence and discretion in their pursuit of social or romantic pleasures.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is have the presage of a year in which the tendencies may be diverted from employment to the pursuit of personal pleasure or indulgences in social, romantic or other allurements rather than business. In these there is omen of folly, loss, regret or contention, unless restraint and prudence be exerted.

A child born on this day may be disposed toward the superficial and pleasant indulgences of life rather than to serious occupation, unless it be given early and intelligent direction in usefulness and responsibility.

For Monday, September 24.

Monday's astrological forecast is a propitious one, with signs of great initiative, enterprise and practical attack on affairs in hand, especially as to new plans and projects following a period of restraint, congestion and frustration. It is a time for boldly, energetically and constructively engineering these new deals, with intelligence, determination and perseverance.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of fine initiative, resourcefulness and energy applied to new undertakings after a baffling period of stagnation and impediment. All should be vigorously attacked along constructive lines, but be alert to fraud or misrepresentation, especially in documents or writings. Change would be of benefit. The mind will be found able to cope with current difficulties.

A child born on this day should be splendidly endowed with energy, courage, constructive ability and should have a splendid mind to attack important ventures in life, albeit leaning to craft and expediency.

Increased production of high grade steel is the most pronounced effect of Germany's efforts to revive trade and industry.

Buffalo Man Held For Cargill Holdup

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 22. — (C. P.). —John J. Swick, 30, of this city, was in jail here to-day waiting action of Canadian authorities investigating a hold-up at the Royal Bank at Cargill, Ont., on August 14, this year.

Swick, arrested last night, came to this city from Canada in 1927 and has been employed as a mechanic in the office of the United States engineers.

Police said they have a confession in the holdup which netted five men $2,200.

Two other men, Frank Adamczeyk, 21, and Anthony Diebold, 31, both of Buffalo, are in jail pending extradition to Canada to face charges in the holdup.

They were arrested shortly after the crime.

A LIFE SAVER

GORRIE, Ont., Sept. 22.—(CP)—Charles Day owes his remarkable escape from seriousinjuries after a 21-foot drop into Aylius Plants well to the fact that Mr. Plantz, down at the bottom of the well, broke his fall. The two men were deepening the shaft, Day lost his footing and fell. His scream warned Plantz who broke the force of the drop.

STAMP CORNER

By M. A. BESSEY

1935 CATALOGUES.

The new Scott catalogue is now on the market, and this signifies that the season for stamp collecting will get under way in a more enthusiastic manner. At least that is what it usually means, but this year brings to light so many changes in price that it is liable to mean anything.

It should be well worthwhile to devote some space to a discussion of the radical changes which appear scattered through the volume.

To begin with, let us quote you the actual selling prices of the Scott Stamp and Coin Co., publishers of the catalogue.

No discounts allowed on purchases of less than $1.00.

On all United States stamps and all current and recent issues of all foreign countries, 10 per cent. discount on purchases of $1.00 to $100.00

On all other stamps of foreign countries a discount of 25 per cent. is allowed on all purchases of $1.00 to $100.00.

For many years past, collectors have bought this catalogue and used it as a guide by which they could correctly classify and mount their stamps. Further, it has been their guide as to the prices they should pay when buying from other dealers.

The actual retail price of many stamps has been set at a discount of 50 per cent. of catalogue value, by the majority of stamp dealers. In other words they have been undercutting the net price of Scott Stamp Co. This 50 per cent. discount, is not to be considered a hard and fast rate. Many stamps sell at 75 per cent. discount, just as many others sell at 75 per cent., 25 per cent., 10 per cent., full catalogue value, and even more. The price of a stamp depends entirely upon its rarity and desirability, and just how badly a collector wants it.

Supposing you write to Scotts for a certain stamp that catalogues, say 25c, but Scotts have sold out that stamp and cannot supply it. You then write to another dealer, who writes that he can supply it at 50c. You immediately write back and tell him he is crazy, that the stamp only catalogues at 25c, so how can he ask 50c for it? But Scotts cannot supply the stamp at 25c, their price for it; in which case what right has any one to quote the price of another dealer who cannot supply the stamps at the prices quoted. The dealer who has those stamps, is quite justified in asking any price within a reasonable amount of his cost. They may have cost him 35c to buy them, and he is certainly entitled to a profit on his investment the same as any other type of seller.

It is quite possible that in the next catalogue issued, the same stamp may be quoted at $1.00 or $2.00, in which case you wouldn't kick at paying 50c for it. But by that time, this other dealer has held the stamps so long, that he feels he is entitled to a higher percentage of profit on his initial investment, and up go his prices, too. In the long run, you will find it does not pay to haggle over catalogue prices. If you are buying from a reputable dealer, you may rest assured he knows what he is doing and sooner or later you will undoubtedly find that your purchases were wise, irrespective of catalogue values.

Be Beautiful

"Dear Miss Glad: My skin has become somewhat darkened during the summer months and I'd like to bleach it. It's also quite oily. I've heard that Fuller's earth packs are helpful in bleaching the skin and correcting oiliness. Is this true? And if so, how does one administer a Fuller's earth pack?
ROSA."

Fuller's earth packs do indeed help to bleach the skin and correct its excessive oiliness. The procedure is very simple. Enough lemon juice should be added to half a cup of Fuller's earth to form a thick, smooth paste. The skin should then be thoroughly cleansed, a bit of cream applied around the eyes and mouth, and the paste smoothed generously over the skin surface. Allow the paste to remain on the face until it has thoroughly dried. Then remove it with tepid water and a soft cloth. And if the pack proves a bit too drying for your skin, apply a bit of cold cream or nutrient cream after its removal.

"Dear Miss Glad: I've been following the reducing course in your 'New Figure' booklet, and have had excellent results. I've lost 29 pounds so far, and look much better. However, although my bust has become smaller and firmer, it still is a bit out of proportion with the rest of my figure. Is it possible to reduce the apparent size of the bust through proper gowning?
VIRGINIA."

It is indeed possible to reduce the apparent size of the bust through proper gowning. In the first place, if you have a large bust, avoid wearing garments that fit the upper part of your body tightly. They will only accentuate the fullness of your bust. Also, forego wide, frilly collars and jabots, as they will make your figure appear top-heavy. Dresses with low V or oval necklines, jacket frocks, and costumes with pointed or oval vestees of a contrasting color, will all help to reduce the apparent size of your bust.

"Dear Miss Glad: I have a downy growth of superfluous hair on my face, and contemplate using the peroxide and ammonia solution to bleach it. Do you think it more advisable that this solution be used on the entire face, or on the hairy areas only?
PUZZLED."

I personally think it more advisable to apply the peroxide and ammonia solution to the hairy areas only, rather than to the entire face. This solution, however, bleaches not only the hair, but the skin as well. Consequently, in order that there be no noticeable line of demarcation, the entire skin surface should be moistened at the same time with a milder solution of peroxide. However, you should always apply a bit of cold cream or vaseline to your eyebrows and eyelashes before using such bleaches on your face. Otherwise, these hairs will also become bleached. And light eyebrows and eyelashes generally are most unattractive.

Chinese Troopers Get "Taken For Ride"

Dropped 20 Miles From Town To Cure Free Bus-Riding Habit.

CANTON, China, Sept. 22 (C.P.). —The practice of the Dwangtung troops stationed in and around Canton of riding on the public buses without paying fares has been stopped by the military authorities in a novel, yet effective manner.

The soldiers have long been in the habit of boarding busses and refusing to pay fares. The number of free rides had increased to approximately 2,000 daily, according to officials of the bus company in their complaint to the military authorities.

The military authorities established patrols of armed men who arrested on sight any soldier found trying to force his way into a bus, or refusing to pay his fare. The offenders were then loaded into trucks, taken about 20 miles from their barracks, made to dismount and then informed that they must walk back.

Altogether more than 500 soldiers were "taken for a ride" in this manner, with the result that free rides on the busses are rapidly diminishing.

GETTING BACK to Woodbine we have it on good authority that Candy Feast the good Seagram performer is receiving a special prep. for the Dominion Stakes which will be decided on Monday. His latest workout was a full mile in 1.46 and he was never extended at any stage of the journey. It is also reported that Jockey Nick Wall, the Seagram contract rider has sufficiently recovered from his injuries that he will be able to accept the mount on this one.

EXTRA TRAINS FOR GOLD FIELD

C.N.R. Forced to Increase Service as Miners Flock to Sturgeon River.

PLANES CARRY FOOD.

JELLICOE, Ont., Sept. 22 (CP)—Those who answer the cry of gold flocked into Northern Ontario today, where claims in an area 25 miles long and 10 miles wide have been staked along the Sturgeon River. Veterans of the gold trails and youths on their first dash for the mineral joined in the trek that led them northward from Lake Superior into the Lake Nipigon Country.

"Greatest since the Trail of '98, the rush has brought extra trains into service from Port Arthur, a city which is feeling prosperity's return as the gold seekers converge to outfit themselves for the march into the north. An improved train service between Port Arthur and Long Lac has been decided upon by the Canadian National Railways to accommodate the prospectors.

An exclusive passenger train will connect with the main line three days a week, starting at the beginning of next month. Poor connections have been experienced as mixed trains carried the men into the gold zone.

Veterans recalled the heart-breaking tramps of the Yukon when the earoplane took its place in the rush. Supplies for the yellow-metal seekers, living in tents in the wild, rugged country that is dotted with lakes, are being carried in by planes. The planes hop off from this little base of the Canadian National Railways with food for the men who wield the gold picks.

From Jellicoe a corduroy road will wind its way shortly to the scenes of activity. Over this road supplies and machinery will be carried to the gold strike, started when Ross Barnum and Jack Green struck the valuable mineral near the Sturgeon River, northwest of here.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK — By R. J. Scott

REV. PATERSON REAL BOOSTER OF THIS CITY

While on Trip in England Spent Few Days in Peterborough.

DESCRIBES OUR CITY.

Preached in All Saints' Church and the Cathedral.

PETERBOROUGH, England, Aug. 28.—Peterborough, Ontario, does not take its name from Paeda's City by the Nene—it was "christened" 120 years ago by a pioneer in the Dominion, one Peter Robinson, who set up a saw mill and established a settlement on the banks of the Otonabee River. And today, the rapids that drove Peter Robinson's water-wheel drive mighty turbines for the generation of electricity.

For the above we have the excellent authority of the Rev. James Douglas Paterson, Rector of All Saints' Church, Peterborough, Ontario, who is now spending a holiday in this country, and who on Sunday preached at All Saints' Church in the morning and at the Minster in the evening. He arrived in Peterborough on Saturday evening and stayed the week-end at Laurel Court, as the guest of the Dean and Mrs. Simpson.

The Dean's Invitation

Interviewed by a "Citizen" representative, he said that his visit to Peterborough was the result of a long-standing invitation from the Dean.

Five years ago, at the consecration of Mr. Paterson's present church, the Dean and congregation of the Cathedral sent a message of greeting, and the Dean, in his letter, asked to be acquainted if Mr. Paterson came to Britain. Upon learning that Mr. Paterson had arrived, the Dean very promptly invited him to preach at the Minster, an invitation which was gladly accepted.

A Previous Visit.

This was not Mr. Paterson's first visit to Peterborough. Seven years ago, he and his uncle, who is now the Bishop of South Japan, thought Peterborough a most inhospitable place, as they could not get a bed here, every hotel being full! On that occasion they were only desirous of staying the night, but had to drive on to York before they could find accommodation.

A Scot, and very proud of it, born at Castle Douglas, Kirkcudbrightshire, the Rev. J. D. Paterson was educated at Edinburgh University and shortly after leaving the University he went to Canada. His theological training was taken at Wycliffe College in the University of Toronto, and he was ordained deacon in 1914, and priest the following year. He has held various livings in Canada, and prior to his appointment as Rector of All Saints', Peterborough, in 1924, he was for six years an assistant priest at the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, Toronto.

His church of All Saints' is in the factory district of Peterborough, but that does not mean that it is in drab surroundings, for it is no distance from the open country and the houses of the workers are very pleasantly situated. The roads and streets all have grass verges with trees, and each house stands well back from the pavement, usually with a large lawn in front. Most of the working men own their own homes, indeed several build for themselves, a usual style being a timber building with brick veneer.

A Flourishing City

Peterborough, Ontario, is now a very flourishing city, with a population of about 25,000. It is a great tourist center, being favorable situated in the lakeland, and serves a wide agricultural district.

Mr. Paterson told us that the whole history of the city is bound up with the rapids which, harnessed to an up-to-date generating plant, provide unlimited electrical energy at a very low cost.

The result is that within the last twenty or thirty years some of the Dominion's largest manufacturing concerns have come to Peterborough.

Canadian General Electric, which is affiliated to the General Electrical Company of Great Britain, has a large plant there for the manufacture of electrical equipment, especially generators. It was in these works that the generating plant for the Niagara Falls power station was made, and at present plant is being made for the great Beauharnois electrical power scheme.

Quaker Oats also have a very large factory at Peterborough, while the city also has the distinction of possessing the only alarm clock factory in the British Empire! This is the Westclox Factory, who manufacture "Big Bens" and "Baby Bens," and have originated a new alarm clock which ticks silently through the night, and at the appointed time begins a gentle whisper before bursting forth into a vigorous alarm should the first gentle intimation pass unnoticed.

Canadian Woollens are another big concern with large mills in Peterborough, while the Canadian Packing Co. have extensive abattoirs and factories for the handling of pork, much of which is exported to this country.

The above are only a few of the industrial activities of the city.

An Engineering Marvel

A piece of engineering that would interest many of our Peterborough citizens is the lift lock which has been installed on the river to take vessels beyond the rapids. A steamer is lifted 65 feet in about a minute, says Mr. Paterson, a regular occupation of small boys is to watch a vessel enter the lock and then see if they can run up the steps and still be on a level with it when the lift has stopped. So far the lock machinery has always won!

The city is administered by a Mayor and Corporation, the present Mayor being Mr. Denne, a grain merchant. There are four churches of the Church of England, All Saints' being the newest, and incidentally, the largest. The city is in Peterborough County which has its own representative in the Federal and Provincial Houses. Peterborough has several flourishing societies, among them being the Independent Order of the Daughters of the Empire, a nationalistic organization of women for civic welfare, which perpetuates the name of the humble founder of the city in the Peter Robinson Chapter.

Reinstated?

PROF. J. KING GORDON

who may be reinstated as professor of the chair of Christian ethics at the United Church Theological college, Montreal, following a resolution of the general council to that effect. The son of Ralph Connor (Rev. C. W. Gordon), noted Canadian author, was dismissed last year on the grounds of economy. His outspoken utterances on many subjects aroused opposition among fellow-churchmen.

ELECTION DRIVE

meetings in all five ridings, Mr. King predicted victory was "certain" for his party in three of the by-elections. It was "probable," he said, Liberal candidates would win four of the seats and "possible" they could capture all five. Liberals won Kenora-Rainy River and Elgin West in the 1930 elections.

Should his party sweep the by-elections, Mr. King has declared Prime Minister R. B. Bennett would have no right to hold another session of Parliament without first holding a general election. Nevertheless it has been stated outright the government has no intention of going to the people until after the next session.

Mr. Stevens, never very far in his speeches from the subject of his Royal Commission investigations in mass buying and price spreads, forecast remedial legislation at the next session and staunchly defended the Ottawa Empire Trade agreements of 1932. He asserted Canada leads the nations of the world on the road to prosperity because Empire markets were opened.

Ontario's Liberal Premier, Mitchell F. Hepburn, took part in the campaign and so did Hon. R. J. Manion, Federal Minister of Railways and Canals.

In all constituencies except Kenora-Rainy River, voting will open Monday at 8 a.m., E.S.T., and close at 6 p.m., E.S.T. In the northwest riding, the polls open at 9 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. E.S.T.

THE FINAL THRILL

CHATHAM, Ont., Sept. 22. (CP). Stricken with heart trouble while riding on a thriller at a carnival here, Mrs. George Beresford, 56, Chatham, is dead to-day. Mrs. Beresford died in a taxi while being rushed to the hospital. The coroner said no inquest would be held.

LONDON.—Attacked by six men, a Fascist agitator, was seriously injured at Chelsea. Another "blackshirt who came to his aid, was knocked senseless.

LINDSAY WATER GIVING TROUBLE

Flow is Sufficient But Analysis Shows it Unfit for Consumption.

C. WAGSTAFF PASSES.

LINDSAY, Sept. 22. —(Examiner Correspondence.)—Death came with tragic suddenness yesterday morning to a well known local resident in the person of Charles Wagstaff, proprietotr of the Wagstaff Brick Plant, South Ops. The deceased, who was in his fifty-ninth year, was a son of John Wagstaff, the well known brick manufacturer. He purchased the brick plant of the late S. J. Fox, former M.L.A. for South Victoria, in 1912, and operated it until the time of his death. His wife predeceased him about two years ago. He is survived by three sons and two daughters.

The well recently sunk by the Roberts Drilling Company of Brantford for the purpose of supplying the town with a water supply has proven unsatisfactory. The flow is sufficient to meet the requirements, but the aroma is decidedly offensive. A supply was analyzed and it was declared unfit for consumption. The local Water Board has decided to extend the Roberts contract for one year, and it is hoped sufficient water will be provided in the meantime to meet the requirements of the contract.

CAMPBELLFORD

NEWS ITEMS FOR THE TRENT TOWN DISTRICT

Miss Frances Anderson, R.N., of Toronto, is spending a vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Anderson, Canrobert Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Gooderich, of Warkworth, with Mrs. Ronald MacPherson, of Campbellford, are visiting Mrs. MacPherson's mother, Mrs. Walter Bebee, of Renfrew, and will spend a vacation at the Massinaw Resort.

Mr. Harvey Donald will sing a baritone solo at the evening service on Sunday at St. John's United Church Harvest Festival.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Jacobs and family have removed from Front Street and have taken up residence in the McKeel property, Inkerman Street.

Mrs. Andrew Hay and Mrs. Fred Rutherford were the guests of the former's daughter, Mrs. Joseph Whitehead, Stirling, during the week.

News of the death of Mrs. Martha Harston, which occurred at her home, Woodlawn Avenue, Toronto, on Wednesday, came as a shock to her many friends here. Mrs. Harston was a former resident of Campbellford during the time her son, the Rev. Ernest Harston, was pastor of St. John's United Church.

Mrs. Fred Linton, Mrs. Dr. O. C. Watson, Mrs. J. E. Birks, Miss Joy Riendeau and Mr. Franklyn Linton visited friends in Belleville on Friday.

Mr. C. H. Curtis, Reeve of Percy Township, has been appointed inspector of hotels for the Counties of Frontenac, Lennox, Prince Edward, Hastings, Northumberland, Durham and Victoria.

Obituary

MRS. IRWIN WILLMAN

(Examiner Correspondence)

BONAR LAW, Sept. 22. — The funeral of the late Mrs. Irwin Willman was held from the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Reid Ivanhoe on Thursday, Sept. 18 and was largely attended. The late Mrs. Willman was only 18 years old having only been married 4 months and four day. Deceased was of a very lovable disposition, sterling character and will be sadly missed by a large number of friends. A victim of spinal meningitis she passed away on Sunday morning after a short illness. She leaves to mourn her young husband, 19, her parents Mr. and Mrs. Fred Reid Ivanhoe, two sisters, Mr. Cole Bain of Ivanhoe and May at home. The many floral offerings spoke in high esteem which she was held.

Interment was made in White Lake cemetery.

GEORGE DUNCAN

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 22. (Examiner Correspondence.)—One of the largest funerals seen here in many years took place on Friday afternoon, when the remains of the late George Duncan were laid to rest in Zion Cemetery. The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful, showing the esteem in which the deceased was held. Rev. Harold B. Neal of St. Johns United Church conducted the services at the home and graveside.

POLICE COMMISSIONER

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (A.P.) — Chief Inspector Lewis Valentine today was appointed New York City Police Commissioner to succeed General John F. O'Ryan a few hours after O'Ryan announced his resignation.

LLOYD GEORGE SAYS U.S. ARMY NOT INTENDED TO FIGHT IN 1918

Lacked Equipment, Had to Borrow Guns, Planes to Meet Critical Situation.

CONTRASTS EFFORTS.

(By Thomas T. Champion.
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, September 22. (C.P. Cable.) — The flat charge that even in 1918, the American Army authorities did not intend their forces should take part in the actual conflict, is made in the third volume of the memoirs of David Lloyd George, published to-day.

The "Welsh Wizard," who took command of the British Cabinet late in 1916, and held it until after the war, who has impartially attacked soldiers, sailors and politicians, in the latest volume of his memoirs declares that the late President Woodrow Wilson certainly could not have intended the American army to do any serious fighting in 1918.

He contrasts the British effort with that of the Americans, making due allowance, of course, for the time intervening between the British and the United States declarations of war on Germany, in these terms:

"The British Empire, with a small regular army when war was declared, contrived in six months to send 500,000 men to the battlefields east and west. Most of these at the declaration of war had either received no military training at all, or only training of the most elementary character.

One Division in 12 Months.

"In six months and a bit, the first American division occupied trenches in a quiet sector of the line. Twelve months after the American entry into the war there was only that one divisional unit confronting the enemy.

"Within a year of the British declaration of war she had sent 900,000 men into action. Her casualties numbered 170,000.

"Had it not been for the disaster of March 1918 (the German advance) nobody can tell what Wilson's notion was as to the time when his huge army should start fighting.

"He certainly could not have intended it to take any part in the actual struggle in 1918, for he had not provided the necessary weapons. When his troops were compelled to fight, owing to the critical conditions created by the defection of Russia, and the exhaustion of France, they did so with borrowed guns, for they had few of their own to the end of the war. Aeroplanes and other essential equipment was also lent them.

He continues in this volume, which takes up the thread at the time he succeeded Herbert Asquith in the premiership (December 1916) to lambast soldiers and sailors, and to these targets, adds politicians.

Premiership Opposed

He declares the "Tory" ministers under the Asquith coalition, definitely opposed putting Lloyd George in the Premiership. "When it was first realized it was impending they made hysterical efforts to fend it off. When it became a fact they accepted the prospect of serving under my leadership with bitter reluctance. As to some of them there was no time when they would not have welcomed my resignation."

He has a good word, however for J. H. ("Jimmy") Thomas, now secretary for the Dominions, then a private Labor member of Parliament. Previously to the time of which he writes, Thomas voted against Labor joining the Asquith coalition, but on this occasion he made the change in his attitude more significant and honorable," adds, Lloyd George, "is that he refused to accept high office himself."

Winston Churchill enters here. The Tory leaders (excepting Balfour and Curzon) opposed Churchill's inclusion in the war cabinet, much as Lloyd George himself would have welcomed it, he writes. The Canadian, Andrew Bonar Law, in particular, had "profound distrust" of Churchill. When Lloyd George advanced the argument that Churchill would be more dangerous as a critic than as a member of the Government, Law replied to Lloyd George: "I would rather have him against us every time."

One Tory objection, says Lloyd George, was that Churchill never attracted any affection, in any section, province or town, and despite his dazzling talents he had fewer followers than any prominent man in Britain.

Former Queen's Star Morro Castle Hero

TORONTO, Sept. 22 (C.P.)—A former Queen's university football and hockey player, Dr. J. L. MacDowall of Perth Amboy, N.J., played an important role in the saving of many lives in the Morro Castle disaster, according to the Perth Amboy Evening News.

Dr. MacDowell, who was reared in Kingston and graduated from Queen's University, was at the shore when the Morro Castle burned off Ashbury Park. He boarded the fishing boat, 'Paramount', captained by John Bogan, with whom he recovered about 60 survivors from the ocean. By giving medical aid to the injured he was instrumental in saving many lives.

Dr. MacDowell is a brother of Mrs. W. L. McFarland, Roxborough Drive, past president of the Local Council of women.

TORONTO. — Attorney General A. W. Roebuck speaks on Wednesday in New York before The Herald-Tribune conference on Current Problems. Mr. Roebuck will elaborate on his advocacy of prohibiting payment of ransom money in kidnappings, and also the unification of all police forces in combatting major crimes, especially that of kidnapping. The Attorney General of the United States is also scheduled to speak on similar subjects pertaining to "Changing Standards."

WASHINGTON. — The Capital heard with keen interest to-day a report that President Roosevelt is preparing to announce complete reorganization of NRA, probably this week.

The Washington Post says a new board to handle Blue Eagle policy-making will be composed of Bernard M. Baruch, Dr. Raymond Moley, and other prominent men. Among others mentioned for posts on this board is Gerard Swope, chairman of the Board of General Electric and noted advocate of industrial self-government. The set-up would spell the end of so-called one-man rule of NRA.

WREXHAM, Wales.—The death list in the Gresford Collieries disaster was officially placed to-day at 261, classifying it as one of the worst mine accidents in the history of Wales. Only 15 bodies have been recovered.

KINGSTON.—Fire from an unknown cause completely destroyed the summer home of Oscar F. Cook of this city, situated at Cranberry Lake, about twenty miles from here last night. Mr. and Mrs. Cook were in a boat on the lake leaving for home, when they noticed the house in flames. There had been no fire in the house and the cause of the blaze is a mystery.

SMITHVILLE, Ont.—Sydney Merritt, Jr., and his father were recovering to-day from severe burns suffered yesterday when a barnyard gasoline pump burst into flames as they were filling the tank of an automobile with the engine running.

The stream of gasoline from the pump ignited and splashed young Merritt whose clothing caught fire. The lads' father beat the flames out but was burned in the rescue.

COPPERCLIFFE. — Pertti "Bert" Hakkala, 42, was dead here to-day of scalds suffered Saturday, when he fell into a tank of hot water at the plant of the International Nickel Company here.

Hakkala died yesterday when he failed to rally from immersion in the wtaer of a tank designed to cool metal castings. His job was to pry the castings loose from the molds and drop them into the tank.

BROCKVILLE.—Charged with robbery with violence, Leo Gauvreau, aged 26, of Montreal, was placed under arrest at King's Bridge, ten miles west of here, last night after he had escaped from a car, allegedly stolen in Kingston, which had crashed into another driven by Miss Maud Rydall, Toronto.

BRANTFORD, Ont.—It was learned here to-day that H. A. Dorrance, District Representative of Agriculture for Brant county, is to be transfered to Essex county and will be succeeded here by Prof. J. C. Stockley of the Department of Animal Husbandry, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

New Beer Regulation Gives Police Puzzler

CHATHAM, Ont., Sept. 24 (C.P.). —Introduction of the sale of beer and wine has introduced another problem for the city police. Last February a Chatham man was convicted of an offence under the Liquor control Act. His permit was cancelled for a year. Recently he has been purchasing beer at the local warehouse, since no permit is required for such purchase.

The question is can a man whose permit was cancelled for a definite time be allowed to purchase beer, under the new regulations. The police have seized four cases of beer discovered in the man's possession. Authorities at the beer warehouse are not blamed for selling the beer as they were not notified that the man's former license had been cancelled.

Australian State To Ask Separation

FREEMANTLE, Australia, Sept. 24 (C.P. Cable via Reuter's). — A delegation of four sailed to-day for England, carrying the petition of the State of Western Australia for separation from the Commonwealth.

The petition is in the form of an address to the King and the House of Lords and House of Commons, authorized by the State Parliament, which follows the special plebiscite of last year when the people voted by a majority of about two to one in favor of secession from the Commonwealth.

The Commonwealth is vigorously opposed to the move and claims Western Australia's method of pressing for secession is unconstitutional.

Men Were Returning Home After Attending Church Parade.

Three sergeants of the Northumberland Regiment appeared in the dock before O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning in answer to a series of charges arising out of a fracas following a church parade here yesterday.

They were: Hugh Lawrie, 35, Scotch-Canadian farmer of Cobourg who pleaded guilty to charges of being drunk in charge of a car; having liquor in a place other than a residence; and assaulting a policeofficer; his brother Robert Lawrie, 25, who pleaded guilty to charges of assaulting a police officer and also to being intoxicated; and William Chard, 25, of Havelock, who pleaded guilty to obstructing a police officer.

The Lawrie brothers were remanded for sentence until Thursday morning, while Chard was sentenced to seven days in the County Gaol.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., who prosecuted described the offences to which the trio of "noncoms" pleaded guilty, as having constituted "a menace to the public."

"This is not just a plain case of drunkenness and of resisting arrest Your Worship. These men deliberately set upon Traffic Officer Hornick and pommelled him severely. Robert Lawrie had to be handcuffed."

The offences were committed in North Monaghan Township near Kendry crossing as the militiamen were driving back to Cobourg late yesterday afternoon after having attended a parade of warrant officers and sergeants in the city earlier in the day.

Sort of Celebration

Hugh Larie who wore the general service and victory medal ribbons on his khaki tunic after pleading guilty to the charges told the magistrate, "I guess I can't say very much. It was a regular sort of celebration. We had been called from all over the district to attend a church parade with the regiment here. If it had'nt been for

STATES LIKELY DEPORT MESNER

Extradition Proceedings Then Will Not Be Necessary for Ontario.

HEARING ON FRIDAY.

TORONTO, Sept. 24.—(CP)—David Meisner, held in Detroit as a suspect in the Labatt kidnapping case, may be deported from the United States, and thus circumvent the necessity of extradition proceedings, Clifford R. Magone, extradition solicitor of the Attorney General's department indicated today.

"The U. S. immigration authorities may determine to deport Meisner," said Mr. Magone. "But any action they take in this regard will be at their own instigation. We have nothing to do with deportation."

At the same time, Mr. Magone announced that extradition proceeding will commence at Queen's Park probably on Friday when evidence for a prima facie case against Meisner will be taken. Major-General V. A. S. Williams, Commisioner of Provincial Police, and a police magistrate for the province has been named the magistrate before whom the evidence will be taken. It will be in camera.

As to the witnesses, Mr. Magone could not disclose who they will be but he admitted that John S. Labatt, London brewer, will testify as to the offence, and several others will testify as to identification. Mr Labatt is also expected to say whether Meisner was a member of the gang.

TWO OLD POLITICAL PARTIES SOLD OUT TO LIQUOR INTERESTS DECLARES REV. DR. JOHN COBURN

United Church Leader Preaches in Trinity Church.

LAY HOLD ON YOUTH

Youth Menaced by Greedy Promoters of Liquor Traffic, Speaker Asserts,

"In the opening of beer saloons we see a move by the brewers and liquor interests to lay hold of the youth of this province. . . .

"I am neither a Grit nor a Tory. I couldn't be in this province, because the fact remains that in Ontario, both political parties have absolutely sold out to the liquor interests. . . .

"If you or I make a practice of handing out liquor at social functions in our own home, there is one thing according to the law of averages, that we may be sure of, and that is, that within the portals of our homes, some young men or women will take the first drink in a career that will end in ruin. . . ."

The Rev. John Coburn, B.D., who is one of the secretaries of the Department of Social Service and Evangelization in the United Church, and who also represents the Ontario Temperance Federation, with head offices in Toronto, discussed the temperance question at the morning service yesterday in Trinity United Church.

He chose his text from a portion of the fourth verse of the fourth chapter of the General Epistle of James: "Know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God. Whosoever, therefore, will be a friend of the world is an enemy of God," or, as the Revised Version puts it: "Whosoever,

Extra Pep

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 24 (CP) — Unusually high kicks and queer antics on the part of the "ladies of the ensemble" caused Harry Hirsch, manager of a burlesque house, to investigate.

Five young men were shooting staples from rubber bands at the chorines. The five went to the city jail.

No Dividends

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 24 (CP) —A robber leaped into the automobile of Lee Asbury, insurance agent, and demanded Asbury's money. A previous victim, the holdup man explained had given him $50 and received a 10 per cent return.

Asbury gave him $4. The bandit scowled and jumped from the car, declaring no dividend.

CLAIM CAPTAIN FEARED ALAGNA

Warms Testifies He Thought Operator Might Hurl Acid in Skipper's Face.

KEPT DOOR LOCKED.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24. --(A.P.)—Testimony that he feared George I. Alagna, assistant radio operator on the burned liner Moro Castle would throw acid in the face of Captain Robertt Willmott was given to-day by William F. Warms, acting Captain of the ship.

Warms, who assumed command of the Morro Castle when Willmott died several hours before the pa'atial pleasure boat was destroyed by fire Sept. 8, was the first witness called at this week's hearing into the disaster by a department of Commerce Board.

Warms testified that the day before the tragedy which cost 132 lives Captain Willmott told him he was vaguely apprehensive.

"Keep an eye on that fellow Alagna," Warms quoted the Captain as saying. "He has two bottles of sulphuric acid. Do you know I keep my door locked."

Warms then declared he feared that Alagna would throw the searing acid in the Captain's face.

A mate took the acid from Alagna, the witness said.

Warms contradicted the testimony given by Alagna, last week that there was disorganization on the bridge of the Morro Castle. He said he had instructed Alagna to send out the S. O. S. at 3:18 a.m. and that the fire on the ship was discovered "just before three o'clock."

Dr. Barron said all the material in the "monument" was from his office and had been worth $900 until plastered together.

BRITAIN BALKS AT FRESH TIES WITH EUROPEANS

Desires Austrian Independence But Refuses to Become Entangled.

FRANCE, ITALY IN LINE.

By George Hambleton (Canadian Press Staff Writer).

GENEVA, Sept. 24 (C.P. Cable).—Britain intends to accept no new commitments in continental Europe. Captain Anthony Eden, British Lord Privy Seal, was present to-day at a conversation between Louis Barthou, French Foreign Minister, and Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy, when the independence of Austria and measures to preserve it were discussed.

But the presence of the Briton, the Canadian Press was authoritatively informed, was not to be taken as an indication that Britain was changing her attitude in regard to Austrian independence.

She believes Austrian independence should be maintained. She considers this essential to the peace of Europe, but she is not going to assume any new obligations.

In the Franco-Italian conversations Britain is a sincere well-wisher, but nothing further.

Before the League Assembly resumed this afternoon the Austrians were casting out lines with a view to securing an undertaking from Britain, France and Italy to guarantee Austria's independence.

But any such undertaking Britain declines to give.

Hit-And-Run Driver Hits Young Child

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 24. — While crossing the street in front of his home on Ranney street on Saturday morning, little Harry Peake, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Peake, was struck down by a hit and run driver sustaining a badly cut head injuries to arms and legs, and severe body bruises, other children who witnessed the accident state that the car did not run over the child, but literally tossed him in the air, his seven year old sister who rushed to his rescue found his shoes on the opposite sidewalk. Dr. C. H. MacNiell was called and rendered first aid. Provincial Constable Gordon Campbell with Chief Constable George Hardy who have a good description of the car are investigating.

ALL OF CANADA WAITS RESULTS FROM ONTARIO

Expected to Show if Tide of Liberalism Runs High, Hesitating, Subsiding.

BRILLIANT CAMPAIGN.

Three Seats Tory Before Vacant, Two Old Conservative Strongholds.

Politicians high and low in all parts of Canada have their eyes focussed on five Ontario constituencies today where voting takes place in federal by-elections. The result is eagerly awaited as it may show whether the tide of Liberalism, evidenced in the recent Ontario and Saskatchewan provincial elections, still runs high, whether it is hesitating or whether it is subsiding.

Because of the significance attaching to the contests the campaigns were vigorously fought. Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, and head of the Mass Buying and Price Spreads inquiry, was the chief speaker for the government and Rt. Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King, Liberal leader made an appeal for the support of his candidates in each of the five ridings.

Three of the seats were Conservative before they became vacant, two of them old Conservative strongholds. The two former Liberal seats became vacant because of the recent Liberal victory in Ontario. Elgin West was formerly represented by the present Ontario Premier, Hon. Mitchell Hepburn, and the resignation of Hon. Peter Heenan to accept a portfolio in the Hepburn government caused the vacancy in Kenora-Rainy River.

Death Left 3 Vacant.

Death is responsible for the other three three by-elections. The late Hon. E. B. Ryckman, former minister of National Revenue in the Bennet Government was the member Addington and York North became vacant through the deaths of Dr. William Spankie and Col. T. H. Lennox respectively, both Conservatives.

Three-cornered fights in two of the five contests add interest to

Should Not Spoil Spike's Good Time

TORONTO, Sept. 24.—(CP)—"I think it is foolish—he's having a good time," commented Attorney General A. W. Roebuck today to the latest outburst of threat letters from "4 X Spike," who now threatens to kidnap Sir Joseph Flavelle and hold him for $4,000,000 ransom, according to a London report.

While Mr. Roebuck declined to say whether he had heard from "Spike," it was officially learned that the Attorney General had received one of "Spike's" foul missives but declared "too much attention is being paid to this man."

"Spike" has already written to Premier Hepburn, the Attorney-General, Mayor Stewart, Crown Attorney Newton at London, Al Rueker, columnist on a local weekly paper and others, the letters being couched in the same obscene language coupled with various kinds of threats.

Flying certificates are held by 300 women in Great Britain.

The Candidates

Candidates in to-day's Federal by-elections:

Toronto East.—T. L. Church, Conservative; H. P. Sneigrove, Liberal; Graham Spry, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

Elgin West.—H. C. Borbridge, Conservative; W. H. Mills, Liberal; R. W. MacDonald, Independent.

York North.—Harold Bruels, Conservative; W. P. Mulock, Liberal.

Kenora-Rainy River.—Joseph Derry, Conservative; H. B. Mckinnon, Liberal.

Frontenac-Addington—W. R. Aylesworth, Consevative; Colin Campbell, Liberal.

WELSH TRAGEDY TAKES 273 LIVES

Series of New Explosions Force Abandonment of Miners' Rescue Efforts.

ALL HOPE GIVEN UP.

WREXHAM, Wales, Sept., 24. (AP)—The bodies of nearly 300 miners were imprisoned half a mile under the ground where their cottages stand to-day as an explosion and fire in the Gresford collieries became one of the worst mine disasters in Wales' history.

The latest estimate placed the death toll at 273. Only a dozen bodies have been recovered.

Rescue efforts, carried on frantically since the original explosion Saturday, were abandoned yesterday when a series of new explosions, fire and deadly fumes endangered the workers.

Officials, "with great reluctance" decided no one was still alive in the workings and ordered the shaft at the top sealed to shut off a flow of dangerous carbon monoxide gas.

The possibility that some of the victims had crawled into secondary seams and were still living was dashed by the latest rescue workers to return to the surface. They said these sections were rapidly becoming filled with flames and the whole mine is now a "raging furnace."

A thorough investigation of the tragedy would be made, Ernest Brown, Minister of Mines, announced.

DISCRIMINATION E CHARGES MADE

Textile Strike Head Claims Southern Employers Not Taking Some Men Back.

TO BE PROBED.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the United States textile strike committee, charged to-day a number of employers were discriminating against active union leaders in the re-employment of textile strikers.

Gorman's charge was issued just after George A. Sloan, chairman of the Cotton Textile Institute had said it would take time for the employers to formulate their policy on the basis of the Winant board report.

"The most serious cases of discrimination," Gorman said, "come from the south and there is strong evidence of a pre-conceived design not to re-employ some of the workers. These cases will be taken up immediately."

Reports from the various textile centres showed compliance with the President's proposal in the larger number of cases, Gorman said.

Ships Scrape Sides In Dark Off Cape Cod

NEW YORK, Sept. 24. —(A. P.) —The Cunard-White Star liner Laconia and the American freighter Pan Royal reported to radio marine corporation to-day that they scraped sides off Cape Cod.

The Pan Royal was cut within two feet of her water line and damaged badly on her port side, her radio reports said, but on one was injured on either ship.

The ships met at 2:30 a.m., (est) in the darkness two miles East of Peaked Hill Gas buoy, a short distance north of the tip of the Cape.

Bull Moose Charges Car For 25 Minutes Finally Carries Away Radiator Screen

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Sept. 24. (CP).—Amie Gravelle, lumber jobber, would like to recover the radiator screen of his automobile but feels grateful the bull moose that stole it did not kill him at the same time.

Gravelle said he and H. Burke were driving into a lumber camp north of here when a moose attacked the car and fought it for 25 minutes, finally crashing away through the bush with the radiator screen stuck to his antlers.

He declared he and Burke were glad the Moose confined its attack to the front of the machine and expressed the belief that if it had attacked the cab both of them would have been killed.

Blocking Traffic

Gravelle said he and Burke were driving about 50 miles from Sault Ste Marie when they noticed the moose standing across the road.

"I blew my horn," he continued, 'and the bull started towards the car in a side-ways walk. I thought I could edge past him but the animal stopped and then started to back away with his head down almost to the ground while

LEADS BRITISH YACHT ALMOST MILE AT FINISH

Sopwith Loses Over Over Five Minutes on Tack in First Leg.

RACE ON TUESDAY.

Both Craft Split Sails—Endeavour Foots Faster Last Half.

BY ANDREW MERKEL
Canadian Press Writer

Aboard U. S. Coastguard Cutter Mendota, Newport, Sept. 24.— (C. P.) —Boiling down to the finish line and coming up fast on the final tack, the British challenger for the America's Cup, T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour, could not overcome a long lead established by the defender, Harold S. Vanderbilt's Rainbow, and lost the fifth face of the series this afternoon.

Rainbow needs only one more victory to retain the cup.

Endeavour was approximately a mile astern as the white-hulled defender swept majestically across the finish line.

Vanderbilt won today's race by superior handling of his boat. Sopwith made a good start but had trouble with his spinnaker and worked out a full mile to westward of the course. Vanderbilt made a bee line for the yacht Winchester, substituting for a marking buoy.

Vanderbilt lost time when a spinnaker borrowed from Yankee, split but took advantage of the accident to jibe over to starboard, necessary in any case.

Shift 5 Minutes Late

Sopwith made the shift too late, loosing in all 5 minutes to the outer mark. Coming on the wind for a thresh to the finish the challenger seemed to do better but faced an impossible task.

The official finish was: Rainbow, 2:34:05; Endeavour, 2:38:06, making the defender's official margin four minutes, one second.

Both yachts immediately agreed to race to-morrow.

C.C.F. Protest Vote Canvassing—Protest

TORONTO, Sept. 24. (CP). Graham Spry, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation candidate in the Toronto east by-election revealed to-day he had appealed to the chief election officer at Ottawa to call the election "null and void". Spry claimed both Conservative and Liberal organizations had broken the law by canvassing votes on election day.

Sprys accusation met with vigorous denial from representatives of Thomas L. Church, Conservative candidate, and Johnston, Ontario organizer for the Liberal party declined to comment on the charge.

Two Die In Ontario Weekend Accidents

ROAD CRASHES BRING INJURIES TO OVER SCORE

Lad 12 is Killed as Train Hits Truck—7 Others Are Hurt.

CARS COLLIDE IN FOG.

Tourist Shot in Leg Duck Hunting — Driver Hits Boy and Flees.

(By the Canadian Press)

A man and a boy were dead today and more than a score suffered from injuries, some serious, as a result of a series of week-end accidents. One death followed an automobile crash, another came when a train hit a truck. Automobiles were responsible for most of the injuries.

Leslie Weisenberg, 22, was fatally injured at Pembroke Saturday when his car skidded and turned over on the wet pavement of the trans-Canada highway.

At Rouyn, Quebec, Gillis Dauphinais, 12, was killed after a Nipissing Central Railway train struck the truck in which he was riding with seven other people. Of the others in the party only his father, Philemon Dauphinais, and Mrs. Norman Lockhead were seriously injured.

Harvey Scott, 21, of Maple Creek, lies in hospital at Cornwall with little hope held out for his recovery. He suffered undetermined head injuries when the automobile in which he was riding collided with a parked truck. Henry Blake, 75-year-old St. Thomas man also suffered head injuries, result of walking into an automobile. He will recover.

The ditching of an automobile near Lucan Saturday night after it rolled from an embankment brought injuries to three Montreal men and a London youth. The injured were: Esdras Chalifoux, 46 (1150 St. Timothy Street); Israel Shereff, 51 (5445 Park Avenue); Al Randolph, 26 (5445 Park Avenue), all of Montreal, and Jerry Bonder, 19, London.

Collide in Fog.

Three Buffalo residents were hurt on the Peace Bridge at Fort Erie, following a crash between two automobiles in a fog. Another Fort Erie accident involved Carl Geist, 20, of Buffalo, who is believed to have received a shotgun wound in his leg while duck-hunting.

At Breslau, near Kitchener, two automobile accidents Saturday sent Marvin Hexamer of Bridgeport to hospital and caused lacerations to Albert Smith of Kitchener. Other victims of district auto mishaps were John Elder of Stratford and four-year-old Marion Zaphs of Kitchener. Neither were seriously hurt.

Eight persons were hurt at Sudbury in a crash between cars driven by Leonard Koivula and Gordon Brown. The two drivers suffered head and face injuries. Mrs. Brown had a broken collarbone and possibly several broken ribs and serious scalp lacerations. In the Koivula car Reino Lahti received a broken jaw. Others were only slightly hurt.

A hit-and-run driver, with a Quebec license, struck four-year-old Glen Carroll and his brother Bobby, 6. Hearing the cries of Glen, who was carried on the front bumper of the car, Lloyd Crossett ran and snatched the lad as he dropped to the pavement.

NEITHER PROTEST FROM SOPWITH IS CONSIDERED

Did Not Hoist Protest Flag Soon Enough U.S. Yacht Experts Rule.

RACE ON TO-DAY.

(By Andrew Merkel, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 24. —(C. P). — Endeavour will move out to the starting line for to-day's race in the America's cup series, with a protest flag in stops in her main rigging.

This is to comply with the race committee's ruling last night that in order to ensure the race being fairly contested, any violation of the rules must be protested forthwith by the injured yacht. Otherwise the ordinary rules of the road at sea do not prevail under New York Yacht Club regulations.

Late last night T. O. M. Sopwith Endeavour's owner and skipper replied to the race committee's letter informing him it was unable to consider his protest of Rainbow's behaviour on two occasions in Saturday's race. He wrote:

"I acknowledge your letter of this evening. I regret to note that your committee refuses to hear Endeavour's protest of yesterday owing to my not having complied with a very trivial technical formality, regarding the time my protest flag was flying."

Early weather forecasts indicated an offshore breeze which would make for a leeward run of 15 miles and a thresh home to the finish line.

Endeavour will give a good account of herself. How she will be handled remains to be seen.

A DANDY CATCH

Fishing from the floating bridge over Chemong Lake yesterday morning Ernest Conners of Bridgenorth hooked and landed a beautiful small-mouthed black bass. He was using a rod and line and worm bait. CAR IS WRECKED TWO INJURED

Toronto Minister and His Wife Injured in Crash Near Fraserville.

WOMAN IN HOSPITAL.

Two persons, Rev. Robert Greenfield and Mrs. Greenfield, 84 Ninth street, New Toronto, were injured early Saturday morning in a motor crash on Highway 28.

Provincial Constable A. E. Hornick, who investigated, stated charges of reckless driving will be brought against Rev. Mr. Greenfield and William Laport, 231 George street, a truck driver, as a result of the crash.

Mrs. Greenfield suffered a broken nose and severe face lacerations, while her husband had a severely bruised kidney. Mrs. Greenfield is in Nicholl's Hospital.

The accident occurred on a hill just south of Fraserville at 2.30 Saturday morning. The Greenfields were driving toward this city, Laport, driving to Peterborough had parked his truck on the highway without a rear light, police allege.

Rev. Mr. Greenfield swerved sharply when almost upon the truck, and skidded across the left side of the road and crashed into a tree. The car was totally demolished, pieces of it hitting 15 feet up in the tree.

LINDBERGH WILL FACE SUSPECT IN KIDNAP CASE

Dr. Condon to be First Witness as Extortion Charge Hearing Opens.

REPORTS FROM GERMANY.

Brother of Man Hauptmann Said He Got Money From Refutes Stories.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Bruno Hauptmann started through the mill of the law to-day toward trial for the Lindbergh kidnapping.

Three sets of machinery—Bronx police court, Bronx grand jury and New Jersey State authority—were put in motion against the former German machine gunner and journeyman carpenter.

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, hastening eastward from the Pacific coast with Mrs. Lindbergh to confront Hauptmann, ordered his plane serviced to resume flight to-day after passing the night at Winslow, Arizona.

The extortion case against Hauptmann came up to-day in police court, and District Attorney Samuel F. Foley said he would be held without bail to await the grand jury action.

The grand jury also was called to-day for presentation of the extortion case.

Among the first witnesses will be Dr. John F. Condon ('Jafsie'), the intermediary who paid the $50,000 ransom, $13,750 of which was found in Hauptmann's possession.

Superintendent H. Norman Schwarzkopf of the New Jersey State police, asserting State authorities have sufficient evidence to warrant the extradition of Hauptmann for trial for the kidnapping, said he would confer with Attorney-General David H. Wilentz to-day on the legal procedure.

"John Doe" murder indictments, arising from the abduction and death of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., are pending in New Jersey. Extradition papers have been signed by Gov. A. Harry Moore, and the Attorney-General said:

"When the proper time comes, application will be made for removal of the defendant to the State of New Jersey."

From Germany came a refutation of Hauptmann's story that the money found in the side wall of his garage had been entrusted to him by a friend, Isadore Fisch.

Paul Fisch, a brother of the friend named, said Isadore returned to Leipzig, Germany, on money borrowed from Hauptmann, and died with scores of bills unpaid.

Deny Fisch Slain.

The possibility that Fisch was slain to silence him, voiced in some quarters, was dispelled by the assertion of Paul Fisch that his brother came home a sick man, and died March 29 1934, of tuberculosis.

Department of Justice agents, seeking to clinch the solution, set out on the trail of another man, whose connection with the case remained a mystery.

At the same time, a woman who said she heard men discussing the Lindbergh kidnapping on the night of March 1, 1932—the night it happened—was held for questioning at Atlantic City, N.J., by Department of Justice men.

Police said they were skeptical of the value of her story, but were leaving no clue unexplored. She was booked as Helen Crest, also known as Helen Frisch.

Working with Mrs. Hauptmann in the defence of her husband is their attorney, James M. Fawcett, who has sent investigators into the field, persisting in his belief that Hauptmann is not "the real culprit."

Colonel Lindbergh is expected to appear before the grand jury on Wednesday, to tell of the kidnapping from his home in Hopewell, N.J., of the ransom note pinned to the crib, of the extortion notes in the same handwriting, of the hopes aroused by the ransom payment—and dashed by the finding of the baby dead near the house. Whether Mrs. Lindbergh will testify remains problematical.

Broker Convicted On Lindsay Charge

LINDSAY, Sept. 24. (By Examiner Correspondent).—At a session of the Police Court, Saturday afternoon, J. P. Sherin, of Toronto, pleaded guilty to the charge of contravention of the Security Frauds Act and also to converting some 1,525 shares of Standard Royalties to his own use. Restitution has been made by Sherin's father and the son was allowed suspended sentence on condition that he return to his wife and son at Port Hope and seek advice from his father.

Drink was put down as the cause of Sherin's trouble. It was the second case of the court where drink was involved and Crown Attorney Anderson scored those who abused the privileges. SNOW BLANKETS PRAIRIE LANDS HITS HARVESTING

Fall is Heaviest in Alberta and Saskatchewan With Sleet in Manitoba.

30 MILE GALE BLOWS.

Communication Lines Maintained With Difficulty—Roads Dangerous.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 24. — Riding winds from the northwest, snow came sweeping out of the north to blanket majority of parts of Western Canada last night, tying up threshing and endangering unhaevested wheat and coarse grains.

Snow was heaviest in Alberta and Saskatchewan, while in Manitoba rain and sleet predominated, although heavy snow was reported frrom some northern points, including the Dauphin area. Temperatures were hovering around 20 degrees above zero.

Communication facilities were affected. Both Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Telegraph reported difficulties in maintaining wires. Roads were slippery, and vehicular traffic was tied up. Railways were operating without losing much time.

Northern Alberta felt the first severe snowfall of the season early Saturday. It spread to other points covering practically all parts of Alberta and then sweeping Saskatchewan. Accompanied by a 30-mile gale, Southern Saskatchewan was given its first blizzard of the approaching winter.

For six hours the storm raged in Southern Saskatchewan; high winds were reported from several parts of Southern Manitoba, but snowfall in the Province was only slight.

Farmers were worried over unthreshed grains and the storm was one factor in boosting wheat prices 1-8 to 1-4 of a cent on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. At the close Saturday, the October future stood at 82 1- 8cents; December at 82 7-8 cents, and May at 87 1-2 cents.

Most of threshing has been completed, but in some areas of all three Western Provinces a large amount of grain is still in the fields.

UNITED STATES' TEXTILE STRIKE COMES TO CLOSE

Looms From Maine to Alabama Sing Again After Three Weeks' Idleness.

14 DEAD, 200 INJURED.

Settlement Also Signals Fight to Unionize Industry 100 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24. (AP). The hum of looms from Maine to Alabama sang the end of the United States textile strike to-day. It also signalled a fight to unionize the industry "one hundred per cent."

"We shall organize all textile workers," said Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers and national leader of the strike.

Union chiefs, who led the three weeks' strike that was marked by death for 14 persons, injuries to about 200 and millions of dollars in losses to both sides, said the membership drive would be particularly intensive in the south.

President Roosevelt, on the basis of a report submitted by his special mediation board, asked that the strike end and workers be taken back without discrimination. The strike leaders accepted Saturday.

No statement has come from the mill operators on Gorman's announcement of a far-flung unionization drive. Nor have they yet expressed their views on the report of the mediation board.

To Name Board of Three

Under the chairmanship of Governor John G. Winant, of New Hampshire, the mediators recommended a board of three to adjudicate collective bargaining disputes, an investigation of wages and conditions, and a second commission to regulate the "stretch-out." Some pronouncement from manufacturers on this report is expected within a day or two.

In the case of some scattered mills, strikers were reported determined to stay out pending the ironing out of local situations. The demobilization of troops called in several states has already begun and is to be completed in a few days.

OBJECTS TO WOMEN UNDULY PRAISING

Well Known Writer Gives Her Views on Ordination of Women.

TORONTO, September 22. — Scoring women who flatter young ministers by saying they wish no change in the ordinances of the church by providing for the admission of women to the ministry, Nellie McClung writes in "Chatelaine": "Women have always flattered men, and no man takes it more greedily than a young minister. The flattery of women is a subtle poison that has hampered and deceived many an able young man and made him think he was growing when he was merely swelling."

Mrs. McClung describes the case of Lydia de Gruchy, B.A., whose ordination the Saskatchewan United Church conference, has approved. It is being brought before the General council of the United Church in Kingston, Ont.: "A young woman was asking for ordination. She had completed her theological course some years before at Saint Andrews in Saskatoon, taking the gold medal in a class of 19. She had already served on two fields with marked success. She could speak French as well as English, play the organ, lead the singing, drive a car, keep house, hold her tongue, and got along with people. She had established Sunday schools on her fields, organized literary societies, reading classes and ladies' aid societies. She was an able speaker, a clever student, and a good pastor. And she was asking to be ordained."

BOAT CAPSIZES KILLING TWO

Maj.-Gen. Leader, Graduate of Trinity College School, R.M.C., Victim on Devon.

WOMAN FRIEND ESCAPES.

INSTOW, North Devon, England, Sept. 24.— (C. P. Cable)— Major-General Henry Peregrine Leader, a native of Detroit, who received his schooling and early military training in Ontario, was drowned yesterday with Colonel W. R. E. Harrison, when the 17-foot yacht in which they were sailing, was sunk in a squall. Mrs. Harrison was rescued by lifeguards.

Members of a lifeboat station, reHarrison sleep, found Mrs. Harrison swimming away from the wreckage, near which floated the bodies of the two men. Bruises and slight injuries on the bodies, authorities said ,indicated the men had been struck by the boat as it capsized after filling with water.

Lifeguards said the men were not dead when picked up from the water, in which they had been floating face downward, but they failed to respond to artificial respiration.

Major-General Leader, son of Lieut. Henry Peregrine Leader of the 22nd Regiment, was born in Detroit in 1865. After attending Trinity College School at Port Hope, Ont., he entered Royal Military College at Kingston. From the time he served through the Boer War with a cavalry division, under Sir John French, until he retired in 1920. Major-General Leader had a colorful military career. Until the end of the war he was in command of the First Scottish Horse, and also served with the forces in India. He was decorated and mentioned in dispatches on different occasions, and once commanded the Baluchistan Cavalry in battles against troops of Afghanistan.

CUNARD WHITE STAR LIMITED ANCHOR-DONALDSON

"NO WONDER YOU FEEL AND LOOK SO MUCH BETTER"

—said the physician.

Half in fun and half because he occasionally "felt punk", a college chap joined 29 other students to form a test class for clinic. It was desired to test on this class the recuperative power of a certain tonic preparation, the formula of which was known to have blood-building qualities.

Like the other 29, this young man's blood was tested and the "count" of red corpuscles and red colouring matter was found well below normal. No wonder he "felt punk" at times. He was given the tonic and returned in thirty days to have his blood tested again. There was no doubt about improved health. He looked it and felt it. His blood test showed that red corpuscles and red colouring matter had strikingly increased. "No wonder you are feeling and looking better," said the physician.

Would you like to feel better, too? Would you like to be keen again about study or work or play? Then take this "tested tonic" which proved such a benefit to the forty college students. It restores well-being by increasing the red corpuscles and red colouring matter of the blood—those carriers in the blood stream which must be kept up to normal numbers if the person is to possess health and vitality. This tested tonic is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Easy to take whether at home, at college or at business. Recommended for all who feel run-down, over-tired, nervous or "low", or are under-weight. Your druggist has this tested tonic—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, price 50c.

RECONDITIONING OF SKIN, NECESSARY SAYS MYRNA

Myrna Loy

The charming Myrna Loy, who is fast becoming one of the best-loved actresses in the motion picture world, firmly believes that every normal skin needs reconditioning when the summer season ends. Myrna has her own way of rejuvenating her complexion and correcting any havoc brought about by exposure to the summer sun. This lass always keeps a small bottle of olive oil on her dressing table, and applies the oil frequently to her skin. And she believes this a most efficacious means of remedying rough, leathery skin, and restoring it to a fresh, smooth condition.

Any girl, of course, who has exposed herself to the sun and wind much during the summertime, is bound to wind up with a rather dry, leathery skin. For sun and wind tend to extract the natural oils that keep the skin smooth and supple. And some sort of a lubricating method is required to restore the skin to its natural smooth, velvety state.

However, although olive oil is a good lubricant, I think the best procedure for reconditioning the skin after the summer months is to give it a series of sweet almond oil facials. Before administering such a facial, the skin should be thoroughly cleansed with tepid water and a bland soap. Then a quantity of sweet almond oil should be heated, and allowed to cool sufficiently so that it may be applied without burning the skin.

When the oild is of the proper temperature, pat a quantity of it into your skin with your fingertips. Then take narrow strips of gauze, dip them into the heated oil, and arrange them over your face and neck. To hold these strips in place, take a larger piece of the gauze, cut holes in it for your eyes and mouth, and bind it about your face.

The oil-soaked strips should be allowed to remain on the face as long as possible, so that the skin will obtain the full benefits of the nourishing oil. After a fair amount of time, the mask should be removed and a soft cloth or several absorbent pieces of cleansing tissue used to blot up the excess oil. And as the final step, a good skin tonic or astringent should be applied to close the pores and tone up the skin.

Transient Takes $10 Given Meal And Suit

"You have been very kind to me and I shan't forget your kindness," a young transient yesterday told a George Street housewife, who had just given him a dinner of ham and eggs and her husband's third best suit.

A few minutes later the woman discovered that ten dollars was missing from her purse. "He must have taken the money while I was busy cooking him the meal," she told police.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

It is amazing how often a person will see something that needs to be done, and yet take it for granted that the responsibility of doing it is someone else's. A mass of broken glass that lies in the line of travel for feet or automobile tires! Surely some one else will see it and remove it. The immediate removal of it is the matter of a moment only, and a little thought for the next passerby. Possibly the moment of prevention taken immediately will save the next comer from a puncture there, or a blow out later. Such an accident might mean injury or even loss of life. Why should it be the concern of the one to follow more than that of the one present is an unanswerable query. But it should be the act of the one who sees it first.

* * * * * * *

An error is noticed in some public announcement, or an omission. Shall it be left to stand, or for the chance that another will correct it. Many an announcement of a statue unveiling, or a picture presentation appears in newspaper column with no mention whatever of the artist or sculptor's name. Let it be known that to many readers who did not care, there are a few who wonder who the artist was.

* * * * * * *

It is no doubt largely because of the haste and pressure which is part of life as it is lived today, and might be dismissed with that observation, this carelessness about assuming of responsibility, were it not for the fact that it is generally the busiest persons who are the ones to take the measures mentioned. An attitude of unselfishness and public interest is not to be found in small persons caring only for the safety of themselves.

* * * * * * *

There is room in the thoughts of great and busy people for the welfare of others, and for the honor that should be due. To develop this turn of mind which has the capacity to include others' well being and assume the responsibility, is to join hands with the finest people in the world. Whatever our place in the community or niche in public life, whether small or large, there are certain unassigned duties which none the less belong to each person who recognizes them. An eye for such service can be trained.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

THE RARE VIENNA COUP.

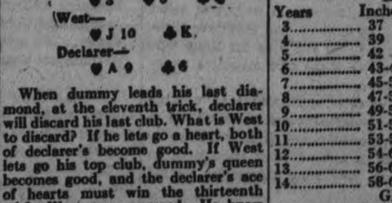
The Vienna Coup is so rare that in twenty-three years of play in card clubs I think I have not had to employ it half a dozen times, whereas I do not think that a week passes without having an opportunity to successfully employ the ordinary squeeze. This coup, as you will see, consists of establishing a good trick in an opponent's hand, only to squeeze the trick from him.

Fortunately, I had as partner Julian Goldman, donor of the Goldman trophy to the American Bridge league. I knew that he could be depended upon to carry bidding to the last notch of safety.

Bidding went: South, 2 no trumps; Goldman, sitting North, 3 diamonds; South, 4 diamonds, so that he might realize that I held high cards in his suit; North, 5 diamonds, as expected; South, 6 no trumps; North, 7 no trumps; West doubled.

The opening lead was the queen of hearts. The king won the trick. There were visible just 12 tricks, provided 4 diamonds did not lie in one hand: 3 spades, 2 hearts, 6 diamonds and 1 club. The doubler, H. T. Cornwell, evidently held the missing king of clubs, or 4 diamonds containing a stop. One round of diamonds showed that suit was clear. An ordinary squeeze would not answer, West could discard after I did. Only the Vienna Coup could give me the grand slam. I took 3 rounds of winning spades. On the last one dummy's lowest club was discarded. I led the ace of clubs. Then followed 5 diamond tricks. I discarded my last 3 clubs on the ninth, tenth and eleventh tricks.

West had to make 4 discards on the diamonds. He let go the guard to his king of clubs. Then he discarded his two lowest hearts, bringing him through the tenth trick. At the end of the tenth trick the holdings of West, and of the two declaring hands were as shown below. What East held does not matter.



When dummy leads his last diamond, at the eleventh trick, declarer will discard his last club. What is West to discard? If he lets go a heart, both of declarer's become good. If West lets go his top club, dummy's queen becomes good, and the declarer's ace of hearts must win the thirteenth trick. West was squeezed. He knew and admitted it, with that good-humored smile so characteristic of him. The doubled grand slam was made, thanks to the Vienna Coup.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

A rigid standard for the growth and development of a child's body cannot be set up. Newborn babies, provided they are healthy, or even reasonably healthy, have proportions and measurements all very much alike. The youngest of the quintuplets weighed less than two pounds, it is true, and some babies weigh as much as ten pounds. The weight of most babies does not vary more than a pound or two—from six to eight pounds.

After the first few weeks, however, standards must be made very flexible if they are to include all normal infants. Development is not uniform in all individuals. Hereditary influences begin to make themselves felt, and if a child is going to be a small adult, his rate of growth is not the same as if he is destined for large bodily size.

Weight and height are, however, the best general standards of normal growth and development. Other things being equal, a growing child who is 10 per cent. below the average weight for his age is abnormal, but, if it shows no disease on physical examination, the difference may be disregarded. This is not a usual situation, however, because such a child almost invariably will be found to have something the matter with it.

Height is a more reliable standard than weight. Height cannot be influenced by diet or exercise, but weight can.

There are seasonal variations in growth. Summer is the time of more increase in height and weight than winter. From June to November the average child leads a freer, more out-of-doors existence, with more activity and consequently less infection and illness, and hence is the period of greatest growth.

Fatigue is an influential factor in growth. It is a curious thing that after a good night's rest both children and adults are slightly taller (1 to 3 centimeters) than after a day of activity.

It is not simple to construct a condensed height and weight table for children. Boys and girls vary slightly. At 3 years different boys may be 35 to 39 inches tall, and weigh from 29 to 35 pounds.

Leaving out too many refinements, we may put down averages as follows:

BOYS

Years	Inches Tall	Pounds
3	37	32
4	39	35
5	42	39
6	43-49	41-55

12	54-61	71-96
13	56-64	78-111
14	58-67	86-128

GIRLS

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterborough Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Gordon R. Farthing, 816 Water St., City.

It will be impossible for me to tell you anything more from your handwriting. No doubt by now you will have read your delineation in "The Examiner" of September the fifteenth. I know that it sometimes requires a lot of patience on the part of the readers who have to wait for their turn to come. You will notice that most of your questions were answered, at least as far as intimate questions may be in a newspaper.

You still have not given me your birth date which is very necessary in calculating what your birth stone should be and also what character of people you would be most compatable with according to your sign. If you really wish to know please send me your birth date and the month and year.

Doris M. Ryan, Bailleboro, Ont.

The handwriting as delineated on your sample describes you as a good-hearted individual, easily led by those for whom you care. You have executive ability and should grasp the opportunity to express yourself as capable of attending to business affairs.

There is no reason why you should not make a success of your life, provided you do not let others interfere with your plans.

You are the owner of a fairly good temper, but once in a while you do "fly off the handle", but calm down to a steady pace within a short time.

Your large, open, slanting capitals express the idea that you are kind, but often seem over-hasty in arriving at conclusions. Some of your capitals denote a noteworthy characteristic, in these a will to do, the ability to accomplish, and an artistic temperament which enables you to put more than the usual effort into any work that you truly like. It lends a finished artistic touch to the completed project.

Gerald F. Ayotte, Clydesdale, Ont.

Your handwriting indicates that you are a person who finds it most difficult to make up the mind definitely. You have a slight nervous tendency due to restriction of ideas. You are a little afraid to tell people what you thin fork fear that they will laugh at you but you should have no fear because you are quite intelligent and have a fine understanding of current events and of things as they should be represented. You may not be mature enough to be absolutely certain of your own accomplishments yet, but in time you will be able to decide exactly what you desire most to accomplish, then your fear will vanish and you will become master of yourself. However, I might suggest that you should not undertake a business career, because you do not belong to that type at all. Rather interesting to you would be the study of botany, because you need the fresh air, and the outdoor life. Though, of course, it would be necessary to study some of the time in a classroom. Market gardening might answer your question as regards your occupation, but you will have to school yourself against shiftlessness for I am afraid that you have a habit of commencing more tasks than you can finish or else your enthusiasm wanes over any lengthy work. Your 't' bars do not show a great amount of will-power or determination. However, as you become more mature in years, you will do doubt adjust yourself and be quite successful.

Hilda Eileen Ayotte, Clydesdale, Ont.

The handwriting as portrayed on your sample indicates that you are a changeable person. You do not appear to care for the same thing twice in succession. You are sensitive at times, and then again you are not the least bit sensitive just when you should be. It is as though you "Spill the Beans" often, when you would, through your better judgment, have kept silent, then you deride yourself, and wonder why you had to do such and such a thing.

However, the real you is lovable and kind, even though you are rather impulsive and perhaps too generous.

The rounded loop formations, indicates a keen interest in music, and a love for flowers.

Your type as a rule make excellent housekeepers. Once you become established in your home, but you might have to be careful not to let others interfere with your plans.

WELL DONE, THE PETES.

Congratulations are in order to the executive and players of the Peterborough senior baseball club upon their achievement in capturing the championship of the Central Ontario Baseball League and earning the right to enter the series for the Ontario title.

The feat is the more notable by reason of the fact that this is the first occasion in fourteen years in which the Peterborough club has been successful in obtaining the highest honors in the league that was launched in 1919 by a former Peterborough resident, J. J. Solomon.

During the whole existence of the league Peterborough teams, although seldom tail-enders and usually keen contenders, have not had a great deal of good fortune so far as championships are concerned, so that it is a matter for satisfaction that this year's club has finally succeeded in winning the coveted honors after a long fight which began in May.

Throughout the season the Peterborough club has played clever baseball, particularly away from home, and they have given their home city some valuable advertising by their fine performance on the field and by their general behaviour.

They have won out this year on their merits, and in their quest for further honors will have the solid support not only of their home fans but of followers of the game all over the Central Ontario district, who will wish them good luck as they battle for the provincial title.

MUSHROOM HOTELS.

The protest of Western Ontario hotel owners against the granting of beer licenses to the "mushroom" hotels that have sprung up in the last few months is one which will have the support of the general public.

When this measure was first introduced the impression undoubtedly was that the privilege of sale would be granted to recognized standard hotels, to the hotel men who in the face of some very hard times had continued to keep their places open and serve the public with shelter and meals.

Instead these orthodox standard hotels find themselves in competition with a host of hastily equipped beverage rooms opened for the sole purpose of selling beer and bearing as much resemblance to a hotel as a service station does to a cathedral.

In one town not very far away from Peterborough a beer license has been granted to a restaurant proprietor whose "hotel" consists of three or four small rooms located over his place of business, and all over Ontario there are similar "fake" hotels that are in business for the one purpose of taking advantage of the new beer law.

Now that the Government has appointed inspectors and is in a position to study the whole situation at close quarters, it is to be hoped that the end of the present fiscal year when "authorities" have to be renewed will find these places that are beverage rooms first and hotels a very bad second deprived of the privilege of sale; they have no right to it and should never have been granted it even for a few months.

MUST WORK FOR RELIEF.

The announcement of Hon. David Croll, Ontario Minister of Welfare and Public Affairs, that able-bodied men who are offered work and who refuse to accept must be stricken off the relief lists will meet with the approval of all reasonable citizens.

Mr. Croll has worded his statement so clearly that there can be no doubt as to what he means.

"No person is going to get relief if he won't work for it," the Minister declares, "and when they refuse to work for it their relief must be cut off."

There can be no logical quarrel with that decision.

There are, of course, persons in receipt of relief who are physically unfit to work, and there are times when no relief work may be available for those who are physically fit; under these circumstances assistance will be provided.

Those unemployed who are capable of working and for whom relief employment can be found are in a different category, however, and if they decline to accept the work that is offered them they have no right to complain if they find themselves denied relief.

The vast majority of those who are being helped out of the public funds are anxious to find employment and to work for the assistance that is provided; the small minority who take the attitude that the state owes them a living will have to make up their mind to accept the employment that may be offered them or else find themselves called upon to find for themselves.

Hon. Mr. Croll's attitude in the matter is based on sound common sense, and it is a definite warning to all relief list slackers.

NEW YORK'S LOTTERY.

It is interesting to note that while Canada's Parliament has flatly refused to sanction lotteries and sweepstakes and has provided machinery for the seizing of winnings from such ventures, that hard-pressed municipalities across the border are turning to such a plan for raising much needed funds.

In New York, for example, the municipal assembly has included a lottery in its program for securing more revenue.

It recommends, in addition, a city tax equivalent to 15 per cent. of the amount paid in federal income tax, and a general business tax of one-tenth of one per cent. on the gross turnover.

The lottery proposal has encountered a storm of opposition from the churches and from individual citizens, but it is being pushed ahead just the same, although elaborate plans to dress it up to appear as something else than a lottery has been launched.

Here is the plan:

Shares are to be sold at $2.50 each in the "Municipal Supplemental Relief Association."

Twelve trustees for the funds are to be appointed by the mayor, all to serve gratis. There are to be at least 103 officers of this corporation, who will be paid "generous salaries" as a means of distributing prizes. The officers chosen must be members of the association, (and any person can be a member by paying $2.50) and their names are to be picked from a jury wheel such as is used in the selection of jurors. Not more than 44 per cent. of the funds collected may be paid to officers. Expenses must not exceed 12 per cent., and the remaining 44 per cent. goes straight into relief.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE FOR RECIPROCITY.

Concluding its convention at Winnipeg the Canadian Chamber of Commerce declared for better trade relations between Canada and the United States. Thus:

"It notes that on June 12, 1934, the President of the United States was granted by Congress authority to enter into foreign trade agreements and to modify existing agreements. It expresses the opinion the Governments of Canada and the United States should enter into negotiations at the earliest possible date to determine the extent to which mutual concessions can be arrived at with a view to accelerating the movement of trade between the two countries."

The most notable thing about this declaration is that it marks a revolt against high tariffs on the part of business. It is true, of course, that the Chamber of Commerce, made up of our industrial, financial and business leaders, is not thinking of reciprocity as reciprocity has been thought of generally. It is aware that, under existing conditions, there is no possibility of an agreement such as was proposed and rejected in 1911. On the other hand, it is an important and highly significant thing that it should aim toward such reciprocal concessions as may be found practicable, with the tendency to sweep away the maximum of trade restrictions. That, in itself, is a tremendous advance.

That the Chamber of Commerce is right there can be no question at all. Canada's trade with the United States is not now something that should be considered in the light of what many of us thought or said about reciprocity years ago. We have to get away from the 1911 complex, this for the simple reason that the factors which operated to compel Canada to reject the reciprocity pact of 1911 have no existence in 1934, are almost entirely irrelevant. What we face to-day is a condition under which, quite clearly, abolition of a lot of trade restrictions between these two countries would be of immense benefit to Canada. The thing is beyond debate.

The agricultural and industrial life of this country has been reared on an export basis. That being true, and our prosperity depending enormously upon the extent to which we can market abroad many of our basic products, the importance of securing a maximum of sales in a country lying at our very doors, and with 125,000,000 of people who are among the greatest of the world's consumers, is too manifest to be argued about. A market in the United States to-day for Canadian fish and dairy products would be a tremendous thing.

That difficulties stand in the way must be admitted. There is the difficulty, and a very great one, of existing United States policies, policies which, in their very essence, imply a restriction of United States imports. Nevertheless, there are still many among our neighbors—some of them, notably Mr. Cordell Hull, Mr. Roosevelt's Secretary of State, are in the present administration—who are convinced that the United States cannot live or prosper without external trade, and it is not at all unlikely that the coming year will witness a marked change in the general official attitude. It is one reason why Canada should evince continued willingness to consider a fair trade agreement. With all of our political parties now committed to such a step, and with business apparently convinced of its desirability, such an attitude should not be difficult.—Ottawa Journal.

ELECTION EXPERTS.

A Washington despatch to the New York Times says the National Democratic Committee thinks it knows within 200 ballots how every county in the United States is going to vote in the November Congressional elections. It adds:

"This is not guesswork, the leaders say. Not only is the position of each individual in the country who counts politically known; not only are the cleverest of political analysts constantly touring the country; not alone is each item of correspondence from citizens checked; but there has been gathered elaborate data covering each county and Congressional district in the United States. The trend of the past two years in each of these has been checked down to the minute."

All of which suggests that the National Democratic Committee must have fallen into the hands of some of those so-called efficiency experts who flourished so mightily a few years ago; the tribe that used to induce a "big executive" to have four telephones instead of two on his desk, and showed him with meticulous care how he could save half a minute in doing something which didn't matter anyway.

Sheer "hooey" in business, this sort of thing is even worse than that in politics. Yet politicians, for some odd reason, are prone to "fall" for it. Every election sees a horde of these terribly wise people take charge of what they call "organization," hanging up a lot of maps on walls and sticking pins in them, and making mysterious graphs and charts to show conclusively how Mud Creek is going to return a triumphant majority for the grand old party.

In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the people who get parties and politicians to pay them for such stuff are just racketeers. They know no more about elections, or about what influences elections, than the man in the moon.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The textile strike is over. It is not clear who won, but it is safe to say that the public will prove to be the ultimate loser.

The electors of five Ontario ridings are saying it with votes to-day, and their verdict means much more than are speeches that have been filling the September air.

Anyway the owners of the Endeavour and the Rainbow are immune from the charge that they are "playing for the gates."

Two of Dillinger's lieutenants have been shot while trying to break jail with fake weapons. That's the trouble with most crooks; they never show any originality.

CANADIANS NOT LOYAL TO OWN AUTHORS.

Walkerville, Ont.,
September 19, 1934.

Sir:—

By chance I met an acquaintance in Toronto recently, herself a poetess. "Do you write any poetry now?" she asked. "You write beautifully," she added. "No! There is no money in it," I replied. Several have asked me the same question, receiving the same unromantic reply. A refined Jewish physician said I would receive inspiration for my poetry by a stroll through the woods when the leaves are changing to crimson, brown and gold.

When I published "Poems of Life" at my own expense, costing as much as a fine extended European trip; in a sense poems it contained were no longer my own, belonging to the world, and rightly so. I knew a copy would be kept in the British Museum as well as at Ottawa. I received requests from London, England, and from different parts of United States for my poetry for publication in magazines. Recently a lady told me she received great comfort from reading her copy of "Poems of Life", having lost her mother three years before.

I have about three times as much unpublished poetry as published. My longest poem, still unfinished, was by far the most momentous task in literary effort. It remains for the public to say if this unpublished poetry will be preserved for posterity or not. Canadian daily newspapers in the larger cities give no encouragement to Canadian authors, thus showing no independence nor initiative, preferring to send money out of Canada to pay American authors. Canadians have as much right to refuse to buy Canadian dailies and buy American instead. For other Canadian authors have had the same experience as I. Much Canadian talent, as good as to be found in any other country, if not better, will be lost because of this lack of loyalty on part of the Press.

An author who must pay for publication hesitates to lay out so much money, unless he or she is assured cost of publication will be returned in sale of books. Book stores and department stores with book departments do not feature Canadian authors, preferring to advertise American authors. Such is far from the case in U. S. A., where Americans are loyal to their own. I do not criticize Americans.

A friend who has a motor sales agency pays his salesmen salaries, knowing it is difficult for discouraged salesmen, who worry about their living, to sell cars. So, authors need encouragement by sale of their books to be inspired to write.

But for Wilfrid Meynell, we might not have the poetry of Francis Thompson. Likewise, his clerical uncles and Dr. Johnson brought out the best in Goldsmith, without whom his talent would have been lost; and he would have been known only as a "homeless wanderer" who commenced an European trip with a guinea in his pocket and an extra shirt.

Those who buy the works of good Canadian authors thereby help Canadian literature, are the better citizens, and are a benefit to generations still unborn by preserving Canadian literature for posterity. Other lines of endeavour are rewarded and so should authors of good literature be recompensed.

When John Howard Payne died the U. S. Government sent a warship to bring his remains home; not for any great feat of his; not even because he wrote "The Maid of Milan", but because it contained "Home, Sweet Home". Canada should be as loyal to his talented sons and daughters.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain
Yours truly,
G. T. Bailey.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

GRIMSBY, ONTARIO.

The first settlement was somewhere about 1770, and the place was known as "The Forty-Mile Creek," being, as the settlers guessed, about 40 miles from Newark (Fort Niagara).

Some years later, probably before the war of 1812, many U. E. Loyalists came over from the United States and settled and the Governor of Upper Canada had a survey made. One of the surveyors came from Grimsby, England, and the topography of this section so reminded him of his native town that he named the township Grimsby. Some years later the settlement was named Grimsby and was so incorporated as a village in 1877, and as a town in 1921.

For the last five days the mayor of Grimsby has exchanged compliments, by cable, with the mayor of Grimsby, Eng., on Empire day.

T. N. D. Kelly, proprietor of the Peterborough Fuel and Transfer Co., was seriously injured last night when his car was struck by a train at the Donegal street crossing.... Mrs. J. S. Knapman captured a 23-pound lunge yesterday in Stoney Lake.

SEPTEMBER 24, 1914

A street car was damaged considerably after a collision this morning with the steam roller on George street .... The Patriotic Fund here has now reached $9,500, a cheque for $1,000 from the Toronto Savings and Loan Co. bringing it up.

SEPTEMBER 24, 1904

The Government has appointed J. H. McClellan of Peterborough superintendent of the Trent Valley Canal....A magnificent new Armoury building will be erected here on Murray St. at a cost of over $100,000.

A Thought

THE YESTERDAYS

I sometimes think the yesterdays
Are fairer, sweeter far
Than any days that are to be or any days that are;
As distance lends a softness to the far horizon line,
So time its glamor weaves about the days of auld lang syne.

The friends of youth seem dearer than the friends we know today,
The world was brighter, lighter in the years of faraway;
The blossoms on the orchard tree a
subtler fragrance blew,
And all the roses seemed to wear a rare, fairer hue.

And oh, the joys of yesterday are deeper grown with time,
Our ancient woes are sweetened,
olden sorrows made sublime;
And all the dreams that seemed to die, the things that could not be,
The prayers of life unanswered,
still live on in memory.

To-day may bring us happiness, tomorrow lure us on,
But something ever turns our hearts to other days long gone.
And blessed is the life which sees
thru recollections' haze,
The tenderness and sweetness of its hallowed yesterdays!

THE KI DER.

The kidder is a fellow who can Dish It Out—but can't Take It.

Occasionally you find a Kidder who can take it, but he is always one whose kidding is gentler, more humorous, with far less malice than the ordinary run-of-the-mill kidding.

The average Kidder has a mean streak in him. Or perhaps it's a hurt, disappointed, baffled streak. (There really isn't as much difference between the two as we sometimes think).

He likes to feel superior, and he has learned that the easiest way, for him, to accomplish this is to make the other fellow feel cheap. He picks on some all-too-human weakness in the other—some pride, some little folly, some modesty, some ridiculous error—and lays it before the multitude. Sometimes he is a lone wolf and prefers to see his victim writhe in secret. But usually he wants an audience. The bigger the audience, the greater the success of the joke, the deeper sinks the barb into the poor devil who is being kidded.

The Telephone Kidder is a particularly delightful type. He calls you up and tells you this is the express office and they have a package for you—and after he has you standing squarely on the trap he springs it and lets you dangle, while he rings off . . . The Kidder starts by teasing the small boy who has patches on his pants. He goes on to organizing Snipe Hunts. And finally becomes the fellow in the livery stable who sends the town idiot to the hardware store for a left-handed monkey wrench or a can of striped paint . . . He lets air out of your tires and knows a hundred cunning ways of deflating you, as well. (So far I have never encountered a woman who was a kidder and I don't believe I ever shall.)

You may guess from these few remarks on the subject that the writer of this article doesn't like Kidding. You are right, he doesn't. It is his opinion that Kidding has spoiled more dispositions, toughened more sensitive boys and girls and made them hard and suspicious, stultified more ambition, and ruined more idealism and fresh young effort than any other force in the world.

And if that means I haven't a sense of humor, very well, then, I haven't . . . Because I'd rather not have any at all than have one and allow its curdle take to Kidding as a way of getting a laugh out of life.

Imperial Bank Plans New Office Building

Imperial Bank of Canada will construct a new head office building at King and Bay Streets, Toronto, at a cost of something less than $1,000,000, it is officially announced. Construction will begin as soon as tenants vacate and it is expected that the new building will be ready for occupancy in January, 1936.

It is stated that the new building is designed to serve the Imperial as head office and main Toronto branch. The new structure will have 100 feet frontage on King street and 100 feet on Bay street and will be six stories in height. The main banking room, with lofty ceilings, will have about three times the space of the present King and Bay branch. The basement will contain the latest type of strong room and safety deposit boxes and the bank's bond department. The head office proper will be on the upper floors of the building with a board room and ancillary space on the sixth floor, which will be of lesser dimensions than the other five floors.

COLUMBUS, Ohio— Evidence that Bruno Hauptmaun arrested in the Lindbergh kidnapping case, had sent a code letter to an Ohio Penitentiary convict late in 1931 or early in 1932 revealing he intended to kidnap the famous aviator's child, was disclosed here to-day by Preston E. Thomas, veteran warden of the old prison.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

HE WAS TWICE DISAPPOINTED.

On this date in 1912 Sir Richard Cartwright died. There was a man of contradiction if you like; in private life a courteous gentleman; in the House of Commons or on the hustings a man of biting sarcasm and vitriolic phrases, the best fighter in opposition the Canadian Parliament ever saw, but in office, in his later years at least, how different!

Sir Richard was an Upper Canada aristocrat as befitted his ancestry, for his grandfather was one of the leading men in eastern Upper Canada before there was any such province and a member of the first legislative council, for which he was qualified both by army service and as a Loyalist.

Sir Richard, as he became in 1879, was educated for public life and soon after his entry into the Assembly of old Canada in 1863 was marked as a "coming man". He was, by training, a Tory and favored John A. until two things changed him, the first in 1867 when he was president of the Commercial Bank of Canada, then in desperate plight and aid was refused, the second in 1869 when John A. chose Francis Hincks as his minister of finance instead of Cartwright. The latter Cartwright never forgave. He at once sent a formal letter to Macdonald withdrawing his support and from that day never spoke a friendly word to the prime minister. He became the chief critic of the Liberal party, in which capacity his biting tongue and potent sarcasm stood him in good stead and when the Liberals took office after the Pacific scandal exposures in 1873 Cartwright became minister of finance. From 1878 to 1896 Cartwright was always second in command on the Liberal side. His marked ability, his great debating power, his perfect diction made him one of the attractions of the Commons and the election platform, but when the Liberals won in 1896 Sir Richard was again disappointed. The Finance portfolio went to W. S. Fielding and (like his great rival, George E. Foster, in 1911) Cartwright had to be content with the Trade and Commerce portfolio. He was never the same after. He stayed in the Commons for two parliaments until 1904 when he was called to the Senate. There he put in eight years, terribly crippled by rheumatism, still eloquent when he liked, but most often restrained in speech, a mighty contrast to his earlier days when words flowed from his lips like lava from a seething Vesuvius.

Miss Mae Moloney, R.N., has returned to Chicago after spending a few weeks with friends and relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sheedy and family moved to a house on Mr. Wm. Young's farm on Tuesday.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 97c to 99c; oats 35c to 38c; barley, 60c to 64c; corn, 85c to 86c; rye, 56c to 57c; buckwheat, 56c to 58c; malting barley, 71c to 74c.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

An undertone of strength pervaded the Chicago grain market on Saturday and prices averaged somewhat higher, but finally eased back on account of profit-taking sales. A decided recovery in wheat quotations at Liverpool, together with blizzard reports from Canada indicating further delays to the Canadian crop movement, had much to do with imparting comparative firmness to Chicago prices. Liberal purchases of cash wheat for shipment out of Chicago, presumably to eastern mills, served also as a sustaining factor.

Wheat closed steady, ¼c lower to ¼c higher, compared with Friday's finish, December new $1.03¾ to $1.04; corn, ¼c off to ¼c up; December new, 78c to 78¼c; oats, ¼c to ¼c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Eggs declined sharply in price after buoyant tone of the previous week on the Montreal produce and dairy market last week. Butter was slightly lower, while cheese quotations were up fractions.

Top grades of eggs were off 2c, graded shipments in cartons or less ending the week at 28c a dozen for A-large, 26c for A-medium, 21c for B, and 19c to 19½c for C.

Receipts for the week totalled 8,413 cases, against 8,747 cases in the preceding week. Exports for the week totalled 1,350 cases, as compared with 1,000 cases in the previous week, and 9,050 cases in the corresponding week of last year.

Fresh No. 1 butter in cartons or less ended the week at 19¾c to 19¾c a pound, down ½c on the week. Small lots to retailers were also off ½c, solids bringing 20½c a pound. Arrivals for the week totalled 15,110 boxes in comparison with 14,170 boxes the week before. Exports for the week were 91 boxes as compared with 16,340 boxes in the corresponding week of last year. No butter was exported during the previous week.

On the cheese market prices were ¼c higher, Ontario colored being quoted at 9 5-8c to 10c a pound, and Quebec cheese bringing 9¼c to 9½c a pound. Receipts were 25,385 boxes, against 26,913 boxes in the preceding week. Exports for the week totalled 21,618 boxes, as compared with 24,300 boxes in the previous week, and 28,774 boxes in the corresponding week of last year.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Upturns at Liverpool swung the trading balance slightly to the buying side on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange Saturday and with offerings comparatively light, gains of 1-8c to 1-4c marked up.

Operations from the start were light and mixed in character. Export sales were estimated at not more than 250,000 bushels.

October wheat ended at 82¼c, December at 82½c and May at 87½c. The day's price range was only about ½c. Bulk of the selling came in the nature of hedging orders against country deliveries of 150,000 bushels.

Liverpool values gained ½d to ⅝d, influenced by reports the Orient was in the market for Australian wheat.

Number 1 hard spreads gained ½c, and spreads on Durum were up 1¼c. Coarse grains were steadier.

THREE MONTHS.

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 24.— (C. P.)— Three months' determinate and one year intermediate in Ontario Reformatory was the sentence passed to-day on Louis Cameron on a charge of attempted suicide.

Pormpt action in hospital saved his life on September 16, when he swallowed a quantity of poison tablets, the court was told.

EDMONTON.— One man was fatally burned and two children suffered lesser injuries when a can of gasoline exploded while a stove was being lighted at Lipsett school, near Widewater, Alta., in the Peace River country, 180 miles north of Edmonton. P. Inglebretson used the gasoline in mistake for kerosene. His clothing was burned of and he suffered serious burns from which he died later in High Prairie hospital.

TORONTO.— Seventeen year old Peter Leslie, son of Harry Leslie, one of the three men accused of conspiring to kidnap John S. McLean, president of Canada Packers, Ltd., didn't know the nature of the work he was doing until after he had been hired by Frank Wood, another of the accused, he told Judge D. O'Connell to-day on the third day of the trial of the alleged kidnappers. James Leslie is the third man facing the kidnapping charge.

BRAZILIAN IS BIG FEATURE

Narrow Recessions in Most Industrials But Firm Undertone Prevails.

DISTILLERY SLOW.

TORONTO, Sept. 24 (CP).—Although narrow recessions had the edge over gains in the industrial section of the Toronto Exchange today, good buying in Brazilian, Ford "A", Distillers Seagrams and the oil shares, gave the list a firm undertone. Volume was on a level with that of recent Monday sessions.

The industrial section had a "Blue Monday" tone with all groups showing a lack of buying interest. Narrow price recessions were general in the early afternoon.

Brazilian was the only feature of the trade in the first three hours. On heavy turnover the price held a gain of 3-8 at 11 3-8. Buoyancy was said to be due to a higher ruling price for the stock in London.

Trading in the distillery and brewery shares was decidedly slow with narrow price recessions predominating. All the interlisted leaders developed a soft tone with exception of Ford "A" and Brazilian.

Brazilian held a fractional gain till the close and gains were recorded also for C.P.R. and Consolidated Smelters and International Nickel eased down ⅛ to 23¾. Fractional losses were chalked up for the distillery and oil leaders, International Pete weakening a half point. Brewing Corporation Pfd. and Walkerville were firm issues in the brewery group, while Canada Malting receded 3-8.

MINES SUFFER RECESSIONS

Flurry in Kirkland Lake Peter-ed Out and Olga Also Flattens Out.

VOLUME LOW.

TORONTO, Sept. 24 (CP).—The mining department of the Toronto Exchange opened the week with a downward trend and with volume showing some decrease from that of last week. A morning flurry in Kirkland Lake petered out in the afternoon and in the oil group Olga's demonstration of strength extending over several days flattened out this afternooon and the issue closed with a loss of more than two points at 16.

Recessions of 10 to 30 cents appeared at the close for Hollinger, Pioneer, Lake Shore and Wright Hargreaves. Teck Hughes fell back to 4.13 and closed at 4.17 for a net loss of 10 cents Siscoe, Macassa, Gunnar Gold, Read-Authier and God's Lake took light losses in a moderate volume of turnover.

Motorists In Crash Escape Uninjured

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 24—Passengers in a car driven by Arthur Mitchell of Peterborough, miraculously escaped injuries when the vehicle, failing to make a turn on Sebastopol street, crashed into a nearby verandah and ended up hanging over a ten-foot embankment Sunday evening. The passengers were Mr. Mitchell's wife and baby and his brother-in-law, Delbert Thompson.

Mrs. Mitchell with her baby jumped clear as the car struck the verandah. Mr. Thompson was somewhat shaken-up but none of the party required medical attention. The verandah, on the front of a residence owned by Albert Mills, was partially wrecked and the car extensively damaged.

The party was returning from a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maybee in Campbellford.

Upset Boat Found, Fear Four Men Lost

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 24.—(A. P.). — Search was resumed to-day in Lake Erie for four men believed lost when their boat was overturned Saturday while they were fishing.

The boat was discovered Saturday morning, but it is believed the men were lost late Friday night in rough weather on the Lake. They had hired the boat that night for a fishing expedition. A search was launched soon after the crafft was discovered.

The missing men are Phillip Rutterman, Paul Morgan, Edward Nusbaum, and John Bergstrom, all of Buffalo.

TRENTON, N.J.—Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkoft, Superintendent of the New Jersey State Police, said to-day Bruno Richard Hauptmann, when extradited to this state, will be charged with "kidnapping and murder."

HAMILTON, Ont.—Civil action in connection with the London blackmail cases will be traversed to Hamilton, it was revealed today, when a motion was heard before Justice Kelly in chambers for an order removing two prisoners from that city to Hamilton. The action pending is that of Mr. A. against, Mrs. Turnbull of London to recover sums of money allegedly secured by fraud.

Pupils On Holiday Due To School Fire

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 24—Pupils of the Stanwood public school are again on vacton as a result of a fire which damaged extensively the roof of the school this morning.

The fire was discovered shortly before 8 o'clock by Gordon Rylett who rushed to the Rowe farm opposite the school and spread the alarm. Starting in an adjoining woodshed, the flames had spread to the rafters of the roof by the time a hastily-organized bucket brigade got into action. Quick work put the blaze under control immediately.

The building is of brick construction with a metal roof. Unless temporary quarters are secured, classes will be suspended for a week or more while repairs are being made.

STOCKS RECEDE IN WALL STREET

Slip Back Moderately Under Profit Taking by Pessimistic Traders.

INDUSTRIALS OFF.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP).—Heaviness in metals gave the stock market an unsettled appearance today. Losses of fractions to around a point prevailed in the industrial list. Rails were somewhat more resistant. U. S. Smelting dropped more than 6 points, while American Telephone, Howe Sound and American Smelting were 1 to 2 lower. Transfers approximated 500,000 shares.

Stocks, after their five-day advance, were inclined to recede moderately under profit-taking by those traders who felt that, under the circumstances, some sort of a technical reaction was on the program. Bonds were fairly steady.

Price Changes.

Price changes in the Canadian list were inconsequential. Dome receded fractionally, while Canadian Pacific, McIntyre and International Nickel were about unchanged. On the curb, Lake Shore ruled steady. Dominion Government 4's improved slightly. The Canadian dollar was up 3-16 of a cent to a new year's high at 103 17-32 cents.

Shares of U. S. Smelting dropped about 5 points, and Homestake Mining, Howe Sound, American Smelting and Cerro de Pasco yielded 1 to 2. Union Pacific lost a point, but the other rails were about unchanged. Spiegel-May-Stern, Consolidated Gas, American Woollen Preferred and Celotex preferred were somewhat higher, while Du Pont, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Montgomery Ward, Celanese, General Motors, International Harvester and many others were about even.

Magistrate's Court

First case of its kind under the newly amended Liquor Control Act, a charge against James Mongraw, beverage room waiter at Montgomery Hotel, of serving liquor to a minor, was this morning dismissed without costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C.

Mongraw who pleaded not guilty, was legally represented by G. N. Gordon, K.C. The prosecution was conducted by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

Following disposition of the charge against the beverage room waiter, David Prince, 16, of 309 McDonald street, was fined $10 without costs, on pleading guilty to a charge of intoxication.

Prince testified that on Friday, September 14 he went to the Montgomery Hotel in company of Albert Crowe of 402 Monaghan road and was served with beer by Mongraw. He denied that Mongraw had refused to serve them and had said: "You boys are too young. You can't have beer." He said that he was in the beverage room with his companion between nine and ten o'clock.

Albert Crowe, 16, said that on the night in question he met Prince at seven o'clock. He gave signs of having been drinking.

"We went to the beverage room" witness stated, "and Dave held up his hand and said two draughts. The waiter told us to get out as we were too young. We got up and went out, at a few minutes after eight o'clock."

Evidence supporting that given by Crowe was provided by Herbert Grisdale and Edward Pammett who were in the beverage room between eight and eight-thirty and heard Mongram refuse to serve the two juveniles.

James Mongraw in evidence related that Prince and Crowe came into the beverage room shortly after eight o'clock. "I told them they would not be served, as they were too young. The next time I came back to the table they had left the room."

Prince recalled stated in answer to the Crown Attorney, "Yes sir, Mongraw did serve me beer between nine and ten o'clock."

William Hunt, whose address was stated to be 384 Mark street, pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless and negligent driving, and was fined $10 and $6.25 costs. On a further charge of driving without a permit, he was assessed $10 and $2.75 costs, and was disqualified from obtaining a license for one month.

According to Inspector James Reid, the defendant was driving east on Charlotte street on Saturday evening and when the stop lights turned red against the traffic, Hunt drove his car into the rear of another vehicle. He had been drinking according to his own admission to police.

Victor White, appearing for sentence on an adjourned charge of performing a dental operation without being duly licensed by the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, was fined $100 and $7.30 costs payable within ten days or in default one month's imprisonment.

W. J. Arthur Fair, counsel for the defence, intimated that he might appeal. F. D. Kerr, K.C., represented the Royal College of Dental Surgeons who prosecuted the charge.

In delivering judgment His Worship stated, "I have concluded that what was done by this man amounted to a dental operation. There will have to be a conviction."

Taking into consideration the fact that the detective who laid the information had induced the defendant to commit an offence, the magistrate decided that he would not allow any costs other than court costs of $7.30.

He commented on having received a letter in connection with the case from some well-meaning person who had attempted to define what the word "operation" meant in its relation to the case. The letter had been turned over to the Crown Attorney, the Magistrate stated. He regarded such communications with extreme disfavour.

LEADS BRITISH

of the north as the British challenger Endeavour and the American defender Rainbow came out of Newport Harbor to-day for the fifth race of the series for the America's Cup.

Both boats came out under their own canvas for the first time, bowling under both main and stay sails in front of the brisk breeze.

At 10 o'clock (E.S.T.) a report came to the race committee boat that the tug Thomas E. Moran, which sets the marking buoys for the course, had broken down, which might delay the start from the scheduled hour, 10.40 a.m.

Early morning rain squalls had ceased and the sun broke through the clouds shortly after 10 a.m., making for excellent visibility from the decks of the spectator fleet.

The committee boat Wilhelmina hoisted signals at 10.15 setting a leeward-windward course of 15 miles southwest by south and return.

The Wilhemina blew the 10-minute preparatory signal at 10.30 indicating no delay in the start.

The breeze had moderated slightly but held to the northeast and sailing conditions were excellent.

Cornelius Vanderbilt's yacht Winchester was pressed into service to set the marks and went out to place the 15-mile buoy.

The Start

The starting signal was given at 10.40 a.m. E.S.T.

Both boiled across the line in the starboard tack with little to choose between them as the starting signal went up.

Both had their spinnaker poles out as they went across. Vanderbilt immediately broke out his parachute spinnaker, apparently the one borrowed from the defeated defence candidate, Yankee, and it filled and began to pull beautifully.

Endeavour had trouble getting her ventilated Annie Oakley spinnaker to draw.

While the British were fussing with their big canvas Rainbow went out to a three-length lead.

It was six minutes after the start before Endeavour's spinnaker was of any use to her.

Endeavour Rips Sail

Endeavour ripped her spinnaker hauling it around the jib stay. The tear was near the clew and although apparently not serious it was evident it was not drawing as well as was Rainbow's big parachute.

At 10.50 it was estimated the defender had increased her lead to five lengths.

Endeavour continued to have trouble with her spinnaker half an hour after the start, and Rainbow had increased her lead to six or seven boat lengths.

The breeze continued to moderate and the sea was flattening out, only an occasional white cap showing.

At 11.20 a man could be seen aloft on Endeavour working on her spinnaker halyard block.

Rainbow Loses Spinnaker.

Rainbow's spinnaker blew out at 11.26.

Four minutes later, however, the defender broke out another spinnaker, and despite the accident held most of her lead over Endeavour.

The tear first appeared at the foot of the sail, but quickly extended well up the billowing canvas.

While a new sail was being brought on deck, Vanderbilt put Rainbow over on the port tack and held her there while the new canvas was set.

A Crack Crew.

The defender's crack crew showed their worth as they quickly hoisted the sail, which immediately began to draw beautifully.

From the cut of the new spinnaker it was believed that it was the one borrowed from Yankee and that the one which tore was Rainbow's own parachute.

Sopwith finally doused his unruly spinnaker at 11.45.

He also went over on the port tack as the canvas came down and set a Genoa jib.

At 12 noon Rainbow appeared to be rapidly widening her lead, her new parachute pulling her along beautifully.

It was estimated she had at least a mile lead at that point and was two and a half miles from the 15-mile turning buoy.

Five-Minute Lead.

Turning the mark at 12.18 with a five-minute lead, Rainbow immediately doused her spinnaker and set a double head rig, including her big Greta Garbo jib, for the 15-mile beat to the finish line.

The turning mark was General Cornelius Vanderbilt's big yacht Winchester, which was sent out when the tug Thomas E. Moran, which sets the course, broke down just before the start of the race.

A Tacking Duel.

Endeavour went over on the port tack at 12.43, closely followed by Rainbow.

After 12.52 they went back on the starboard tack again, Rainbow following every move of the challenger.

Sopwith went back on a port tack at 12.55, and again Rainbow followed him about.

Rainbow appeared to be increasing her lead and had an advantage of approximately a mile at 1 p.m.

It was estimated Rainbow was a third of the way home on the 15-mile windward leg at 1.10.

Endeavour went over on the starboard tack at 1.18, closely followed by Rainbow.

Almost half the windward leg had been covered at this point with Vanderbilt covering every move Sopwith has made.

Another Record.

Rainbow was making such good time it appeared she would break her own cup record for a windward leg set at two hours 4 minutes 9 seconds in the first race of the current series a week ago to-day.

Endervour went back on the port tack at 1.26, with Rainbow right after her. The latter appeared to be losing nothing by the manoeuvres and was estimated to still hold a mile lead.

The British challenger tacked to starboard at 1.39. Rainbow followed her closely.

Sopwith appeared to be gaining no ground by his tacking and Rainbow was more than a mile ahead with seven miles to go.

Endeavour continued on the port hitch only 11 minutes and went back to starboard at 1:50.

The finish mark was now in sight, and apparently not over three miles away.

Endeavor Speeds Up

The British boat now appeared to be going better and cutting into Rainbow's long lead.

Endeavour had cut Rainbow's lead to approximately half a mile as they tacked again at 1:54. They now were on the port tack and it appeared they might be able to fetch the mark without taking another hitch.

At 2:05 Endeavour went back to a starboard tack, closely followed by Rainbow. The finish mark appeared better than two miles away.

AHUNGRY LAD.

CHATHAM, Ont., Sept. 24.— (C. P.)—William Jennings, a 14 year old boy of Windsor, was picked up by the Chatham police and returned to his home this morning. The young lad who had not had anything to eat since Saturay at noon was hiking to Ottawa, where he said he had hoped to secure employment on the farm of his grandfather.

Children's Aid Sets Tag Day October 6

The special committee for Tag Day met Friday in the City Council Chamber with the convenor, Mrs. H. W. Darcy presiding. Others present were Mesdames Gibbs and Fanning, Messrs. Sutcliffe, Stocker, Fowler and Abraham.

Many items of business were transacted and plans put under way for a successful Tag Day. The fact that a committee of the men of the Board being present shows that every member is interested in the welfare of the neglected child, and that the work being carried on by the Society is really a worthwhile work.

Please keep this date in mind and be prepared to assist as never before on Tag Day.

Weddings

FINLEY—RUTHERFORD.

In the presence of the immediate families, a very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rutherford, Omemee, on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 20th, when their only daughter, Helen Kathleen, was married to Mr. Bruce Albert Finley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Finley, Omemee.

The ceremony, which was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Reddick, took place before an altar in the corner of the living room, which was effectively banked by evergreens, ferns, autumn flowers and leaves. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a Paul Sargent gown of Morrocco Brown scarpa crepe, a brown felt hat and matching shoes and gloves. She carried a bouquet of yellow 'mums, heather and maiden hair fern. There were no attendants. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Reddick.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served. The decorations in the dining room being carried out in pale pink and white. Later the bride and groom left on a motor trip to Montreal and eastern points, the bride travelling in a navy blue swageer suit with matching accessories.

IN MEMORIAM

FALCONER—In loving memory of our dear sister and daughter, Mrs. Hector Falconer who passed away, Sept. 23, 1931.

There's a wanting sound in our daily round,
And our weary hearts are blue;
Deep inter wrought is a lonely thought,
Lonely, dear Olive, for you.
For the days are gray since you went away,
We miss your voice and your smile
We miss the laugh that lessened half the burdens of life's trial,
It is not the tears at the graveside shed,
That tells how the heart is torn.
But the passionate tears in after years,
And remembrance silently borne.

—Always remembered by Father, Mother, Sisters, and son, Phillip.

HORNICK IS HURT.

Assisting in removing a wrecked car, which had wrapped itself around a tree on Highway 28, early Sunday morning, Highway Patrol Officer A. E. Hornick suffered a torn ligament to his shoulder. Constable Hornick was given treatment by Dr. D. W. Clark and the injury was strapped up. It will be some days before he will be able to ride his motorcycle.

RELIEF GOODS

A woman who is anxious to get a go-cart for her baby would be glad to give a baby carriage in its stead.

A mother of a family with many clothes to make would like to get a sewing-machine. Even the loan of one for about two months would be much appreciated.

We are asked often for window curtains, which do so much to brighten up a home. There are two requests in at the present time.

Bedsprings, have been asked for, also a small heater, cook stoves, bedding in the way of sheets and pillow cases, a large mattress, a three-foot mattress and a high chair.

A special request that we would like to get filled, as the woman is elderly and much in need, is for a winter coat, size 38 or 40.

If any of the above articles are available, please telephone Miss McCarthy at The Examiner and they will be placed to advantage.

that we wouldn't have been in it."

Speaking more particularly to the charge of driving a car while intoxicated, the accused stated, "We were here and of course we had to get back home. I was all right when I started away and intended to stop for a rest".

Robert Lawrie stated, "I came to Peterborough to go to church parade. I did go to church and afterwards we had beer at the Armouries. I suppose I got too much."

Traffic Officer Albert E. Hornick suffering from a strained shoulder ligament that he received when attempting to remove a wrecked truck from the ditch near Fraserville, was out driving with his wife and 13-year-old daughter, it was learned. Mrs. Hornick was driving the car in the direction of Peterborough, when just south of Kendry railway crossing the officer noticed an automobile approaching. "It was zig-zagging all over the road and nearly collided with us head-on", the traffic officer related.

The officer and his wife proceeded in pursuit of the other car. They found that it had stopped south of Victor Sweeting's farmhouse on the highway.

"I pulled into the side of the road ahead of their car and then got out. I asked the occupants of the car what they were trying to do. Someone in the car demanded 'who are you'?"

The officer, who was attired in civilian clothes, told the men that he was a Provincial police officer. He produced his warrant for their inspection, and told them they were under arrest.

Some in the car, according to the officer, replied, "Oh yeah."

The men, there were five in all, piled out of the car and the officer was talking to Sergeant Chard when he was struck on the back of the head by Robert Lawrie. "I went on my knees," the officer stated, "and as I staggered to my feet Hugh Lawrie joined in the melee and also struck me."

Daughter Struck.

The officer alleges that one of the men struck his daughter across the face. With the odds strongly against him, the officer appealed for help from several passing motorists in vain. Eventually Jack Downer, an employee of Canada Packers, came down the laneway from the farm and gave the officer valuable assistance. Otto Pue, storekeeper at Fraserville, came along subsequently and also threw in his weight on the side of law and order.

Meanwhile Mrs. Hornick walked half a mile to a telephone and sought the aid of city police. Constable Jack Naples and Provincial Constable David Silvester responded immediately, but further reinforcements were required in the persons of Constables Joseph Wheeler and Jack Thompson before the "Northumberlands" surrendered.

Constable Naples, with the assistance of Constable Hornick and Jack Downer, had to chase Robert Lawrie through the bush and across fields before he would submit to arrest. He was so violent that he had to be handcuffed. In his flight he shed his tunic, and in the melee that followed had his shirt torn from his back.

The disturbance started at 5.15 p.m., but it was seven o'clock before the last of the prisoners was safely in the lock-up.

BULL MOOSE CHARGES CAR

his reddened eyes rolled up at the car.

"I started to back up and when we were about 30 feet from him he charged like an express train. He hit us head on and his antlers went through the radiator.

"Both lamps were smashed and both front mudguards were driven in by the huge spread of horns. The bull went at us just the same as a dog at a cat.

Shook the Car.

"He shook the car savagely from side to side. At times he lifted the whole front from the ground. He broke clear and then smashed home four attacks on the front of the car.

"I was scared stiff, but managed to tell Burke not to make a sound that would attract the animals' attention to us in the cab.

"That bull was the maddest animal I ever saw.

"In the last charge he got to one side of the car and I went ahead under low gear. In two jumps the moose was in front of us and for four miles he kept threatening us as went on. From his horns dangled the radiator screen and one of the lamps.

"With no water in the car radiator we stopped at a creek to get water for the engine heated badly and and cool off the engine.

"The moose stopped about 25 feet to one side of us. He started to walk slowly toward us, all ready for battle.

"I yelled and threw some stones at him in the hope that he would scare, but he didn't scare. Then I made a mistake.

"I told Burke to blow the horn. The minute he did that moose came on us again and we only the charge by stepping hard on the gas and shooting by him to one side. A that he followed us for another mile and was only scared away by the approach of the Eastern Lumber Company truck driven by Louis Gibbs.

"Louis told us the moose had been on the warpath for about a week.

"The day before he saw it racing down the middle of the road with five wolves behind it that were frightened away by the approach of the truck.

"We are going to seek permission from the Department of Game and Fisheries to shoot the animal. We are afraid that it will kill someone."

In 50 years in the bush, Gravelle said, he had never heard of an animal attacking an automobile in such a manner.

KIWANIANS MEET IN CONVENTION

Governor Godington Urges Formation of New Club in District.

46 CLUBS IN AREA.

HALIFAX, Sept. 24 (CP)—Importance of extending the scope of membership in Kiwanis was emphasized to-day before the 16th annual convention of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime district by Governor Gordon S. Dodington, Toronto.

Addressing 500 club member, Governor Dodington made a plea for the organization of more Kiwanis clubs. "It is of the utmost importance," he declared, "that we bend every effort to the establishment of new clubs.

"Kiwanis is too vital and valuable to be withheld from other communities which it could serve so well. I would, therefore, request the utmost consideration on the part of every club in our district in this matter."

Three-Day Convention

The Governor's message, delivered as the three-day convention opened its second day with a business session, was devoted in the main to a review of district activities during the last year and to a report on the interntaional convention held at Toronto in June.

All clubs in the district, he reported, were in "good condition." The 46 clubs had a membership of 2,664 as of Aug. 31, an increase of 74 members in eight months.

Regret was expressed by the Governor at the resignation of Lieut.-Governor Dr. William F. Roberts, of the Maritime Division, because of ill health. The organization had been fortunate in having John N. Flood of Saint John, N.B., accept the post for the balance of the year, however, he added.

Delegates to the convention were welcomed to Halifax by Mayor E. J. Cragg and his address was responded to by Owen J. Callary of Montreal, Immediate Past Governor of the district.

District and international officers attending the convention were introduced by Stanley Lawson of Toronto, honorary secretary-treasurer, who was to present his yearly report later in the day.

Watch Smuggler's Launch Is Seized

BUFFALO, N.Y., Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Customs officials to-day announced they were seeking Nelson Jowdy, alias Nelson Debann of Niagara Falls, N.Y., for questioning in the seizure yesterday of a motorboat and watch movements valued at $15,000 in a chase on the Niagara River.

Captain L. E. Stephenson, chief of the border patrol, said Jowdy was the owner of the boat. The former said the pilot of the fleeing craft missed death only by inches as the Federal boat fired five warning shots across his boat.

The boat was found abandoned in marsh lands bordering the waterway and officials said the lone man aboard had escaped on foot. Search of the boat revealed 1,318 Swiss watch movements hidden in a locker. They had been shipped to Canada by way of Le Havre, France

CHARGE OF MURDER AID AGAINST BANGVALE MAN

PEMBROKE, Ont., Sept. 24.—(C.P.)—Cecil Riddle, Barryvale, Ont., was arrested yesterday on a charge of murder. He was taken to the county jail here to await trial.

The arrest of Riddle on the murder charge followed the death earlier of Nathaniel Stoughton, 48-year-old Barryvale farmer. Stoughton is alleged to have been struck on the forehead by a double whiffle tree last Wednesday and had been unconscious up to the time of his death. Following the alleged occurrence, Riddle was arrested on a charge of assault causing serious bodily harm and was released on $3,000 bail.

Coroner J. J. McCan, Renfrew, has ordered a post mortem examination to be made on Stoughton's body.

GERMAN CHURCH FEUD INCREASES

Opposition Declare Bishop Meuler Divorced Self From Christian Community.

IN DICTATOR'S POST.

BERLIN, Sept. 24 (AP)—A new burst of opposition was one answer to-day to the consecration of Reichbishop Ludwig Mueller as supreme head of the German church.

Dissident clergymen, while Mueller was being installed here, read a defiant declaration which called his consecration " the concluding act of a development which must fill all Christians with deep shame and sorrow."

"Bishop Mueller," the statement said, "Dr. August Jaeffer (Commissioner of Protestant churches in Prussia) and their followers have divorced themselves from the Christian community, abandoned the bases of the Christian church and have forfeited all rights thereto."

Opposition clergymen are fighting Mueller's sweeping decrees which they interpert to be leading to one national church. He has suspended many dissident pastors and has established himself as a dictator of the Protestant church.

Several of the Protestant bishops participating in yesterday's ceremony, garbed in robes, raised their arms in Nazi salute to Mueller—an innovation in Lutheran liturgial practice.

BALLOON RACE HAS 20 ENTRIES

Eighteen European, 2 American Bags Soar Away Toward Russia.

TRAVELLING HIGH.

WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 24 (AP)—No word had been received early to-day from the 16 European and two American balloons which set out yesterday in the 22nd annual Gordon Bennett Cup race.

Brisk winds pushed the big bags in the general direction of Russia as they floated away from Mokopow Airfield, beginning at 4.10 p.m.

The aeronauts were believed to be travelling at a high altitude, since currents were reported to be most advantageous at around 9,000 feet. The wind velocity was 26 miles an hour at that altitude at the takeoff but was expected to increase.

Thousands cheered the takeoff, made in brilliant sunshine. Winds were regarded as most favorable.

Georges Ravaine, French pilot, was unable to start because of equipment difficulty, but his balloon, the "Toron," escaped into the air without a basket and landed undamaged several hours later near the Jablonna works where it was built.

Permission for Ravaine to use a Spanish balloon came too late and the white-haired veteran wept with disappointment when he was not allowed to start. Spanish balloon was barred on French objections because entrance papers will filed after the deadline.

Order Hepburn to Bed For Four or Five Days

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Sept. 24. —(C.P.).—Premier M. F. Hepburn has been ordered by his physician, Dr. D. S. Carrie, to remain in his bed for four or five days at least in order to recover from the effects of the severe cold he contracted several days ago.

Premier Hepburn left his bed on Saturday evening to journey to Rodney and speak at the final meeting in the Elgin West by-election campaign. He appeared greatly improved in health Sunday evening, but early this morning he suffered a set-back, being seized with violent chills. His temperature rose to 102 degrees but was lower later this morning.

Dr. Carrie ordered Premier Hepburn to have absolute quiet and rest for a few days and to give up the idea of returning to his desk in Toronto. He had planned to motor back to Toronto late this afternoon or early this evening.

Final Victory For Petes Wins C.O.B.L. Championship

DISPLAY BIG EDGE ON NATIONALS TO WIN ABBREVIATED CONTEST 4-0

Petes' Batters Find Williams and Open Big Holes in Nationals' Defence.

CALLED IN FIFTH

Knotty Lee's battling Petes won the Art Johnston Trophy, emblematic of the Central Ontario Baseball League championship, here Saturday when they beat Belleville, 4-0, before two thousand fans in an abbreviated final game of the play-offs. Rain interrupted proceedings in the last half of the fifth with the locals at bat, and the game was called for half an hour. The heavy downpour soaked the diamond and Umpires Wash and Spring of Toronto finally called the contest off, with the home team getting the verdict.

The huge crowd saw the hustling Petes playing bang-up ball, behind sterling pitching by Russ Kitchen, in the short number to blank Belleville. They were much better on the play and would most likely have piled up the score had the game continued. The visitors cracked up badly from the start and committed five errors behind Williams, whose hurling was below form.

Kitchen in Form

Russ Kitchen won his second game of the play-offs by a fine display on the mound. The big right-hander had his sharp curve nicking the corners and held the Nats to a single in the first and one in the third while fanning two. Jack Williams, on the other slab, was reached for six bingles, including a triple and double, and failed to strike out a batter. His support was poor while Kitchen received perfect backing.

Utronki and Williams were the only ones on the losing team to get a hit. Murray tripled for the Petes, Foley hit a double and Kitchen, Batten, Ash and Burton got singles. Some smart fielding was shown by the victors, with an unassisted two-ply killing by Konopka and a put-out at first by Whatley features. On a bad threw from short to first in the third inning, the ball was deflected off Ash, but Whatley had run down to back him and grabbed the ball fast and tagged the runner who missed first.

Petes Start in First

On the toss-up to see which team was the home one, the Petes won and took the field. Utronki, first man up, singled sharply to left. He was sacrificed to second but Green's hot liner to short was snared by Konopka, who doubled Utronki off second. The Petes got a run in their half. Konopka flew out but Murray tripled through right and scored on an infield out. Foley walked but the next batter grounded out.

The Nats went out in order in the second, and the Lee crew got another run in their end. Burton reached second on Kerr's bad throw on his roller. He raced home when Kitchen singled to centre. With two out in Belleville's end of the third, Williams singled but got no further. The Petes came back to tally twice. Murray was safe on an error by Smith. Caladine sacrificed him and he scored on Foley's ringing double off the scoreboard. Foley raced in on Burton's blow to centre. Ash and Batten singled in turn to load the sacks but they died there when the next batter grounded out.

Kerr walked to start the fourth and moved up twice on outs but got no further. In the homester's half, Konopka was safe on an error and took second when Williams threw bad on Murray's sacrifice. They both advanced on Calladine's bunt but the next two went out. In the fifth, the Nats went out in order. Burton grounded out in the last half of the fifth when the threatening rain became a heavy downpour and the game was called. The crowd remained more than half an hour till, after the rain had stopped, the umpires examined the muddy diamond and declared the game definitely called, giving the Petes the league championship.

FIRST INNINGS GIVES VICTORY TO REDWINGS

Hilcher on Mound for Leafs is Forced to Retire After Very Bad Start.

SENSATIONAL FIELDING.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Sept. 24.—(AP) — Rochester Red Wings finally had broken into the winning column today in their final International League playoff series with Toronto Maple Leafs, but they still were in a precarious position.

After Rochester had won yesterday's game 9-2 the count stood three for Toronto and one for the Red Wings in the best four-out-of-seven series. The Wings thus must win the next three games, one here tonight and the last two in Toronto, in order to take the series and the right to represent the league in the little world series against the American Association champion.

Toronto needs only one more victory.

Sheriff Fred Blake, who won the first game of the series, probably will pitch for Toronto tonight. Either Norbert Kleinke or Johnny Michaels will get the call from manager George Toporcer of Rochester.

That Bad Innings

The Red Wings won yesterday's game almost before it had started. Walter (Whitey) Hilcher started for Toronto but was lifted before a single man had been retired. He walked Benny Borgmann and Toporcer, allowed a single by Estel Crabtree and walked Buster Mills before Manager Ike Boone replaced him with Lefty Cole. The latter passed one more man and was nicked for a single by Lewis and the Wings had four runs when the first inning closed. Cole was walloped for 10 more hits and five more runs before the end of the game. Crabtree added a home run to his first inning single and Mills contributed a triple and two singles.

Pete Appleton allowed the Leafs only seven hits, walked three and fanned four. He had the benefit, too, of sensational fielding support especially from Tommy Carey and Borgmann. The Rochester infield completed three double plays. Toronto's two runs came in the sixth on a walk, a double by George McQuinn and Boone's single.

Cognawagas Lose 10-Inning Battle to Milton 8-7

Casey Masterson Hurls Smart Ball, But Errors Prove Costly.

CADD IS BIG STAR

The Cognawagas lost on Saturday at Milton when, after leading for seven and a half innings, they blew up and were nosed out in the tenth by the narrow margin of 8-7. The game, first of the semi-final round in the O.B.A.A. play-downs, was a thriller from start to finish despite the errors furnished by the Clubmen.

Milton had one big inning, the eighth, when they scored five runs through the aid of some sloppy fielding and timely hitting to go out in front by a 7-6 score after trailing up to that time by four markers. Cogs tied it up again in the ninth as a result of Crary's single and Mein's double. Milton were unable to score in their half and the game went into the tenth frame with the count knotted.

Cogs were held scoreless in their half of the extra frame; then Milton got a man on base as the result of an error and with two down Lewis, shortstop for the Bricktown boys, came through with a double to virtually win the ball game.

Altogether Milton were able to garner but 10 hits off the delivery of Casey Masterson, who twirled beautiful ball throughout the contest, and collect but four earned runs, the other four being gifts, coming from the Petes' errors. K. Clement, one of three brothers on the Milton team, started in the box for the homesters but was blasted out by the heavy hitting Peterborough team in the eighth inning. While Marsh, his successor, was hit freely but his support was gilt-edged and he was returned the winning pitcher.

Cadd Features

Cadd was the hero of the game from a Peterborough standpoint, pulling off several sparkling catches in the field, the most spectacular of which was in the second inning when with the bases full he snared a hard hit looping fly ball at his shoe tops, and while off balance threw to second to double the runner who was half way to third. He also crashed the longest hit of the game, a triple coming in the 8th inning which caused the removal of the starting Milton pitcher. W. Clement also starred in the field for the opposition, gathering in many hard line drives that were ticketed for extra bases.

The hitting was very evenly divided, every man on the Cogs' batting order having at least one hit while Moore with three singles led the attack. For the winners the hits were shared mostly between A. Clement, W. Clement and Brush, each with two apiece to account for six of their teams 10 blows.

JUVENILES WIN FIRST OF SERIES FROM TORONTO

Their Power at Bat Builds Up a 12-2 Lead Up to the Eighth.

ARLINGTONS RALLY.

TORONTO, Sept. 24. (CP). Peterborough had a one-game grip on the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association's juvenile championship to-day as a result of Saturday's 12-10 victory in the first of their three-game series with Toronto Arlingtons. Another victory will give them the title.

Peterborough bats showed their power after the fourth inning when they built up a 12-2 lead by scoring in every inning up to the eighth, including a five-run splurge in the sixth, then almost saw it wiped out as Arlington rallied for eight runs in their half of the eighth. Arlington made their 10 runs in two innings, the third and eighth.

Peterborough combed the offerings of Sailor Barker and Minarksi for 17 hits while Arlington collected 14 off McIlmoyle and Cf. Clark with nine of them coming in the big eighth when McIlmoyle blew up and Clark relieved him. Arlington erred twice in the field and Peterborough once.

Thorburn, with two singles and a double that counted heavily in the scoring was the star batter for Peterborough with G. Clark and Connelly close behind.

SOFTBALL FINAL SCHEDULED HERE

Tweed and Barrie to Play Deciding Game of Series at Riverside.

Tweed and Barrie meet here tomorrow (Tuesday) at four in Riverside Park in the third game of their O.A.S.A. series. They are intermediate B teams and this is the Ontario semi-final series. Both teams won at home and they agreed on Peterborough as a neutral town to stage the third tilt. While both squads will likely have some of their own rooters on hand, a good following of softball fans from here is expected to take in this contest. Admission is fifteen cents.

Johnny Marchand, well-known locally in baseball and hockey several years ago, will be on the Tweed line-up. This outfit has lost only one decision in the O.A.S.A. paydowns and is a slight favorite to win here tomorrow and advance into the provincial finals. They play a snappy brand of softball in the "B" class and with so much at stake, tomorrow's fixture should be worth seeing. The series was best two out of three and this game will settle it.

Hastings Takes Lead In Final Ball Series

HASTINGS, Sept. 21 (Examiner Correspondence).—In the last game of the local season, Hastings defeated Keene 5 to 4 in the first of the two-out-of-three series for the East Peterborough Championships last night. Although outhit 16 to 12, the locals bunched them with better success.

The visitors got their four runs in the first inning, when they got to Whitred's offerings for four singles and a triple before a batter had been retired.

Freddie Whalen, on the mound for Keene, struck out six locals, while Whitred whiffed two of the visitors.

Whitred with two doubles and a single, led the local batters, while Hahn at third played sparkling ball around the hot corner.

NEW MARK IN BIKE GRIND.

OTTAWA, Sept. 24 (C.P.).—Diminutive Henri Ricard of Hull, Que., last night held the 50-mile Canadian amateur bicycle championship. In winning the closely fought grind here Saturday, the little French-Canadian was believed to have established a new record of 2.10.13, bettering the previous mark by 1 minute and 37 seconds.

YANKEES CLIP DETROIT LEAD AS ROWE LOSES

Cards and Giants Both Split Hard-fought Doubleheaders.

PITCHERS HAVE TROUBLE.

By Hugh S. Fullerton. Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

Detroit Tigers had reached the stage of the American League pennant race where they could be tied but not beaten to-day, and New York Giants probably were looking upon them with eyes filled with envy.

By dividing a doubleheader with the Browns yesterday winning the second game 2-1 behind Al Crowder's steadiness after Buck Newsom had outpitched "Schoolboy" Rowe to take the opener 4-3, the Tigers reached the spot where one more victory out of five games or one Yankee loss in six should settle the argument. They got there even though the Yanks took two close decisions from the Red Sox, 1-0 and 5-4, to clip a game off the Tiger lead.

Giants Split Double.

Meanwhile the Giants continued their struggle to reach the end of the campaign before the Cardinals could overhaul them with no gain or loss resulting from yesterday's bargain bills. Both contenders split even, the Giants beat Boston 8-0 in the opener on Roy Parmelee's four-hit pitching, then dropped an 11-inning afterpiece 4-3. The Cards also took a 4-3 defeat in their second game after pounding out a 9-7 decision over the Reds and remained 2½ games behind.

The pitching aces of the four big teams, with the exception of Parmelee and Lefty Gomez, ran into all kinds of troubles in yesterday's games. Gomez pitched a three-hitter to gain his 26th victory of the year, but Charley Ruffing had to go 10 innings in the second game after Lou Gehrig's 47th homer gave him a tie in the eighth. One of the St. Louis Deans followed Tex Carleton in the Cards' losing game after Dizzy had done a relief turn in the opener and Carl Hubbell failed to hold a good lead in the Giants' second clash although Joe Bowman was the loser. Rowe just couldn't compete with Newsom's four-hit flinging in Detroit's first encounter.

Cleveland Indians were the only team to win any of yesterday's long array of two-ply bills among the teams which have been eliminated from the pennant races. They trounced the White Sox twice, 2-1 and 5-1 as Monte Pearson and Ralph Winegarner allowed the Hose only 15 hits for the day, and Earl Averill socked his 30th homer.

Senators Defeat A's

Washington took one game from the Athletics, 2-1, in a hurling duel between Monte Wearer and Sugar Cain, but the second wound up in a 5-5 tie when darkness fell shortly after Pete Susko knotted the count with a ninth inning round tripper.

Playing the day's only single game the Cubs turned back the Pirates, 3-2, when Chuck Klein belted his 20th four-bagger and his first in a couple of months for the winning tally. The defeat returned the Bucs to fifth place, a half-game behind Boston.

The Phillies and Dodgers split an overtime twin bill, Philadelphia going 13 innings to take the first game, 4-2, and Brooklyn winning the second in seven frames, 7-2, with the aid of a five-run outburst in the fifth.

Mrs. Fraser Wins Open Golf Crown

TORONTO, Sept. 24.—Fourteen years after she had succeeded Miss Ada Mackenzie as the Canadian ladies' open golf champion, Mrs. W. G. Fraser of the Royal Ottawa Club took Miss Mackenzie's place on the throne, defeating the defending champion at the 38th hole at the Toronto Golf Club on Saturday. The final was the first that had gone extra holes since Miss Mackenzie had defeated Miss Kate Robertson at the 19th at Montreal to win her first title in 1919, and it was the third in the 29 years that the title has been played for, as well as the first since the final became a 36-hole affair.

The titular struggle was a great battle between two brilliant exponents of feminine golf.

C.G.E. MAINTAIN LEAD IN SOCCER

Triumph Over Deloro 4-1 to Remain Out in Front of League.

MARGIN ON PLAY.

MARMORA, Sept. 24 (Examiner Correspondence).—Though fielding a man short in the league game with Deloro on the latters' grounds on Saturday afternoon, C.G.E. maintained their lead in the Peterborough and District Football League, triumphing over their old rivals by 4-1.

Play was even for the first 15 minutes. Then the visitors broke away, and Bolton scored. Curtis, at the other end, was shortly afterwards called upon to stop a hard drive. Soon C.G.E. obtained their second goal, Earle netting after Smith had miskicked. Before the period ended, the visitors were three goals up, Gray deflecting Earle's shot into the net. Half-time score: C.G.E. 3, Deloro 0.

Opening the second half, the Smelters put on pressure, but a breakaway by C.G.E. resulted in another goal coming to them. In the closing minutes Jack Hart, who had gone to outside left in place of Stewart, scored for Deloro after Mitchell had miskicked.

The rain spoiled what otherwise would have been a splendid game to watch. The homesters showed the effects of the long respite that was forced upon them. Teams:

C.G.E.—Curtis, goal; J. Mitchell and Blowers, backs; Bolam, Jones and Burgess, half backs; Bolton, Earle, A. Mitchell and Post, forwards.

Deloro.—O'Neill, goal; Smith and J. Hart, backs; Gray, Cousins and Sproul, half backs; W. Hart, Bradley, Brooks, Brown and Stewart, forwards.

Referee—W. Harrington, Peterborough.

Tweed Ties Series With Barrie By Win

(Examiner Correspondence)

TWEED, Sept. 24. — Before a large crowd at the Memorial Park on Saturday afternoon, Tweed Seiberlings defeated the Barrie Aces 6-3 and tied up the series. The third game will be played at Peterborough on Tuesday afternoon.

Stan Luffman, the Seiberling pitcher was the outstanding player as he allowed the Aces only a few scattered hits and making the Aces hit to the air tight infield players.

For four and one-half innings neither team scored a run. In the last half of the fifth with Orr on third base, Don McCrea of the Seiberlings hit a home run making the score 2-0 for the home team.

Smooth Sailing For Hockey Now

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (CP)—Storm clouds which had hovered over National Hockey League affairs for the last few weeks had blown over last night and the major league looked forward confidently to the new season opening Nov. 8. In a hectic, ten-hour semi-annual session here Saturday the league magnates, under the guiding hand of President Frank Calder, successfully disposed of the troublesome Boston and Chicago rink problems, adopted a 48-game schedule, approved of the penalty shot and sliced a chunk off player salary limits.

Oshawa finished third in the C.O.B.L. race, going good this summer after a bad start. By beating Kingston regularly, they permitted Belleville to reach a payoff berth. The team used no less than 23 players altogether. Their fielding average was .953, while they hit as a team .266. The hiting and fielding of Wallace, their starry first-sacker—who was not with the team the last several games—was a feature. The official averages follow:

LONG DEBATES DEVELOP OVER PENALTY SHOT

Soon as Play Announced for N.H.L. Discussions Break Forth Over Merits.

PENALTY MARKSMEN.

(By George Maguire, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (CP) — Adoption of the penalty shot by National Hockey League rule-makers in semi-annual session here Saturday has started a discussion among experts and fans that threatens to even overshadow world series baseball developments insofar as the hockey-minded are concorned.

Only a few minutes had elapsed after President Frank Calder announced inclusion of the shot in the N.H.L. code, when hockey writers, men on the board of governors thoroughly familiar with the play and others who have never seen it, became embroiled in debate over not only as to who was the best prospect among present-day puckmen but also as to who was the best in the long dim past.

The consensus favored Howie Morens of Montreal Canadiens as the modern player most likely to develop into an outstanding penalty shot marksman.

William Tobin of Chicago Blackhawks, Frank Patrick and Art Ross of the Bruins, Newsy Lalonde and Leo Dandurand of Canadiens, Jack Adams of Detroit and James Callahan of Pittsburgh were among those believing Morens's spectacular style of shooting while skating at full speed should make him an ideal man for the shot.

Copied from the Pacific Coast rule book, it allows the sniper to shoot either from a standing position or while skating at top speed from the other end of the rink. The puck will be placed in a 10-foot circle 38 feet out from the goal. The play, as fashioned by the Patrick brothers when operating in the Coast League, called for a circle only five feet in diameter.

The Patrick brothers, Ross and Tobin, a quartette thoroughly familiar with the shot, rated Charlie "Rabbit" McVeigh, little "miracle man" of New York Americans, as about the best at it when he played in the west.

"McVeigh had a spectacular style," said Tobin. "He would dash full speed down the rink, swerve about and come at the puck at a great clip. When he was skating toward the circle and while he shot the atmosphere in the rink would become so tense one could almost hear a pin drop.

Make Big Hit.

Practically everyone expressed the belief the penalty shot would make a big hit with eastern fans.

A suggestion some of the old-time experts at the play might find the opportunity to stage a come-back and play only the role of penalty shotmaker was not received with any enthusiasm by the coaches. It would be too expensive, said one, to carry a player for that alone, although some of the older players now with the clubs may prove good at it and be retained a few seasons longer than they ordinarily would be.

Another mentor pointed out the League was full of prospective stars for the shot, such as William "Bill" Cook of New York Rangers; Charlie Conacher, Toronto Maple Leafs; Eddie Shore and Dit Clapper of Boston; Johnny Gottselig and Helge Bostrum of Chicago; Ebbie Goodfellow, Detroit; Baldy Northcott, Montreal Marcons, and Jerry Shannon of St. Louis.

Most of the coaches intimated they would include penalty shot schooling in their pre-season training operations to determine the player or players best fitted for the role when the season gets underway.

VARSITY SQUADS ARE DEFEATED

St. Mikes Take U. of T., While Queen's and Western Also Suffer Losses.

IRISH IMPRESSIVE.

The Intercollegiate Union, which makes gridiron stars in a great hurry, was to-day on the wrong foot. The Collegians, who start training after everybody else and suddenly blossom out as pretty tough football warriors by November, had the usual early September drills Saturday.

University of Toronto's champion Blues were humbled by St. Michael's College of the O.R.F.U. in one end of a double header that inaugurated the football season in Toronto. The score was 11-5. Queen's accepted a 13-1 defeat from Hamilton Tigers of the Big Four and the Western Mustangs were overpowered by Sarnia Imperials, 21-0.

Toronto Argonauts, 1933 Canadian champions, opened the new campaign with a 17-7 victory over Balmy Beach in the city series, qualifying to meet St. Michael's College next Saturday for the title Hamilton's O.R.F.U. seniors defeated Kitchener-Waterloo Panthers, intermediates, 14-0 in another exhibition contest.

Irish Triumph.

It was an impressive opening for the Big Four and O. R. F. U. squads. The triumph of Bill Storen's Irish schoolboys over Varsity stood out above any other accomplishment, leading to the belief Sarnia's O.R.F.U. titlists may run into real trouble on their way to a third straight championship. Ten thousand Toronto fans got the impression St. Michael's would improve with every start.

Even with Bob Isbister punting superbly, Varsity was consistently on the defensive as the Irish halves, Hugh Marks, Joe Connolly, Bill Ripley and Ken McKernan ran and passed their way for big gains. Marks sent a 20 yard forward pass to Jimmy Burke for the game's only touchdown.

Leads the Tigers.

Patterson, ball-carrying quarterback, led the Tigers to their decisive win over Ted Reeve's Tricolor brigade. Patterson scored both Bengall touchdowns. Frank Turville and Mike Valeriote, former Argo halfback, played prominent parts in the debut. Young Johnny Munro, ace punter of the Argonaut junior team last season, was the Tricolor star.

At Sarnia, the Imperials showed nearly mid-season form in flattening Western. Ormond Beach, former Kansas Aggies halfback, impressed critical Sarnia fans, but it was the old guard of Norman Perry, Alex Hayes and Bummer Stirling who did the scoring. Hayes dropkicked two field goals and converted both Imperial touchdowns scored by Perry and Rocky Parsacs. Stirling forced a safety touch with one long punt.

Argos also brought out a starry newcomer, Bob Clark from Niagara University. His passing an dball-carrying were one of the features in a generally high-class Sculler display. Tommy Burns booted three field goals from placement and Ab Box forward passed the ball to Paul Clancy for a touchdown. Clancy, an outside wing, comes to Argos from Niagara U.

Hi, champs, how does it feel? Judging by the broad grins decorating the faces of the Petes, newly-crowned C.O.B.L. champions, after the game Saturday here, it must feel pretty swell. President Hugh Campbell was strutting around looking like Frank Navin of Detroit and who can blame him? Only prexy of the club for three years and he has a winner. Knotty Lee, wily and battling coach of the Petes, was wearing that smile that won't wear off, and finding his pan hardly big enough to accommodate that smile! And the players—well, there was no holding them at all. Yeah, it's a grand and glorious feeling after all those years. Two thousand fans looked pretty happy too as they left the park.

* * * * * *

Too bad the game didn't go the full distance, but at any rate it was a real break for the rain to hold off just long enough for the Petes to cinch the verdict. They went out there, after two straight losses which evened the play-off series up, grimly determined to knock off the Nats. There was no stopping them. They looked much better in the four and a half innings played and it's dollars to cookies they would have doubled that score at least in nine frames. They were in front, 4-0, when the rain came down and the umps called it off.

* * * * * *

Fortunately, they were neutral arbiters, Messrs. Walsh and Spring of Toronto. They didn't give a hoot who won and neither side could kick. They called it off half an hour and then walked around the diamond to see if it was fit for play. Nope, they decided it was too muddy—and rightly so—and called the whole thing off. As the Petes were the home team and were ahead at the end of four and a half innings, they naturally won the game and the title. Feeney Mills and his team didn't object at all—in fact, they hurried over to the Petes' bench and congratulated the winners, wishing them luck in the playdowns.

* * * * * *

Belleville cracked up in this game, as lots of the experts figured they would. They had played over their heads the two previous games, and Williams had pitched too brilliant a game the one before to expect him to repeat. He didn't have much on the ball, and his team kicked in with five errors. On the other hand, Russ Kitchen again hurled a great game—his third smart performance, and second win, in the series—and the Petes went fine both at bat and in the field. They began to hit again and it twas just a question of how much they would win by. Whatley looked good defensively and Konopka's unassisted double-play helped a lot. Then Murray's triple and Foley's double ocne in right handy. They played like champs and deserved the win.

* * * * * *

We talked to Chief Williams afterward. He told us he was just thirty-three (but we think he knocked a couple of years off), that he had started pitching in '16, had hurled seven years in the States, was up for trials with Rochester twice, and thought he had a couple of more season's flinging left. "I'd like to have been pitching for your team this summer," he said, "as I would get better support." He thinks the Petes are a good team and should beat the Grads of Toronto. Jack pitched four of the five play-off tilts and won two. Not bad for a veteran who doesn't spare his left flipper with the knucklers and hooks he tosses. The Nats are good losers and always good opponents.

* * * * * *

Our Cogs went to Milton Saturday and lost out in an 8-7 ten-inning battle, too many miscues by the Clubmen costing them the tilt. They ought to win here when they play at four Wednesday in the Exhibition Grounds, although Milton aren't any slouches. Casey Masterson hurled a good game and Cadd starred offensively and defensively, with the other Cogs going good in spots and not so hot in others. The winner of this series will most likely get a bye into the intermediate finals. After all, Cogs have certainly done their share of travelling so far.

* * * * * *

Herb Ralph's juvenile Terriers showed their long layoff didn't do them any harm when they journeyed to Toronto Saturday and knocked off a 12-10 win over the classy Arlingtons at Viaduct Park. The Terriers had a substantial lead till the eighth when McIlmoyle, after chucking million-dollar ball eased up somewhat and the homesters jumped him in a hurry to pull up close. Clark finished in neat style. The Ralph gang certainly hit that pill and look like the winners of this semi-final series. At this writing, it wasn't settled definitely when the return game would be held here.

* * * * * *

Keene was well out in front at the Bowl Saturday but the game had to be replayed to-night at five in the Bowl, with the next fixture slated for Keene on Thursday evening. If a fifth contest is necessary, it will be played in the Bowl next Saturday eve at five bells. This five-game gals' softball playoff series is getting more puzzling all the time. The teams are so evenly matched, we wouldn't bet a plugged nickel on the winner, even if we had a plugged nickel to spare.

SOCCER MATCH IS WASHED OUT, FIELD FLOODED

Packers Outplayed Caledonians in an Uninteresting Tussle.

PACKERS 6, SCOTS 1.

Canada Packers defeated the Caledonians by six goals to one in a league game, on Saturday afternoon, before a fair attendance of spectators. The losers were only able to field nine players against the winners' full eleven. With only fifteen minutes to go a heavy downpour of rain obliterated the lines on the field of play, the referee declared the game off and the pitch unplayable.

Goals Aplenty

In the early stages, the Packers were more aggressive and bombarded the Caley's goal, McCracken compelling the goal-keeper to make a spectacular save. Then a mis-kick by a full back permitted Newt. Downer the opportunity to open the scoring. A little later, McCracken connected with a fast drive that the custodian had no chance to stop. With only nine men, the Scots failed to carry out their attack to completion through the lack of inside men. The Packers retaliated and added two more goals to their count through N. Downer and D. Evans when they broke through the defence. From a long pass by Green, Lovatt, on the right, centred the ball into goal where Gore headed a beautiful goal. They kept up a steady barrage of shots upon the Packer's goal to witness their efforts of no avail through the clever tactics of the defense. Just before the interval, Dyer sent a terrific drive into goal where the Packer's goalie conceded a fruitless flag kick. Half time, Canada Packers 4, Caledonians 1.

Half Time

After five minutes' play, G. Downer broke away on the wing to finish with a swerving kick that altered as it was met by the custodian to divert it out of his reach. Newt Downer evaded the fullbacks on the next visit to register the sixth counter. Green replaced Mayette in goal and played a brilliant game to hold the Packers' sharp-shooters scoreless for the rest of the period until the rain stopped the play. Canada Packers 6, Caledonians 1.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

THE WOODBINE got away to a nice start on Saturday afternoon when twelve thousand fans thronged the beautiful east end course to do battle with the iron men. The plant never looked in better shape with the whole place freshly painted and the grass and flowers in the infield not even touched yet by the autumn frosts. The Highlanders band which has for many years been a feature of every Woodbine meeting were on hand with their usual snappy music.

The feature race of the day, although marred by the last minute scratching of Listaro, resulted in the most spirited finish of the afternoon, when Ryland H. New's Lipton and Eddie Seagram's Gay Sympathy came under the wire so close together that they looked like twins. When the judges gave the decision to the former there were more boos than cheers as more than half the crowd thought that the Seagram colt was slightly in front. J. E. Smallman, the popular London owner, had the honor of collecting the first purse of the meeting when his good sprinter Quickly managed to get down in front of a classy field in the opening set-to of the afternoon's program. We might mention right here and now that this same Smallman stable will gather in a lot of purse money before the Canadian season closes as their horses are in wonderful condition. Miss Christie's Rock Lad, for whom she refused an offer the other day of ten thousand dollars, was the winner of the steeplechase event.

TRIGLING, the former Hatch Canadian bred has popped up down at Rockingham and will be a winner before many moons. We have no hesitation in recommending this one very highly in any sprinting event. Another one at the same place that will be a sure fire winner is Cab-use who has been burning up the track in his workouts and it will just be a case of hanging up the numbers. Traffic Judge likes to go over a distance of ground and lately they have been spotting him in six furlong events, so when you see him entered in a longer affair it will be your cue to go and get a ticket on him as he does not fool when sent with serious intentions.

The C. V. Whitney color bearers and pride of the American turf world, the famous Equipoise seems to be through for this season which will tend to make the rich autumn handicap affairs more open events. His hoof which has been bothering him more or less for the past year has not responded to treatment the way his owner would have liked, so rather than run a chance of injuring him permanently they have practically decided to take no chances. Wise Ann, belonging to Billy Weant will grab off a sprinting affair before the present meeting at Woodbine comes to a close.

CHAPTER 47

Later in the evening when she and her lover were alone, Joan said: "I wish I hadn't given Rose my fan."

"Why?"

"Oh . . . I watched the two of you dancing this afternoon . . . and she . . ." she hesitated, then brought it out. "Drew, what was she saying to you?"

He looked at her for a moment, then laughed and drew her to him. "You were jealous?"

"Just for a minute."

He bent his head down to her. She lay very still in his arms. Oh, why should she be afraid of Rose, when Drew adored her?

And now March was well on its way, and in April they were to be married. The days and nights were packed to the brim with engagements, but Drew would often take Joan away for a walk, and they would wander together to the old part of the city near the way where Columbus set forth on his great voyage. There they would mix with a motley crowd—sailors from their ships, peasant women gaudy in their green shawls—boatmen in scarlet and blue, pigeons flashing against an azure sky.

At times they would stop in an incense-scented church and would kneel together. Drew had no beliefs worth mentioning: "I worship you, my saint," he would say to Joan, and she would thrill to that, and then wish wistfully that he had something more splendid than human love to inspire him When she told him that, a little breathless because it was all so sacred, he would shake his head: "I'm a heathen, dear heart. And I am afraid I shall never be different."

The nights were marvelous . . . cold and clear and golden . . . packed with romance. As they rode on and on, they could catch now and then the echo of a throbbing voice . . . and stop and listen . . .

"O galleys bound for Cadiz,
Spread out your silver oars,
And bear me to my captive love,
Who waits me on the moors . . ."

It was all very wonderful and perfect, in spite of the doubts, which knocked now and then at her heart. Joan built castles in Spain . . . shadowy, with ivory towers and silver spires . . . and with dim gleaming corridors where she and Drew would wander hand in hand through all their lives and on through countless ages.

* * *

It was in March that Giles came to Paris with Amelie and Scripps. It was exciting and rather like a play, this resurrection of an atmosphere which belonged to the past. Quarters were found for Amelie and her companion in the same pension where Amelie had stayed during the war. They explained the doctor's plan for this patient and asked her to co-operate. "There are times when she may seem strange. We hope you will notice it."

It was when Scripps first appeared in uniform that Amelie gave him startled attention. She turned to Giles with a pitiful question: "What do I remember?"

"About Scripps?"

"Yes."

"Try to think."

"I wore a uniform, too?"

"Yes."

"With red crosses?"

"Yes."

"And w dined here . . . and had caviar and pancakes . . ."

They had chosen this restaurant—a Russian place on the Seine, because they had hoped she might remember. It was individual and interesting, with the waiters in costume, and music that was typical and at times barbaric. There is a secluded corner, the three of them had dined years ago. They had now the same table . . . and Amelie remembered!

She flashed a glance from one man to the other. "Why did we come—tonight?"

"To have caviar and pancakes."

Giles' tone was light, though every nerve in him was tense.

They let it go at that, but were startled a bit when she asked: "Why were we all here then?"

Scripps leaned forward. In his eagerness his face took on an effect of youth and good looks. His uniform was becoming, and gave him the well-set-up look of a soldier. "Because you and I were lovers, Amelie, and Giles was our friend."

A frown fretted her forehead . . . "Why should you tell me that," she demanded, "when it isn't true?"

So the moment passed, and they went on heavily to talk of other things.

As the days passed, however, Amelie seemed like a person waking slowly from a dream—there was for example the afternoon when Scripps took her to the American church where they were married. They went alone and Scripps told Giles afterward how as they stood in the dimness and darkness she had caught his arm and had said in a strange voice: "With this ring, I thee wed . . . where's my ring, Scripps?"

He had taken it from his pocket, for it had never left him since she had discarded it, and had said "May I put it on?" and she had held out her hand, and he had whispered, "As long as we both shall live, Amelie," and for just one moment, she had leaned against him and had let him touch her cheek with his lips. Then she had drawn away, and by the time she reached home she seemed to have forgotten . . .

She continued to wear the ring, but there were days when she refused to have anything to do with Scripps—days when she insisted that Giles should go everywhere with her, when even their most careful plans brought no memories.

Now and then Scripps grew desperate. "I am not the same man and she knows it. She hates weak things. You know what she said of old Peter?"

"Wait," Giles advised, "she'll come to it. The real woman in her is sweet and kind. Have patience, Scripps, and it will work out."

Yet even as he said it, he wondered. It was hard sometimes to keep his faith in life. There was so much that was cruel, so much that was difficult and devastating.

He and Scripps were stopping at a pleasant and quiet hotel, and it was the night after their conversation about Amelie that Giles went for a walk. He had no destination, he was restless, and had felt that physical exercise might help lift the depression which weighed him down.

The street into which he came from the hotel was brilliant with electric lights. To the right and left were shops, closed now, but with their windows golden and their wares displayed. He loitered to look and found himself caught in a maze of speculation. What would happen to the world of commerce if women ceased for a time ot buy the things which were brought from the ends of the earth for their beautifying? All through the ages, merchants had come to cater to feminine loveliness—beasts with their silken burdens had crossed the mountains, ships had sailed with precious fabrics packed in their holds. In later years there had been trains and motors, trucks and air transports. Women's belongings? A world built about them!

He passed a shoe shop and stopped as he saw shining behind the glass a pair of silver slippers. They had buckles like those on the slippers which had first brought Joan to him. He found himself wanting them. A silly idea, perhaps, but none the less one in which he resolved to indulge himself. He would come tomorrow and buy them and set them where he could look upon them and see Joan in all her grace and girlishness.

He had not heard from her. It had been, perhaps, too much to hope that she would write. Yet he had thought her friendship might concede something more than silence.

It had not. There was, however, the chance that his letter had not reached her. He had her address in Barcelona. It had been given him by the mother of the children he had met in the woods. He had wanted to write again but had kept himself from it. After all, why should he? She had gone, of course, to be with the Hallams. He had read in the papers before he left that they were sojourning in Spain. It meant, of course, that Joan was with them.

Oh, well, such things must be endured. If only she was happy! If only the little ship had not been lost on the rocks . . .!

He went on and on. A fine mist was dimming the light of the street lamps. He knew he ought to go in, but he knew, too, he could not sleep When at last he reached his hotel he was cold and wet. As he entered his room it seemed to fairly shriek with loneliness. The wind blew strongly against the window. The sound brought memories of other storms across the sea . . . he thought of Dilly shut in with love . . . of the glow of her hearthstone, of the child in her arms. He thought of his own future. Not much to think of. He would have no other woman in it but Joan.

To have known her and then to have lost her! A man who had lost by death a beloved woman might find peace perhaps in the thought of a reunion. But to lose her to another man . . . a man like Hallam . . .! "I could have made her happy. I know I could have made her happy. But if she married Hallam . . . God help her."

The next morning he went back to the shop where he had seen the silver slippers. It was a very exclusive shop . . . and the price of the slippers was high. But he cared nothing for that, and presently he had them, done up in a parcel and under his arm. The salesman hoped that the size was right. It was always, he asserted, a risk to buy shoes without fitting them. Giles said with a smile that there would, he thought, be no trouble. He had chosen a pair that were slender and small like Joan's pretty feet.

Then, as if his thoughts of her had brought her to him, he came face to face with Joan as he was leaving the shop.

They stared at each other as if they were seeing ghosts, then Joan held out her hand, "You aren't real, are you?"

(To be continued.)

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, September 25.

The lunar aspects for this day are interpreted as promoting sudden moves and changes, involving contacts with strangers and fresh interests and surroundings. While these involve important financial activities, with much promise of success and the support of those in power and authority, yet an element of fraud, trickery or subtlety should be guarded against.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively year, with important change, new interests and traffic with strangers in strange places.

A child born on this day may be skillful in original or ingenious ways, be ambitious, proud, independent and position by its talents.

CHURCH PARADE WELL ATTENDED

Over 160 N.C.O.'s From Peterborough and District at Divine Service.

AT S. JOHN'S CHURCH

Over 160 warrant officers and sergeants representative of Peterborough militia garrison and district units, combined to make the annual parade to St John's Church on Sunday morning, a most successful military event.

Major (Rev.) R. C. Blagrave, D.D., prefaced a brief sermon with a warm welcome to the gathering of N.C.O's on behalf of the congregation of St. John's In remarking upon the parade as having become an "annual institution" Archdeacon Blagrave referred to the difficulties under which the militia units were being held together.

Not only had government appropriations been cut to a minimum, he pointed out, but there was also a certain atmosphere of discouragement to all military activity. Personally he did not believe that existence of the militia was indicative of a war-like spirit, least of all among the people of Canada.

On the contrary, Archdeacon Blagrave was of the opinion, "our country owes a great debt to these men who still carry on in the old spirit of much discouragement" and he stated, "parades of this kind help to keep that spirit alive."

The Scripture lesson was read by R.Q.M.S. H. Chate of Peterborough Rangers, who incidentally, had charge of details in connection with the parade. R.S.M. J. Gaskell also of the Peterborough Rangers was in command.

Units represented on parade included; Peterborough Rangers, 3rd Prince of Wales' Canadian Dragoons, 4th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Battery Canadian Field Artillery, all from the local garrison. In addition there were representatives of Victoria and Haliburton Regiment, Lindsay; Argyle Light Infantry, Belleville; Northumberland Regiment, Cobourg; Durham Regiment, Port Hope; Canadian Artillery, Belleville and Cobourg Batteries; and Canadian Army Service Corps, Toronto.

Following Divine service the parade returned to the Armouries by way of Water street, headed by the band and drums of the Peterborough Rangers, under Sergeant E V. Patterson.

A saluting base was established in Victoria Park where Lieut.-Colonel Claire H. Stuart, O.C., Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons took the salute. His staff consisted of Major A. B. Mills, V.D., second-in-command of Peterborough Rangers and Lieut. James McGrath, M.M., also of the Rangers.

On the way to the Armouries for dismissal the parade halted at the war memorial in Confederation Park, where tribute was paid to the memory of those who paid the supreme sacrifice. On behalf of the combined units represented in the parade, a wreath was deposited at the memorial by O.Q. M.S. David Clarke of the Rangers, after which the buglers sounded "Last Post."

During the service at St. John's a trio of boy choristers sang the anthem "Oh Loving Father" (Teresa Del Riego), accompanied by Fred G. Mann, L.Mus., at the organ. The choristers were Fred Hooper, Jack Hooper and Wallace Crouter.

CANADA CREESE STILL IN DEMAND AMONG BRITISH

Can Sell All We Produce at a Premium, Rotarian G. A. Gillespie Declares.

DAIRYING HISTORY.

Speaker Tells How New Zealand's Industry Has Been Steadily Developed.

That Canada had lost a large portion of the British market for cheese, not because Canadian cheese had deteriorated in quality but because other uses had been found for Canada's milk production, was the explanation given by Rotarian George A. Gillespie in addressing the Peterborough Rotary Club on the subject of dairying. Rotarian Gillespie said that in spite of the gains made by New Zealand, Canada could still sell all the cheese she produced in the British market and at a price one cent and a half or two cents a pound higher than that paid for New Zealand cheese.

The speaker gave a most interesting address on the history of Canadian dairying. The first cheese factory was built in 1869 near Ingersoll, he said, and the first cheese exported two years later. The Cheese Board system was inaugurated in the 80's, and in 1903 Canadian cheese swept the boards at the Chicago World's Fair, earning for the product the distinction of being the best cheese in the world.

"It still holds that reputation," said Mr. Gillespie.

The peak year for export was 1904, when Canada supplied 76 per cent of the cheese imported by Great Britain. Meanwhile New Zealand had entered the picture and gradually increased her exports until by 1930 she was supplying 319,000,000 pounds of cheese to the British market as against Canada's 75,000,000 pounds.

The speaker described the development of dairying in New Zealand, and the great strides made in that country, as a result of more cows, more land under dairying and greater production. Canada's need, the speaker said, was to secure more milk per cow than was at present being obtained.

The Canadian farmer was not patronizing the cheese factories, Mr. Gillespie said, preferring to make money out of other forms of milk products. Twenty-five years ago there were 36 factories within a radius of fifteen miles of Peterborough, while to-day there were only five factories in the same area.

The speaker dealt with various phases of dairying progress, and stressed the importance of pasteurization. It was the law, that whey and milk from cheese factories had to be pasteurized before being fed to calves and hogs. Yet raw milk could be supplied to human beings.

The value of milk products for food purposes was pointed out by the speaker, in conclusion.

It was announced that Rotarian Jack Bell was being transferred to the head office of the C.G.E., Toronto, and President J. F. Reed eulogized his services and expressed regret over the fact that he would have to sever his connection with the club.

CLOTHING FOUND SENT TO CANADA

Body Found by Fishermen of Port Au Port Has Been Buried in Newfoundland.

NEVER IDENTIFIED.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Sept. 23.—(C. P. Cable.)—The body found by fishermen off Port au Port, at first believed to be that of Jack Smith, intrepid canoeist who attempted to paddle across the Atlantic, has been buried in the little fishing village where it was washed in by the waves. Newfoundland Department of Justice officials said yesterday all attempts to definitely establish its identity had failed.

The union rubber suit covering the body were forwarded to Canada for close inspection by acquaintances.

The adventurer who started from Peterborough, Ont., left Gaspe in his frail craft early in the summer. His canoe, "Pride of Peterborough," was rolled up by the breakers on the Newfoundland coast on August 20 and is now on its way back by steamer and rail to relatives in the ill-fated paddler's home city.

On news of the finding of the body by the fishermen at Port au Port, Earl Smith, brother of the paddler in Peterborough, expressed doubt that the remains ware those of John Smith. The rubber suit and overalls were not in the adventurer's equipment when he left Peterborough and he had no intention of buying such clothing, Earl Smith said. As the body was badly decomposed through long exposeure in the water, no other basis of identification could be established. Earl stated at the time that, as far as he knew, John's teeth were free from injuries or other dental markings through which identification could be established.

Informed of the burial of the body which may be that of his brother, Earl Smith this morning revealed that neither he nor other members of the family have had further word from Newfoundland authorities. Although the clothing found on the body are reported to have been sent to Canada for identification, they have not been received in Peterborough. It is likely, however, that those who saw the paddler last as he paddled out into the Gulf of St. Lawrence from Gaspe would be given first chance to identify them.

Authough Smith had no union rubber suit or overalls with him when he left Peterborough and had no money or intention to buy them, sympathetic friends at Gaspe may have donated the garments. He set out from here with a pair of cream-colored flannels, a leather jacket and rubber shoes as the chief items of his wardrobe. He was convinced that such an outfit would be sufficient for his intended paddle across the Atlantic, but acquaintances may have persuaded him otherwise before he set out on the Gulf crossing.

LINDSAY DRYS WANT LIQUOR REFERENDUM

Will Urge Town Council to Submit Question at Same Time as Municipal Elections.

MUCH DRUNKENNESS.

If Council Refuses Then a Petition Will be Circulated Demanding the Right.

LINDSAY, Ont., Sept. 24—It was announced to-day that in view of the great increase in drunkenness following the opening of the beverage rooms, steps will be taken to bring about their abolition. At a meeting of the Lindsay branch of the Ontario Temperance Federation it was decided to have the president, Rev. Gordon M. Holmes, pastor of Baptist Church, and the secretary, Frank Weldon, approach the town council to discuss the question of submitting a referendum.

It is the suggestion of the executive that the town council hold the referendum along with the municipal elections, which will be on the first Monday in January. By so doing, the expense of voting on a separate issue would be done away with.

Feeling Not Known

While the feeling of the town council in regard to this question is not known at present time, the executive feel that no objection will be forthcoming from the town fathers in regard to this most important issue.

If the majority of Lindsay citizens wish the present condition to exist then, according to the laws of the country it must go on, and nothing can be done about it. If, however, a comparatively small number of the townspeople are revelling in the new administration of beer and wine to the detriment of the majority, then it is felt that the matter should be made clear and an adjustment made.

The one way to do this, the executive feel is by referendum, and they are hopeful that this may be arranged without unnecessary expense and trouble.

Should the council for any reason feel that the people are not entitled to a vote ,they can be overruled by a petition signed by 25 per cent. of the taxpayers of the town demanding a vote.

Obituary

GEORGE WINN

DOWNEYVILLE, Sept. 24. (Examiner Correspondence)—The funeral of the late George Winn was held from the family residence Saturday morning to St. Luke's Church, Downeyville, where requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father - McFadden. The late George Winn was born in Emily 89 years ago and resided here all his life. He was highly respected by all who knew him. Left to mourn his loss are one daughter, Catharine at home; four sons, Robert J, Daniel, J. Patrick T., and Arthur, all of Emily. His wife pre-deceased him a number of years ago, also several brothers and sisters.

ROBERT PORTER

BALLYDUFF, Sept. 24. (Examiner Correspondence).—The pretty little rural cemetery surrounding Ballyduff presbyterian Church was the resting place on Saturday of the remains of another sturdy pioneer of Manvers, Robert Porter, of Lotus, who was buried from the home of his son Walter, who with his daugter, Mrs. Wm. Coulter, also of Pontypool, survives him. The late Mr. Porter was ninety years of age.

MARY BISHOP

66 Years Old— Feels Like 30

Dodd's Helped Him Keep Well

"After the war I hurt my back whilst clearing up a new field," writes F. J. Read, Sleeman, Ont. "I could hardly walk. If I stooped over I could hardly straighten up again. They said it was Lumbago and rubbed my back with liniment. I also tried plasters and a big woollen belt. Nothing seemed to help me. Finally I was advised to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. About the second day the pain seemed to leave my back. After I had taken three boxes I was O.K. I am only 66 years old this Spring but feel as good as I did 30 years ago." D10

TWO OLD POLITICAL PARTIES SOLD OUT

therefore, will be a friend of the world becomes himself an enemy of God."

A great deal of confusion has resulted in interpretation of this text, remarked the speaker. In mediaeval times, withdrawal to monasteries and convents was regarded as the best protection against the spirit of the world.

"And even in modern times, there are people who advocate that method, and say that participation, even in an election, is unworthy of a Christian.

The World And Its Evils

The "world" referred to in the text, said the speaker, has to do with a reference in the Lesson read yesterday, taken from the second chapter of the first Epistle of John: "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world, for if any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him." And in that world are the things he speaks of, "the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of life."

"It is the world of evil and of sin, the sum total of all the things in the world that are against God."

"Consider the liquor traffic. Is it a good thing? It stands condemned through all history as one of the major evils of society. As Gladstone said, it has been the cause of more misery than all the war, famine and pestilence combined. If this is true then, we know, according to the words of James, that if you or I become friends of the liquor traffic, we become enemies of God."

The reverend speaker descussed his subjects in three areas, considering first young people in the area of their personal practice.

He declared that those who say they can take a glass of liquor and then leave it alone, forget that in so doing they put a public seal of approval on liquor-drinking.

"For some young person, following your example, may end in ruin. Let no man or woman who professes to follow Jesus Christ say: 'I can do as I like!' You can't. And by giving your endorsation you become a friend of an evil thing and an enemy of God."

The First Drink

Considering next the practice with regard to home life, Rev. Mr. Cobourn said that many a youth commenced a career of drunkenness by hesitating to refuse the glass of wine pressed upon him by his "charming, smiling hostess."

"For she may not know and you (and I am speaking particularly to the women) cannot know that he has inherited, not an appetite for drink, for that is not possible, but a nervous constitution which makes him terribly susceptible to alcohol. He takes the first drink and likes it, and it is the commencement of a career that only too often ends in ruin.

"If you make yourself a distributor of narcotic poison, you become an enemy of God."

In the third area, the realm of citizenship, youth was menaced by the greedy promoters of the liquor traffic, asserted the speaker.

He said that one of the major heads of brewing concerns in England had declared recently that the industry must secure new customers and that the drinking habit must be instilled into millions of the young people of England who were now unacquainted with the taste of beer.

In Winnipeg, on a recent visit, he had been told of a man, a former wagon-driver for a brewery, who had now become a "contact man" for the concern. His method is to establish contact with young people's groups,—athletic, literary, social and the like, supply them with free beer for their gatherings, and then, after obtaining names and addresses of members, procure orders for beer.

Adolescent Youth

In Los Angeles, where beer saloons have been open for a year past, the School Board, becoming concerned over beer-drinking procilivities in boys and girls of school age, investigated, and discovered that thirty per cent. of the patrons of such establishments were young people of both sexes under 21 years of age.

"In Ontario, just two or three weeks back, on one Monday morning in Police Court, there were 63 men and women charged with drunkenness, the largest number in that city since before the days of the O.T.A.

"We find the effects also in the increased number of highway accidents.

"This thing will have to be settled in the area of citizenship," the speaker asserted, closing with an appeal that, when the issue is to be decided, that personal prejudices and party affiliations will be disregarded in the fight for the temperance cause.

"For, even in local option areas that have been dry for years, we find now greedy liquor interests trying to break in."

Taking a Chance

WHEELING, W.Va., Sept. 24 (CP)—Before him was the home of Patrolman George Garrison. On his right was the dwelling of Detective Roy Diggs, and on his left, the residence of Deputy Sheriff Russell Riggs.

But a thief walked off with a flower box from the front porch of the patrolman's home.

ALL OF CANADA WAITS RESULTS

the result. In Elgin West R. W. MacDonald is running as an independent against H. C. Borbridge, Consevative, and W. H. Mills, Liberal. Mr. MacDonald was one of Premier Hepburn's chief aides during the Provincial campaign in June but is opposing the official Liberal candidate.

Toronto East finds a political veteran attempting a comeback. Thomas L. Church, former member of parliament and for seven years Mayor of Toronto, is the Conservative candidate. Mr. Church failed to gain election in Toronto West Centre at the last General Election when that riding made the first break in "Tory Toronto" and sent a Liberal to parliament.

2 Opponents for Church

Mr. Church is opposed by Major H. P. Sneigrove and Graham Spry who carried the banner of the Co-operatine Commonwealth Federation. Mr. Spry is a young man from the West who went to Oxford as the Manitoba Rhodes scholar, served for several years as secretary of the Association of Canadian Clubs and was a leader in the campaign which resulted in national control of radio in Canada. He is a leading figure in the Ontario ranks of the C.C.F.

In Kenora-Rainy River the candidates are Joseph Derry, Conservative, and H. B. McKinnon, Liberal; in Frontenac-Addington, W. R. Aylesworth, Conservative, and Colin Campbell, Liberal, and in York North. Harold Brusls, Conservative, and Col. W. P. Mulock, Liberal.

Conservatives have based their campaign squarely on the record of the Bennett Government. They have appealed for an opportunity to continue their work, which, they argue, has brought Canada through the depression better than most other countries and set it squarely on the road to recovery. The investigation into unethically and unsound business practices carried on by the Stevens Committee was cited as an instance. Mr. Stevens himself declared his intention of pushing the inquiry to a finish and promised remedial legislation next session.

Trade Policies Assailed

Liberals assailed the government's trade policies and Mr. King denounced Mr. Stevens as a hypocrite in connection with the Price Spreads investigation. He claimed the minister should not have spoken in public of the abuses revealed until the inquiry was finished. Mr. King said if the Liberals were successful in the fight it would be an expression of public opinion the government should not ignore and he announced his intention of demanding an immediate general election.

A general election is due next year and sweeping success for either party now will be hailed as a good omen. The contests are a sort of preliminary trial of strength, particularly apt because all are in Ontario which has just turned overwhelmingly Liberal in provincial politics, because of the scattered and varied character of the constituencies and because the government's record is the chief issue with few local issues to obscure it.

Toronto East is a wholly urban seat, Elgin West is partly rural and partly urban having the city of St. Thomas within its borders, York North is rural and so is Frontenac-Addington while Kenora - Rainy has a large labor vote and is in the North Country. The five ridings make up a sort of cross section of the dominion.

Four Liberals, One Tory Elected

2 GOVERNMENT SEATS ARE LOST IN HEAVY VOTE

North York, Frontenac-Addington Go Liberal With West Elgin, Kenora.

CHURCH HOLDS TORONTO.

Heavy Rural Vote Gives W. H. Mills Premier Hepburn's Old Seat.

BY W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Political prophets today renewed their study of the signs to determine what the results of Monday's five by-elections may portend. Campaign kites that flew from Kenora-Rainy River on the west to Frontenac-Addington on the east came back to earth recording four Liberal victories out of the five contests for the House of Commons.

Continuation of the Liberal trend that marked the advent of the new Ontario Liberal government three months ago was seen. Whether this presaged an earlier general election for the Dominion or an indication of the results a year hence was the problem the political minded pondered.

The supporters of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King scored a net gain of two seats and brought their total in the house to 92. They retained two seats previously in the Liberal column.

Results of the five by-elections brought from Mr. King a statement that the electorate should demand a general election before the next parliament meets. The by-elections "like all that have preceded them in the last two years, disclose how completely the present administration has lost the confidence of the people," Mr. King declared.

Church Lone Tory Victor

The single Conservative victory went to the veteran campaigner T. L. Church, K.C., in Toronto East. The popular ex-member held safe the seat for Conservative ranks after a bitter three-cornered fight and brought to 135 the total seats held by the party of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett.

Reverses to the Conservative cause came in York North, adjacent to the City of Toronto, and Frontenac-Addington. Liberals held their position intact in Elgin West, the riding vacated by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn of Ontario and Kenora-Rainy River.

Three of the four successful Liberals are less than 50 years old. The oldest is 52 and the average age of the four is just under 43.

Upset in Frontenac

In Frontenac-Addington, a rural riding that extends far north of Kingston, Colin Campbell tossed his 33 years into the fight and emerged winner in the closest approach to a startling upset. The young mining engineer made history by being the first Liberal candidate to carry the riding—in its present or former makeup—for his party. His margin of victory over W. R. Aylesworth, Conservative standardbearer, was approximately 2,645 in a total of more than 16,667

BURGLARS' TOOLS FOUND IN LOCKER AT STATION

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Sept. 25. — (C.P.)—A quantity of gelignite, several detonators and time fuses, geared brass drill, a lock-picking instrument and two flashlights were all found in a baggage locker at the railway station by police to-day. The discovery was made following the arrest of Victor Bertrand of Winnipeg and William Evans of Montreal, on charges of vagrancy. A key to the baggage locker was found in possession of the two men.

RAIDERS.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Sept. 25 (CP). —Extra guards have been added to the night shift at Rockview Penitentiary, but the prisoners have nothing to do with it.

The anticipated "break" will come from the outside.

The job of the new guards is chasing away deer which have been breaking into the prison farm vegetable patch in the early morning hours.

Successful Candidates in By-Elections

As a result of the miniature general election held in Ontario yesterday to fill vacancies in the Federal house, four Liberals and one Conservative were elected. Above are shown the victorious candidates. Top row (left to right): H. B. McKinnon, Liberal, Kenora; W. H. Mills, Liberal, Elgin West; Colin Campbell, Liberal, Frontenac-Addington. Bottom row, (left to right): Col. W. P. Mulock, Liberal, North York and T. L. Church, Conservative, Toronto East.

LAUNCH LINER ON WEDNESDAY

Secret of Name for World's Greatest Ship to be Broken Then.

QUEEN TO OFFICIATE.

CLYDEBANK, Glasgow, Scotland, Sept. 25 (AP)—The best-kept secret of the shipping world, the name of Great Britain's giant ship "No. 534," will be officially revealed tomorrow by Queen Mary, when she launches the luxury liner.

"Britannia" is strongly tipped in shipping circles as a likely name. "Queen Mary" would be the favorite except that it is not customery for a living queen to lend her name to a vessel. "Victoria" and, since the engagement of Prince George and Princess Marina, "Marina," have also been suggested.

King George will speak prior to the event, marking the first occasion for a vessel to be launched before the King and Queen and the first time a Queen of England has performed the naming rite.

The Prince of Wales will be present.

The vessel, whose length of 1,018 feet makes her the world's largest liner and whose displacement will be about 73,000 tons, will be launched diagonally across the River Clyde into the mouth of the Cart which has been dredged to give the great hull sufficient room.

Departed Kiwanians Honored By MacNabb

HALIFAX, Sept. 25 (C.P.), — A plea for better co-ordination within the ranks of Kiwanis was voiced to-day before the 16th annual convention of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime district by W. R. Cockburn of Toronto, international vice-president of the organization.

Greater co-operation should exist between clubs, the international representative declared in an address before the 600 Kiwanians attending the three-day conference, slated to close this evening. He urged also that efforts be directed towards the formation of new clubs.

Isaac P. McNabb of Peterborough, Ont., past international trustee, in another address to-day, paid tribute to departed members. Their spirit could best be kept alive he asserted, by the exercise of charity on the part of living members toward their fellows.

Ways of Wives

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 25 (CP).—John J. Fay, Jr., was sent to prison for scarring his former wife's face with acid. Fay was divorced from his second wife at Columbus last Saturday. Thursday, State Penitentiary officials willing, the first Mrs. Fay will remarry him within the walls. They have two children.

DEMAND LAWYER BE RE-ARRESTED

London Crown Attorney Claims He is Ready to Start Three Charges.

IN BLACKMAIL CASE.

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 25 (C.P.).—Crown Attorney N. F. Newton demanded to-day the re-arrest of Vincent T. Foley, London lawyer, charged with extortion, when his case was called for preliminary hearing. Foley, who was released on $10,000 bail last Saturday, was not in court.

"I am ready to proceed with three charges against Mr. Foley, and others will be laid. He should not be out on the present bail, and I reluctantly ask that he be arrested."

Foley was represented in court by Dr. J. L. Duffy, his physician, who told the court that Foley was in bed with a nervous breakdown. He asked for a two-week adjournment.

Magistrate Scandrett granted one week adjournment, and said Mr. Foley must appear at that time.

STURGEON RIVER BRINGS KLONDIKE DAYS TO ONTARIO

Easy to Get in—If One Has Money—But Getting Out is Different.

PLANES WAIT FOR NONE.

Trains Run as Irregular—8 Companies Leading Rush for Gold.

(Written for the C.P. by Leslie Roberts.)

JELLICOE, Ont., September 25 (By Airplane from Sturgeon River—C.P.). — The Sturgeon River gold rush is merely a modern version of other gold rushes in other regions. The gospel of every man for himself still goes all the way.

The rush for yellow wealth operates smoothly one way. There is no difficulty for even the most inexperienced gold-hunter to reach the fields — if he has the money. Once here, then he can figure out how best to get back. It will depend on his reserves and his luck.

There are two ways of reaching the new gold finds, rated by old-time prospectors the most spectacular showings of the last decade. You can go in by riding down the Canadian National Railway line on a speeder for five miles to a bridgehead and then travelling 30 miles by canoe into the camps.

Or you can go by airplane to Lake Windikogan or Lake Coyit. In the event of travelling via the air route to Lake Coyle, the road to the rush thereafter leads through the bush for three miles to the Sturgeon and the camps. To understand what is happening along the Sturgeon, you should ride down the river.

Guide a Boon.

If you have a guide in the gold sector, you can't go wrong. You can reach the scene of activity and either ride down the river to a destination or starve on the riverbank, depending entirely whether you have a kicker and guide.

Aeroplane companies wait on no man. The writer came up the river to meet a pilot at Lake Coyle. The date was made for four o'clock, to allow for flying time out to the railway tracks. The plane arrived with a geologist and engineer as inbound passengers, unloaded, waited 30 minutes and departed.

Meanwhile its outbound passengers arrived on the beach, waited, wondered and, after wondering, set off through the bush three miles to the U.S. Smelters camps for the privilege of eating and of throwing down bedrolls for the night. The next day clouds and rain sat down on the trees and it was late afternoon before a plane came in. If it

Tom Longboat's Debut Into Politics Proved a Failure—Conacher Won The Day

TORONTO, Sept. 25 (C.P.) — Tom Longboat's debut into politics was a failure. His man was beaten. Lionel Conacher won the day.

East Toronto's Federal by-election campaign developed into a "battle of sound" many days before voting yesterday. Major H. P. Snelgrove, the Liberal candidate, had no better loud-speaking equipment than his Conservative foe, Tommy Church. They were tied in noise.

As the campaign approached a climax the rivals rolled their public-speaking apparatus through the streets on trucks. Sometimes the trucks were parked on opposite sides of the street with the amplifiers going full blast in an effort to drown out the other. On these occasions speaking was out of the question. The loud-speakers would emit band music.

The campaign was very even along the loud-speaker front. Pedestrian electors gave the political

FARMER ADMITS FIRING SHOT AT HIRED MAN

Joseph Cowan, Otonabee, Guilty of Shooting at Douglas Brazendale.

BOTH LOST TEMPERS.

Altercations Followed Argument Over Amount of Plowing Being Done.

Josiah Cowan, Otonabee farmer, charged with shooting at Douglas Brazendale with intent to do bodily harm, admitted on trial before Judge S. L. Smoke this morning that he had fired a shell from his shotgun after the fleeing youth on September 11 following an altercation about alleged neglect of his work.

Is Found Guilty.

Judge Smoke found Cowan guilty and passed suspended sentence for a period of two years. Mr. Cowan also has to report to the Provincial Police every two months. His Honor, in giving judgment, said that on the evidence he was convinced that Cowan shot at Brazendale with intent to do bodily harm as charged.

The Cowan farm is about ten miles from the city, and is rated a "very good home for a boy" by John Edgar of the Children's Aid Society who placed the young man on that farm nearly six years ago and again last winter. Mr. Cowan formerly worked in the Canadian General Electric factory before taking up farming.

An altercation arose between Cowan and Brazendale during the morning of September 11, when the young man left his horses standing in the field he was plowing to go to the house for a drink. He had previously spent some time in a neighboring orchard eating apples, according to Cowan's account of the fracas.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., conducted the prosecution and G. N. Gordon, K.C., was counsel for the accused.

LINDSAY FIRM SEEKS CHANGES

Asks Reduction of Customs Tariff on Motor-car Wheels for Use on Railways.

STINSON MISSED TRAIN.

OTTAWA, Sept. 25.—(C.P.)— A brief session of the Tariff Board to-day was taken up with the application of the Sylvester Manufacturing Co., Ltd., of Lindsay, Ont., for a reduction of the customs tariff on motor-car wheels, spark coils and carburetors when used in the manufacture of motor cars for use on railways.

The Sylvester Co. was not represented. A telegram from T. H. Stinson of Lindsay, an official of the company, to Chairman George H. Sedgewick advised that due to an automobile accident last night he had missed the train at Peterborough.

Other Firm Represented.

In connection with the application, the Fairmont Railway Motors, Ltd. of Toronto, were represented by M. J. Patton, tariff consultant, and A. R. Fletcher, general manager. His company, said Mr. Fletcher, was neutral in the case, neither supporting nor opposing the Sylvester Company's request. However, the Sylvester Company had put on record in its brief a number of references to the Fairmont Company which Mr. Fletcher considered ought to be corrected.

He denied that the Fairmont Co enjoyed any special import privileges.

LINCOLN, Neb., September 25 (C.P.). — W. A. Randall must never drive an automobile again as long as he lives. He offered that promise in asking that he be put on probation instead of being sent to jail for 30 days for driving while intoxicated, and Judge Lincoln Frost took him up on it.

PRINCESS, SON JOBLESS SPOUSE TO BE DEPORTED

London, Ontario Council Grants Passage Money Back to England.

HAD LONG, HARD STRUGGLE

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 25 (CP)—Brightness followed weeks of dismal worry and uncertainty in the lives of Princess Alexandrovina, her English husband, and their 11-year-old son, to-day, as word was taken them in their cheap fourth floor flat, that city council had at last had a change of heart and had authorized money for their passage back to England.

Since away back in August, when the pitiful case of the little family, with its mother of Russian royal blood, came to the attention of the relief department, ways and means had been studied that might help solve their case.

The husband, Cecil John Windebank, it was made known to officials, came to Canada with his little family and for a time succeeded. His wife, the daughter of Prince Alexander Shanovskoy, of Moscok, who in turn was the son of Princess Alexander, head of the Czar's bodyguard in Petrograd when the revolution started, had gone through untold privation and adventure, escaping in tetror during the revolution. But when she finally met and married in England, her troubles seemed ended. Fate smiled on the family. Then they came to Canada, and again fate smiled, until—illness, serious operations, more illness wracked the frame of the little wife of royal blood.

Under the mental and financial strain the husband's nerves weakened. Depression conditions made it more difficult for the husband to succeed, and finally, when they was no other resort, the husband appealed to the relief offices.

Reports recently presented by Dr. Harris, local M.O.H., added the last bit of authority council needed for authorization of the passage money back to England where the husband has both relatives and friends, and where he believes he can make a new start.

CANNERS STRIKE AT BURLINGTON

Police Are Called to Preserve Order—Men Charge Low Wages Paid.

GIRLS GET 18 CENTS.

BURLINGTON, Sept. 25.—(C.P.) —When some 20 men employed at the Aylmer canning factory went on strike for increased wages and shorter hours, the local police were hurriedly summoned to preserve order. The men maintained that wages of from 15 to 25 cents per hour were being paid, and sought increases. The trouble started on Saturday when the men refused to go back to work after a 10 hour day. Returning yesterday, the men found that they had been replaced.

W. Wiley, manager of the firm, admitted that wages of 15 and 20 cents an hour were paid new men taken on, but added that increases were given later on. A majority of the workers were receiving 25 and 27 cents an hour.

Girls at the factory are paid 18 cents an hour and by a special permit issued by the Provincial government, the company is allowed to employ the girls and women on night shifts up until 11 o'clock.

In honor of 783,000 horses killed during the World war a memorial has been dedicated in London.

Aboard U. S. Coastguard Cutter Mendota, Newport, Sept. 25. —(CP)— Footing swiftly in an 11-knot breeze the white-hulled defender of the America's Cup, Harold S. Vanderbilt's Rainbow, this afternoon led T. O. M. Sopwith's challenging Endeavour across the finish line after 30 miles of reaching and beating in the sixth race of the series.

If the protests registered by both yachts as they flew signals from their main shrouds, are disregarded the United States retains the silverware sought by British yachtsmen for 83 years. But the actual result of today's race must await the ruling of the race committee. If they decide against Sopwith and not against Vanderbilt the Rainbow will have won four races and the cup. If Endeavour's protest is allowed and Rainbow's not allowed the series will stand three all. If both boats are adjudged at fault today's encounter will be no contest with the standing as before three to two.

55 Second Lead

The defender slid across the finish line at 2:20:05, exactly 55 seconds ahead of the challenger, which finished at 2:21:00.

The committee announced a hearing on the complaints probably would be called for tonight as soon as the formal protests are fyled.

NEW MINE BLAST ADDS TO DEATHS

Welshman Dies as Fumes Wreck Sealed Shaft—700 Children Fatherless.

262 NOW DEAD.

WREXHAM, Wales, Sept. 25. (C. P. Cable).—Another big explosion in the Gresford Colliery today blew off the sealing that had been done yesterday and caused another death, bringing to 262 the toll taken in the fire and explosions since Saturday.

The shaft had been sealed with nearly all the bodies inside, but fire and gas burst through the sealed ventilating shaft this evening. George Brown of Rhostylen, member of the skeleton staff on the premises 20 yards and fatally injured.

The shaft will have to be resealed.

Meanwhile 2,500 men have been thrown out of work, either directly or indirectly. Seven hundred children are fatherless.

Subscriptions are pouring into numerous relief funds, one newspaper having colected $55,000 in the first day. Distribution from these funds began to-day. Most of the bereaved have no resources, as the district was only just beginning to recover from the depression.

Thieves Wreck Car And Escape In Fog

CHATHAM, Ont., Sept. 25 (C.P.). —Aided by a dense fog, two robbers who broke into a garage in Tilbury at an early hour and stole a quantity of cigarettes eluded the Chatham police in a mad race over city streets about five o'clock this morning.

Constables Peardon and Currie lay in wait for the thieves, who were reported on their way to Chatham about 4.30. As the stolen car passed the constable gave chase, but their car was too slow. After dodging around several corners, the thieves jumped out while their car was running at high speed, and got away in the fog. The car, stolen in Windsor, crashed into a Hydro pole.

MISSION CIRCLES OF PRESBYTERY HOLD BIG RALLY

Gathering is Held in Banquet Hall and S. S. Auditorium at St. Andrew's.

TALK ON KOREA.

Brief Pageants and Plays Presented by Several Circles.

A pleasant program was provided for the hundred or more young women and ladies who attended the fifth annual Mission Circle Rally of Peterborough Presbyterial of the W.M.S. of the United Church of Canada, held last night in the banquet hall and Sunday School auditorium of St. Andrew's Church, with Mrs. W. H. Morton, who is Presbyterial secretary for Young Women's Mission Circles.

Features of the program of the evening were the presentation of brief pageants and plays by members of the Young Women's Mission Circles of St. James and George Street United Church, and a talk on Korea, given by Miss Eleanor Stacey of St. Andrew's.

Representatives of the various United Churches of the city who have Young Women's Mission Circles, were present in numbers, with several young ladies from Lakefield, accompanied by Mrs. W. Leonard. Lakefield has no Circle as yet, but hopes to be organized this year. Hastings and Westwood, on account of the state of the roads, were not represented, and Millbrook Circle, which was programmed to present a play, also failed to appear.

The representation from the city, however, was excellent, as demonstrated in the roll call during the supper hour. With a total membership of 19, George Street sent 18 Circle members; 20 out of 25 members were represented from St. Andrew's; 27 out of 44 from St. James', and 24 out of 31 from Trinity Church.

During the supper hour, Mrs. Morton extended a special welcome to several ladies holding senior offices: Mrs. A. I. Brown, president of the Presbyterial; Mrs. B. L. Barns, recording secretary of the Branch and also president of the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Church; Mrs. W. Leonard of Lakefield, vice-president of the Presbyterial, and Mrs. E. J. Wagar, press secretary of the Presbyterial.

Report of Summer School

The supper, a sumptuous repast served by members of the hostess Mission Circle, St. Andrew's, with the head table centered by a silver basket filled by bronze and yellow helenium, was featured by a report presented by Mrs. E. Mesley, who has been nominated to the office of Young Women's Mission Circle secretary for the Presbyterial, to succeed Mrs. Morton, in accordance with a rule limiting the years of office-holding, on the proceedings of the Summer School at Whitby attended by her this year.

The school, designed for leaders of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, and held under the auspices of the Bay of Quinte Conference branch and of the Rural Welfare Conference of the Ontario Board of Religious Education, took place at the Ladies' College, Whitby, during the week of August 27th.

Mrs. Mesley gave a comprehensive and graphic resume of the sessions, holding the attention of her listeners with her mildly-toned and interesting outline.

The Blessing was pronounced by Mrs. C. V. McLean; words of welcome from St. Andrew's Circle were heard from Miss Helen Tremain, and the response was voiced by Miss Evelyn Routly of George Street Church Circle, the speaker taking occasion to comment on the appreciation of the members for the splendid work done by Mrs. Morton both in organization and encouragement of the Circles.

Greetings from the Branch Secretary of Circles, Miss Vestina Spargo of Bowmanville, were read by Mrs. Morton, while Mrs. A. I. Brown brought greetings from the Presbyterial

"The heart of every woman in the Presbyterial is with you in your work," she said. "We need the young women to carry on the work just as you need older women for advice and consultation."

Mrs. B. L. Barns, bringing greetings from the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's, suggested that the members think greatly of those girls in the society who move to other places, and send on letters to Circles in their new abodes, also that they "think greatly of temperance in these strenuous times."

"We may admire our new Premier for his ideas of economy, but we cannot admire the ideas of degradation that are surely coming to us. We are giving to Canada for liquor two hundred million dollars a year and it is the duty of you girls to consider this and to consider your own actions if temptation comes to you, even if it be only in the form of a proffered glass of wine."

After-Supper Program

A much-enjoyed entertainment followed, presented in the Sunday School auditorium, with Mrs. Morton presiding.

After devotional exercises by members of the Circle of Trinity Church, with Miss Edna Forster reading the Scripture lesson and prayer offered by Mrs. E. P. Legon, and Miss Alice Cocks at the piano for the hymns, members of the George Street Church Circle presented a brief and entertaining bit of stage work, portraying an incident in Mrs. Hollister's Travels, from last year's Study Book: "Lady Fourth, Daughter of China." It was a clever bit of mimicry, with a quintette of young ladies taking part, and a baby "by herself." Miss Irene Cox was the narrator, and members of the little cast were the Misses Florence Glenny, Addie Wright, Ethel Mills, Frieda Allison, and Nellie Boorman.

An illuminating and detailed outline of the historical background and present religious status of Korea, was given by Miss Eleanor Stacey of St. Andrew's Circle, whose entertaining talk was received with much appreciative applause. Miss Stacey referred to the ancient history of a land which, in the year 2333 B.C., before Abraham's time, worshipped a Supreme Being of their own naming, and later, to the way in which Christianity has advanced in the land. First introduced by Catholic missionaries in 1836, the Protestants took up the work later of Cristianizing the Koreans, and, from a nucleus of 414 converts in the early years, advanced sometimes four-fold within the years that came after, until many thousands of the natives were enrolled under the banner of Christ.

"Avenues in Africa"

The main feature of the evening's program was a carefully presented and cleverly-arranged pageant entitled "Avenues in Africa," the original composition of Miss Connie Wagar of St. James' Church, and designed to present in realistic fashion some of the elements which enter into work in the Mission fields. Members of the Mission Circle of St. James' Church took part, with Miss Jean Hammond introducing the pageant in a few words.

The names of most of those taking part were designed to portray their object in life. And the majority, supposed to represent the spirit or ethereal image, of the thing portrayed, were arrayed in graceful flowing white garments of Grecian design.

Mary, a pretty young thing who has just settled herself on a couch for an evening with a box of chocolates and a new magazine, is interrupted by a brief visit from the president of the local Mission Circle, who desires her attendance at the evening's meeting. Mary refuses and the visitor departs, offended. Then Mary has some unreal visitors who reproach her with neglect, explain exactly what their functions are in the field of missionary endeavor, and finally persuade her by their eloquence, to forget her own selfish desires and think of those in foreign lands who may be helped by her and others like her.

Miss Muriel Moorhouse was exceptionally natural and effective in the role of Mary, and Miss Nina Andrus was satisfactory in her brief appearance, as Anne, president of the Circle.

Those who come to disturb Mary's selfish withdrawal from missionary endeavors and cause her to repent, are Miss Connie Wagar, as Miss Study Book, explaining her own lore to the girl; Miss Lillian Baldry, as Miss Mite Box, who bewails the fact that "Miserly Mary," as they call her, has given so little to her during the year; Miss Gladys Langton, as Miss Shunary Monthly (Missionary Monthly), accompanied by a mine of information in the blue-clad Miss Annual Report, played by Miss Jean Rose; and the tearful and accusatory Miss Layde (Mislaid) Monthly Envelope, with Mrs. F. Vannest as the emaciated envelope, forgotten by the owner. Autumn and Easter Thankoffering Twins who add their reproaches, are enacted by Miss Dorothy Drysdale and Miss Vera Davis.

Finally, Mary sees the error of her ways, and her name is changed to "Missionary Mary."

At the conclusion of the pageant, which was received with much applause, Miss Margaret Wolstenholm of Trinity Church Circle read three letters from one of the missionaries, Miss Vera Boyd of India; the presentation of the banner was made to the winning Circle of Trinity Church. George Street stood second; Miss Edna Forster received the banner for Trinity Church.

Registrars for the evening were Miss Ethel Mills of George Street Circle, and Miss Jennie Smart from St. James' Church Circle.

A table of curios from countries served by missionaries in whose work the Young Women's Mission Circles are interested formed an interesting display, with a very lifelike baby alligator, mouth hospitably opened, as one of the striking items in the exhibit.

Mrs. Morton expressed thanks to all, who in any way helped to make the rally a success.

Butter, cheese, bran and pollard, oilmeal and oilcake, oats, wheat and rye flour, lard, bacon and hams, salted beef and pork, condensed milk, refined sugar, unmanufactured, unstemmed leaf tobacco, potatoes, onions and lubricating oil are some of the agricultural products supplied by Canada to Barbados, the most easterly island of the British West Indies.

Woman Who Was Powerless With Rheumatism

HOW DOES ANYTHING SHE WANTS

Another case of rheumatism of long standing has yielded to what has become to be recognized all over the world as the one really scientific treatment. The woman herself writes as follows:—

"After suffering for eighteen years from rheumatism in my arms, hands, legs, and feet, I decided two months ago to give Kruschen Salts a trial. I am glad to say I have received great benefit from them. I have attended hospital for electrical treatment, and tried numerous so-called remedies, none of which have benefited me at all. My hands have been so bad at times that I have been unable to hold anything with them. Since taking Kruschen Salts, I have been able to do practically anything I want. I shall always recommend them."—(Mrs.) L. B.

Unless the kidneys—or body filters—function properly, certain acid wastes, instead of being expelled, are allowed to pollute the bloodstream and produce troublesome symptoms; rheumatism for one, excessive fatigue for another.

What is needed is a special kidney aperient. Ordinary aperients cannot do the work. In the light of present-day knowledge, Kruschen Salts is one of the finest diuretics or kidney aperients available for assisting the kidneys to excrete acid impurities by direct action on the renal cells, thus causing a more rapid and copious "flushing" action and washing away of these harmful acid waste products.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

Fearless

MIDDLETOWN, N.Y., September 25 (C.P.). — Armed ruffians who roam the highways in the night bring no fear to Mrs. Henry Leopold of White Mills, Pa.

Ignoring a pistol which a highwayman pointed at her and her husband after stopping their car near here, the intrepid Mrs. Leopold smashed a flashlight over his head.

With a yell of pain, the bandit ran to his car, obtained another weapon, shot at a tire on the Leopold machine, and went on his way at breakneck speed.

PRINCESS BORN TO ROYAL COUPLE ITALY REJOICES

Wide Celebrations at Event Take Strong Fascist Flavor.

PRIVATE BAPTISM.

By JOHN LLOYD
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

NAPLES, Italy, Sept. 25. (AP).—Rejoicing at the birth of a daughter to Crown Prince Umberto and Princess Marie Jose took on a Fascist flavor to-day.

An official proclamation plasterer on walls throughout the city welcomed the tiny Princess Maria Pia to a land "revived" by Blackshirts.

"We rejoice over the dawn of this life, which comes at a moment when a new light shines for the future of Italy, revived by Fascism," the proclamation of city authorities said "We hope the august eyes now just opened may never behold anything more beautiful than our Italy."

The infant was born at 11:15 last night in the royal palace. She is the first child of Umberto and Princess Marie Jose, daughter of the late King Albert of the Belgians. They were married in Rome

Gifts for a Prince

Dozens of Fascist Balilla uniforms, adaptable to wear by a male tot as soon as he is old enough to put on a shirt, are among the gifts for a Prince who did not arrive. They were sent to the royal palace from all parts of the country by peoples of all classes.

Many gifts, which practically fill a room, were mute testimony of hopes that vanished when the child proved to be a girl. Had it been a boy he would have been heir-apparent to the throne.

The little Princess was to be baptized privately in the Catholic faith this morning in a chapel in her mother's private apartment, where the Crown Princess could look on from her sickbed. Both she and the infant were reported to be doing well.

Only the two Queens, Elena of Italy, mother of Umberto, and Elizabeth of Belgium, mother of Marie Jose and Umberto's sister, Princess Mafalda, were expected to be present. The official baptism will take place October 16.

2 RIDINGS SET VOTING RECORDS

Toronto East Piles Up 27,733 Against 19,771—Frontenac 16,240 Against 11,493.

ELGIN NEARS PEAK.

TORONTO, Sept. 25.—(CP)—Toronto East, and Frontenac-Addington had new polling records to their credit today as testimony to the interest in yesterday's by-elections. Elgin West was not far behind its peak voting mark.

Complete returns from Toronto East showed 26,510 votes were cast against 19,771 in the 1930 election and 17,086 in the 1926 election. Thomas L. Church, Conservative, obtained 13,027; Major H. P. Shelgrove, Liberal, 10,943 and Graham Spry, C.C.F., 4,689.

The vote in Frontenac-Addington, where Colin Campbell, Liberal, defeated W. R. Aylesworth, Conservative, totalled 16,240 with three polls of 88 still to report. In 1930 11,493 ballots were cast and in 1926, 12,960. Yesterday Campbell got 9,389 and Aylesworth 6,871.

Mitchell F. Hepburn's successful 1930 campaign brought out Elgin West's record vote of 18,603. Yesterday the total was 16,908 as Mr. Hepburn's successor in the federal riding, W. H. Mills, won with 9,622. His Conservative opponent, H. C. Borbridge, got 6,724 and R. W. MacDonald, Independent, 562.

SOPWITH FACING ODDS ON SIXTH RACE OF SERIES

To-day's Course, 2 Reaches and 10 Mile Beat to Wind, in Defender's Favor.

FEELING RUNS HIGH.

By ANDREW MERKEL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

NEWPORT, R.I., Sept. 25.—(C.P.)—Skippers and crews of challenger and defender were astir early this morning for what may prove the final race of the present series for the America's Cup.

Rainbow, representing the New York Yacht Club, holder of the trophy for 83 years, has only to win one more race in order to clinch her defence of the silverware, while Endeavour, representing the Royal Yacht squadron, must win two straight to succeed in her mission.

The chances to-day were the cup would remain in the United States.

T. O. M. Sopwith, skipper of Endeavour, expressed himself last night as "bitterly disappointed" with the treatment he has been accorded. While he and his crew, made up partly of Corinthians, can be depended upon to contest every inch of the remaining mileage to be sailed, there is a feeling, not to be downed, that the series has passed from a contest among yachtsmen to a business to be concluded as decently as is possible under the circumstances.

Legitimate Protest

This is because of the New York Yacht Club's refusal to entertain a legitimate protest against Rainbow in Saturday's race, when the Britton claimed he was fouled twice.

Sopwith's showing in yesterday's race was again disappointing. He had trouble setting his spinnaker because a twist in the sail became fouled in the headstay. Instead of leading the defender down the wind by six minutes, as he did in previous race under similar weather conditions, he trailed her by nearly five.

The challenger again proved her superiority on the wind, but the margin was not sufficient to make good the loss sustained by a misbehaving spinnaker and the erratic course sailed running before the wind.

The Crew.

Rainbow, it has been apparent to all, has improved since the start of the series, whereas Endeavour's performance has been the reverse. There are many reasons for the situation, but probably the most telling one has to do with Endeavour's crew. The opinion is generally expressed in Newport that Sopwith made his costliest mistake when he put his old professionals ashore and shipped amateurs rather than meet a demand for higher wages.

No mishandling of Endeavour has changed the popular belief that she is a faster boat than Rainbow and more sympathy is being expressed in Newport for Charles Nicholson, designer of the invader, than for anyone else connected with the invasion.

The current series for the America's Cup is the longest in the history of competition for the famous trophy in the number of races sailed. The fifth race yesterday equalled the record and the concluding race or races exceed it.

To-day's race, which will follow a triangular course calling for two reaches of 10 miles each and a threah to windward of ten miles, should favor the defender. Similar weather conditions to those prevailing yesterday are indicated.

BENNETT MUM AT LIBERAL GAIN

Had Expected to Stay in England Some Weeks But May Sail Sooner.

PROBABLY OCT 6.

GENEVA, Sept. 25 (C.P. Cable).—"I have not seen the details, and should prefer to make no comment," said Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada to-day in connection with yesterday's five Federal by-elections in Ontario, when his Liberal opponents captured two Conservative seats and held two Liberal seats, Conservatives holding only one.

Premier Bennett, who has been here for some weeks attending the League Assembly, plans to leave Geneva to-morrow for Paris, where he will resume negotiations over a supplementary Franco - Canadian trade agreement in which reciprocal favors for Canadian wheat and French wines figure largely.

On Thursday he will be the guest at a dinner tendered by Hon. Philippe Roy, Canadian Minister in France, and shortly after will leave for London. Originally he intended to spend some weeks in England, but Mr. Bennett will probably sail back to Canada on board the Empress of Britain, sailing October 6. His arrangements, however, are not yet final.

EXCUSED.

MARION, Ill., September 25 (C.P.). — The possibility of fall rains played havoc with a Williamson County Grand Jury venire.

A majority of the potential jurors asked to be excused so they could get their new mown hay in barns before the rains set in. The judge excused the entire venire.

KING DEMANDS GENERAL VOTE

Claims Popular Verdict One of No Uncertain Hostility to Bennett Regime.

SEES TIDE TURNING.

OTTAWA, September 25 (C.P.).—A general election, not a sixth session of Parliament, was the demand of the electorate, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal Chieftain, stated last night in commenting on the Liberal victories in yesterday's by-elections. The popular verdict was one of no uncertain hostility to the Bennett administration.

Citizens of Canada, in the light of to-day's verdict, would expect from Prtmier R.B. Bennett an immediate statement as to whether or not Hon. H. H. Stevens was to be permitted to continue as chairman of the Mass Buying Commission of which, in a series of political contests, Mr. Stevens had not hesitated to assume the role of judge and jury, prosecutor and executor, stated the Liberal Leader.

"To-day's by-elections," said Mr. King, "like all that have preceded them, in the last two years, disclose how completely the present administration has lost the confidence of the people. In what was apparently termed "a miniature general election," the Government candidates in four constituencies out of five have been overwhelmingly defeated, whilst in the fifth the return of the Goverrnment candidate has been by a minority of votes. Constituencies which were previously held by the Liberals have vastly increased their Liberal majorities; constituencies which were regarded in bygone years as citadels of Toryism in the most Conservative Province in Canada, have, in two constituencies out of three, given overwhelming Liberal majorities.

One Riding Saved

One constituency alone has been saved to the Conservative Party by a minority of votes, and that only through the participation in the campaign of its newly-found allies, the C.C.F. and the personal popularity of a candidate none too friendly to the administration. Had the present been a general election throughout Canada instead of a series of by-elections in different parts of its largest province, the same picture would have presented itself on a national scale.

"All circumstances considered, the popular verdict goes far beyond being one merely of lack of confidence. It is one of no uncertain hostility to the Bennett administration, which again has been told in the plainest fashion that the people of Canada no longer desire its continuance in office.

"A mere numerical majority in the House of Commons, secured over four years ago as a result of promises, none of which have been fulfilled, does not, in accordance with British Parliamentary institutions, give to a ministry the right to hang on to office where it is self-evident that the tide of popular feeling has been running steadily against it."

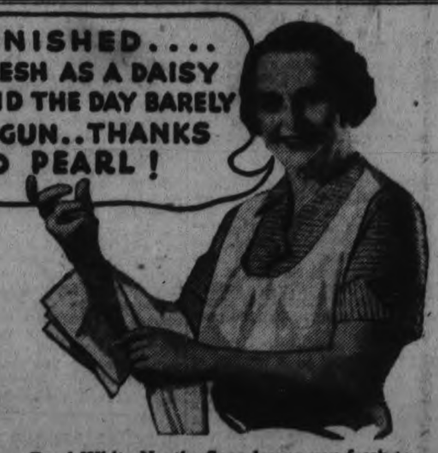
"This Pearl White Naptha way of overnight soaking in cold water is a boon. It's so easy and quick that I get through in no time. I'm always out on washday afternoon."

"I tell all my friends about Pearl White Naptha Soap. I feel fresh after the heaviest wash, because Pearl saves hard physical effort. Pearl is so economical, too. It saves washtub wear and tear and costs so little."

FINISHED.... FRESH AS A DAISY AND THE DAY BARELY BEGUN..THANKS TO PEARL!



Pearl White Naptha Soap leaves you fresh to enjoy leisure on washday for these reasons—proved by actual test. Its rich, foamy suds start quicker and stand up longer. They coax out obstinate dirt and grease briskly and thoroughly without hard rubbing and scrubbing. The clothes come definitely whiter and cleaner. Pearl saves clothes, too, because there's no harsh washtub wear. And the tests that proved these facts also proved Pearl more economical in use.

You will prefer Pearl White Naptha Soap for more reasons than one. Buy a bar—it costs so little. Compare it with any other laundry soap. Its pure whiteness and clean, fresh smell will delight you. There's nothing like it to ensure a cleaner, sweeter wash in a shorter time.

"The girls at the office wonder how we two can do all our own housework. 'What about washing?' they say. I explain that washing with Pearl White Naptha is so quick and easy, yet our linen is always sparkling and white."

Lady golfers from Port Hope engaged in a match here yesterday afternoon with players from the Ladies section of the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, the local ladies finishing up as victors. The players were teed off at No. 1 tee by Mrs. C. G. Graham, and at No. 4 tee by Mrs. R. MacMorran. Visiting players from Port Hope were Mesdames Smart, Dickson, Holland, Briden, Buckely, Martin, George, Shea, Mann, Thurber, McCarthy, and Miss Tuer. Local players included Mesdames F. J. A. Hall, A F. Inch, A. R. Nobbs, J. C. Green, G. W. Harper, J. R. Marshall, V. S. Rutherford, F. C. Ferrier, G. C. Solmes, D. S. Clarke, J. F. Reed, C. Ray. Afternoon tea was served from a table done with a lace cloth and a lovely silver bowl filled with cacti dahlias in the Autumn shades of crimson, orange and yellow. Tea hostesses were Mrs. C. G. Graham, and Mrs. Fred Hooper, assisted by Mrs. J. C. Green, Mrs. A. R. Nobbs, Mrs. F. C. Ferrier and Mrs. G. C. Solmes.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Persons dislike to be misunderstood, so anything which will tend to a clearer understanding is desirable. Feelings are hurt through lack of comprehension of words said or written. Times, dates, and places get mixed and all sorts of difficulties arise through this one fault.

* * * * * * *

Without going into the matter of using exact words and phrases to convey lucidly what one intends although this is of prime importance in thought conveyance, there is also a technical side. This is so simple that everyone can master its elements and foster a better understanding. For example, enunciating distinctly is of the utmost importance.

* * * * * * *

Everyone who is not hampered by some physical disability of speech, can talk distinctly. If words are murmured or mumbled, or shouted they do not carry clearly. Careless enunciation is one of the greatest avenues of misunderstanding. If you really want to convey meanings in your mind, whether spoken directly to another or into a telephone or microphone you must speak distinctly and neither too low nor too loud.

* * * * * * *

Telephone messages can be transmitted best when the lips of the speaker are not more than one inch away from the transmitter. A distance of one half inch is best. The words should be spoken directly into the transmitter without its being slanted or held below the mouth. A low, distinct voice carries better than a high-pitched loud voice. Don't expect to be understood without following directions for correct use of a telephone. This instrument is responsible for many misunderstandings not traceable to faults of its own that is mechanical flaws. Radio transmission is so largely supervised by experts who direct and regulate it, and see that microphones are properly placed, that this supervision prevents much misunderstanding.

* * * * * * *

Messages in writing whether telegrams, cablegrams, correspondence, etc., should be legible, easily read and without necessity of conjecture about words. It has become a custom to insert the word "stop" in cable and telegrams in order to separate sentences which might read as one and be difficult to comprehend. The words takes the place of a period in handwritten messages.

MAKE THIS FRENCH DRESS FOR DAUGHTER

One person not affected by various skirt lengths is the small daughter of the household. She still flies about with skirts well above her knees and plenty of leg freedom. This fact makes wee matching panties an artistic necessity.

A cute little dress (with matching French panties) for today's pattern is darling in any of the pretty cottons as dimity in charming rosebud pattern, dotted or striped batiste prints, plaid lawn, or in cottons of gingham type.

It is pretty too in plain colors in soft cotton broadcloth, pique, linen, wool challis prints, etc. Make the frilled collar and cuffs of other soft material as organdie in white.

You'll note in the wee sketchlet the sleeves can be short.

Style No. 3065 includes dress and panties and is designed for sizes 2, 4 and 6 years. Size 4 requires 2½ yards of 35-inch material with ¼ yard of 35-inch contrasting.

FRANKLY...I WANT A Schoolgirl Complexion ALL OVER

...AND HERE'S WHY I RELY ON PALMOLIVE!

After all, who should know more about complexion care than a beauty expert? And when 20,000 of these experts say there's nothing like Palmolive for keeping a girl's skin fresh and young and lovely . . . why, I believe it!

I have no use for beauty claims that have no reason why! Palmolive tells me exactly why it's better for my skin... because it's made from olive and palm oils, scientifically blended. Just knowing that gives me a lot of confidence.

It's wonderful, the difference Palmolive has made in my skin! Twice each day I work that rich, velvety lather into my pores, rinse with warm water, then cold. And Palmolive baths keeps all my skin soft, smooth and lovely!

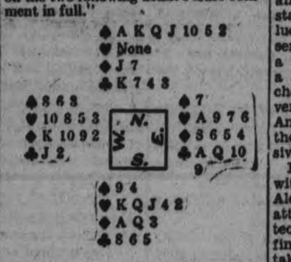
COMMENTS REQUESTED

South wrote: "I made a dealer's opening bid of 1-heart. My partner jumped to 4-spades. I passed. The opening lead was the 4 of diamonds. My partner went down a trick when we were vulnerable. We lost the rubber on the two following deals. Please comment in full."



There are two kinds of kibitzers. One sits at a corner of the table, where he views the hands of declarer and one defender. The other views all four hands, after all is over. Both have the annoying habit of offering double-dummy advice. Only when comments accord with what a player should do, viewing his own hand and dummy, is advice helpful. We will proceed upon that basis.

A sound bid is one proper to make whether vulnerable or not. Both the opening bid and the pre-emptive shift were sound. The opening lead was correct. The odds against the losers of the first game, winning the rubber in two straight games, are somewhat greater than the odds of 3 to 1 that they will win the rubber, in three or more deals.

To go down a trick it is probable that the declarer took a finesse in diamonds, when he should have known that the odds were against East leading away from the K. Allow West's K of diamonds to win the opening lead, and have West lead back his J of clubs, will give the defenders 4 tricks, defeating the contract a trick. Let East lead a fourth round of clubs, and have dummy ruff with the 4 would be the only worse thing which might happen.

North should play the hand as follows: Win the opening lead with dummy's ace. Lead the K. of hearts, intending to ruff if the ace covers second hand, or to discard his last remaining diamond in case West does not cover. East will win the first heart led. He cannot harm the declarer in any way. A return trump lead will put dummy in with the 9. Upon dummy's 2 heart honors the declarer will discard 2 losers in clubs, ending by leading a club and losing 2 tricks, just giving him game.

A diamond led instead of a trump, when East wins his heart trick, will enable the declarer to ruff, then lead a low spade, to put dummy in with the 9 North went down a trick because he failed to win the first diamond trick. I see no other probable play which can put him down.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE AFFAIRS OF CELLINI"

This is suave, polished entertainment in which the actors and director alike keep their tongues perpetually in their cheeks. It has an unusual and entertaining setting provided by mediaeval costuming and very up-to-date ideas. For instance, the Duchess of Florence alludes to the Duke as a 'like', in one sentence, and the director causes a big, fat sheep to give the lover a sheeplike version of the Bronx cheer in the scene where the adventurous Benvenuto has convoyed Angela to a mountain eyrie and there finds the lady most unresponsive.

For Angela (Fay Wray), along with Frank Morgan, as the Duke Alessandro of Florence, get a lot of attention in this feature, the beauteous Constance Bennett and the fine-looking Fredric March almost taking second places to these two character roles.

Frank Morgan, as the 'dithery' Duke, stuttering and muttering himself along (a la Lionel Barrymore), into an amorous episode with the hard-boiled virgin, Angela, just about steals the show, in a presentation of a giddy, philandering ruler of the ancient city of Florence, in the days when roasted pheasants and peacocks' tongues comprised the main dainties on the bill of fare, and when the Duke had the power of "the high justice, the middle and the low", with emphasis on the "high." For he orders hangings and executions with the same abandon as that practised by the daffy Queen in "Alice In Wonderland."

Constance Bennett, who, it is said, wears steel weights on her petticoats to help keep form-fitting curves to her frocks, has a part that suits her to perfection, as the imperious Duchess who orders the Duke around with no mercy and who takes a notion to the brilliant knave, Benvenuto Cellini, who embroils himself in many an intrigue and then trusts to a ready tongue to extricate himself from the consequences. The Duchess, fired by jealousy, and remembering her Medici ancestry, even goes so far as to order Cellini poisoned at a great banquet of state; but the story was never meant to end on that sombre note. Instead, it has an extremely modern ending, with both rulers well satisfied.

This lusty story sticks out a tongue at its own romantic elements and provides excellent entertainment for this new type of costume, period play, sumptuous in staging, almost farcical in treatment, and provided with a glamorous and beautiful background.

Louis Calhern, whose work bears watching, and who had such a notable role in "The Man With Two Faces," is the jealous advisor of the Duke.

"The Affairs of Cellini" is a picturesque, rollicking, satirical portrayal of what moderns believe to be the life of the middle ages.

THE PARTRIDGE SEASON.

There is a strong chorus of complaint from sportsmen over the announcement that the partridge season in Ontario this year is confined to six days during the deer-hunting season and may be participated in only by those who take out deer-hunting licenses.

This arrangement is admirable for the deer hunters, but there are many Ontario citizens who cannot spare the time or the money to go north for the deer hunt who would like to take a day or two at the partridge, but cannot see why they should be called upon to pay $4.00 for the privilege.

Last year there were two open seasons, the first for the benefit of the general public and the second during the deer-hunting period, but this year the first part of this program has been dropped, much to the dismay of large numbers of citizens who feel that they are being discriminated against.

They point out with some reason that if there is a scarcity of partridge that a much fairer arrangement would be to prohibit shooting at all this autumn, instead of extending the privilege only to those who can afford to pay $4.00.

Why it should be deemed necessary to buy a deer license to shoot partridge is somewhat of a mystery to the many people who like a day in the woods with a shotgun at this season of the year.

THE BY-ELECTION RESULTS.

While the results of yesterday's by-elections do not necessarily mean a general election this year, despite claims to the contrary, there is not the slightest doubt that they are a blow to the prestige of the Government.

While it was not expected that Government candidates would be successful in West Elgin and Kenora-Rainy River, the ridings formerly held by Premier Hepburn and Hon. Peter Heenan, and it was recognized that North York had been in the Conservative column chiefly through the popularity of the late Col. Herb. Lennox, certainly the loss of Frontenac-Addington, a constituency that never before in its history elected a Liberal, must be regarded by the Government as a major calamity indicative of the fact that the sentiment in rural Ontario is running strongly against the present administration.

This riding was organized in 1924 and its first member was Hon. J. W. Edwards, who had represented the old constituency of Frontenac from 1908 to 1921. He won the new riding in 1925 and again in 1926, and on his death Dr. Spankie won the by-election by acclamation, and at the last general election was returned by 3,371 votes, so that the magnitude of the turnover can be appreciated.

The West Elgin result was expected, for that constituency, although for a long time Conservative, had been captured in the last two elections by Hon. Mitchell Hepburn, and with the Ontario Premier campaigning actively for Wilson H. Mills, the Liberal candidate, there were few who ventured to predict a Government victory on that battle field.

Nor was there much doubt about Kenora-Rainy River, inasmuch as that constituency had elected Hon. Peter Heenan at every election held there since the constituency was organized, and Hugh B. McKinnon, the Liberal-Labor candidate, was regarded as a certain winner.

Only in Toronto East where the redoubtable Tommy Church carried the Conservative banner was the Government cause supported, and even there there was a considerable cutting down of the majority from the last election, showing that in this Conservative stronghold sentiment had to some extent at least turned against the Bennett administration.

A net loss of two seats in five by-elections is not a record upon which the Government and its supporters can look with any degree of satisfaction.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS BRIGHT.

There is nothing but optimism in the latest business summary just issued by the Bank of Montreal.

Business in general, the report says, has been characterized by steadiness, and the third quarter of 1934 is drawing to a close with most economic indices higher than during the second and first quarters and showing marked advances all along the line as compared with the similar period of 1933.

Car loadings continue to mount, being now well in excess not only of last year but of 1932.

Foreign trade recorded expansion again in August, and for more than a year has shown a continuous increase when compared with the figures of the previous year.

Gross railway earnings in August were up $1,142,600 over last year.

After showing a decline in August, bank clearings in the first two weeks of the current month were larger than in the corresponding period last year by $132,796,500, or 26.8 per cent.

Industrial operations, the statement says, are moderately active, while the production of motor vehicles greatly exceeds that of last year with a corresponding increase in the output of tires.

Forest products are being marketed in larger quantities, the output of newsprint continues on an enlarged scale compared with recent years, and building operations are slowly extending to the advantage of allied trades.

The first official crop forecast of the year issued on September 11 contained few surprises, but it enables the agricultural situation, on which the general tone of business so greatly depends in the autumn and winter, to be appraised with increased confidence. For wheat, the yield of the present harvest is placed at 277,304,000 bushels (265,000,000 bushels in the Prairie Provinces), which is slightly higher than last year. The crop, however, will come on the market at prices from 20 to 25 per cent. above last year's levels, with corresponding increase in the farmers' purchasing power. Still more important from the general standpoint is the prospect of increased sales out of the accumulated surpluses held for export. Increased remittances into the country as well as heavier movements of grain in Eastern Canada may reasonably be anticipated. In the coarse grains, a heavier export business at higher prices is likewise expected, though low yields set a definite limit. For oats, the estimate of the present crop is 344,746,000 bushels, compared with 307,476,000 bushels last year; for barley, 66,800,000 bushels, compared with 63,359,000 bushels; for rye, 6,523,000 bushels, compared with 4,327,000 bushels; and for flaxseed, 1,096,000 bushels, compared with 632,000 bushels. Yields per acre have been considerably below average for all grains, but are slightly higher than last year.

Progressive increase in volume and value of Canada's external trade supplies an encouraging feature in the business situation. In August this trade amounted to $99,344,000, imports amounting for $43,507,000 and exports for $55,837,000, the increase over last year being $15,462,500, or 15.6 per cent. For now sixteen months exports and for thirteen months imports have shown continuous gain over the corresponding period of the preceding year. Excess of exports over imports was $12,329,700 in August, and in the last twelve months has aggregated $143,728,000. In the five elapsed months of the current fiscal year Canada's foreign trade totalled $469,365,000, against $371,341,000 in the corresponding period last year, being an increase of $112,053,000, or 30 per cent. Outstanding in the export trade in August is the increased value of wheat, $12,868,000 compared with $6,656,000 in the corresponding month last year; while exports of meats, motor vehicles, planks and boards and nickel were also larger.

Mining has become a leading industry in Canada, and the field is steadily extending. In the first half of the current year mineral production had a value of $131,942,000, against $90,647,000 in the corresponding period last year, an increase of 45 per cent. Gold mined had a value of $49,962,000, of which $36,005,000 was produced in Ontario. There was a larger output of nickel and copper, that of nickel being 83,316,680 pounds and of copper 177,502,000 pounds. For the elapsed eight months of this year, ore receipts at the Trail smelter were 347,605 tons, against 213,570 in the same period last year. The production of coal in Nova Scotia has been larger than for several years past.

WHAT IS JUSTICE?

Prisoners in the British Columbia Penitentiary have gone on strike to emphasize their demands for a daily wage and for convicts' committees to negotiate with prison authorities.

It is a preposterous demand. And equally preposterous is the mawkish thinking of the sentimentalists who agree with them.

The prison reformers point out that a man is sent to a penitentiary to cure some sickness in his mind that makes him a criminal. They argue that this curative process cannot proceed if the patient is made to feel that he is "a man apart."

Therefore, they say, to pay a prisoner a wage and to grant him certain rights will make him feel that he is still a citizen and will thus hasten his cure.

It will do no such thing.

Just as a man with appendicitis has to be "set apart" with a few whiffs of chloroform before his appendix can come out, so must the criminal be made to feel that he and society have temporarily parted company until he can learn how to behave in a social manner.

A remarkable misconception prevails these days in regard to the purpose of penal confinement.

Radical thinkers talk grandly of "ailing minds," of "prisoners' rights" and of "justice."

The mind of the criminal is no more sick than that of a child. It is merely undisciplined. The child, brutal, selfish and violent (as every child is in its inevitable animal stage), is the perfect criminal.

But as time goes on, the child learns that brutality and selfishness and violence bring pain. Either by way of the hairbrush or of ostracism, the child learns to control those unsocial instincts.

It learns self discipline.

There is no such thing as "prisoners' rights" because rebels against society have no rights. Would you present the enemy with a pistol?

Nor is there any such thing as absolute "justice."

Absolute "justice" would be a nice balancing of the scales between the individual who was injured and the wrong-doer who injured him.

But British jurisprudence interjects a third factor —society. Society must be protected against the depredations of the undisciplined and the unsocial elements in the community.

This thought is paramount in the mind of every British judge.

A penal sentence, therefore, has nothing to do with "ailing minds" or "prisoners' rights" or even "justice."

It is purely and simply an expedient to teach the criminal, through pain and discomfort, that they must obey society's rules. It is an expedient planned to show the whole community that society, that humanity in the mass must be protected.

To achieve that end, the criminal must not only suffer for his own sins but for the potential sins of others.

Certainly our penitentiary system must fall far short of this effect if it begins to consider the convict as a citizen with the rights and privileges of a citizen.

When a prison sentence fails to set the convicted criminal apart, fails to submit him to the pain and discomfort and humiliation which are the penalty for any transgression, fails to teach him the power of an outraged society, it becomes merely an amusing if inconvenient formality as it is in so many instances in crime-ridden United States.

This denial of absolute justice in our penal system appears to irritate the radical thinker.

It should not. For it is the very antithesis of individualism.

Pure justice is part of the code of individualism.

But our British system of justice, founded upon the rights and protection, not of individuals but of society, is anything but the bigoted Tory survival which it is popularly supposed to be.

It is, surprisingly enough, the broadest and most radical expression of true socialism that has ever been made in this perplexed world.—Vancouver Sun.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

There is at least this to be said of the by-election campaigns: they were not dull.

Complaints about the quality of Mr. Sopwith's sailing should be tempered by the fact that the Endeavour is his own boat and he is entitled to sail it as he sees fit.

The textile strike does not interest Detroit. The folks in that city were only concerned in settling the championship of the American League.

Now that the by-elections are over Ontario affairs will once more engage the attention of the Ontario Government.

To Editor of the Examiner,

Dear Sir,—The Canadian Legion is an organization devoted to the interest of those who suffered as a result of service in the Great War and serving Canada and the Empire in the same spirit manifested overseas. We represent the manhood of Canada. We have a part to play and a great responsibility to discharge and we must and will discharge it and try to achieve the objects we are banded together for and still remain a living force in our country.

We have a membership of 137,268 and a Ladies' Auxiliary membership of 1270.

Our function necessarily, in a very large measure, is that of an active defender of the established interest of the ex-service men and their dependents. This we endeavour to carry out and I think it may be said that, to a very large degree, we have been successful. This task no one will deny the Legion as its duty.

Yet, in so doing, we may say with some measure of pride, that we have endeavoured to conduct ourselves as reasonable and conscientous citizens, and have at all times recognized those in authority in our cities and our country, and studied the welfare of the nation. These two factors have been our guiding principles, and we wish to emphasize that the action of the Legion and the ex-service men during the period of economic depression, can only be fairly judged in the light of conditions with which we have to contend. It can be said that at no time in the Legion's history has there ever been greater necessity for increasing watchfulness, and prompt and effective action, than during the last five years. The job has been "to hold the line"—very often under great difficulties of a discouraging nature, as is common with all other institutions and organizations. We have had to face financial difficulties of our own, which, no doubt, handicapped our activities. Added to this, very often, wilfully or otherwise, our motives have been distorted and misconstrued, and it is to the splendid credit of the Dominion leaders and the officers of the branches throughout the country, who have so unselfishly, given their time and efforts in this great cause, that, so far in any event, the difficulties have to a large extent been met and overcome.

Everlasting credit is also due to the rank and file of its members; notwithstanding the discouraging circumstances with which so many of them were faced and notwithstanding the activity of influence which sought to destroy their loyalty to the Legion, they have, in the main, stood firm and true, thus making it possible for the Legion to effectively continue as defenders of our less fortunate comrades.

J. Abraham,
Chairman of Pension and Relief, Branch 52.

A Thought

WHAT LIES BEHIND FORTUNE?

When I talk to you of fisherman's luck, I do not forget that there are deeper things behind it. I remember that what we call our fortunes, good or ill, are but the wise dealings and distributions of a Wisdom higher, and a Kindness greater, than our own. And I suppose that their meaning is that we should learn, by all the uncertainties of our life, even the smallest, how to be brave and steady and temperate and hopeful, whatever comes, because we believe that behind it all there lies a purpose of good, and over it there watches a providence of blessing.—Henry Van Dyke.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

By H. W. L. MAHOOD

THE UNITED STATES
Chattanooga
(8)

The "stretch out" pressure is terrific. Thousands have been forced out of work because they could not stand the brutal strain. When men and women are worked like horses, and redress cannot be obtained by legal process the only alternative is the Strike. The present strike is as justifiable as was the revolution in the days of Cromwell. The amazing event is that so many newspapers in the United States and even in Canada are doing their utmost to obscure the real causes of the strike. But this is not to be wondered at in an age when preadtory capital is making its last stand. Just as Nationalism is lifting itself above the Creator rights of the individuals, so predatory capital in the person of the employer is lifting profits above the welfare of the worker. Both have been compelled to come to judgment. Righteous public sentiment is the judge. Justice must be meted out before the conflict will end. The judgment day has come to every wrong. Nor will the spiritual and moral forces ever again become as inactive as they have been during the past twenty-five years. A spiritual renaissance is in the offing. The world is waking up as it has never wakened before. The employees out in this strike are not likely to resume work until their rights have been assured. The workers will not be satisfied with half-a-right. Better for the employer and the nation that justice points the decision. W. T. Kenna, president of local 1785 at Chattanooga, Tennessee, asserts that 2000 men and women have been forced out of five mills of the Standard-Coosa-Thatcher Company alone because of the pressure of the "stretch out." Each of the two thousand could stand a reasonable day's work. The extra demand was killing. Shanty towns, filled with the victims of the "stretch out" system, have become a standard part of almost every desolate mill-town landscape. This is Kenna's exact statement.

Southern Mills—Chastity of Mill Girls
(9)

This is not a pleasant subject. It is one factor in the present strike. In many southern mills the overseers are charged with using their positions to force their attentions on the girls working in the mills. The overseer has power to dismiss a worker. Girls have been dismissed because they refused to barter their purity. When the times are not prosperous the overseer takes advantage of the most beautiful and most charming girls if they have not the stability of character to challenge such treatment. Some overseers are devils. We should have written some beastly men are nothing more.

This condition is tolrated by many owners of mills. Again, and again the local unions have protested. No heed is given the protests. In mills where there are no employee unions the jeopardy of girls is scandalous. Such an evil is a cry to the heavens, which will not last much longer in the United States. The National Union of United Textile Workers have concluded to fight this crime again womanhood to a decisive finish. Do you sense the indignation in the hearts of fathers who are out in this strike? Would you join the strikers to obtain the protection for your daughter which legal efforts have failed to secure?

The mill girls see a chance in the recognition of labor organizations to protect themselves against a fate that has befallen too many of their fellow girl workers. Again, why has the church not taken a more active part to protect the girls against this social rottenness of overseer and mill owner? Too many churches are sound asleep. Too many of the ministers of today are not prophets. For the minister to speak out some of his members will be offended but more will be pleased, and encouraged.

World Labor Conditions
Church Ineffectiveness
(10)

For the most part, church members in this age do not heed the voice of God, and do not obey their consciences except under the stress of a desperate necessity. In national life this is true. In our own personal experiences it is just as true. To awaken the conscience is the business of the prophet-teacher. The prophet thunders away on the religious essentials, and goes on to organize this new impulse into institutional expression. The church is the institution for this expression. The day comes to even men like the Hon. Hepburn of this province, that the burning words of the minister are not the ravings of a crank. That what he has said are the very words of God.

The saddest thing about the southern mill conditions is that the workers have lost faith in the various boards and committees appointed to consider their grievances. The heads of too many of the boards and committees are anti-union. Workers who have taken advantage of the opportunity to air their wrongs have been dismissed as soon as the board adjourned, or the N.R.A. had moved on.

When complaints have been made, months have been allowed to pass without any notice that action would be taken. The mill workers have been patient. They have suffered long. They have borne indignities. The time has come when the rights of liberty must be heeded. The outcry of the preachers against slavery brought on the civil war. That war emancipated the negro slave. The strike will not lead to a war of arms. Whoever forecasts such an eventuality does not know the American people. Predatory capital must come to terms with the industrial employee. That is the issue. Francis Gorman, vice-president of the United Textile Workers, said, recently: "The cotton textile authority has refused to confer on the workers' grievances, and has thus violated section 7a, while giving lip service to recovery."

This town was known as Rowell for many years, after the first postmaster.

This name did not meet the desires of three ladies known as Mrs. Harris, Mrs. J. Paynter and Mrs. W. A. Doyle, who were of a religious turn of mind.

As they discussed the renaming of the place one day the suggestion was made that the name be changed to Beulah, inspired by the verse from the Bible which is, "I have come to the Beulah land." This was in compliment to the fertility of the district. The change was submitted to the post-office department and accepted.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

THE CANADIAN DEFENDER OF LUCKNOW

On this date in 1857 came the first relief of Lucknow in the Indian mutiny and the generals in charge of the relieving columns shook hands with a Nova Scotian, who had kept the British flag flying despite fearful odds. John Inglis was the son of Dr. John Inglis, the third Bishop of Nova Scotia, and the grandson of the great Charles Inglis, the first colonial bishop of the Church of England. He entered the British army at an early age and soon won promotion. It happened that he was second in command when the British were besieged in Lucknow and, on the death of Sir Henry Lawrence, he took command.

From July 2 until September 25 he fought what looked like a hopeless fight. He occupied one corner of a great city, every part of which was seething with deadly enemies. No companion could leave him without danger of instant death from the sepoys or the Lucknow rabble, no friends could aid him, no food or drink, no medicine, no comforts, no clothing, no ammunition could be secured. Within the residency were women and children, judges, magistrates, merchants, clerks the garrison, and a few faithful natives some 1,200 in all.

For eighty-five days the rebels pour shot, shell, bullet and ball into the enclosure. Mines dug from the streets outside exploded within the residency. Women were hit by cannon ball while sitting quietly at their work; balls entered the messroom where the officers took their hurried meals. Horses went mad for want of water; fever, cholera and typhus, bred from stagnant pools, killed off children and the weaker women; what little food there was became tainted and poisoned by flies and other insects.

The months passed in horror, but the courage of the British, spurred by John Inglis, never failed, despite repeated disappointments. At length on September 25 the pibroch of the 78th Highlanders was heard in the distance. Scots had fought their way through the rebel lines and Lucknow was relieved. John Inglis shook hands with Sir Henry Havelock within the residency and the first siege of Lucknow was over. Is it any wonder that Halifax is proud of Sir John Inglis?

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

WHAT COULD I DO?

I am ashamed . . . I feel, somehow, as though I had failed another human being. I had my chance and didn't take it. I could have done something but I didn't do it . . . And I am gripped by a remorse that is all the keener because I'm not quite sure of what it was I might have done.

A man came into this office and asked for me. Sent in his name. I did not know the name and when I went out to see him, I knew I had never seen him before, never looked into those sad eyes, never heard that soft voice . . . He had some essays and he wondered if I knew where he could sell them . . . Standing there beside him, I read two or three and shook my head . . . No, I didn't know, I couldn't tell him. A newspaper wouldn't buy them. Neither would any magazine of my acquaintance. They were of an old school, lovely and tender, and they made a sound in my heart like the waters of a little stream, like the rush of slow, great wings . . . But somehow they didn't belong. They were no more salable than the bloom on a peach, the perfume of a violet. They came from his heart, to be sure, but they were not quite sturdy enough, not quite articulate enough, for common commerce . . . I shook my head.

And when I raised my eyes to look at him, I knew he was not surprised. He had expected no other answer. This was not what he wanted . . . The man was lonely and afraid. He was desperate and poor. In his heart was a tremor of doubt. He did not know what lay beyond the next turn . . . He had not really believed that he could sell those writings of his . . . I knew that and he knew that I knew that. . . . What he wanted was to hear something bold and heartening from me. He wanted strength and endurance, some staff on which he might lean in this waste of his bewilderment —and could I not give this staff to him? . . . He did not ask this in words, but I read it in his eyes. I swear that I did. I knew that he asked this of me . . . But I had no such staff. I did not know the words to speak to him as he wished. There was nothing I could do but grip his hand and wish him well and say goodby. For a tragic instant we approached each other, but we did not touch . . . He went his way and I went mine. And why do I feel ashamed? After all, what COULD I have said?

One-Minute Pulpit

The people of thy holiness have possessed it but a little while: our adversaries have trodden down thy sanctuary.—Isaiah 63:18.

LARGE ATTENDANCE WARSAW CHURCH

Rev. C. J. Bousfield and Dr. R. C. Blagrave Conduct Service.

WARSAW, Sept. 25.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—Warsaw's beautiful little St. Mark's Anglican church was dressed for the Harvest Festival on Sunday afternoon. The Guild ladies had every available place filled with products of field, orchard and garden.

Rural Dean Rev. C. J. Bousfield and enough members of his choir, including Mrs. Bousfield, to fill the Warsaw choir loft were present, and Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave preached the sermon.

Mr. Bousfield led in the service of worship and Dr. Blagrave read the lesson from the Old Testament.

It was the first time Dr. Blagrave had been in the church and he complimented the ladies on the results of their work.

The Doctor's text was taken from Luke 9-24, "For whosoever shall save his life shall lose it, but whosoever shall lose his life for My sake shall save it."

Among the speaker's points were that life may be on a higher plane or on a lower. Christ sets an high ideal for His church and His people. The interests are as wide as the horizon. We have much to be thankful for. Strive after a full life, this life which Christ would have us lead.

The singing as led by the visiting choir was uplifting and the anthem one of thanksgiving. Sometimes music does lift one away high up, and it did to-day.

Mr. Bert Gormley left on Saturday for his home in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Myles and child are spending their vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Myles.

United church anniversary services Sunday, Setp. 30 at 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. Mr. Archer of Norwood, will preach.

WANT FAIR WAGES

WINDSOR, Sept. 24. (CP). — Immediate action to force Windsor employers to pay fair rates of wages and so remove the necessity of employees seeking welfare aid was sanctioned by city council to-day. Fire Chief Clarence Defields, in charge of certain phases of welfare relief, was instructed to make a weekly report on employees paying what he considers unfair wages. The council will then decided on future action.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 97c to 99c; oats, 35c to 38c; barley, 60c to 64c; corn, 85c to 86c; rye, 55c to 57c; buckwheat, 55c to 58c; malting barley, 71c to 74c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Cheese prices were fractionally higher on the Montreal produce and dairy market yesterday Ontario colored cheese brought 10¾c a pound, up ¾c while Ontario white cheese was 10c a pound, as compared with 9¾c at the end of last week. Quebec cheese advanced ¼c, being quoted yesterday at 9½c to 9¾c a pound for No. 1 grade. Arrivals were 410 boxes.

Butter was unchanged in price, fresh No. 1 being 19½c to 19¾c a pound in cariots or less. Prices to the retail trade were 20½c for solids and 21½c for prints. Receipts were seven boxes.

The egg market was steady, with graded shipments in cariots or less being quoted at 28 cents a dozen for A large; 26c for A medium; 21c for B and 19½c for C. Receipts totalled 393 cases.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Confronted by an unexpected increase of the United States wheat visible supply total, grain values suffered material losses in the late trading yesterday.

A decided falling off in flour acted as a drag on the wheat market here, and so too did weakness of wheat quotations in Liverpool, where stocks of wheat showed a liberal increase. Besides, beneficial moisture was reported over much of domestic winter wheat territory, with additional moisture in prospect.

Chicago wheat futures closed weak at almost the day's lowest level, ⅛ to 1 cent under Saturday's finish. Dec., new, $1.03¼-$1.03⅝; corn, ½-⅝ down; Dec., new, 77⅝c-77½c; oats, ¾-⅞ off, and provisions at 20 to 40 cents decline.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, September 25. —Adverse harvesting weather in Western Canada yesterday offset a small export demand and weakness in outside markets on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, holding quotations steady to close ⅝ cent higher to ⅜ cent lower.

Maximum gains of ⅝ cents were lost in the closing stages as the sliding tendency of outside values made itself felt. October finished at 82¼ cents, December at 82⅝ cents, and May at 87½ cents. All futures closed at the day's low levels.

Mills offered the best of the light support, while selling again made up mostly of hedges.

Liverpool wheat lost ⅛d to 1¼d, and Buenos Aires was off about 1 cent.

Cash grains were steady and the coarse grains, with the exception of flax, held steady.

FRIEND OF HAUPTMANN DISAPPEARS IN GERMANY

KAMENZ, Germany, Sept. 25. — (A.P.).—Apparently annoyed by recent revelations, one of Bruno Richard Hauptmann's early companions in wrongdoing — a man who turned over a new leaf and became a respected member of the community—has vanished without a word.

He is Fritz Paetzold, who, back in 1919, was sentenced with Hauptmann to five years in jail for robbery.

Paetzold's boss, Reinold Hentschel, the local blacksmith, said "Paetzold hasn't shown up here for two days."

Hentschel blamed his employee's disappearance on German newspapermen and their "unscrupulous and unfair revelation in the German newspapers of the criminal record of Hauptmann's previous offences."

BUYING ACTIVE IN JUNIOR GOLDS

Base Metals Are Slow But Display Firm Price Conditions.

SILVERS WEAK.

TORONTO, Sept. 25 (CP).—Soft and active only in spots during the first three hours of trading, the mining section of the Toronto Exchange switched about and recovered in the late afternoon with buying active in the secondary gold group. Although slow the base metals exhibited a firm price condition while silver shareweresomewhat weak with selling noticeable in Eldorado

Teck Hughes was actively sold in the morning session for a loss of 12 cents but it only recovered in the afternoon. Net gains were chalked up for Dome, Hollinger, Lake Shore and McIntyre. Wright Hargreaves regis tered a small loss

Little Long Lac was taken in heavy volume at a firm price and other issues that fully recovered from early weakness included sYlvanite, Siscoe, Howey, God's Lake, Central Patricia and Pickle Crow.

TRADING SURGE HITS TORONTO

Soft Morning Tone is Reversed With Buying Activity.

OILS STRONG.

TORONTO, Sept. 25 (CP).—Stocks pushed higher on an increased volume of trading this afternoon on the industrial section of the Toronto Stock Exchange. A soft morning tone was reversed in the early afternoon with buying active in some of the oils and distillery shares and also Nickel, Ford "A" and Brazilian. Those all closed on top. The Brewing Corporation stocks were definitely weak, the common dropping a half point and the preferred a full point.

The market had very little news to support a move in either direction. Brazilian still had the aid of a firm London market for the stock and it continued steady here at 11⅝ on good turnover. The general tone was slightly soft until early afternoon when a slight firming of prices was noticeable.

Trading was in fair volume on the oil group, but International Pete, nevertheless, dropped below the 28 mark. Brewery shares were slow and unchanged while in the distillery group, Walkers Common and Distillers Seagrams lost fractions and Industrial Alcohol "A" added 1-8.

Nickel and Consolidated Smelters were down moderately in the early afternoon trading.

Brazilian extended its advance to the extent of 3-8 today, closing just under the 12 mark. Nickel added 1-8 Ford "A" ½ and C.P.R. added 3-8 to 13¾. Buying was active this afternoon in the leading liquor shares with Walkers gaining 3-8 net and Distillers Seagrams and Industrial Alcohol "A" 1-8 each.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Sept. 25 (CP).—Trading continued slow in the cattle division of the Toronto Livestock Market this afternoon on killing cattle, but fairly active on stockers. Hogs are still unsettled, with bids 25 cents lower. Calves are steady. Sheep and lambs are steady.

Receipts as supplied by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 1060; calves, 560; hogs, 950; sheep and lambs, 1,680.

Butcher cattle are selling about steady at $2.25 to $4.25 cwt., with a few common to medium weighty steers from $3.00 to $4.00. Butcher cows were steady at $1.75 to $2.50. Good bulls sold from $2.25 to $2.75 with bolognas at $1.75 to $2.00. Fed calves ranged from $5.00 to $7.00. Good stockers brought $2.65 to $3.00 with common downward to $2.00.

Calves were steady at $7.00 for choice vealers and up to $7.50 for tops. Bulk of the supply sold between $5.00 and $7.00.

Hogs were still unsettled with packers bidding $7.00 f.o.b. for bacons, $7.35 off truck and $7.75 off car.

Lambs were steady at $5.75 for good ewes and wethers and $4.75 to $5.00 for other grades. Sheep were steady from $2.50 to $3.00 for good, light ewes, and $1.00 to $1.50 for culls.

Struck By Fans Umpire Injured

TORONTO, Sept. 25.— (C.P.)— An amateur softball umpire lay in hospital here to-day suffering from what doctors feared was a fractured skull, while police sought without success to identify an assailant who struck him during a fight that arose during a game last night between two commercial teams.

Clare Hoose, the umpire, was attacked in the eighth inning of the game when he called out a player who was reaching home with what would have been the tying run for his team. Hoose was said to have been struck from behind as he attempted to clear irate fans from the diamond.

MARGIN RULES COMPLETED.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Federal reserve officials disclosed to-day that stock market margin regulations had been completed except for a few controversial points and had been placed in the hands of the 12 reserve banks for simultaneous release throughout the United States when these issues were settled.

BOTH ARE FLYING PROTEST FLAGS

(Turn to Page 21, Please)

ful start to-day and increased her lead slightly on a reach to the first mark. On the beat to the second, although ahead, Sopwith elected to split tacks with Vanderbilt.

The wind hauled favoring Rainbow and heading the challenger, with the result Sopwith yielded the lead to Vanderbilt. At the second mark the challenger was slow in setting her spinnaker, but continued to pull up on the defender and it was neck and neck at the finish.

Unique Situation.

A double protest is an unheard of situation in cup racing. Although there have been protests by one or the other contenders before, the latest T. O. M. Sopwith's disallowed charge of foul against Harold S. Vanderbilt Saturday, the records fail to show both yachts protesting at the same time before.

Sopwith's protest in the fourth race was the first that had been fyled since the American protest against Lord Dunraven's challenger, Valkyrie III. in 1895, a protest which was allowed and led the Briton to quit the races.

As the yachts reached for the first mark of the triangular course, experts aboard the Mendota saw no good reason for a protest in manoeuvering for the start, but suggested it would probably be a starboard and port affair involving the overtaking boat rule.

Rainbow had followed Endeavour closely in a series of jibes.

The challenger was the first to jibe and stand on the port tack for the line. Rainbow was the overtaking boat. The New York Yacht Club rule specifies a jibe does not constitute a tack under which regulation the defender was required to keep clear.

If the day's decision is allowed to stand it marks the end of the 45th unsuccessful British quest for the famous trophy won from the Royal Yacht Squadron by the schooner America in 1851.

Since 1871, when the first challenger come over, 49 races have been sailed with the United States defenders victors in 44 to only five for the Britons.

This is the first series to go more than five contests, although the late Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV won the first two races in 1920 only to have Resolute sweep the next three and retain the cup. That series was on a basis of best three of five. Both in 1930, when Sir Thomas made his last unsuccessful challenge, and this year the series was set at best four of seven.

The elapsed times of the two boats for to-day's 30 mile triangular course were: Rainbow, 3 hours 40 minutes five seconds; Endeavour 3 hours, 41 minutes.

Heartbreaking Climax

The defeat came as a heartbreaking climax to Endeavour's gallant bid for victory in a yachting classic that goes back 83 years and where a British challenger never had brighter prospects.

She was the pre-series favorite and became an overwhelming choice to win, perhaps sweep it in four straight races, after her initial triumphs

Then Vanderbilt added ballast to Rainbow, drafted Frank Paine, designer of the defeated defence candidate Yankee for his afterguard and soundly whipped the challenger four straight times.

Waiting

Both racing yachts were under canvas ghosting along behind the starting line as the 10-minute preparatory signal, a white cone, was hoisted on the committee yacht, Wilhelmina, at 10.30.

They had main and stay sails set. The start was made at 10.40 a.m.

Endeavor had the best of the start, boiling across the line several lengths ahead of the defender.

Both wore main Genoa jibs and stay sails.

A 40-Second Lead

The British boat was across 40 seconds ahead of Rainbow for the best start she has made in the series.

After running Rainbow well back of the line Sopwith suddenly brought Endeavour around, broke his Genoa and had it drawing before the defender had her canvas going. She hit the line almost on the second, while Rainbow's crew still was struggling to set her Genoa.

Both doused their stay sails as soon as they had their Genoas sheeted home.

Rainbow Protests

A code protest flag was seen in Rainbow's rigging.

Sopwith luffed at 11.06, forcing Vanderbilt to follow him.

The British boat was holding its lead and carrying Rainbow high on the course, giving Vanderbilt no opportunity to get by to windward.

It was Vanderbilt's attempt to drive Rainbow past Endeavour Saturday which led to Sopwith's protest.

Endeavour Gains

Endeavour appeared to be slowly widening her lead at 11.20. The breeze, which was moderating, had headed the yachts slightly, drawing around toward the south.

Rainbow had worked considerably to weather of the challenger at 11.30 although high on her course. She broke out a spinnaker.

Endeavour held a lead there of about six boat lengths with the 10-mile mark about two miles away.

Rainbow's Genoa jib was aflutter or actually abock most of the time and her big kite appeared to be pulling her off to leeward.

Endeavour meanwhile was well to windward of the defender.

They were bearing down on the mark at 11.40.

Rainbow doused her spinnaker at 11.42.

Rainbow switched to a double headrig just before fetching the mark but Endeavour still wore her Genoa jib.

Sail Trouble on Endeavour

Going around the turn with a minute, eight seconds advantage, Endeavour lost some of her way as her crew handled the Genoa. Rainbow came around and went off on a starboard tack for the 10 mile beat to windward.

At 11.57 she went back to the port tack. Endeavour's crew still was struggling with her headsails.

Once she had her sails drawing Sopwith held Endeavour on a starboard tack. Apparently he had no intention of attempting to keep Rainbow covered on the beat.

It was difficult to judge the relative positions of the two yachts or determine whether Rainbow had taken the lead as they went off at different angles from the course.

It was an unusual procedure for Sopwith to adopt as the leading boat generally keeps the trailing yacht covered to protect a lead.

Rainbow went back to the starboard tack at 12.07. She was over two miles to weather of Endeavour and still trailing the challenger.

Sails Draw Better.

Endeavour had doused her Genoa and broke out a stay-sail and her Greta Garbo jib. She was slow getting them out, but once up they began to draw besutifully.

At 12.26 the positions of the two were plotted from the Argo's bridge and showed them to be almost exactly the same distance from the 20-mile mark, although about two miles apart.

Endeavour was estimated to be about two and a half miles from the 20-mile mark at 12.53, apparently somewhat closer than Rainbow. They still were about two miles apart, although now on the same tack.

At 1.01 Endeavour went over on the port tack, apparently hoping to intercept Rainbow, which was bearing in for the mark on a starboard hitch.

The wind still blew from the north north-west with a velocity of about 11 knots.

Rainbow Takes Lead

Rainbow crossed in front of Endeavour at 1.07. After crossing Endeavour the defender went over on the port tack well to weather of the challenger.

Vanderbilt took her back on the starboard tack at 1.10 to fetch the mark which she made at 1.12.37, two minutes and 47 seconds off the challenger.

It was great sailing by Rainbow. She had negotiated the beat to windward in an hour, 19 minutes and 42 seconds, only six minutes, 57 seconds over the time it took her for the broad reach to the first mark.

Rainbow immediately broke out her Mae West spinnaker—so-called because it bulges at the top—after rounding the turn as the wind had hauled around to make it almost a run home.

Endeavour also set her spinnaker, the ventilated Annie Oakley, but it required 6½ minutes for her crew to do it.

500 Yard Lead.

Sights taken at 1.38 from the Argo's bridge indicated Rainbow's lead at that hour was about 500 yards.

Rainbow was only about 2½ miles from the finish line at 2.05 and still leading Endeavour by approximately 500 yards.

DRY FAIRLY COOL PERIOD BEST FOR APPENDICITIS OPERATION

Peaks of Several Leading Causes of Death Traced to Weather.

HIGHER IN SOUTH.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.—(AP) —To have your appendix cut with the greatest safety, pick a dry period for the operation, and not too hot.

Weather forecasting for health was described to the American Hospital Association today by Dr. Clarence A. Mills, professor of experimental medicine, University of Cincinnati.

Peaks of several of the leading causes of death in the United States were traced to weather. Dr. Mills predicts that hospitals will use air conditioning to produce artificial climates to combat disease.

"Moist heat," he said, "that depresses bodily metabolism makes for an increased susceptibility to infection and lessened ability to fight bacterial invasions, once they have gained a foothold.

"I have found definite differences in this respect between the more active people of the north and the southerners of more sluggish metabolism.

Of each 100 cases of acute appendicitis handled in hospitals, the fatality rate is almost three times as high in the south, with a steady lowering of the fatality rate as one goes northward from the gulf region."

"Sudden changes in atmospheric conditions bring waves of colds and pneumonia, together with their consequences of more chronic nature, sinusitis, chronic bronchitis, etc.

"Hospitals properly constructed would find little difficulty in providing any type of artifical climates a physician might desire for particular purposes. Portable equipment could be moved from room to room, for heating, cooling, adding moisture or drying the air."

STOCKS RALLY IN LATE TRADE

Steel Shares, Rails and Utilities Were Promient on the Upturn.

EARLY SOFTNESS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (AP).—Stocks rallied rather briskly in the fourth hour today following earlier hesitation. Numerous small forenoon recessions were replaced by late net gains of fractions to around 2 points. Steel shares rails and utilities were prominent on the upturn. Union Pacific rose 3 points, while issues advancing around 1 to 2 included Allied Chemical, Consolidated Gas, U. S. Steel Common and preferred, Bethlehem, American Telephone, Santa Fe and Du Pont. Transfers approximated 850,000 shares.

While only meagre support appeared for the majority of stocks there was, at the same time, no great pressure on any particular group. Trading was extremely dull.

Among Canadian shares, International Nickel and Canadian Pacific were about unchanged. Dome Mines sold a trifle lower. On the curb, Lake Shore was fairly steady. Dominion Government bonds were narrow. The Canadian dollar was off 3-16 of a cent at 103 7-16 cents.

The world's a stage on which all parts are played.

Fog Ties Traffic In Toronto Harbor

TORONTO, Sept. 25 (CP).—Dense fog blanketed this harbor to-day and extended over much of Lake Ontario and the surrounding countryside. Vessels bound for Toronto were delayed many hours.

The Canada Steamship Company reported most of its vessels anchored or hove to waiting for the fog to lift. Officials of the Tree Line said they expected two vessels to-day and had heard they would be delayed several hours.

Harbor traffic crept at a snail's pace but kept going and no accidents were reported.

English Beach Yields Eighteen-Foot Python

HASTINGS, England, Sept. 25 (C.P. Cable).—An eighteen-foot python hunted in this district since its offspring were found and destroyed a few days ago, was discovered to-day peacefully asleep on the beach. It was captured and taken to the local zoo.

The python escaped many years ago from either a zoo or got away from a box of fruit from abroad and grew to its full stature in the woods surrounding this town. When the snakelets were discovered the entire district was alarmed and the hunt was on.

KING VICTOR CELEBRATES

ROME, Sept. 25 (AP)—King Victor Emmanuel to-day celebrated the birth of his granddaughter, Maria Pia, by signing a decree of amnesty liberating all prisoners sentenced to two years or less in jail.

Although the amnesty does not apply to political offences and certain heinous crimes, it includes military offences and will result in the release of many thousands of prisoners. Not only that, the amnesty cut two years off sentences of more than two years' duration.

OTTAWA.—Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, was today receiving congratulations on the victory won by his party candidates in four of the five Federal by-elections.

EVERY CONFIDENCE PREMIER BENNETT

Everybody Effected By Depression Votes Against the Government.

"Everybody effected by the depression votes against the government in power in times such as this,' E. A. Peck, K.C., member of parliament from Peterborough, said this morning in a comment on the outcome of yesterdays by-elections. "The Liberals in the House gained two seats but there is still a good deal of depression around so we must expect that."

Mr. Peck said he was pleased with the election of Tommy Church in the Toronto East contest. Mr. Church is a man of integrity who will devote himself sincerely to the interests of his riding as he has in the past and well deserved his victory, he said.

"Regardless of last night's results, I have every confidence in Premier Bennett and his cabinet. He is really doing his best for the country and has made a fair success in his efforts."

R. R. Hall, K.C., prominent Liberal, offered a comment which was typical of expressions of opinion among Liberals in the city this morning. "The by-election results were evidence of a feeling throughout the country that it is time for a change and that the sooner the change comes the better. The heavy Liberal vote certainly looked like a demand for a general election."

TEXTILE WORKERS FIGHT AGAINST DISCRIMINATION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—The United Textile Workers mapped a determined fight to-day on what they called discrimination against many workers who took part in the great United States textile strike.

They said they would place every charge of discrimination before the new cotton textile labor relations aboard, which is to be named by President Roosevelt on the recommendation of the mediation board headed by Governor John G. Winant, of New Hafnpshire.

Gorman had on his desk 45 telegrams from union locals charging discrimination in 37 mills.

Too Honest

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 25.—If everyone were as honest as George Flam, 24, alleged thief, the police wouldn't have much trouble.

Did you hear about that street car robbery in Elm Grove?" asked Flam of Police Chief Joseph C. Burkhart, referring to a hold-up of Ulysses House, 50, a street car motorman.

After the Chief replied he had heard about the robbery, Flam asked: "Have you got anybody locked up for it?"

Although no one was, the Chief again replied yes.

"Well, turn him loose. He's not your man. I did it," the Chief reported Flam as replying. Then Flam was identified by House and sent to jail for 60 days.

REV. McCONNELL GIVES ADDRESS

Relates Experiences at Plevna to Campbellford Rotary Club Members.

CLERGY PRESENT.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 25.—The clergy was well represented at the Rotary Club luncheon on Monday, Rev. A. McConnell of the Anglican church, Stirling, being principal speaker, while the Rev. J. A. Koffend also of Stirling, and the Rev. T. H. Floyd of Christ church, Campbellford, were dinner guests. Mr. McConnell was introduced by Mr. Dwight Bennett and took for his subject, "Work and Play in North Frontenac County," telling his listeners a few of his many experiences while stationed at Plevna, stating that it seemed like going back to primitive days, and that the people in that section lived very much to themselves, but were as fine a class of citizens as you would meet anywhere. The natives were made up of Germans, Irish and Scotch; all the different religious denominations were represented, but he had found the majority of them very loyal and thrifty.

While considerable time was devoted to farming, he found that the younger generation was not taking very well to the land as their parents did, and in many cases stumps were still standing on land which had been cleared fifty years ago. Lumbering is about finished in that district, said the speaker, and while there is apparently a quantity of hardwood and pine, about 75 p.c. of this is government forest reserve. The tourist trade is very good, about 85 p.c. American, and while the roads are none too good, these visitors found the best fishing grounds and seemed to know the good fishing places for bass and pike better than the natives.

The distressing feature of the district was that when a doctor was required he had to come from a long distance, and many deaths had occurred by inability to procure medical attendance in emergency cases. The school system was fairly good, but when the hunting and trapping season opened, attendance dropped down, as most of the boys had to help their fathers with the muskrat traps. Square dancing was one of the principal amusements, while medicine shows gathered large crowds and did a land office business. Speaking of his own work, he said that he had learned from actual experience what true fellowship and sincerity was (sharing in common what we had with our fellow men) and also that these natives were noted for their generous hospitality. Mayor H. N. Carr moved a vote of thanks to the speaker for his very interesting address, which was conveyed to him by President Stanley H. Neale.

Benefit Of Doubt Asked For Veterans

VANCOUVER, Sept. 25 (C.P.).—The Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, holding its 14th convention here, to-day was on record demanding war veterans be given the benefit of the doubt" when applying for pensions and that men be treated as individuals and not classified in groups according to pensions regulations.

Resolutions to this effect were passed at the opening business meeting yesterday. With Col. W. C. H. Wood, Quebec, Dominion president, in the chair, and delegates from all parts of Canada in attendance, the convention also went on record as favoring revision of the Pension Act to allow greater elasticity in administering awards to disabled veterans.

The purpose of the Canadian Farm Loan Act Amendment Act passed during the 1934 session of Parliament is to extend the scope of the Loan Act so that increased credit facilities through the Canadian Farm Loan Board may be plaed at the disposal of the farmer in order to enable him to carry on his business.

ROAD WORKER BLAST VICTIM

Toronto Italian Critically Injured in Premature Explosion Near Denbigh.

IN PERTH HOSPITAL.

TWEED, Sept. 25.—Frank Fascarino, 38, Toronto Italian, was critically injured when a charge of dynamite exploded prematurely on the highway construction work at Camp 4-C-1 near Denbigh. He was taken to Perth hospital and hopes for his recovery are slim.

He suffered considerably from loss of blood, his hands and face being badly cut.

Fascarino apparently had sprung a hole, placing in it sixteen sticks of dynamite. While standing directly over the aperature, there was a terrible explosion and he was hurled some distance. His helper, standing only a few feet away, suffered shock and minor wounds.

Fascarino has been employed for some time at the camp. He has a wife and two children in Italy.

Weddings

SHINE—MURRAY.

DOWNEYVILLE, Sept. 25.—(Examiner Correspondence).—On Tuesday morning St. Luke's Church, Downeyville, was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding when Kathleen Murray, daughter of Mrs. Daniel Flynn and the late John Murray, was united in marriage to Patrick Shine, son of William and the late Mrs. Shine. Rev. Father McFadden performed the ceremony. Miss Dorothy Murray, of Toronto, attended her sister as bridesmaid, while the groom was ably supported by his cousin, Mr. Cyril O'Connoll, of Downeyville.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at "Old Cottage" tea rooms, Lindsay, for the immediate families. After a brief honeymoon, Mr. Shine and his bride will reside near Downeyville. All join in wishing the newly married couple a long and happy wedded life.

Obituary

MRS. CECILY KEELEY

(Examiner Correspondence)

MARMORA, Sept. 25.—The death occurred at Crow Lake on Saturday night of Mrs. Cecily Anne Keeley, mother of Rev. Father J. J. Keeley.

The deceased lady who was highly respected is survived by seven sons and one daughter. Requiem Mass to be celebrated by His Excellency Archbishop M. J. O'Brien, D.D. will be held at the Sacred Heart church Marmora at 9 a.m. on Wednesday. Interment will take place in the family plot in Railton R. C. cemetery near Lydenham.

GEORGE HALL.

TWEED, Sept. 25 (Examiner Correspondence).—Tweed received a shock Monday morning when it became known that Mr. George Hall had dropped dead in the door of his home. Deceased was a prosperous and highly respected farmer, living one mile south of Tweed.

In his 75th year, deceased was apparently in his usual good health on rising yesterday morning to go to the barn. Surviving are his widow and three sons.

Funeral notice later.

LEWIS ALLORE.

TWEED, Sept. 25 (Examiner Correspondence).—Succumbing in the Belleville General Hospital after a brief illness, Lewis Allore, of Cannifton, died late Sunday evening. Deceased was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis Allore, and was born in Hungerford Township. He had resided in Cannifton for 25 years.

A member of St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church, he is survived by one daughter, Lena, of Detroit; two sisters, Mrs. John La Barge of Hungerford and Mrs. John Duffy of Cleveland, and three brothers: Charles of Cannifton, Edward and Peter of Hungerford.

BENJAMIN F. COONES

APSLEY, Sept. 25 (Examiner Correspondence).—St. George's Church was packed to the doors on Friday afternoon for the funeral service of Benjamin Franklin Coones, who passed away on Wednesday morning at the age of 76. The Rev. C. A. G. Spence conducted the service, being assisted at the graveside by the Rev. Mr. Porter, pastor of the United Church. Mrs. George Kilborn presiding at the organ.

A striking tribute to the esteem and respect in which the deceased was held by the community was manifested not only by the large attendance, but also in the great number of floral emblems. He is survived by his wife, three daughters, Mrs. W. C. Hales of Saskatchewan, Mrs. H. J. Pammett of Peterborough, and Annie at home; also two sons, David of Lakefield and John at home. Two older brothers of the deceased, Lewis and Allan also survive him, both living in Apsley. The Marmonte Inn, formerly the Union Hotel under Mr. Coone's ownership, was closed all day Friday, as a mark of respect for the deceased. His death is a distinct loss to the community.

MRS. FRANK COLLINS

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 25. — News of the very sudden death of Mrs. Frank Collins, which occurred at the family residence, Grand Road, on Monday night, came as a great shock to her many friends in this community. Mrs. Collins, whose maiden name was Clara Mahoney, was in her 37th year and was a daughter of the late Jeremiah Mahoney and besides her husband leaves a number of young children to mourn her loss.

2 GOVERNMENT SEATS ARE LOST

—the largest polled since the present riding was formed in 1924. The seat had been held by the late Dr. William Spankie, Conservative, since 1929.

Mulock in York North

Vote-counting came to a halt in North York when supporters of W. P. Mulock turned out to celebrate the Liberal candidate's victory. The grandson of Sir William Mulock, Chief Justice of Ontario, rolled up a 2,000 majority over Captain Harold Breuls, his war-time "buddy" and Conservative opponent, before the celebrations burst forth. The two candidates belong to the same regiment and both served overseas, winning commissions. Each is a lawyer. The new Liberal member is only 37 years old and the seat he captured was formerly held by the late Col. T. H. Lennox.

McKinnon in Kenora

Hugh B. McKinnon, endorsed by the Liberal party though designated in his Kenora-Rainy River riding as Liberal-Labor, moves into the "driver's seat" formerly held by Hon. Peter Heenan. Like the new Ontario Minister of Northern Development who resigned from the Federal House to enter the Provincial Cabinet, Mr. McKinnon is a locomotive engineer. Thirty years of his 40 years have been spent at railroading.

Early to-day his majority over Joseph Derry, Conservative, was 4,800, more than trebling the vote over his opponent. The new member has served as campain manager for Mr. Heenan and himself was a candidate in the Provincial election of 1926, losing to J. P. Earngey, Conservative.

Mills Carries Elgin.

Wilson H. Mills, supported in the West Elgin fight by Premier Hepburn's personal appearance in the campaign, piled up a heavy rural vote and won handily over Conservative and Independent opponents. His majority was nearly 2,500, while his plurality over H. G. Borbridge, Conservative, was 2,900. W. H. MacDonald, the Independent candidate, was a poor third, polling only 562 out of nearly 17,000 votes cast.

Premier Hepburn, from his sickbed in St. Thomas, expressed himself highly pleased over the success of his neighbor. Mr. Mills, chairman of the West Elgin Liberal Association, is 52 years old, the oldest of the four successful Liberals.

Church Comes Out Best.

The turbulent campaign in Toronto East that saw many flurries of excitement, left the veteran "Tommy" Church unscathed. The former member for Toronto North-West staged his comeback in a contest against Major H. P. Snelgrove, Liberal, and Graham Spry, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation candidate, for the seat made vacant by the death of Hon. E. B. Ryckman, former Minister of National Revenue in the Bennett Government.

The veteran campaigner, who has seen seven terms as Mayor of Toronto, and was three times elected to Parliament before his defeat in 1930 in Toronto West Centre, failed to poll a majority over his two opponents but amassed a substantial majority over the runner-up candidate. Figures early to-day given as complete showed: Church polled 13,207 out of 36,519 votes; Snelgrove 10,643, and Spry 4,699.

C.C.F. Protest.

While voting was in progress yesterday, the C.C.F. candidate announced he had protested the balloting on the ground of illegal electioneering by both Conservative and Liberal organizations. This was the parting shot in a campaign that at times kept the city's eastern riding in a fever of excitement. Scores of meetings were held, indoors and out. Motor trucks and cars with loud speakers scurried about the district nightly while candidates and supporters made their pleas to the electors.

Here were charges that meetings were interrupted, that addresses were drowned out by blasts of music that roared from opposition loud speakers. There were challenges and scuffles as feelings of party adherents ran high.

Although eight men have spent two and one-half year in scrubbing the interior of St. Paul's Cathedral, in London, with soap and water, their task is not near completion.

hadn't come, the waiters probably would have slept on the beach.

That's the way it goes on the Sturgeon. Train service is all 'haywire.' Aeroplane service is all 'haywire.' Plane service is regular inbound but the only way out is to trek across country to the beach and wait for a plane. It may come in 10 minutes, 10 hours or 10 days, depending on inbound loads.

Companies in Lead.

This isn't just a prospectors' rush, but a rush of the big operators to get into a new and spectacular field. As fast as any of the old and dependable prospectors go out with frinds worth recording, scouts for big operators were offering to deal.

To-day the Sturgeon River is alive with nationally renowned geologists who have come in to look over properties, tales of which have been taken out by prospectors. The principal point to stress about the Sturgeon isn't the story of some lonely lady who went in, staked 20 claims and made her fortune over night, but that serious mining people, representing leading companies, are coming into the country every day.

Because Prince Henry is going to Australia for the Melbourne centenary celebration instead of Prince George, millions of medallions, cigarette cards, chocolate boxes and other articles have had to be destroyed.

FERNIE PORTER

On Sunday night, September 16, after a lingering illness, Fernie Porter passed, peacefully away at Grace Hospital, Toronto.

Mr. Porter was born at Bethany in Manvers township on January 10, 1885, the son of the late George and Annie Porter. In early life he moved with his parents to a farm just east of Millbrook, where he lived till he became a young man. In the spring of 1910 he moved to Markham where he was employed in the Road Department of the Canadian National Railways, then known as the Grand Trunk Railway System. His faithful and painstaking attention to duty and his skill as a workman were quickly recognized and rewarded by his superiors, and in the autumn of 1913 he was promoted to the position of foreman. In November of the following year he located in Port Perry, purchasing a home on Lilla St. where he has resided ever since.

He was of a quiet, unassuming disposition, a man of splendid character and integrity and his cheerful, pleasing manner won for him a wide circle of friends who greatly regret his early demise.

Besides his widow, who was Elizabeth Johnston, he leaves to mourn his loss three brothers, Herbert of Stouffville, Orlie of Toronto and Harry of Claremont.

The funeral was held from Cobbledick's Funeral Parlors, 2570 Danforth avenue, Toronto, on Wednesday afternoon, proceeding to Peterborough where interment was made in Little Lake cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mrs. Barrie and family wish to express their sincere thanks to all their friends for kindness and sympathy, and also for floral tributes received during their recent sad bereavement.

BIRTH.

LONERGAN. — At St. Joseph's Hospital, on Sunday, September 23, 1934, to Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Lonergan, 497 Gilmour Street — a daughter.

DEATH.

HOLLAND.—The death occurred of Mrs. Mary Holland, widow of the late Charles Holland, and formerly Mary Foster, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Emmett Kylie, 777 George Street, early this morning.

Funeral announcement later.

IN MEMORIAM.

BAGLESON.—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, George, who passed on, September 26, 1933:

Time speeds on, one year has passed
Since death its gloom, its shadow cast
Within our home, where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light and ever will,
His vacant chair there is none to fill.
It seemeth such a little way across
To that strange country, the beyond,
And yet not strange for it has grown to be
The home of those of whom we are so fond.

SUSPECT BOMB PLACED IN SHIP

Morro Castle Watchman Claims Captain Blamed Alagna for First Fire.

STRANGER IN LOBBY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Arthur J. Pender, night watchman on duty aboard the liner Morro Castle at the time it burned at sea with a resultant loss of 132 lives, told the Federal Board investigating the disaster to-day that he thought the ship was bombed.

He told of an explosion, "loud" and "intense" that came either from the writing-room or the passageway forward of the lobby and declared that "in the light of everything that happened, I think the ship was bombed."

Pender, who said that he was the one who discovered a fire in the hold of the Morro Castle on a previous trip, testified that he understood that "the first officer suspected George Alagna (first assistant radio operator) of setting the fire in the hold on the previous trip."

Captain Willmott, Pender added, had taken him into his confidence and told him he intended to get rid of Alagna.

Pender also told the inquiry board of an alleged plot to 'smuggle' aliens into the United States. The plot was discovered in a Havana pool-room by his watch partner, Pender said, and they intended waiting until they found out the identity of the smuggling ring before they told of it so they could gain promotion.

Earlier Pender testified that when he first went to the lobby he saw "a young man in a gray suit" who seemed to be "terror-stricken." Pender said that he had never seen the man before and that he knew he was not a member of the crew. He testified that he first saw him about 25 minutes of 3 o'clock before he looked into the writing-room and saw another member of the crew open the locker from which the fire came.

U. S. GRAND JURY BEGINS DETAILS IN KIDNAP CASE

Experts Claim Writing on Hauptmann's Car License, Ransom Notes, Same.

NEW LEADS FOUND.

"Jafsie's" Phone Number Said Found on Wall in Prisoner's Home.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (A.P.). — The $13,750 in ransom money found in the garage at the home of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, alleged receiver of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransome, and the ransom notes and other messages from the kidnapper, were taken before the Bronx County Grand Jury to-day.

The evidence was presented in District Attorney Samuel J. Foley's effort to obtain an indictment charging extortion against Hauptmann, unemployed German carpenter, illegally in the United States.

The money and notes were taken into the grand jury room while Albert S. Osborn, handwriting expert, and his son, Albert D., were before the jury. The two were before the grand jury about an hour, with the father, who has said the handwriting on the ransom notes and that of Hauptmann's on applications for automobile licenses were similar, being questioned most of that time.

Breckenridge Called.

Col. Henry Breckenridge, personal counsel to Col. Lindbergh, and a prominent figure in the search for the kidnapped baby two and a half years ago, was before the grand jury about 30 minutes.

He declined to discuss his appearance, and also declined to say anything about his prospective meeting here to-morrow with Col. Lindbergh. Lindbergh and his wife are en route to New York by plane from the west coast, and Col. Lindbergh is expected to testify before the grand jury to-morrow.

Jafsie's Phone Number.

District Attorney Samuel J. Foley said to-day that he had evidence showing that Dr. John Condon's address and telephone number at the time of the Lindbergh extortion were written on the wall of a closet in Bruno Richard Hauptmann's home.

Foley said that the address and telephone number had been partially smudged and obliterated but that they could read '2975 Decatur Ave.,' and 'Sedgwick 3-7154,' respectively the street address and telephone number of the "Jafsie" of the Lindbergh case at the time that he paid the $50,000 to "John."

Footprints Same.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—A similarity between the footprints of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, Lindbergh kidnapping suspect, and those found near the Hopewell home of the Lindberghs was disclosed to-day at the Justice Department.

To a reporter who suggested that Hauptmann's prints were larger than those found at Hopewell, the answer was "That's a bum guess."

THREATEN CHILD REVENGE DEATH

Anna Hauptmann Sees Her Husband First Time Since Arrest.

THREATENING LETTERS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (AP)—Her husband in jail, Anna Hauptmann carries on.

Little Charles Lindbergh, Jr., was kidnapped, slain; the police accuse Bruno Richard Hauptmann; letters flood the Hauptmann home, threatening harm to their baby in revenge.

So 10-month-old Manfried and his mother are staying with the latter's cousin, Hans Mueller.

They saw Hauptmann yesterday for the first time since his arrest. Mrs. Hauptmann rushed to him with a glad cry, thrust into his free arm the baby, and stooped to kiss the manacled hand.

Proudly the father mounted the child on his knee, talked to him in German ad clucked his tongue while the baby gurgled. Anna was weeping, but she did not let Manfried see that.

Home again, she told her faith in her husband. Her Richard was "the last man in the world, yet," who would do such a thing as kidnap a baby.

He could invest in the stock market because "we worked so hard."

"Whenever President Roosevelt said things were getting better, Richard would buy more stock."

She explained Richard's field glasses as her gift; his troublesome leg as a reminder of "the old country."

Then she opened a letter left by the postman. It was signed "An American," and said, "Tell nothing but the truth, even if they kill you."

Anna burst into tears.

"The truth!" she cried. "The truth! That's all we've been telling, and they won't believe us."

Weddings

CHAMBERLAIN—DAVIES

A pretty Autumn wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at five o'clock in St. John's Anglican Church, when Venerable Archdeacon Blagrave, D.D., solemnized the marriage of Iris Doreen, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Davies of 100 Bennett street, to Mr. Francis John Chamberlain, oldest son of Mrs. Chamberlain and the late Mr. F. H. Chamberlain of London, England. The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the Wedding March played by Mr. F. G. Mann, L. Mus., was attired in beige crepe with brown accessories, and carried a bouquet of pink gladioli and fern.

The bridesmaid, Miss Myra Wilson, wore midnight blue satin with matching accessories, and carried a bouquet of mixed gladioli and fern.

Mr. Earl Davies, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

During the signing of the register, choir boys sang sweetly. Immediately after the ceremony, a dainty wedding repast was served to the immediate relatives at the home of the bride's parents, where decorations were carried out with gladioli, dahlias, roses, and pink and white streamers.

Later in the evening, a reception was held, when about fifty guests gathered to honor the young people.

Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain will reside in Peterborough.

P. ROCKEFELLER FINANCIER DIES

Nephew of "John D," One of Wealthiest Men of United States, Passes at 56.

VERY RETIRING.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (A.P.). — Percy A. Rockefeller, nephew of John D. Rockefeller and a prominent New York financier, died early to-day. He was a director of important banks and industrial corporations.

Rockefeller, who was a son of the late William Rockefeller, brother of the founder of Standard Oil, had been operated on at the doctors' hospital Saturday for a stomach disorder, and had been critically ill since. He died at 5 o'clock this morning.

Percy Rockefeller was rated as one of the wealthiest men in the United States, but was retiring and shunned the limelight. One of his few public appearances was during the Senate banking and currency committee's investigation of the New York Stock Exchange Rockefeller was called before the committee in April, 1932, and queried concerning his huge market operations.

He was born in New York Feb. 27, 1878, and after the death of his father, represented the William Rockefeller interests in the National City Bank for several years. He resigned as a director of that institution May 11, 1933, however, because of ill health.

KIWANIS HEARS JUDGE WEARING

Industrial System Robbed Workers in Factories of Sense of Initiative.

NAME COMMITTEES.

HALIFAX, Sept. 25.—(CP)—Delegates attending the annual Ontario-Quebec-Maritimes district Kiwanis International convention will elect officers for 1935 today and choose the convention city for next year's meeting.

"A greater Canada, and a people to be deemed worthy of that greatness," was the toast given to the 500 delegates by Judge Joseph J. Wearing of London, Ont., speaking "A national program for Kiwanis," at the Governor's Banquet presided over by Gordon S. Dodington of Toronto last night.

"Our industrial system has robbed the workers of our factories of all the sense of initiative, and our haphazard methods of dealing with unemployment have destroyed almost completely the virtue of thrift," the Ontario jurist stated.

He urged club members to assist in helping Canadian youth to find their place in industry and commercial life and deplored that crime amongst young men and women was steadily increasing.

Personnel of committees named by Governor Dodington were:

Elections committee: Owen Callary, Montreal, chairman; I. P. MacNabb, Peterborough; Peter Dunnett, Montreal.

Resolutions committee —William Wyatt, London, Ont., chairman; Tom. Youll, London; W. Rice, Toronto; Jack Burden, Riverdale, Ont.; R. V. Harris, K.C., Halifax.

Credentials committee— William Dunham, chairman; Merle Nickerson, Lindsay; Andrew Murray, Saint John; Douglas Cossboom, Digby, N.S.; S. O. Dadson, Ottawa; Oscar Johnston, Toronto.

Leafs Gain Right to Enter Little World Series

COMPLETE SWEEP TO VICTORY BY DEFEATING ROCHESTER 2-1

Entering Ninth Tied 1-1, Howell Scores on Heving's Scorching Single.

STELLAR PICHING.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Sept. 25.—(AP).—Toronto Maple Leafs will be the International League's standard-bearer in the forth-coming Little World Series against the American Association champions.

The Leafs completed their sweep through the league's post-season playoffs last night, defeating Rochester Redwings 2-1 in the fifth and deciding game of the final series. Previously they had eliminated Newark, league champions, four games to three. Their margin over Rochester, which finished second to Newark in the regular season, was four victories to one. Toronto finished third in the regular season.

A single by Johnny Heving in the ninth inning broke up last night's tussle, a pitching duel in which young Al Hollingsworth, Toronto southpaw, earned a slight edge over Johnny Michaels and Tony Kaufmann.

The teams were locked in a 1-1 draw when Murray Howell opened the Toronto ninth with a grounder to Tommy Carey at shortstop. Carey's perfect throw had Howell beaten easily but Manager George Toporcer dropped the ball and Howell was safe. He went to second on a sacrifice and then romped home with the deciding run on Heving's single over second base. Kaufmann, who relieved Michaels after the eighth, was charged with the defeat.

Allowed Three Hits

Michaels allowed only three hits in his term on the mound but one of these figures in the scoring of Toronto's first run in the opening inning. A walk to Joe Morrissey in that frame was followed by George McQuinn's single which sent Morrissey to third. From there he scored on Manager Ike Boone's long fly.

Hollingsworth, who allowed only four hits and fanned 12, blanked the wings until the eighth on a single by Johnny Mize, a safe bunt by Carey, a sacrifice by Buddy Lewis and an infield out.

The Leafs now return home to await the outcome of the American Association playoff between Columbus and Minneapolis. The first game of the little world series probably will be played at Toronto Thursday night.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

THE WOODBINE meeting is going along in wonderful style and it is quite a change to see every race practically filled to capacity. This shows clearly that the Ontario Jockey Club made a wise move when they decided to change their condition books and cater more to the cheaper grade of horses, especially to the Canuck Bred variety. Other years they would endeavor to feature several big handicap events with purses ranging from seven to ten thousand dollars and the result was that a small field with one or two outstanding horses would go to the post and some big American owner after gathering in all the 'Duke' would ship back to New York the very next day.

The Harry Hatch stable, which have been inactive for the greater part of the summer due to the friction between the Canadian Racing Association and Trainer Lloyd Gentry, came back with a bang on Saturday last down at Rockingham Park. Their record for the day was three wins and one second which is a very creditable performance for any racing establishment. As we have repeatedly pointed out during the past few months it was a bad break for the Canadian racing fans when they were denied the privilege of seeing the horses that sport the popular light and dark blue silks perform this season. It looks as if this large racing stable have decided to give our tracks the go-by and nobody can really blame them.

MODERN ACE, who won his first start in J. E. Smallman's colors when he won the final race on Saturday, was claimed back by his old owner, the Stuart Stables from whence he came. Mrs. J. Badame also had a claim in for him but was outlucked in the draw. This horse is a little better than the average plater and will win many more races before our season closes. The Hasting Stable, which houses that good sprinter Tractable, reports that he injured his ankle and as a result will be on the shelf for some time. This is a tough break as he had just rounded into the pink of condition.

There is a Western jockey by the name of R. J. Shore who has just checked in from Winnipeg and will get his share of winners down in front or we will miss our guess very badly as we have never seen one of these westerners yet who didn't know the shortest way around any race track. A few years ago when Jockey McLaren arrived from the same place a lot of the wise boys figured he was a punk but before two weeks time they were all clamoring to purchase tickets on his mounts irrespective of what nag he was up on.

COGS CONFIDENT FOR NEXT GAME

Resume 10-Inning Battle With Milton To-morrow at Exhibition Grounds.

PITCHERS READY

Milton is here to-morrow (Wednesday) at four o'clock in the Exhibition Grounds to play Cogs. It is the second game of their O.B.A. A. intermediate semi-final series, Milton having nosed out an 8-7 win in ten innings at home to take the first fixture. A third game, if necessary, will be staged on neutral grounds Saturday. The victor of this series will in all probability get a bye into the Ontario finals with the winner of Western Ontario. The biggest crowd the Cogs have drawn here this year is expected at the Exhibition Grounds to-morrow.

Percy Vannest or Lefty Billingsley will do the flinging for Manager Dorsey Davis' team, the former being a speedball hurler and Lefty depending on tricky forkside hooks. Both are ready to get in there and try hard to even up the series. The whole Clubmen's crew is raring to go and is playing great ball ever since they won the E.P.L. title, first knocking off the strong Lakeshore League champions and then rubbing Kingston Hawks out of the picture. They play good ball and will have to be at their very best Wednesday against the powerful Milton gang. It should be a swell game and rates a huge crowd of rooters.

SYRACUSE IS LEAFS' FARM

International Hockey League Plans to Help Amateurs Into Pro Ranks.

POWERS TO MANAGE.

DETROIT, Sept. 25.—(A.P.)—The board of governors of the International Hockey League, at their annual meeting here yesterday, lent a helping hand to young players hopeful of breaking into professional ranks.

The board, comprised of representatives from six clubs, unanimously passed a resolution that of the 14 players each club may carry, two must be playing their first year in the professional field. Four others of the squad must not have had more than three years' experience, while no more than eight players of unlimited experience may be carried.

Charles S. King of Windsor, Ont., president of the league, pointed out that the clubs may use all first-year players if they see fit, but that at least two must be players new to the professional game, and not more than three years' experience.

It was announced that Eddie Powers who managed Boston Cubs of the Can-Am. League will pilot Syracuse Stars of the International League this season. Powers is a native of Toronto and succeeds Mickey Roach who was deposed last season.

Financial difficulties between Syracuse and the league were settled with the provision that Syracuse will turn over to the league 5 pe rcent. of the receipts of all games.

Conny Smythe, manager of Toronto Maple Leafs, announced Syracuse Stars would become Toronto's farm.

The board voted to abandon the round-robin playoff system, but did not decide on a substitute system.

King predicted a successful season for all clubs.

Those attending the session in addition to King were: John D. Chick, Windsor; Louis Giffels and Jack Adams, Detroit; George Vasey, Buffalo; Harry Holmes, Cleveland; J. W. Johnson and Tom Raleigh, Syracuse, and J. A. Anderson, London.

TIGERS CAPTURE LEAGUE CROWN AS YANKS LOSE

While Giants Idle, Cards Reduce Their Lead to Two Games.

TAKE CUBS 3-1.

Giants Must Win All Four of Remaining Games to Squash Cards.

(By Herbert W. Barker, A.P. Sports Writer.)

For the first time in 26 years, Detroit Tigers have won the American League pennant, but whether their World Series rivals would be New York Giants or St. Louis Cardinals none could say to-day.

The idle Tigers "backed" into the flag yesterday when New York Yankees were shut out by a Boston Red Sox rookie right hander, and thus lost their last mathematical chance of overhaulingg Detroit in the race to the wire.

While Mickey Cochrane's inspired club thus was sewing up its championship beyond all shadow of doubt developments in the National League served only to indicate that if the world champion Giants are to win again they'll have to do so on their own behalf. They'll get scant help from the Cardinals.

Four Games Left.

While the Giants were idle, the Cards beat down Chicago Cubs 3-1 and headed for home only two games out of first place. With the season ending on Sunday, the Giants have four games yet to play—two with the Phillies to-day and to-morrow and two with Brooklyn on Saturday and Sunday, all at the Polo Grounds. The Cardinals still have six on their slate, two with Pittsburgh to-day and to-morrow and four with Cincinnati on the last four days of the season, also all at home.

How They Stand.

If the Giants win all four of their games, they will take the pennant no matter what St. Louis accomplishes. If they win three while the Cards capture six, the race will end in a tie and a special series of three games will be necessary to decide the league champion. Any combination of New York victories and St. Louis defeats which adds to four will automatically give the Giants the flag.

The Cards won from the Cubs yesterday by virtue of Bill Walker's seven-hit pitching and timely hitting by Pepper Martin and Leo Durocher. Durocher nicked Lon Warneke for a double in the third and came home on Martin's drive into the left field stands. "Lippy Leo" drove home the Cards' third run off Relief Pitcher Bill Lee in the ninth, singling home Bill Delancy, who had singled, from second. Walker fanned seven, getting Babe Herman on strikes three times, and would have had a shutout but for Hazen Cuyler's homer in the ninth.

John Merena, youngster from Syracuse, pitched the Red Sox to the 5-0 victory that removed the Yankees from the American League race, Merena pitched four-hit ball and allowed only one man to get as far as third.

In the only other major league engagements of the day, Brooklyn toppled the Phillies twice, 5-3 and 10-1, and the Athletics tripped the Washington twice, 5-4 and 3-0. Jimmy Foxx hit his 44th homer in the first game.

HITCH HIKING 10,000 MILES

21-Year-Old Canadian Youth Passes Through City on Long Hike.

RESULT OF WAGER

Hitch-hiking 10,000 miles on a wager with the mayor of Waldeck, Saskatchewan, Ernest Wall, a 21-year-old Canadian youth, passed through Peterborough to-day. He has already covered 4,000 miles and has the other 6,000 to go before July 6, 1935.

To win the wager, the sun-tanned, muscular young man must comply with the following terms:

"You must travel the ten thousand miles in one year.

"You must not travel on the same road more than twice and that part of your journey travelled more than twice will not be credited to your mileage total. Traveling on freight trains not to be permitted.

"You must have the signature of the Mayor or other prominent citizen of each city or municipality you pass through.

"You are not permitted to set the amount of remuneration which you may receive for services rendered in any manner.

"You must not have on your person more than one dime at the commencement of your journey.

"You must have at least ten thousand signatures at the end of your journey."

What is at stake in the wager? Is it a handsome sum of money or is it, perhaps, Mayor H. E. Jenkins' daughter—if he has a daughter? Wall would not say. At any rate, he has met the conditions of the bet so far and is confident that he will go through with it successfully.

He started out on July 6. Although he walked for three days in one stretch along the trans-Canada highway west of Fort William, he has fared well with auto rides as a whole. Since the United States Immigration authorities have refused him admission to the States, he will have to complete the 10,000 miles in Canada.

What does he do for money?

According to the terms of the wager, he started out with nothing more than a ten-cent piece in his pocket. However, he has managed to scrape along despite the fact that he must not beg and he must not set a price on any service he may do. At times, he admits, he has been so low in funds that he was almost ready to give up but at other times he has existed in comparative luxury.

He carries with him in addition to his tidy knapsack a large book which already contains several thousand signatures of civic officials and other Canadian citizens. Mayor Roland Denne was one of the local signers of his register.

From Peterborough he is heading for Ottawa and will proceed then to Montreal and through Quebec.

The shipments of livestock from western to eastern Canada for the first 36 weeks of 1934, ending September 7, included 62,560 cattle; 701 calves; 180,442 hogs; and 45,222 sheep.

McGILL LACKS PUNTER FROM STARRY SQUAD

Have a Rugged, Hard-hitting Wingline That May be Terror of Loop.

AMERICAN STARS.

By Wallace Ward
(Canadian Press Sports Writer).

MONTREAL, Sept. 25 (C.P.).—If football coaches ever stooped to such a human quality as wistfulness, Frank "Shag" Shaughnessy of McGill University would have that gleam in his eye every time kicking is mentioned. The Redmen dash into the Inter-Collegiate Senior Union campaign this year with a rugged, hard-hitting, well-conditioned wingline that may well become the terror of the senior college loop, with a miscellaneous collection of native and United States backfield material—but no kicker.

Herb. Westman has gone and the McGill team will miss his tremendous punting. Herb is out of college this year and has hooked up with Ottawa in the Big Four. His passing has left considerable anguish in the McGill camp. Bob Craig, who partnered Herb last year as catching half, has been given the unenviable task of trying to fill Westman's shoes, and they probably will be too big for him. Craig, under careful tutelage, has been developed into a good 40-yard punter. If kicking is not his specialty, Craig has proven himself a good catching half, passer and ball carrier.

Intensive Training.

Shaughnessy took a squad of 18 men down into the eastern townships of Quebec for a couple of weeks of intensive conditioning with the result that the Redmen will go into action probably in better physical shape than they have in many a year.

The wing-line is heavy, full of fight, and well-schooled in all the plays. On paper they look like one of the best lines in the college group. Fred Wigle, husky Hamilton lad who saw considerable service last year as substitute, will replace Bob Freeman and Frank Shaughnessy, Jr., at snap-back. Hap Pierce, the big Philadelphian, will team up with Wally Stockwell, at inside wing as they did last year. George Hornig, ex-St. Lawrence University man, starting his second season with the Redmen, will be a regular middle wing, partnered by Bud Drury, formerly a star with the R.M.C. Cadets. George Degnan of California and Charlie Letourneau of Montreal hold down the first string outside wing positions. Letourneau was a middle last season but has been going great as a tackler and pass receiver. Degnan has had one season of the Canadian game to cut his teeth on and should have a great year. With Frank Shaughnessy, Jr., out of college this year, Letourneau will probably replace him at kicking placements.

Strong As Building

That well disciplined, hard muscled front line is like the facade of a new building—the man in the street wants to know what's behind it. In this case the builders don't even know for sure. Besides Bob Craig there is Tom Richert, tall American who reported late but who did some relief kicking last year and is a good all round halfback. Al Krukowski, forward-passing quarterback, is out of the picture due to an automobile accident this summer. Joe Riddell, a smart young footballer, will work at quarter.

Don Young, perennial flying wing and Eastern Canada all-star nominee each year without fail, will lend considerable steadiness to an inexperienced back division. Wally Markham, an old stager, will handle much of the plunging. Joe Smith, a newcomer from University of Southern California, has a promising look about him. Frank Hughes is a smart looking half from Lafayette University.

Cam McArthur, one time of University of Manitoba, will fit in nicely on the half line as relief. Laurie Byrne, fast running half, and Bob McLernon were with the team last year. Bub Rushkin, Hod Stovel, Ernie Mack, and J. Hackley are a quartette of Americans who reported late but will doubtless be useful in a few weeks. Rushkin is an inside and the others are backfield prospects.

Harry Walker and Haddie Jones, a husky pair of youngsters, complete the squad. It is likely Shaughnessy will work in some of his spare backfield material as outside wing relief. Craig, Riddell and Joe Smith will do most of the passing, a department of the game much stressed at the Knowlton, Que., training camp.

GIRLS' GAME ENDS IN CLOWN ACT AND UMPIRE RULES "NO CONTEST"

Westclox Try to Stall and Keene to Retire Selves as Darkness Falls.

REPLAY TO-MORROW

Keene and Westclox tangled at the Ashburnham Bowl last night in the third of the five-game series for the championship of the Ladies' City and District Softball League, before the biggest crowd of the season, and for seven innings both outfits dished up first class ball with the Clock-Makers leading at the end of the seventh 10-9. In the first of the eighth with the twilight almost too poor for baseball, both teams started a stalling act, after Keene had piled up a five run lead. Westclox apparently figured that if the innings was not completed the score would revert back giving them a win, while Keene on the other hand in their efforts to be retired, so that Westclox would complete the innings and make it a Keene win, made it look too obvious and the umpire was forced to call the game a "no contest," and the game wil be replayed Wednesday at the Bowl starting at 4.45.

Westclox started their ace hurler, Barbara Blade but the Keene lasses got to her from the start and connected sixteen times for safe hits. She fanned four and passed five. The visitors sent Marilyn McCarthy to the slab and she held the locals to three hits in six frames, whiffing four, and walking six. In the seventh the Westclox made their bid for victory scoring seven times on two walks, two hits and four errors, one hit being a clean double by Grace Hawkes, Jean Munro went to the rubber, relieving McCarthy when two were out and six runs had crossed.

ABSENCE OF LAST YEAR'S STARS MADE PONIES AN ORDINARY TEAM

Lacked Snap to Play and Hurlers Failed to Show Much Stuff.

SMITH LED HITTERS

Kingston Ponies, league champions last year, finished in the C.O.B.L. cellar this season. Loss of McQuade, Compeau and Fournier made the champs look very ordinary. They did not play good ball for the most part this season, none of the hurlers reaching the .500 mark, and the team being low in fielding. Smith topped the regular batters with .333, including three homers and five triples. Joyce stood out defensively with only five errors out of two hundred and thirty-four chances, for an average of .976. Complete official averages for league games follow:

FOUR MAIN FACTORS CONTRIBUTE TO PENNANT VICTORY OF TIGERS

Combine Speed, Batting Power, Cochrane's Leadership and Rowe's Pitching.

WORLD SERIES TOPICS.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Sept. 25. (AP). — A number of circumstances have combined to lift the Detroit Tigers to the American League peak after a 25-year interval but the four salient factors contributing to their dramatic pennant victory as well as to their world series hopes can be listed as speed, batting power concentrated in an iron-man infield, the forceful leadership of Mickey Cochrane and the pitching skill of Schoolboy Rowe.

For speculative purposes and you can compare these assets with the pitching, outfield power, defence and shrewd leadership of the Giants by Bill Terry or the all-around driving power, speed and Dean Brothers' pitching combination of Frank Frisch's St. Louis Cardinals, still in hot pursuit of the world champions down the National League stretch.

Value of Cochrane

Without either Cochrane or Rowe, it is safe to say Detroit would have been lucky to land a place in the first division. As a matter of fact the Tigers were picked in the preseason consensus to finish no better than fourth, but at that time it would have taken rare imagination, as well as prophetic vision, to have anticipated Rowe would win 24 or more games, including 16 in succession to tie the league record.

Rowe's heroic pitching in his first full big league year has won him Cochrane's designation as the starting Tiger flinger in the opening game of the World Series, October 3, at Navin Field, Detroit. The young Giant from ElDorado, Ark., will will likely be pitted against Carl Hubbell, ace southpaw of the Giants and one of the greatest "money pitchers" the game has developed in modern times. Should the Cardinals overtake the Giants, undoubtedl Rowe would find himself arrayed against Jerome (Dizzy) Dean. Any way he may look at it, it's the toughest kind of assignment for a newcomer to World Series fire and furore, but they say in Detroit the Schoolboy doesn't know what nervousness means.

Pitchers' Rotation

For the Tigers, Cochrane's pitching rotation probably will consist of Rowe, Al Crowder, Tommy Bridges and Rowe, with Firpo Marberry, Elden Auker and the others to do any necessary mopping up. Crowder, free from the heavy burden he carried in 1933, he made a fine comeback, since being discarded by the Senators.

It will be "Dean, Dean, Dean"—a la Kipling—if the Cardinals carry the National League banner into the world series whereas the "big four" of the Giants probably would be asked to work in this order: Hubbell, Hal Schumacher, Roy Parmalee and Fred Fitzsimmons. The way Parmalee has been performing in the "clutches" recently, pulling the Giants back repeatedly from the brink, it will not be surprising to see the former Columbus speedball pitcher get a big share of world series work. Last year Parmalee was considered too risky a proposition, from the standpoint of his wildness, to be started in the world series.

Rowe's Long Legs Helps Him Pitch

DETROIT, September 25. — Mickey Cochrane remarked recently, "Most people think Schoolboy Rowe must have some mysterious stuff because he is only 22 years old and is winning so many games. Well, Rowe has marvellous control, he has a good curve and a good fast ball. But Rowe is a big fellow, 6 feet 4 inches, and he takes a full step when he throws. You know, the distance from the plate to the pitcher's box is 60 feet 6 inches, and when he takes his full stride forward he is about two feet closer to the plate than an ordinary pitcher. Rowe never saw an organized baseball game until 1932 and that year he was with our farm at Beaumont. Last season he developed a sore arm and this spring it also bothered him. It's OK now."

Western's Coach Selects Queen's

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 25 (CP) —Joe Breen, coach of University of Western Ontario Mustangs, yesterday took time out at his grid squads temporary training table to pick Queen's as the team to beat for the honors in the coming Senior Intercollegiate campaign. When it was pointed out to the Mustangs' Irish mentor Western will have to open the schedule on the Tricolors' gridiron, Joseph was not flustered in the least.

Chicago Fan Dancer Wants Divorce From Kingfish Levinsky at Once.

MARRIED A MONTH.

CHICAGO, September 25.— Mrs. Kingfish "Ain't I Strong" Levinsky grabbed off one of her husband's favorite tricks yesterday and took a run-out powder from the marriage ring.

Married a little more than a month, Roxanne Carmine Levinsky (nee Goldi Glickman) tossed in the sponge by filing suit for divorce from the walloping reformed fish-peddler, charging cruelty. It was the nearest thing to a knockout that Levinsky has caught up with in a couple of years.

Bearing no outward signs of combat, but armed with plenty of harrowing tales of her matrimonial flyer, Goldie fairly screamed for justice.

She was joined by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Glickman, who urged her to file a bill for divorcement from one Harris Krakow, the Kingfish, who only five short weeks ago said of his wife, a former fan dancer at the World Fair:

"Ain't she swell—ain't she swell?"

The Kingfish's bride said he always wanted to play too rough, and that "Leaping Lena" Levy, the Kingfish's sister and one of his three managers, was very much to blame for their trouble.

"I am a dancer, not a fighter," Goldie exclaimed. "Lena wouldn't let me work at the Fair, although I was drawing down big dough. Why, when I wanted some new clothes, I had to ask Lena, and even when I got hungry, I had to eat at her restaurant."

Mrs. Levinsky charges that her husband hauled off and took a couple of punches at her cheek on September 22, and also berated her with cusswords.

AT THE REGENT

"CAROLINA"

This is the sort of picture you can see only once in a long time. It is a beautiful thing, and the players seem to have been moulded for their parts.

Here is Janet Gaynor, in the role of Joanna Tate, little daughter of a Northerner who comes to the sullen post-war South to rent land and to sow the despised tobacco crop where King Cotton reigned before the war that freed the slaves and drove a bitter wedge between the wearers of the blue and the grey. Her father dies, and she carries on alone. No longer does Janet Gaynor mouth her words. She comes back, in this feature, to the beauty and grace of the slim girl who captured the admiration of her audiences in "Seventh Heaven," and she has one of the sweetest roles in her repertoire.

Lionel Barrymore, as usual, steals the show. What an art these royal actors possess! He is the old, weary man who was a Confederate hero, whose memory is haunted always by the ghost of the girl he lost and by odd tags and ends of old poetry that roll from his sardonic old tongue at unexpected moments. The manner of his taking off brought sobs yesterday from the more impressionable of the members of the audience.

But "Carolina" is a matter of laughter as well as tears. Subtly mixed, they form an alluring brew that ends only with the last minute of a beautiful picture.

Robert Young, who was rather inane as the young lover in "House of Rothchild," has a superbly played role in this picture, as the young son of the House of Connelly, formerly a show place of the pre-war Southern world, now fallen into ruin and decay with its people still bearing a proud visage to the world. Henrietta Crosman is his mother, the ambitious, scheming Ellen Connelly, and old Bob Connelly (Barrymore), is his uncle. Richard Cromwell is the storekeeper, Mona Barrie the 'other girl', and Stepin Fetchit is the awkward negro butler.

"Carolina" is the kind of picture you will want to see again. It has a little of everything, and the sort of realistic acting that makes a piece memorable.—Jeanette.

The big ball game here to-morrow (Wednesday) of a busy local sporting week is the Milton-Cogs' intermediate play-off at four down in the Exhibition Grounds. It's the second tussle of their O.B.A.A. semi-final series and ye Clubmen will have to climb aboard the visitors and smack 'em over to even it up. Milton breesed home by a whisker in the first fixture, a ten-inning thriller, to cop an 8-7 nod, but Cogs ought to balance that here to-morrow, and force a third game on neutral grounds Saturday. Dorsey Davis and his local intermediates deserve heaps of credit for the fine showing they're putting up in these playdowns, and they also deserve bigger crowds than they've been getting. The ball played in the semi-finals is pretty close to senior calibre and worth seeing. Percy Vannest or Lefty Billingsley will hurl for Cogs.

The Petes leave early to-morrow morning for Toronto to meet the G.W. Grads—formerly known as the Riverdale Grads—at, four D.S.T. (three our time) in Ulster Stadium. It's the first of the senior O.B.A.A. semi-final series, return game being here Saturday. The local club and the T.A.B.A. winner both wanted Saturday at home and did a lot of arguing before they agreed to play here this week-end. It should bring in a flock of fans from all over Central Ontario Saturday, and should be a honey of a contest. We expect Art Upper, the Grads' ace southpaw, and our own Archie Deyell will oppose each other to-morrow, but it's just a guess.

Averages for the Kingston Ponies in to-night don't show the champs of last year in any great light. They fell down considerably the past summer, particularly in pitching and hitting. Of course, they lost three good players at the start, they only had Vince—classy centre gardener—for one game, and Manager Jimmy Arnell had a poor year himself. The Ponies will strengthen up a great deal for next year and may enter the St. Lawrence League, but it's six or seven months too early to start worrying about that.

Lots of excitement over at the Bowl last eve when Keene and Westclox tangled in their third play-off game. A huge crowd saw a neat number till the eighth when, with darkness falling rapidly, the affair became a burlesque. It was 10-9 for Westclox starting the eighth and Keene got five runs. Keene tried hard to get out then to complete the inning and give them a win. Westclox, on the other hand, set to work to delay the game till it would be called, the score reverting to the last frame and giving them the nod. It got so bad, the umps finally declared it 'no contest," and the loop has ordered it re played at 4.45 in the Bowl Wednesday.

• • • • • •

Too bad to spoil a good game like this in a clownish windup, and we agree with the umpires in calling the whole thing off, since both teams were playing ridiculous softball in their efforts to attain their ends in the incompleted stanza. If only one team were guilty of these stalling or burlesque tactics, the umps could forfeit the tilt to the other, but with both guilty, the only reasonable thing is to declare it "no contest" and for the league officials to order it replayed. It's quite a series and certainly has the fans steamed up.

Thursday at 3.30 in Riverside Park, Herb Ralph's juvenile Terriers tangle with Toronto Arlingtons in the second game of their O.B.A.A. semi-final series. Terriers took the first, 12-10, in Toronto last Saturday and this one here ought to be even better. This is the juvenile team we've been bragging about all summer—the Terriers. They have everything, in our opinion, to make a championship team. They have poise, experience, speed, science, punch, pitching and fielding—and have practised steadily all season long. Several of these boys will be about ready to step directly into senior company next year, after they bring us—we hope—our first Ontario juvenile title. Drop around and look 'em over against a good Toronto team here Thursday.

Belleville has definitely entered the senior school rugby group up this way with Oshawa, Lindsay and Peterborough. This makes the same strong four-team grid group that dished up such smart football last fall. The Quinte squad, champs last year, will again be tough with Coach Les Shiels going in for speedy bruising birds who can take it or hand it out. They open their schedule in Lindsay Saturday, with P.C.I. seniors going to Oshawa, and the Garnet and Gray juniors in Lindsay.

Detroit Tigers won the American League baseball pennant yesterday, it being their fourth win since 1900. They also won a National League flag 'way back in '87—and gosh, what a cold winter that was! That same year they won their only world's championship, from St. Louis Browns of what was then the Western Association. But in the American League, the Tigers lost out in three World Series, twice to Chicago and once to Pittsburg. The new loop champs this year look like bad medicine in the coming serial and ought to win. If they meet the Giants, which is likely, we'll call Detroit to win.

Grab-bag—Baseball playoffs to see here this week—Milton vs. Cogs Wednesday; Arlingtons vs. Terriers Thursday; and G. W. Grads vs. Petes Sat'day . . . . Another big rugby workout at the Exhibition Grounds tonight . . . . More phone calls here last eve over the gals' softball game than inquiries about Tommy Church in East Toronto . . . . That rule making it necessary to buy three tickets for the World Series will stop quite a few ball fans here from going to Detroit next week . . . . Both P.C.I. rugby teams are shaping up well in workouts; they're stuck for a spot to play locally while the ball teams are still using Riverside Park . . . . The Barrie-Tweed softball playoff is this e'en at four in Riverside . . . . The Belleville scribe regrets the game last Sat'day didn't go nine frames, but admits the Petes looked better on their play.

Perry Retains Pacific Honors

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 25 (AP) — Frederick J. Perry, world's champion, won his third Pacific Southwest singles tennis title yesterday, taking a three-set victory over Lester Stoefen, United States indoor crown-wearer, 10-8, 6-4, 6-3.

In winning three straight sets over Stoefen, Perry accomplished the remarkable feat of not losing a set in the tournament.

'Big Train' Connacher Leads Aromint Team

TORONTO, Sept. 25—Canada's foremost all-round athlete will play and manage a Canadian professional rugby team. In the Fall of 1933 Lionel Conacher organized Canada's first professional football team and over 13,000 attended the exhibition game. "Big Train" Conacher believes professional football is inevitable in Canada.

In recent interview Lionel Conacher stated, "We were so well pleased with the public's reception of professional football last autumn that we are going ahead this year in a much larger way. Our club recently organized is Wrigley's Aromint Football Club, and I am very happy to have Wm. Wrigley Jr. Co. Limited assisting me in my plans. We will bring in a number of well-known American pro teams and put against them a well-drilled squad of expert footballers that will do credit to Canada. We will work together in setting up rules of play that will at all times have in mind the desire of the spectators to see fast, open-play football. Our plans will inevitably lead to international football, with playing rules that will appeal to football fans. In the United States professional football rules opened up the game and College football rules have been revised along similar lines. In Canada we will provide rules which have found favor with the spectators over there."

William Fry, Washford, England, has been a laborer on the same farm 50 years.

Due to circumstances which, it is said, might happen once in a thousand years, a recent breakdown of Britain's Grid electricity system affected 13,000,000 people in an area of 12,000 square miles.

Stratford Stars Go to Maritimes

STRATFORD, Sept. 25 (CP) —Three amateur hockey stars of Stratford left yesterday for Charlottetown, P.E.I., adding to the gloom surrounding hopes for a hockey aggregation this Winter. Ray Getliffe, Walter Brenneman and Joffre Desilets, who formed the regular forward line of Midgets last Winter, departed for the east yesterday.

Desilets' decision to journey eastward came as a surprise, but it was known the other two would appear in Maritime uniforms this Winter.

DIG OUT DITCHES NEAR OSHAWA

Heavy Rains Cause Water to Back Into Nearby Cellars.

OWNERS PROTEST.

OSHAWA, Ont., Sept. 25. (CP).— This morning a gang of men, under instructions of the Department of Public Highways, started work digging out the ditches which were filled in by orders of the Henry Government prior to the Provincial general election of June 19. This work has been started at Thornton's Corners, on Highway No. 2, just west of the city limits of Oshawa. It was found that during the recent heavy rains, the water from the highways which formerly ran down the ditches, was backing up into the cellars of the houses alongside the highway, and the owners of these properties had registered complaints.

The foreman in charge of the gang stated that while the ditches were being re-opened, they would not be as deep or wide as the former ditches which flanked the highway west of Oshawa

Humane Society's Monthly Report

At the regular meeting of the executive of the Humane Society the following report was read by the Inspetor, Dr. Thos. Johnston, V.S.:

Horses examined	5
Dogs brought to Shelter	6
Dogs humanely destroyed	4
Dogs placed in homes	2
Cats brought to Shelter	32
Cats humanely destroyed	30
Cats given out to homes	2
Animals examined (cattle sheep and pigs)	1
Complaints investigated	15
Warnings issued	10
Emergency calls	3

Some instances of the Inspector's work were particularly noted, such as in one case a report was received of a horse, drawing empty cans, and suffering from a very sore back. When the horse and driver were finally located the horse was in such a condition that its back pad was fairly buried in sores The owner of the horse was instructed to have it destroyed at once.

Another case was a cow with its leg broken and the bone protruding at a right angle. A summer visitor had noticed the animal and so much appreciated the work of the Humane Society and its Inspector that he immediately telephoned his congratulations to Toronto headquarters.

SILVER SLIPPERS By Temple Bailey

CHAPTER 48

Giles laughed, "I am. But you aren't. Things like this don't happen."

"But it has happened."

"I thought you were in Spain."

"I have been. But I came down for a bit to buy things. Farley is with me."

"And now that we have met? Can't you lunch with me? Or dine? Surely we aren't going to be ships that pass in the night."

"No . . ." she considered the matter . . . "I might dine with you. I have a late fitting of my wedding gown . . . at five."

He did not let her finish. "Your wedding gown? You are going to be married?" his voice was sharp.

"Yes. Didn't you know?"

"How should I?"

"It was in all the papers."

"I rarely read society news." Then he put a question, squarely: "Did you get my letter?"

"Yes."

"Why didn't you answer it?"

Color came up into her cheeks. "I . . . there have been so many things to keep me . . . from writing."

"I see," dryly.

They stood for a moment in silence, then Giles said: "Perhaps, even now, I am intruding?"

She held out her hand to him, impulsively: "Oh, no, please . . ."

"Then shall I call for you at the wedding gown place?"

"Yes." She gave him the address. "I am getting a lot of things. How would you like to come early and let me show you some of them."

"Your gowns?"

"Yes. The mannequins look lovely in them."

"Not lovelier than you."

He smiled at her, and then went on, with a touch of wistfulness: "Do you know what I have in my parcel?"

"No."

"Silver slippers. Last night I was out in the mist and rain and passed this window and saw them. They were like the ones you brought to Scripps' shop. Do you remember?"

Did she? Her eyes showed it although she was silent.

"I thought of you as I saw you then—lighting my dim room. So this morning I came in and bought them. They were like having a bit of you with me. Do you see? Not having you—I must have something."

Her fingers touched his sleeve, "I am sorry."

"I don't want—pity . . ." then with a quick change of voice. "I'll come for you then? At five."

When later he called for her at the rooms of a famous dressmaker, he was admitted at once and found Joan waiting for him.

He had never been in a place like this, and was amazed at the beauty of the setting—classic draperies in gray and violet, long mirrors set in the walls, violets in low vases. Nothing else, and all this simplicity as a background for the graceful automatons who swept in and out in this gown and that, cool, young, beautiful, perfectly poised, utterly complacent.

"Are all of these yours?" Giles demanded of Joan, as the mannequins came and went.

"Yes. Sometimes it doesn't seem true in the least. I feel as if I were an actress on a stage, dressed for the part."

The famous dressmaker appeared now to comment and criticize: "Mademoiselle wears best the simple things," he said, "it is her type. I shall show you next the wedding gown . . . it is a copy of an old portrait of a lady of Provence."

He went away, the mannequin trailing after him in draperies of jade and silver, and when Giles and Joan were alone, Giles said: "I always think of you as I first saw you on the rocks."

"How long ago it seems."

They sat in silence. Both of them with the thought in their minds of that stormy day, with the wind beating the trees down, the waves reaching up towards the sky, and in Giles' vision was Joan like a staged visitant high above him, and in Joan's of the vivid youth, with ruffled hair, his hand upraised to warn her.

She caught her breath in a sigh. "Dear friend, I should have answered your letter."

He turned towards her with a quick movement. "It would have saved a heartbreak. I have been in the depths."

She reached out her hand towards him and he took it. "I don't know," she said, "why I didn't write. It is as if I lived in a dream . . ."

"I have tried to understand . . . but it has not been easy . . ."

He said, after another pause: "You haven't told me when it—is to be."

"In April."

"So soon?" he broke off as the famous dressmaker re-entered, followed by a mannequin.

"The wedding gown," Monsieur announced.

It was an exquisite thing of lace like a cobweb, with pearls dripping down the front of it, and orange blossoms in clusters catching the veil. "Mademoiselle should wear it herself to show it in its perfection," the famous dressmaker said, "but we have a superstition that the bride must never try on a gown after it is finished. We dare not risk unhappiness." He smiled at Giles. He believed him to be the blissful bridegroom! Giles wondered what he would think if he knew the truth? That he was nothing to Joan. That she had not cared enough for their friendship to answer his letter . . . that even now she was pitying him. He had an overwhelming desire to break forth into sudden savagery and tear the wedding gown to shreds. But of course he wouldn't. He would simply sit there saying banal things while within him the red blood was surging.

When they came out, Joan said, "Shall I dress for dinner, or will you take me to some place where I can wear what I have on?"

"I don't want to see you gorgeous," he told her with a sort of desperate bitterness, "Joan, let me have you for a little while as if there were no past and future . . ."

He took her to a charming place in the Bois. They motored through thick woods to a long building with a sweep of garden in front. "I brought you here," Giles said, "because of the trees; I shall never think of you as Mrs. Hallam of Paris and Baltimore. I shall always think of you as Joan of the woods."

They had a table which gave them through a wide window a glimpse under the moon of pale statues set among young poplars. And when Giles had ordered, he said, "Now tell me how you happen to be in Spain."

He listened while she told him more than she knew she was telling. Of Nancy's letter, "She asked me to come over and eat the apple!" Of the glamour of the gay life at Barcelona. Of Drew's devotion, "He really loves me."

"It is an artificial existence," she confessed. "Nobody seems to have any cares, any responsibilities. We all do as we please, and nobody asks whether things are right or wrong. It is just whether it will be 'good fun'."

"And you like it?"

"Yes . . . one side of me likes it."

"And the other side?"

"I'm not sure," she laughed a little, "but the taste of the apple is sweet."

He leaned forward. "Do you really mean that, my dear?"

The flippancy with which she had been speaking was no longer in her voice as she said: "Oh, don't ask me . . ."

"Why not?"

"Because that's the thing that worries me—whether all my life I shall want—to eat the apple . . ."

He reached for her hand and held it tight in his own. "Joan, when I saw your wedding gown I wanted to tear it to tatters."

She tried to withdraw her hand. "No, let me say it. I can't bear the thought of you as Hallam's wife. My dear, I love you. When you marry Hallam my heart will die."

She sat staring at him, then suddenly it seemed as if the world about them dropped away and there was only his illumined face in a sort of golden haze—his strong hand on hers. She spoke breathlessly—"Giles, dear, I must not listen . . . please . . . And will you take me home?"

In the days that followed Joan's departure, Giles lived in a dreadful dream. The thought of her marriage was a nightmare. Yet what could he do? In modern times one did not rush in and forbid the banns simply because of a sense of the desecration of such a union.

He tried to throw himself wholeheartedly into the drama of the lives of Amelie and Scripps. There were hopeful signs in Amelie's condition. At certain moments she seemed girlish and normal and like the young Amelie who years ago had lived her brief romance in Paris. Scripps, too, took on an effect of youth. His pursuit of Amelie was that of a lover; happiness revivified him and brought light to his eyes—color to his cheeks.

The climax came one afternoon when the three of them had driven to a little inn on the outskirts of Paris, a charming place with a pond where ducks swam in the silver water, and with blossoming fruit trees flinging their pink and white against an azure sky. Scripps had bought, along the way, a nosegay of spring flowers for Amelie. She was all in white and looked like a bride with her great bouquet. She said as they came to the inn, "I remember this. Raymond was with us . . ." She turned to Giles, "You were not here. It was Raymond?"

It was the first she had seemed to differentiate between her brother and the man who she had insisted was his counterpart.

"No, I was not here," Giles said gently.

Her eyes were clear and candid. "Raymond went away and left us, Scripps and I, it was our honeymoon."

She spoke no more of the past, but when they had dined and the day had darkened into an amethyst twilight, she was content to follows Scripps to a charming arbor roofed with spring blossoms, leaving Giles to sit by the pond which was now purple in the gathering dusk, and deserted by the ducks who had settled themselves on the grass, sleepy heads tucked under their shining wings. A crescent moon was reflected in the pool. The night was still except for a slight breeze which swept through the blooming trees and brought their fragrance, brought, too, the thrill of a re-created world.

58 FAMILIES GIVEN $21,000 IN 10 MONTHS

Mother's Allowance Board Has Distributed $266,253.00 in Peterborough.

173 CHILDREN

In ten months up to the end of August, the Mother's Allowance Commission disbursed the total sum of $21,000 between 58 families in the city and district.

The report just released by James Abraham, chairman of the local Mother's Allowance Board shows that from November 1, 1933 to August 31, 1934, sixteen new applications were granted, while of 62 families granted the allowance, 4 were cancelled for various reasons.

Since the Mother's Allowance Commission has been in existence 7,024 families and 20,000 children have received mother's allowance benefits in Peterborough during the past fourteen years, amounting to $266,253.00.

Of the 58 families in receipt of the allowance during the past year covered by the report, there were 30 widows, 24 incapacitations of wage earners: 1 case of desertion; and 3 foster-mother cases. The 58 families had a combined number of 173 children.

The local Board consists of James Abraham, chairman; Mrs. J. Mills, vice-chairman; W. Swanger, secretary; and Mesdames S. Newhall and George Benton and Messrs. Thomas McMurray and T. Huott.

Mr. Abraham described as "a splendid piece of legislation," the amendment to the Act permitting mothers with one child attending school to participate in benefit allowances.

CAPTAIN JAMES COOK AND SCURVY

By DR. T. P. McCULLOUGH

Capt. James Cook was born in a laborer's two-roomed cottage in Yorkshire just 200 years ago. Up to the time of his first voyage around the world, scurvy was the scourge of seamen on long voyages. Cook first went to sea in a collier vessel and in twelve years had reached the rank of first mate. Scurvy was unknown on the brief voyage of a collier, but in the Royal Navy, Cook soon became acquainted with the disease and its disastrous effects. The Eagle, a naval vessel on which he first served, had 130 men out of 400 on the sick list after a three months' cruise in the Channel and Bay of Biscay.

After two years Cook was promoted master, distinguished himself at the taking of Quebec by Wolfe, surveyed the coasts of Newfoundland and had ample experience with scurvy.

Appointed to command the Endeavour, which was sent to Tahiti in the South Sea Islands, to observe the transit of Venus, in 1769, he was able to report, on passing Cape Horn, into the Pacific that the crew were as free from scurvy as the day they left Plymouth five months previously.

After observing the transit of Venus, six months were spent charting the coast of New Zealand, still with no scurvy. Unfortunately repairs to his vessel entailed considerable delay at Batavia where his crew and officers fell ill with fever and dysentery, from which 34 out of a crew of 94 died.

The antiscorbutics carried on the ship were chiefly—"Malt to be made into a wort, sourkraut, orange and lemon juices, portable soup, sugar and vegetables at all times when they could be got. Wild celery was collected at Terra del Fuego and used with ground wheat and portable soup for breakfast.

Cook laid down specific regulations regarding the use of these foods, cleanliness, dry quarters and clothing and what was of equal importance, enforced his orders.

He had great difficulty at first in getting his men to eat the strange messes he had cooked for them—portable soup boiled with wheat, wild celery etc., but he used the same at his own table and insisted that they should be eaten. It is recorded in his journal that two of the men refused to eat the fresh beef provided for them and were punished with 12 lashes each.

The Endeavour being only of 368 tons, 97½ feet long by 29 broad and 11½ deep was close quarters for 94 people and it was only by the most unremitting care on the part of the captain that the crew could be kept in good health. On Cook's second voyage he had two ships. This voyage lasted for 3 years, 18 days, and on his own vessel, the Revolution, not a single man was lost from scurvy or other sickness.

On starting on his third and last voyage he was awarded the Copley medal of the Royal Society. On this voyage he had two ships. Cook himself was unfortunately killed in an affray with the natives in Hawaii. His work, however, was thoroughly accomplished and his vessels arrived home after an absence of 4 years, 2 months without having had a single case of scurvy.

Cook's maxim of cleanliness, value of work and the avoidance of salt beef (without just boiling out the salt) are well-known among sailors. If a sailor groumbles about being set to a job he doesn't like, he is told that it "will keep the scurvy out of his bones."

Tom Longboat's Debut Into Politics

trucks a wide berth when the two were in the same neighborhood. The noise was great fun but it was hard on the ear drums.

Then in came the athletic legions. Irvin (Ace) Bailey, former Toronto Maple Leaf hockey player, endorsed Major Snelgrove. Lionel Conacher, the "Big Train" of Canadian sportdom, urged support for Mr. Church.

In one of the last Liberal rallies, the old Indian marathon hero of another day, Longboat, went on the road for the Major. Alf Shrubb, another famous distance runner of the Longboat era, went with Tom. In running togs they galloped along one of East Toronto's principal thoroughfares inaugurating the distribution of some 27,000 handbills, outlining the platform of the Liberal candidate.

But the Longboat debut failed. Mr. Church won yesterday's election. All the excitement of the unique campaign resulted in the largest vote ever polled in the riding—some 25,000 ballots.

DOUMERGUE BATTLES TO SAVE FALLING FRANC

PARIS, Sept. 25. (AP).—Premier Gaston Doumergue had carried to "the sovereign people" to-day his fight against devaluation of the franc.

In a nation-wide address last night the elderly Doumergue asked the public to give the government "real and adequate power" to defend the franc and reform the state.

Doumergue raised officially before public opinion for the first time in the history of the Third Republic the question of reform of the constitution and expressed "absolute confidence" in the wisdom and patriotism of the people, who alone could give him the power needed for the task.

ing for Mr. Cowan about six years.

"On September 11 I was plowing in a field two hundred yards from the house. I went up to the yard for a drink, and went into the house to see what time it was. Mr. Cowan was there. He told me to get back to the plowing. I started to go. I told him if I wasn't doing enough plowing he could go and do it himself. I went to the field and he came with me. He told me to get to hell out on the road. I started toward the house and he followed me. I held the gate so he could not get through. He picked up a club and tried to hit me. Mrs. Cowan called to him to leave me alone. He told her to go in and mind her own business.

I told Mr. Cowan I'd let the gate go if he'd throw the stick away."

Witness said he went to the house. Cowan threatened the young man and threw a poker after him.

"He chased me around the house and up the lane. I threw a pail at him, and missed him. I saw him go into the house. I heard the door open, and ran down the lane and hit behind a rock behind the barn. I saw him come running around the corner of the barn with a shotgun in his hands. I don't know just how far he was behind me. I felt the sting of two or three pellets on my leg. I was in my bare feet. I kept on running to the swamp and hid behind some trees. I saw Mr. Cowan on a ridge of land. He was still carrying a gun. He followed me to a line fence and went back."

Brazendale said to Mr. Gordon that it was a case of both tempers getting out of hand over a question as to whether witness was doing enough work. He said he thought several pellets from the gun hit him on the leg, but there were no marks.

"What would have stung me if it wasn't pellets from the gun?" the young man remarked.

"It might have been your imagination," Mr. Gordon suggested.

Other Witnesses

Corroborative evidence of the morning's clash was given by Lorne Plunkett, twelve years old, a ward of the Children's Aid Society, who is employed on the Cowan farm, and Joseph Warner who is engaged on the adjoining Armstrong farm.

Provincial Constable David Silvester testified that he was called to the Cowan farm on September 11. Mr. Cowan was fixing the pig pen. A double barrelled shot gun stood against a nearby shed.

"Mr. Cowan told me there had been an argument with Brazendale about plowing the field. He said Brazendale could have hollered from the field if he wanted a drink and Cowan would have taken it out to him. He said both lost their tempers Cowan said he told Brazendale to get off the place, and fired a shot more to scare him rather than to do him harm".

Constable Silvester said he saw three marks on the overalls worn by Brazendale which he thought might have been made by pellets from the shotgun.

Harry McLaughlin, constable said Cowan told him he went to the field to see how Brazendale was getting along with the plowing. The young man was then in a neighbour's orchard eating apples.

Mr. Gordon pointed out at the conclusion of the Crown's case, that there was no evidence showing intent to maim by the accused, and moved that the case be dismissed, binding him to peaceful conduct in future.

Mr. McElderry replied that evidence of intent had been adduced in the statements that Cowan chased the young man, fired a shot, and some pellets struck Brazendale on the leg.

Judge Smoke expressed agreement with Mr. McElderry's argument, and Mr. Gordon called the accused to the stand.

Mr. Cowan said he had taken Brazendale back to work last winter at the request of John Edgar of the Childrens Shelter.

Cowan said the young man did a fair day's work "if you were with him, but if you left him alone he was unfaithful and went visiting to nearby farms."

His story of the fracas was similar to the evidence given by the Crown witnesses. He said the boy was more than 150 yards away when the gun was discharged. Cowan said he had only one shell. Brazendale had fired off all the others while hunting in the swamp when he should have been at work.

"I never heard anything about Douglas being hit until this morning. He didn't say anything to me about it" Cowan stated, adding that he had never been in court before to this occasion. He fired the gun from a hip position just to scare the lad.

To Mr. McElderry the accused said he was extremely angry when he fired the gun, but qualified his admission with the remark that his temper wasn't quicker than any other Irishman's.

He swore that his wife called out to Brazendale "Knock him down, he's crazy" and also that she warned the youth that Mr. Cowan had a shell for the gun. He said he did not pay Brazendale a regular wage, but gave him money whenever he came into the city.

"I loaded him down with $3 or $4 when he came to the Peterborough Exhibition, and he came to the circus."

Joseph Morrison, Kenneth Eason, Preston Armstrong, and William Borland gave character evidence for the accused.

FRENCH LEFT WING GROUPS ARE UNITED TO OPPOSE FASCISM

Communists Fear Blackshirt France Would Bring German Alliance.

SCHOOL TEACHERS IN

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

PARIS, Sept. 25—Le fascisme ne passera pas! Fascism shall not conquer here! This slogan in flaming letters of red is blazing on all the boardings of France from the Belgian border to the Mediterranean and from the Rhine to the North Sea. The appearance of the slogan has been accompanied by mass-demonstrations against war and fascism of a magnitude never before witnessed in France. Five hundred thousand men and women marched on Sunday morning to the Pantheon of the Immortals on the twentieth anniversary of the declaration of war to honor the memory of Jean Jaures, the Socialist tribune, who was assassinated on the eve of the outbreak of hostilities of 1914. Preceded by a mass of red trade unions, Socialists and Communists marched together for the first time in years.

Unite Against Fascists

That demonstration has been followed by other equally imposing meetings, not only in Paris, but throughout France. The "united front" of the working class, the non-existence of which facilitated the accession to power of the Hitler government in Germany in 1933 and the crushing of the Social-Democratic party in Austria a year later, is an accomplished fact in France to-day. Scores of municipalities have already established anti-fascist vigilance committees and a proletarian defence league is in process of formation.

The united front came into existence as a result of the provocative attitude assumed by the half a dozen fascist and semi-fascist organizations in France, such as the Jeunesses patriotes, the Francists, the Croix de Feu and the National-Socialists. Attacks on labor meetings, kidnappings of local labor leaders, destruction of socialist literature and interference with labor activity in general made the left-wing groups reach the conclusion that they could no longer fight a separate battle, but had to stand together if they were not ultimately to share the fate of the workers in Italy, Germany and Austria. The Socialists had all along clamored for a united front, but the Communists, for a long time claimed the sole right of leading the working class and on the example of Moscow continued to hurl the epithet "social-fascists," and "trail-blazers of fascism" at the Socialists. All this has changed now. There is unity and the immediate effect has been a remarkable falling off in open fascist activity such as street-demonstrations and raids on labor halls.

Orders From Moscow

The change came upon instructions from the executive committee of the Moscow Internationale to its adherents in France to cease fighting the Socialists. This instruction is intimately linked with the Soviet government's foreign policy. It seems to have been realized in the Communist world headquarters in Moscow that if France should go fascist, a military combination of a fascistic France and a fascistic Germany against Russia would not be impossible in the future. The temptation for two such countries to settle their differences at the expense and on the backs of the Russian people would be great indeed, it was figured. Hence Moscow ordered a complete reversal in the tactics to be employed by the French Communists vis-a-vis of the French Socialists.

On the other hand the rank and file of the two parties in France had been clamoring for a united front for months, and often, in spite of the chiefs, had combined their forces in isolated actions against the fascists.

Also Oppose War

Joined in the new united front are also innumerable smaller organizations, such as youth leagues, anti-fascist intellectuals, the society of revolutionary artists, groups of professors in every university in France, certain sections of the league for human rights, the league of pacifists and conscientious objectors, the Christian-Socialists and several women's organizations. Three other large bodies who have joined are: the union of school teachers in France, grouping 60,000 members; the Popular Democratic party, otherwise known as the Pupists and the party of Gaston Bergery, a brilliant young deputy who recently seceded from the Radical-Socialist party which is the group of Messrs. Chautemps, Herriot Caillaux and Sarraut.

Chief plank in the platform of the united front is the action against fascism and against war and militarism. Although soldiers may not take part in any political action in France and they, nor their officers can vote, the reservist classes of the army are heavily represented in the united front movement and one of the great ex-soldier organizations has come over in a body.

Fascists Roused

In the face of this it was unavoidable that the fascist bodies, who are represented in the present French cabinet by Messrs. Andre Tardieu and Louis Marin, should take the formation of a united working-class front as a "provocation." They demand that the government break up the new formation forthwith. But this is easier said than done. From their side the United front leaders demand an immediate dissolution of the fascist societies by the government. They make this the only condition of their own dissolution of the proletarian vigilant leagues.

The effect of the united front formation has been a sharpening of the lines of demarcation. More and more the issue in France is becoming: "For or against fascism."

MISSION CIRCLE HOLDS MEETING

Open Meeting of Millbrook Circle is Well Attended.

PRESBYTERIAN W.M.S.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 25.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The public meeting, sponsored by the Golden Links Mission Circle, was held in the basement of St. Andrew's Church on Friday at 8 p.m., with the president, Miss Gertrude Spence, in the chair. The theme of the worship period was "The Growth of the Kingdom of God," and those assisting the leader with the study were Miss Jean Burnham, who read the lesson; Miss Grace Sloan, who gave the devotional poem, and Miss Phyllis Kidd, who played soft music at the piano and was the accompanist for the prayer hymns.

The president extended a welcome on behalf of the Circle to all who had come out in support of the young people's effort in the interest of missions, and especially to the new members of the group, Della May and Barbara Sisco, including also the new pastor, Rev. A. L. Sisco, who made his initial appearance at the Circle gathering.

The stage was appropriately arranged as the living-room of a home, with many lovely fall blossoms in baskets and other containers as features of the decorative scheme, for the play, "The Voices of the Women," given by members of the entertaining society. Jean Burnham took the part of the young lady of the home.

Women of varied lands, in suitable costumes, came in turn to quiet music, and made their plea to the indifferent Canadian young woman. Those who filled this role were Sadie Rowland, Mexico; Dorothy McDowell, China; Marjorie McDowell, Africa; Bryar Edmunds, from India, as one of the better class of women, those of lower caste being Mrs. D. Lunn and Eleanor Bigelow; Mary Burnham, Korea, and Bernice Smith, Japan. Following their cry of need and departure from the stage, they sang, behind the curtain, "I Gave My Life for Thee." Anna Rowland came immediately to the platform after the sleeper had listened to the rebuke of her Conscience, awakened, and made her plea for forgiveness, and recited, "The Missionary's Plea."

Velma Thornton and Phyllis Lunn sang, "Tell Me the Stories of Jesus," and the pastor dismissed the meeting with the benediction. The play will probably be presented again at the Mission Circle rally to be held in Peterborough (St. James') on Monday, September 24, beginning at 6.30 p.m., each Circle in the Presbytery being expected to make a similar contribution to the program.

Grace Presbyterian W.M.S.

The opening meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of Grace Presbyterian Church, after the holiday season, was held at the church on Friday at 3 p.m., with the president, Mrs. William Deyell, in the chair.

The new study book, "Seven Seas of Service," was taken up by Mrs. J. R. Thompson, deaconesses and library work being the theme. Mrs. Deyell gave an interesting reading on deaconess work established now twenty-five years, and Mrs. F. J. Deyell read, "The Spirit of Missions." The treasurer, Mrs. S. E. Eakins, reported a cheque from Miss Malcolm, of Nestleton, for $15.00, which was gratefully received, and the supply secretary, Mrs. Hawthorne, announced that the annual bale had been packed the previous Saturday and shipped, its contents including two quilts, a girl's set of sweater, scarf and cap, and a large number of other useful articles.

It was decided, after discussion, to hold the next meeting at the church in the evening, the program to be of a special character celebrating the seventieth anniversary of Presbyterian W.M.S. work in Canada. The committee for the program was appointed as follows: Mrs. H. Seaton, Mrs. (Rev.) H. R. Williams, Mrs. S. E. Eakins and Mrs. J. R. Thompson. The meeting closed with a hymn and prayer.

CAVAN WOMEN ASSIST RELIEF

Report Presented of Activities in Providing for Needy Families in District.

MORE CONTRIBUTIONS

CAVAN, Sept. 25. — (Examiner Correspondence).—Cavan Women's Institute held an interesting and well attended meeting at Mrs. Eber Syer's home on Thursday afternoon.

A report was given of relief work for which four groups had contributed. Mrs. Hunter's group will send contributions next week, the other two groups to follow.

The president and Mrs. S. Boyle were appointed to be responsible for having the five dollars voted for prize money at the Fair on Saturday.

It was decided that the convenor of each group should call a meeting of her group before the next meeting and accomplish some relief work.

Mrs. F. M. Staples had charge of a short program, during which Mrs. Matchett contributed current events in an interesting manner, Mrs. Boyle read an excellent paper on Canada, and Miss Dorothy Pudsey played several selections on the mouth-organ, which were much enjoyed.

Slides Down Pole To Escape Bad Fall

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 25 (Examiner Correspondence)—Escaping a dangerous fall by sliding down a hydro pole which had snapped off at the base, Walter Owens, an employee of the Campbellford Water and Light Commission, was treated for serious burns on his arms yesterday.

Owens was at the top of the pole removing some wires when the accident happened. Held to the pole by his safety belt, he allowed himself to slide down, checking the drop by the pressure of his arms. Partially suspended by the wires overhead, the pole fell slowly enough that Owens was able to get clear.

Dr. F. B. Brintnell attended Owens' injuries.

Harvest Services Are Held In Omemee

OMEMEE, Sept. 25.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The annual harvest home services were held in Christ Church on Sunday. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, fruits and grain. Rev. A. T. Weir, rector of the church, was assisted by Rev. Canon Swain, rector at Bonarlaw. Very inspiring addresses were given by Canon Swain at both services.

Special music was rendered by the choir, the solos in the anthem being taken by Mr. Southworth, of Cannington, and Mr. W. G. Stevenson.

Some forty years ago Rev. Canon Swain lived in Omemee. At that time he was principal of Omemee Public School, and after leaving the village entered the ministry. Rev. French was rector at that time.

Many of Canon Swain's ex-pupils had the pleasure of listening to, and also of meeting him during his visit here Sunday.

The number of live cattle shipped in 1934 to the United Kingdom up to September 13 was 37,775 head, as compared with 36,229 head during the corresponding period of 1933.

For the first 37 weeks of 1934, ending September 13, the number of hogs graded in Canada was 2,065,469. In the corresponding period of 1933, the number was 2,210,670.

REV. C. M. CAREW IS LAID TO REST

Pastor of Fenelon Falls Baptist Church Died Suddenly on Saturday.

BARN IS DESTROYED

LINDSAY, Sept. 25.— (Examiner Correspondence.)—The funeral took place Monday afternoon from Fenelon Falls to Omemee of Rev. Clarence M. Carew, the beloved pastor of Fenelon Falls Baptist church. His death on Saturday morning came as a great shock to his family as well as the community. The deceased had enjoyed good health up to two months ago, when he was obliged to rest completely from his mininsterial duties. The deceased came to Fenelon Falls in 1930. He was born in Emily township, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Carew, and was educated at Omemee Public school and Lindsay Collegiate Institute. He graduated from McMaster University anid held pastorates at Reaboro, Campbellford, London, Toronto and Fenelon Falls.

He is survived by his widow, George and Samuel of Emily, two sisters, Mrs. G. T. W. Brien, Peterborough, and Mrs. Albert Shaw, Red Deer, Alberta.

Barn is Destroyed.

Saturday evening during threshing operations on the farm of Thomas Raines, near Port Perry, a stream of sparks emitted from the blower of the separator ignited the straw. The flames spread to the barn, which was quickly consumed, together with the season's crop. A bucket brigade saved the house from destruction. There was no insurance on barn and contents.

Todd Grattan Wins.

In the speeding events at Bobcaygeon Fair on Saturday, Todd Grattan, owned by J. Sutherland, of Peterborough, took all three heats in the free-for-all. Queen Peter, owned by Stanley Blewett, of Peterborough, took third place in all heats.

STRATFORD.—School house No. 7, North East Hope at Rennie has been closed for a week following discovery of a case of infantile paralysis and a case which was held under observation. The school was closed after the two 11-year-old lads, both pupils of the school, were treated with serum to combat the advance of the disease.

SUDBURY.—Jean Surget, who was convicted yesterday of receiving goods stolen from the Espanola garage on Aug. 11, was sentenced this morning by Magistrate J. S. McKessock to three months determinate and six months indeterminate. Evidence of the three men who entered the garage and stole a car, tires, tubes, batteries and accessories was that Surget instigated and planned the burglary.

CHATHAM. — Two manslaughter charges were disposed of by Mr. Justice A. E. Kingstone in the Supreme Court here to-day, when he sentenced Louis Guristo to 15 years in Portsmouth Penitentiary and John Rhodes, Jr., to two years less a day in the Ontario Reformatory.

ST. THOMAS, Ont.—A private petition is being circulated in city asking mayor and council to invite Ontario Government to appoint a commissioner to investigate financial affairs of the corporation including various civic officials, all boards and committees and other matters.

MONTREAL.—If windows in Montreal's business district become dingy in the next few days it will be because of a window cleaners' strike on which 650 employees were out to-day. The workers demanded a 44-hour week, elimination of overtime and a general wage increase.

PALMERTON, Pa.—Five persons were killed to-day when their car struck a bridge and caught fire near Palmerton. The dead were identified as Mr. and Mrs. James Heydt and their child, of Walnutport; Willard Green, of Palmerton, and Leland Follweiler, of Aquashicola.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa.—General Jan Smuts, Deputy Prime Minister, left for England by air to-day with planes of the South African Air Service escorting him as far as Pretoria. General Smuts, distinguished soldier, statesman and scientist, will be installed as rector of St. Andrew's University. He will be the first rector in the long history of the ancient university that was flown there for the ceremony.

WINDSOR.—John Niffin, found guilty of robbery while armed, was sentenced by Mr. Justice Hope, in Ontario Supreme Court to 12 years in Portsmouth Penitentiary and ten lashes. He was charged with holdup of George Bailey, manager of brewers warehouse in Sandwich in May last.

GENEVA.—Dr. Walter Riddell of Canada, to-day was named vice-president of the governing board of the International Labor Office, which is holding its first meeting since it was elected last June. Giuseppe de Michelis of Italy was named president.

FREDERICTON.—Detroit detectives arrived here to-day to take back with them Eddie Rice, claimed to have been identified through fingerprints as Clay Evans, wanted in Detroit for the murder of Henry Jordan there last year.

Pictures of Evans in a detective magazine attracted attention in Halifax where Rice worked a few months ago.

CALGARY.—Sought for questioning since the murder of Inspector J. Carruthers of the Calgary Police force, June 13, 1933, George Morrise, an escaped convict from the Fort Saskatchewan Jail, has been arrested at Pontiac, Illinois, it was learned here to-day.

Morrise, who was also known as Dillon and Myers, will be returned to Calgary, it was understood, by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

MONTREAL.—A defence motion to rule out evidence tending to show Pincus Brecher was implicated in a conspiracy to smuggle drugs was denied to-day by Mr. Justice L. J Loranger in Court of King's Bench, and the Crown evidence judged admissible. Brecher, a New Yorker, is charged with five counts of smuggling and one of bribing customs officers.

POLICE SUSPECT CRIME IS WORK OF DEGENERATE

Gruesome Discovery is Made on 11th Birthday of Young Victim.

MISSING WEEK.

Trap Drummer and Woman Who Rented Apartment Are Now Sought.

DETROIT, Sept. 26—(AP) — Lillian Gallaher was found today on her 11th birthday, apparently strangled to death and her body stuffed into a trunk—undoubtedly the victim of a degenerate, police said.

The trunk was in an apartment six blocks from the home where Lillian's parents had awaited her return since last Thursday.

The body was bound and a towel tied across the mouth as a gag. It was in an advanced state of decomposition and police said they could not ascertain definitely whether she had been criminally attacked—or even how she died—until a careful medical examination was made.

Police said the apartment was rented recently to a man who gave his occupation as a trap drummer. A woman lived there with him, police quoted the apartment house janitor as saying, and a city-wide search for the couple was begun at once.

Families On Relief Required To Register

Relief Officer A. J. Metheral wishes to make it known that all families on relief are required to register with his Department this week. The Government is calling for this registration and as there are about 190 families in the city who have not registered, again the attention of these families is drawn to the regulation requiring that the returns be made by the first of October.

All those who have not as yet visited the Relief Rooms are requested to do so as soon after this notice has been given as is possible, keeping in mind that the registration has to be completed and forwarded to Toronto this week.

WOMAN SLAYS CHILDREN FIRES HOME DURING RAGE

NEWBERRY, S.C., September 26 (A.P.). — Mrs. Annie Strauss Bizzell, 45, who shot her husband to death two years ago, killed two of her children to-day in what apparently was a maniacal rage, and set her home afire.

Martin 17, and Annie 12, were the children slain. Emanuel 15 was shot in the shoulder and arm, but fled to a neighbor's home. By the time neighbors reached the home, it was in flames. Two bodies were taken from the house.

MILTON BEATTY HURT IN CRASH

Motorcycle Crashes Into Tree at Corner of Water and Dublin.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

Milton Beatty, 20, of 242 Dublin street, was rushed to Nicholls Hospital when a motorcycle which he was riding crashed into a tree at the corner of Dublin and Water streets at noon to-day. He sustained several broken ribs, facial cuts and a severe nervous shock.

The boy was proceeding up Water street and was turning west on Dublin when the machine skidded. Hopping the curb, it struck a tree and Beatty was found in an unconscious condition by passer-by who hurried to his assistance.

Dr. H. V. Dobson considered his condition as satisfactory later this afternoon.

Greatest of Modern Ships Named "Queen Mary"

The new giant Cunarder, known as No. 534 was christened today "Queen Mary" by Britain's Queen in presence of members of the Royal family. More than 1,000 feet in length, she will be the largest passenger vessel in the world, outstripping even the huge French liner, Normandie, recently launched. Although every safety detail has been thoroughly checked, additional safeguards are being installed as a result of the Morro Castle disaster. Photos show a drawing of the liner, to scale, as she will look when she is completed, next year, and, as she appears lying on the ways at Clydebank.

DEYELL, UPPER GET ASSIGNMENT IN SENIOR GAME

Sun Shining Brightly as Game Starts at Ulster Stadium.

(By Cecil Perdue)

ULSTER STADIUM, Toronto, Sept 26.—After an absence of seven years, the Petes returned to Toronto to-day to do battle in the O.B.-A.A. semi-finals. There was a warm sun shining as Riverdale Grads, Toronto champions, and the Petes, winners of the Central League, held a long practice. Art Upper, Grads' ace southpaw, and big Archie Deyell were named starting pitchers. A small crowd attended. The teams:

Petes—Konopka, ss; Murray, 2b; Calladine, rf; Foley, cf; Whatley, c; Burton, lf; Ash, 1b; Batten, 3b; Deyell, p.

Grads—Eisen 2b; Glen cf; Stronach, c; Sniderman, rf; Harper, 1b; Stokes, 3b; Jones, lf; Sone, ss; Upper, p.

Umpires—Walsh and Spring.

First Inning.

Peterborough—Konopka singled through second. Murray got a life when Eisen kicked his grounder and Konopka went to second. Calladine walked to fill the bases. Foley beat out a base hit to Stokes and Konopka scored with all runners moving up. Whatley singled through short, scoring Murray, and the bases were still loaded. Burton lined to Sone, who doubled Calladine off third with a quick throw to Stokes. Ash singled to right, scoring Foley and Whatley went to third when Sniderman lost the ball. Ash then went out stealing, Stronach to Eisen.

Three runs, 4 hits, 2 errors.

G. & W. Grades.—Eisen walked and went to second on a wild pitch by Deyell. Glen flied to Burton in left. Konopka made a good pickup and threw from deep short to retire Stronach while Eisen went to third. Sniderman singled to centre, scoring Eisen. Harper was thrown out at first by Deyell.

One run, one hit, no errors.

Second Inning

Peterborough. — Batten grounded to Stokes. Deyell walked. Konopka singled to centre for his second hit and Deyell went to second. Upper left the mound and went into left field and "Moon" McMullen took up the pitching for the Toronto team. Murray grounded out to Harper, unassisted, and both runners advanced. Sone retrieved a fumbled pickup and then threw Calladine out at first on a quick recovery.

No runs, one hit, no errors.

G. and W. Grads.—Stokes beat out a slow roller between first and second. McCullen walked. Sone walked to fill the bases and Deyell was yanked by Coach Lee of the Peterborough club. Kitchen now pitching.

Upper flied to Foley in centre and a fast return held all runners. On a wild pitch Stokes scored and both runners moved up. Stokes hurt his ankle on the play, but not seriously. Eisen struck out. Glen bounced a base hit off the mound and the ball rolled into left field scoring McMullen and Sone, putting Grads ahead. Stronach singled to centre, scoring Glen, who had stolen second base. Stronach then went to second on Foley's wild throw to the plate. Sniderman beat out a hit to short with Stronach going to third. Stronach scored and Sniderman went to second when Whatley threw into left field in an attempt to pick Stronach off second. Harper singled to right and Sniderman went to third. Stokes up for the second time in this inning was thrown out by Batten.

Five runs, five hits, two errors.

Third Innings

Peterborough—Foley struck out. Whatley also fanned. Burton dropped a single over Short. Stokes threw out Ash.

No runs, one hit, no errors.

G. and W.—McMullen went out, Kitchen to Ash. Sone singled to left. Upper forced Sone, Konopka to Murray. Upper stole second. Eisen singled to left, but Upper was easily out at the plate on a fine throw in by Burton.

No runs, two hits, no errors.

The Last Kick

TAMPA, Kas., Sept. 26 (CP) —A dead cow kicked Farmer Jack Costello and gave him the scare of his life when a knife he was holding almost stabbed him in the face.

Costello was skinning the animal after it had been killed for meat. A muscle contracted to cause the kick.

ASKS LEAGUE ACTION

GENEVA, Sept. 26 (AP)—Maxim Litvinoff, Foreign Commissar of Russia, asked to-day that the League of Nations Assembly consider obtaining a report from the Disarmament Conference on the disarmament situation, then let the League Council judge the best method of seeking international disarmament.

Winter Retreats After 5 Day Visit—Chinook Blows Over Alberta.

THRESHING UNFINISHED.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 26 (C.P.). — Mounting temperatures, clearing skies and transformation of snowy fields into slush and mud to-day signalized winter's hasty retreat after a five-day sojourn on Western Canada's prairies.

On the Pacific coast it was generally clearer and becoming warm. A chinook blew over Alberta, chasing snow from the grainlands and heralding brighter days which may make resumption of threshing within the week possible.

Across Southern Saskatchewan bright skies erased the snowy reminders of the week-end blizzard and subsequent sleet and snowstorms. Highways were just about dry enough for traffic.

Little threshing remains to be done in Southern Saskatchewan, but in the north where it also showed signs of clearing, farmers hoped to be back on the land to-morrow.

Army Gives Shelter To Evicted Woman

TORONTO, Sept. 26 (C.P.).—Mrs. Alice Quinn White, 74, and frail, to-day was sent to a Salvation Army home after being arrested for wandering the streets with no visible means of support.

Mrs. Quinn, evicted yesterday from her home, attempted to take her belongings to the home of a sister, but the sister refused to admit her. Finally, after considerable wandering, a policeman who had sought for several hours to find her a place of refuge, was forced to arrest her to provide her with shelter.

She appeared in court to-day and was granted a remand until October 10.

BRONX JURY INDICTS RICHARD HAUPTMANN ON EXTORTION CHARGE

Additional Ransom Money and Loaded Pistol Of German Make Is Found Hidden Behind Boards Of Prisoner's Garage.

Lindbergh Tells Story Of His Ransom Efforts

NEW YORK, September 26 (A.P.). — A Bronx County Grand Jury to-day indicted Bruno Richard Hauptmann on a charge of extortion as the alleged receiver of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom.

The indictment was handed up to Justice Charles McLaughlin in less than an hour after the Grand Jury had returned from a luncheon recess.

At the morning session, the Grand Jury had heard from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh his own story of his futile attempt to ransom his kidnapped son 2½ years ago by the payment of $50,000 through Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" of the negotiations, to a supposed emissary of the kidnappers in St. Raymond's Cemetery in The Bronx.

More Ransom Money

Additional Lindbergh ransom money was found to-day in the garage of Bruno Richard Hauptmann. The money estimated by District Attorney Samuel Foley at $840, stuffed in four holes in a board in the garage, and in a fifth hole was an automatic revolver, fully loaded and apparently of German make.

Police dismantling the Hauptman garage did not wait for a check of the money, but immediately rushed it and the revolver to the Bronx county building, where it was taken before the grand jury investigating the extortion case against Hauptmann, alleged receiver of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom.

Previously the police had found $13,750 of the ransom notes in the same garage.

After Col. Lindbergh had finished his testimony and the Grand Jury recessed for luncheon, District Attorney Foley, of the Bronx, disclosed that the serial numbers on some of the bills found to-day had been checked and the money was found to be part of the ransom paid by Col. Lindbergh.

Money Identified.

"I can tell you now," Foley said, "that the money found to-day has been identified by serial numbers as a part of the ransom paid by Col. Linbergh.

"Beyond that I can say nothing, except that just enough of the bills were removed and shown to the jury and identified as the Lindbergh ransom money.

"We have not yet counted the total of the money.

A phonograph was taken from the Hauptmann home to the district attorney's office to-day and Charles F. Brodie, chief clerk to the Bronx District Attorney, said he believed two $20 ransom notes had been found in it.

Heavily Guarded.

Here there were some 50 policemen on duty and they formed a double line for the flier for his short walk from the elevator to the door of the grand jury chamber's anteroom.

As the Colonel and his companion, Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey State Police, walked along, the policemen fell in behind them and formed an effective barrier to any approach. Lindbergh immediately entered the grand jury ante-room.

Lindbergh wore a light grey suit and smiled when he walked to and from the grand jury room.

As he emerged and started down the corridor to the elevator after testifying, Col. Schwarzkopf was asked whether he and Col. Lindbergh would return immediately to Englewood, N.J., the flier's home, and Schwarzkopf nodded an affirmative.

United States Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings conferred on the kidnap case in New York today with Francis X. Fay, head of the New York Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, and in answer to an inquiry as to whether he believed Hauptmann sought for several hours to find was "the right man," said he "didn't know anybody doubted it."

Gratifying Results

Cummings said he found results of the kidnap investigation gratifying, and reiterated a previous

BRONTE, Ont., Sept. 26. (CP) Harry Christie to-day continued his work as assistant cook and some-time dishwasher at an inn here, despite the fact his father, George Christie, former blacksmith, has sold his mining claim for $200,000.

George discovered the claim two years ago and his sons, Harry and George, Jr., helped him work it.

Harry said he would continue to cook and wash dishes. When he worked for his father, he declared he had a job and now he has another that he intends to keep.

The fathers' claim is on the banks of the Montreal River in the Matchewan district.

BRITISH YACHT BEING GROOMED FOR TRIP HOME

Cup Rules Spike Rumors Canadian Syndicate After Boat to Challenge in 1935.

MUST BE HOME BUILT.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 26.—(AP) —While controversy still raged over the outcome of Rainbow's victory over Endeavour for the America's Cup, T. O. M. Sopwith's challenger left Newport this afternoon for the Herreshoff shipyard at Bristol, R.I. to be fitted with a jury rig for the return voyage to England.

Rumors that Endeavour would be sold, to possible American or Canadian bidders, were discounted by Sopwith's plan to send the big blue-hulled sloop back to Gosport as soon as possible, in tow of the steam yacht Vita.

Reports from Nova Scotia were that a syndicate of Canadians might try to buy Endeavour and challenge with her for the America's Cup next year. The cup rules, however, would prevent such an eventuality, it being the obligation of a challenging country to build its own boat.

Rainbow's sails meanwhile will be shipped to New York by her skipper-owner, Harold S. Vanderbilt, and the victorious sloop put into storage at Bristol, alongside Enterprise, with which Vanderbilt defended the trophy in 1930. Enterprise has not been in the water since turning back Sir Thomas Lipton's last challenger.

JOSEPH JONES PLEADS GUILTY

Is Given Suspended Sentence for Two Years by Judge Smoke.

Pleading guilty to a charge of causing bodily harm to Thelma Hollingsworth and Bruce Spence, as the driver of a motor car that was involved in an accident on Highway 28 on May 24 last, Joseph Jones, 33 Park Street North, was this morning placed on suspended sentence for two years.

Under the terms of his bond he is to report to provincial police once a month for two years, and is to pay court costs of $45 within one week.

Appearing in County Judge's Criminal Court before His Honor Judge Sheldon L. Smoke, the accused through his counsel, G. N. Gordon, K.C., pleaded guilty to the charge.

Evidence was given by Robert A. Anson, supervisor, and William S. Rose, foreman, both of the C.G.E., by whom the accused is employed as a machinist, testifying to his exceptional record for industry and integrity.

It was stated on behalf of the accused that he had entered the employ of the C.G.E. as a messenger boy thirteen years ago, and that upon completion of a four-year apprenticeship as machinist-toolmaker he had been awarded a bonus of one hundred dollars for industry and general conduct.

GREATEST SHIP EVER LAUNCHED SLIPS INTO SEA

Her Majesty the Queen Officiates at Memorable Clydebank Ceremony.

THOUSANDS ATTEND.

Cunard Greyhound Aimed to Recapture Atlantic Laurels for Britain.

By OSCAR LEIDING

CLYDEBANK, Glasgow, Scotland, Sept. 26.—(A P)—The Queen today christened the giant new Cunard-White Star liner 534 the "Queen Mary" as the great ship started down the ways to the water.

The Queen Mary, which it is believed will be the new queen of the seas, slid down successfully in a perfect launching.

The choice of the name of a living queen for a christening was most unusual. Right up until the moment of the actual christening, no one had announced what the great ship's name was to be and the suggestion "Britannia," ruled a favorite.

King George Speaks

The launching followed a short speech by King George. The Prince of Wales was present besides a multitude of other notables.

After the welcoming speeches to the King and Queen, His Majesty replied:

"I thank you for the loyal address of welcome to us. As a sailor, I have deep pleasure in coming here to-day to watch the launching by the Queen of this great and beautiful ship.

"The sea with her tempests will not readily be bridled. She is stronger than man, yet in recent times man has done much to make the struggle with her more equal.

"It is still less than a hundred years since Samuel Cunard founded a service of small wooden paddle-steamers for carrying mails across the Atlantic to America. Those first Cunard ships were of 1,150 tons. A few people now alive must have in their childhood have heard those ships spoken of with wonder as evidence of man's mastery over Nature.

"To-day we come to the happy task of sending on her way the stateliest ship now in being. I thank all those here and elsewhere whose efforts, however inconspicuous or humble, have helped to build her."

3 Year Delay.

His Majesty remarked that for three years the uncompleted hull had laid on the stocks, until a government grant enabled resumption of the work.

"We know full well what misery a silent dockyard may spread among a seaport, and with what courage that misery may be endured," the King said. "During those years when work upon her was suspended, we grieved for what that suspension meant to thousands of our people.

"We rejoice that with the help of my government it has been possible to lift that cloud, and to complete this ship.

"Now, with hope of better trade on both sides of the Atlantic, let us look forward to her playing a great part in the revival of International commerce.

"Samuel Cunard built his ships to carry mails between two English-speaking countries. This one is built to carry the people of two lands, in great numbers, to and fro, so that they may learn to understand each other.

"Both are faced with similar problems, and they prosper and suffer together. May she in her career bear many thousands of each race to visit each other as students and return as friends.

"We send her to her element with the good will of all nations, as a mark of our hope in the future. She has been built in fellowship among ourselves. May her life among the great waters spread friendship among the nations."

The launching weight of the hull was estimated to be about 40,000 tons but after a further 18 months of work to make her a finished vessel her displacement is calculated to be more than 73,000 tons.

The completed vessel will cost an estimated $30,000,000. She was started as a project of the Cunard Company as the first of two sisterships for the North Atlantic service, but early this year the line merged with the White Star Line and the British government provided $15,000,000 for completion of the first vessel and $7,500,000 for the working capital of the merger company.

Never Challenge Again--Sopwith

DROPS PROTEST; BATTERED MUG REMAINS IN U. S.

Series Starts Controversy That Will Last Months Both Sides Atlantic.

MANY RECORDS BROKEN.

Endeavour's Skipper Said Considering Selling His Fleet Yacht to American.

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEWPORT, R.I., Sept. 26. — (AP) — The battered old America's Cup can go back to rest securely today in Tiffany's jewelry vaults on Fifth Avenue, though reverberations of the defender Rainbow's victory probably will roll up and down the shores on both sides of the Atlantic for months to come.

Vowing that he never again would challenge for the hallowed trophy, Thomas Octave Murdock Sopwith packed his duffle and stowed his protests, and prepared to return to England as rapidly as possible, leaving behind him his splendid blue-bodied challenger Endeavour and a controversy as bitter, if not as explosive, as Lord Dunraven's rattling huff of 1895.

The brilliant and honest spectacle the yachts themselves made on the high seas came to a sorry end last night when Sopwith automatically wound up his challenge by withdrawing the protest he made of Rainbow's fourth and deciding victory yesterday, a protest entered chiefly in self defence.

Harold S. Vanderbilt, skipper of the United States defender, had protested the race first but there was no point in the race committee debating whether they'd give Vanderbilt a decision. He had already won by the narrow margin of 55 seconds, so the matter was dropped.

Thus Rainbow, fleet defender of as threatening a challenge as the cup has known since the tiny America won it 83 years ago from a British fleet off the Isle of Wight, closed out the 15th series with four straight victories, all she needed, against two for the blue-hulled Englishman, the pair between them representing $2,500,000.

But over the victory hung the cloud of recriminations that have taken all the fun and sport out of the thing since Sopwith fyled his first protest after Saturday's race and was turned back in brusque fashion by the committee without even a hearing. Sopwith broke into open flame when he charged exactly the same foul he allege Saturday happened again, before the start of yesterday's final drama.

FEWER EXAMS ARE PROMISED

Major Reform in Education in Ontario is Announced.

WIDER SCOPE ALLOWED.

TORONTO, Sept. 26.—With the objectives of lessening costs, saving student labors, and, most important, removing the allegedly existent evil of teaching for examinations rather than for instruction, Ontario's Department of Education intends to curtail drastically the number of student annual examinations.

Minister's Pronouncement

Duncan McArthur, newly appointed Deputy Minister of Education, made known last evening a few of the basic reasons underlying the proposed important move in Ontario educational machinery, following declaration by Hon. Dr. L. J. Simpson, Minister of Education, that examinations were to be "fewer" and were to be held earlier in the year.

More important than either the factor of expense or of student labor, Mr. McArthur said "is that the effect of examinations on the method of teaching as a general rule is damaging. I think it is desirable to discourage teaching primarily for examination purposes. The burden of examinations on the teachers' minds does limit their freedom, and it constitutes a real weight on the method of presenting the subject to the pupils.

Freedom For Teacher

"It is desirable that, as far as possible, the estimate of the standing of the pupil should be determined by th e local teacher, and the local teacher should be given as much freedom as possible in selecting his methods of instruction.

WOMAN PREFERS HOME BUILDING

French Leader Says They Work Outside Only When Necessary.

HELP HUSBANDS.

MONTREAL, Sept. 26.—(C.P.)—Women have a strong sense of family responsibility, stated Madame de la Marre, of Paris, general secretary of l'Union Nationale pour le Vote des Femmes, speaking informally to members of the League for Women's Rights here.

Since 1907, continued Mme. de la Marre, when a law was passed in France giving a married woman the right to handle her own earnings providing a certain proportion was contributed to the support of the home, there has been no record of any husband having brought action against his wife for failing to contribute her share. On the other hand, there have been many complaints from wives whose husbands were the only support of the family.

Women work outside the home only because of necessity, Mme. de la Marre declared. A survey showed that a large majority of the employed married women worked only to supplement the insufficient earnings of their husbands.

Madame de la Marre quoted Premier Gaston Doumergue as being in favor, not only of votes for women, at least in municipal elections, but also of having a certain proportion of women on municipal councils.

COL. LINDBERGH WILL TELL JURY RANSOM STORY

Note Paper in Hauptmann's Home Matches That Used by Kidnappers.

NEW LINKS FORGED.

Sister of Isador Fisch Denies Brother Sent Her Money From U. S.

By Ronald Dixon

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 (A.P.)—Charles A. Lindbergh returned to the borough of the Bronx to-day to tell a grand jury how he waited while his emissary, "Jafsie," paid $50,000 over a cemetery wall on a promise to return his first born.

Bruno Richard Hauptmann's indictment for extortion will be asked as soon as the noted aviator and a few other witnesses have told their stories. District Attorney Samuel J. Foley says Hauptmann got the blood money for the baby, killed as well as kidnapped.

Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh arrived at Englewood, on the New Jersey side of the Hudson River, early to-day after a transcontinental aeroplane flight.

Leaving no possibility unchecked, Federal agents, New Jersey State troopers and New York police forged new links to the chain by which they hope to tie the abduction as well as the ransom doublecross to Hauptmann.

Two New Clues.

Police department carpenters are tearing apart the woodwork of the German-born carpenter's home. In addition to the board on which Hauptmann wrote the address and telephone number of Dr. J. F. Condon, Lindbergh's ransom emissary, the police found two important clues.

They carried off notepaper which they said matched that used for a kidnapper's message. They found nails which they said were marked like those in the ladder down which the infant Lindbergh was carried—or dropped—to death.

Government investigators found close resemblance between Hauptmann's footprints and those of the mysterious "John" who took the ransom over a Bronx cemetery wall a month after the kidnapping. They also termed the wartime German WILMINGTON, Del., September 26 (C.P.). — A pre-nuptial present of a pair of black eyes failed to cool the love of Marjorie C. Galloway, 18, for Lester J. Ennis, 21. She married him anyway.

But the real problem is Magistrate Jourdan's. The former Miss Galloway's father brought charges of assault with intent to kill against Ennis before they eloped. He doesn't know what to do with the case now.

SNOUT BEETLES PROVE MENACE

True Race of Amazons Appear in New York State Ravaging Crops.

NATIVES OF EUROPE, ASIA.

(By Howard W. Blakeslee, A.P. Science Editor.)

ITHACA, N.Y., September 26 (A.P.).— A dangerous spread in northern New York of big beetles, which are true Amazons, not a male in the whole race, was announced to-day at the Cornell University Department of Entomology.

They reproduce by parthenogenesis, without existence of males. They are half-inch long snout beetles, which have been a major crop pest in Europe, and have wiped alfalfa fields clean of a single stalk.

The beetles were first noticed in North America two years ago near Oswego, N.Y., but two weeks ago two new areas were discovered, about 50 miles distant, at Sackett's Harbor on the shore of Lake Erie.

The spread threatens several million dollars' damage even in its present small stage. It is believed the beetles were introduced to this country in packing materials from Europe. Russia is the scene of some of their worst ravages.

They cannot fly. Their wings are both undersized and tightly sealed together. But they have wonderful crawling apparatus, with feet equipped with both claws and sticky pads.

Their great menace is their system of reproducing. Each unmated mother beetle has hundreds of daughters. The young burrow from one to two feet underground, following roots, down to two feet. After being fully grown these sly bug Amazons continue to live for a year underground still destroyings roots unseen. Then in their second year they emerge to lay eggs.

Royal Bank Trophy To Be Decided Soon

CAMPBELLFORD, September 26 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—With only four more games to be played, the fate of the Royal Bank Trophy now hangs in the balance, Norwood winning the first series, Campbellford leading in the second, with Warkworth following in second place. Things are now at fever heat. The locals go to Warkworth on Friday night, then at a later date the winners go to Havelock for the finals, which, aside from a possible friendly game brings a most successful season to a close. The Trent Valley Bowling League comprises Brighton, Hastings, Havelock, Norwood, Warkworth, and Campbellford.

MRS. DRANCHUK DOOMED TO DIE UPON GALLOWS

Middle Aged Mother of Two Children Found Guilty of Slaying Husband.

REFUSED MONEY—ILL.

EDMONTON, September 26 (C.P.). — Convicted by a jury which deliberated for 45 minutes, Mrs. Dina Dranchuk, middle-aged mother of two children, to-day was under sentence by Mr. Justice A. E. Ewing to be hanged at Fort Saskatchewan Jail on December 12 for the murder of her husband on August 20 last.

The man was slain with an axe as he slept at their Flat Lake farm home, north of St. Paul, Alta. The jury recommended mercy for the woman, born in Poland and believed to be 37 or 38 years of age. She does not know her age.

"If you are going to hang me," the woman said in a whisper to an interpreter after the sentence, "I wish you would take my children to my husband's place. Maybe Mary Dohamiuk or William Dohamiuk (relatives of her husband) will look after my children."

His voice breaking, Mr. Justice Ewing replied the children would be cared for. Again she said: "You can do whatever you like with me, but look after my children and leave them with my husband's relatives."

The woman's boys are six and 12 years of age, and played ball in a courthouse corridor while their mother was sentenced to the gallows.

"No, I don't want to see her again," the elder child said abruptly to questioners after the trial.

The woman did not testify on her own behalf. In a statement given to police she admitted the slaying, but accused her husband of refusing to sell pigs so she could get money to see a doctor. She complained she was ill.

FIVE BALLOONS ARE UNREPORTED

Eleven Starters in Warsaw Race Land—One Travels 750 Miles.

BOTH AMERICANS DOWN.

WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 26.—(A.P.)—Eleven of the 16 balloons which soared away Sunday in the 22nd Gordon Bennett Cup race were accounted for to-day, while the fate of the other five was unknown.

Entries which are known to have grounded include two American balloons, two German, two Belgian, one Czechoslovakian, one Italian, one Swiss and two Polish.

One of the Polish balloons burst in Finland, but the pilots escaped injury. The other Polish entry, thus far unidentified, landed near Riazan, Russia, about 750 miles away, apparently the greatest distance travelled by any of the contestants who have reported.

Two French, one Polish, one German an done Swiss balloons have not been heard from.

Moscow dispatches said aviation circles there believed some of the balloonists might be weeks in reporting because of the near wilderness over which they presumably flew.

GREATEST SHIP EVER LAUNCHED SLIPS INTO SEA

The peak of the highest tide of the Autumn was awaited as the signal for the Queen to name the ship and press the button releasing the triggers and sending the hull down the well-greased blocks into the River Clyde and the mouth of the River Cart.

Three other great vessels came from these same stocks—the Acquitania, the Empress of Britain and H.M.S. Hood—so there were precedents to draw on for launching the new merchant queen "up the Cart." However, extreme precautions were taken to insure success because while the Hood actually weighed more, the new ship exceeds all with its length of 1,018 feet.

With but a slight margin of safety, despite the fact that one of the opposite banks and the mouth of the Cart have been dredged, the hull was fitted with 18,000 tons of drag chains and a whole fleet of tugs was ready to act as brakes.

Represents Years of Study

Years of investigation and experiment preceded the building of the 534, as she was known before her Christening by the Queen today. A special honorary committee of leading British marine engineers studied propelling machinery, and experts in other lines of ship building and decorating likewise were engaged in the effort to produce the finest vessel yet built.

Thorough researches on hull form were carried out in the builders' experimental tank, involving 7,000 separate experiments on model hull, before the form was finally determined which possessed those qualities enabling the ship to maintain in all weathers the fast North Atlantic service for which she was built.

The vessel is 1,018 feet long, with tonnage of 73,000. The total weight of metal in hull and machinery exceeds 50,000 tons. The number of persons she will carry is 4,000. Equipment is on a scale commensurate with the size of the vessel. Practically all first-class staterooms for instance, are equipped with private bathrooms.

The ship will be driven by single-reduction geared turbines. There are four screw propellers, each driven independently. Auxiliary machinery is electrically driven. The boilers are oil-burners under forced draught.

A Few Features.

Statistics of the giant vessel follow:

Length, 1,018 feet; beam, 118 feet; depth from keel to superstructure, 135 feet; depth from keel to truck, 234 feet; tonnage, 73,000.

Construction includes a well-raked stem, cruiser stern, and fore and aft rig, with three large funnels of suitable slope and height. There are 12 decks from the sun deck to partial lower decks. There are 11 public rooms, swimming baths, gymnasiums, etc., for first-class passengers, five for tourist class, and five for third-class.

REFORM PLANS ARE INDICATED BY ROOSEVELT

Praises Gen. Johnson as He Accepts N.R.A. Chief's Resignation.

HINTS FRESH DUTIES.

New Drive Expected to be Divided Into Three Phases.

By WILLIAM L. BEALE, JR.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The bird that was born in the flames of Hugh S. Johnson's personality spread its wings for a new flight today, but there will be no General Hugh Johnson to bark answer to the question:

"Shall the blue eagle fly to the right or to the left?"

The N R A administrator stepped out last night to take his place in the United States history books. Cordially, he wrote to President Roosevelt at Hyde Park that with the reorganization of N R A his job would be "superfluous."

Calling him "Dear Hugh" and praising his services highly, Mr. Roosevelt accepted the resignation, which is effective October 15. Both letters spoke of "new duties" for Johnson in the new deal in the future.

The president returned to Washington today with plans for a new NRA setup. They call for important changes in the recovery unit's machinery and, in the opinion of many observers, in its policies also.

What the changes are industry, labor and consumers all over the United States are waiting to hear. There is every sign the president will announce them shortly. The new setup has taken form in the midst of terrific pressures.

Hands Off Policy

Many business leaders have been demanding more of a hands-off policy; labor chiefs, some of them crying for Johnson's scalp, have been seeking greater strength for workers, a 30-hour week and the right to initiate code changes; others have been denouncing "monopoly" and "price-fixing."

Only the broadest outlines so far have been hinted by Mr. Roosevelt. It is indicated that there will be one board to frame policies, another group of regents to do the actual administering with judicial functions transferred probably to the justice department.

Whether the resignation of Johnson means that the recovery unit is veering toward "Liberalism" or toward "Conservatism" only the future can say exactly. Johnson was considered farther "to the right" than some other high officials, though plenty of "dead cats" came hurtling his way from the Conservative camp.

Some labor leaders — including the heads of the United Textile Workers and insurgent chiefs of the steel union—had yearned for his passing from power.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 26 (Examiner Correspondence). — The funeral of Mrs. Frank Collins, whose death occurred on Monday, took place from the family residence, Grand Road, on Wednesday morning, and was largely attended; the numerous floral offerings showing the esteem in which the deceased was held. Mrs. Collins was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Mahoney, her maiden name being Clara Magdaelen, and was in her 32nd year. Besides her husband she is survived by five sons, Earl, Gerald, Claire, Howard, and an infant son, and three daughters, Marie, Evelyn and Dorothy. Rev. Father C. J. Phelan celebrated Requiem Mass, with interment in St. Mary's Cemetery.

PETER McDONALD

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 26 (Examiner Correspondence). — The funeral of Peter McDonald, whose death occurred on Friday at his home in St. Catharines, took place on Tuesday, from the home of his brother-in-law, Harry Aylesworth, Percy, and was attended by a host of friends and relatives. Mr. McDonald was a native of Percy township, where he spent his early life, coming to Campbellford later and conducting a livery business, about ten years ago leaving for St. Catharines, where he had since resided. He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Claire Newhouse of Niagara Falls and Mrs. L. Lindsley of London, Ont., also two sisters, Mrs. Harry Aylesworth and Mrs. George Carlaw, both of Percy township. Rev. Gordon Duncan of the Presbyterian Church, Warkworth conducted the services; the pall-bearers were Messrs. William J. Ross, James Armstrong, Jack Greenly, Alfred Merrills, Ed. J. Duff and Walter Weir. Interment was made in Warkworth Cemetery.

KEY OF PRICE PROBE SOLUTION LIES IN COOPERATIVE MOVEMENT

So W. C. Good of Paris Tells Union at 25th Annual Meeting.

SEES HOPE ON HORIZON.

TORONTO, Sept. 26. (CP)—In the co-operative movement rests a complete answer to the problems arising from the findings of the price spreads and mass buying committee of the House of Commons which under the chairmanship of Hon. H. H. Stevens, Federal Minister of Trade and Commerce, probed Canadian economic conditions, declared W. C. Good of Paris, Ont., here to-day in delivering his presidential address before the 25th annual meeting of the Co-operative Union of Canada.

Summarizing the committee's disclosures as pointing to widespread exploitation of primary producers, disparity of incomes, and financial manipulation, he thought the problems presented were whether to allow real competition or favor the "injurious evils which attend private monopoly." The most effective remedy seemed to him to involve socializing monopolies either under state auspices or in the voluntary co-operative movement.

The co-operative movement, he believed, supplied a two-fold answer to the Stevens' inquiry. It applies in the field of ethics, teaching human solidarity, and in economics where the co-operator proposes an organization of society based on human needs.

"It is not without significance," he said, "that those whose aggressive and anti-social conduct has been exposed by the Stevens' inquiry generally represent a class who within their own group learnt the economic value of combination long ago, but who used their own group strength to secure special privileges of various kinds and to oppress other industrial groups less well organized."

Application of co-operative principles to Canada presented peculiar difficulties, Mr. Good believed, because producers' co-operatives, such as the various grain and other pools, milk producers' organizations and fruit-growers' associations, are relatively much better developed here than are consumers' co-operatives. Moreover, he declared, the members of producers' organizations are "smarting from long-continued exploitation" and in them it is not so easy to cultivate a larger vision.

He saw hope "in the Canadian government, after having succumbed to the influence of big business and special privilege for at least 50 years, now showing signs of giving some protection to the under dog." He cited the new Marketing Act as proof of his contention and visioned future power for producers' organization.

MILLBROOK

A pleasant surprise was prepared for Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Williamson, Seventh Line, Cavan, on Friday evening, when between eighty and ninety of their friends and neighbors gathered at their home to extend congratulations on their recent marriage, and to present them with tangible evidence of the high regard in which the young couple are held.

Mr. J. H. McKnight took the chair for the happy occasion, and when the bride and groom had been seated in the midst of the company, Messrs. Roy Hunter and Tom Armstrong, on behalf of a wide circle of friends, presented them with two handsomely-upholstered occasional chairs.

The young couple, married on September 15, are residing on the Williamson family homestead; his parents having moved to Millbrook to reside a few months ago, purchasing the home of the late Mrs. Lowes, on Princess street.

Denies Receiving Money.

LEIPZIG, Germany, Sept. 26. — (A.P.).—Hanna Fisch, sister of the late Isador Fisch, emphatically denied to-day statements credited to her in German newspapers that she and her brother had received large sums of money from Isador.

Bruno Richard Hauptmann, held in New York in the Lindbergh kidnapping case, claimed he received Lindbergh ransom money from Isador, who died here last spring shortly after his return from New York.

Trembling with excitement, Fraulein Fisch said, "I assure you we have never received any money from Isador. Poor Isador was a good character. He always wanted to give me a present but could never afford it because he never had any money."

Asked if she had keys for a New York safe deposit box, which New York despatches had said were in her possession, she said, "If I had such keys that is purely a private matter."

Leipzig police headquarters issued a statement denying persistent reports that Arthur Johnson, New York detective, en route here to investigate German angles of the case, had arrived.

DROPS PROTEST

variably bungled the sail-handling at crucial moments, Sopwith still was sailing what everyone conceded was the faster boat and was in the thick of things until Rainbow tied the score at two all Saturday. He was taking it all with a grin.

The First Tangle

Saturday was the turning point. In the jockeying for the start, right under the experts' eyes in the coast guard cutter Argo, he and Vanderbilt tangled for the first time over the question of right-of-way. Sopwith gave way there, and again at the windward mark, where he was leading. He lost distance, and Vanderbilt came on to win the race by one minute and 15 seconds.

After thinking it over, the Englishman hoisted his protest flag and wrote the race committee that if he hand'nt given up his legal rights on the ocean when he did, "serious collisions" would have followed. The committee tossed out his protest because he delayed so long putting up the flag.

From then on it was every man for himself, and the arguments raged ashore and afloat. Sopwith was bitter when he took Endeavour out yesterday, mostly for the way his protest was handled, for he wrote the committee brusquely regarding the "trivial reason" set forth for denying him a hearing. Most of the experts, British and American alike were in agreement with him.

Final Blowup

Then came the final explosion as the big sloops jockey for the start. Three times Vanderbilt chased Sopwith around in a circle as the Englishman tried to shake him off. Sopwith finally outsmarted the American by doubling quickly on his wake, breaking out a big Genoa Jib, and getting out of the pocket so swiftly that he was over the line more than half a minute ahead of Rainbow. But again there had been close-quarter work as Vanderbilt slid under his stern, a few feet away, when he made the manoeuvre. In a few minutes, Vanderbilt was flying the protest flag, and then Sopwith ran his up to make it unanimous.

Vanderbilt would only admit that his protest had something to do with the start, but Sopwith was more specific.

"He protested," the Englishman said heatedly, "because he knew I had grounds for a protest and he wanted to get his in first. Having won the start, and having been beaten fairly in the race, I decided not to go ahead with my protest although it was for precisely the same reason as Saturday.

"Furthermore, I definitely will not challenge again for the cup.

So heated was Sopwith's mood that he was even said to be considering selling Endeavour to Gerald Lambert, Boston owner of Vanitie, a cup defence contender four years ago. Lambert's eagerness to acquire the blue boat was a reflection of the opinion of all the big yachtsmen that the creation of Charles Nicholson is the fastest thing ever built in the J class. She won two crushing victories at the start of the competition before the sail and seamanship blight fell upon her.

Yesterday she raced to the first mark of the triangular course with more than a minute lead, then Sopwith failed to cover the defender when Vanderbilt went away on a port tack, a fatal failure for a leader in match racing. At the second mark Vanderbilt led by almost four minutes.

Throws Chances Away.

The most ludicrous sail failure of all the series wrecked Endeavour's chances then, but never stopped the boat itself. For 7½ minutes after the turn the British crew fought unsuccessfully to get the Annie Oakley spinnaker broken out. It was stuck in the stops, and by the time it filled Rainbow must have been close to 10 minutes ahead. Yet the blue boat once under way chewed Rainbow's lead to pieces in the run home, and was only 100 yards behind at the finish line.

At least Endeavour has the satisfaction of forcing the series to six races, more than ever accomplished by another boat, and she won two races to equal Shamrock V. record against Resolute in 1920. She set a new triangular record of 3.09.01 September 18 and a mark of 1.18.19 for a 10-mile windward leg the same day. Rainbow set a new record of 2.04.09 for a 15-mile windward leg Sept. 17.

Asked if he did not fear the instruction of "favoritism" in a system under which the teachers' estimate of pupil standards was extended, Mr. McArthur said he did not think it was to be feared.

"At the present time," he said, "the Board of Revision, a board which is performing a most useful work, is able to check up on the standard of each particular school, and if the standards seem to be unduly low the principal of the school is notified. That provides a check and keeps the standard fairly uniform.

CHAMPION BEER DRINKERS.

While conditions as regards the sale of beer in Ontario at the present time are such as to occasion severe criticism in many quarters, it is evident that Mr. Odette will have to issue a good many more "authorities" and the administration of the law will have to become much more lax if the people of this province are to aspire to the beer-drinking championship of the continent.

That doubtful distinction would seem to have been captured by the state of Minnesota, which, according to apparently authentic figures, has been consuming beer during the first six months of the present year at the rate of 17 gallons per capita a year.

That is an astounding performance, and it has left other thirsty states well in the rear, New York which last year was the second largest per capita beer consumer in the Republic, having dropped to seventh place in the list, drinking at the comparatively slow rate of 13 gallons per head of population and dropping below the record set up by Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Washington.

Figures are not available as to Ontario's consumption of beer, but despite the evidence that we in this province are lapping up quite a quantity, there is nothing to indicate that so far we have even approximated the high mark set by the folks out Minnesota way, who ever since the New Year have been going after a new record in a manner that would admit of no defeat.

SHOWING MORE INTEREST.

One feature of the by-election campaigns that is remarkable is that in two of the constituencies, Frontenac-Addington and Toronto East, record votes were polled, while in Elgin West the total was not a great deal below the high mark established at the last election.

As a rule by-elections are not marked by heavy voting, so that it is surprising to find in Toronto East some 8,000 more voters marked their ballots than in the exciting general election of 1930, and that in the rural riding of Frontenac-Addington, with several polls left to hear from, there were 16,240 votes recorded, as against 11,493 in 1930.

The increased interest indicated by these figures shows that the pinch of hard times has caused many electors who in periods of prosperity are inclined to ignore political developments to concern themselves with public problems and with the question of which Government is to be entrusted with the handling of national affairs.

When two ridings show an increase of some 13,000 votes in contests staged only a session before a general election, it is a sign that the country as a whole is taking a much greater interest in political issues than is usually the case, and that the coming federal election will probably see the largest vote in the history of the country recorded.

That is a healthy symptom, despite the fact that the development is more economic than it is political.

BUSINESS MOUNTING STEADILY.

While the average citizen may not as yet have realised that the tide has turned—fr better times take a long period to reach the pockets of the people—statistics continue to demonstrate that business in Canada is mounting steadily.

Thus for the first time since 1933 Canada's index of economic activity has passed 100.

For the week ending September 8, this index, which is expressed as the weekly average compared with the base year, 1926, reached 102.2, as against 98.8 in the preceding week.

Since the first of the year the gain has been almost 20 per cent., compared with a decline of more than 14 per cent. in the United States, according to Business Week's index of business activity.

Four out of the six factors on which the index is based contributed principally to the improvement, these being car loadings, bond prices, bank clearings and wholesale prices. The gross operating revenues of the railways reflected the larger activity. In the first eight months of the year the Canadian National took in ninety million dollars, as compared with seventy-nine millions for the same period last year, while the Canadian Pacific went to seventy-nine millions, as against seventy millions in the first eight months of 1933.

Bond prices—and this is considered significant—reached a new high point from the pre-war period during the early part of this month.

Another most encouraging development is the prediction of James Richardson, prominent Canadian grain dealer, that the entire surplus of this year's Canadian wheat crop will be disposed of within a short time, and the marketing of this wheat at low prices will go far to revive conditions in the Prairie Provinces.

DANGEROUS DAYS FOR HEROES.

When the children of 1984 are made to study, in record and in museum, the history of these present parlous times, prominent among the exhibits will be the scalps of heroes and leaders stricken down in wholesale numbers by the tomahawk of public opinion.

There is no more dangerous business than being a hero in times of depression.

During the past five years we have seen these great popular figures mowed down by the hundreds.

Herbert Hoover, for instance, started out by being the very incarnation of efficiency. To-day, if he raises his voice, it is like yesterday's souphone talking from the ashcan.

Sir Henry Thornton did great things for the Canadian National Railways. Yet he was stripped of his office and died under a cloud of calumny.

A few years ago Samuel Insull was worshipped as a great philanthropist. To-day he is a despised criminal.

Ramsay MacDonald has fallen from the position of the world's most inspirational statesman to that of a living ghost—a sort of Hamlet's father.

Even among Nationalists, his name is scarce mentioned in England without an accompanying sneer.

There is no doubt that Hitler and Mussolini are recipients of much more abuse than they merit.

The tendency of the masses, during times of depression, is to pull any leader down to their own level.

The public is easily bored by heroes at any time. During depressions the public actually becomes resentful of those who attain heroic stature.

The point is that symbols are only loved when they represent something that is attainable to those who love them. A symbol that represents something utterly beyond the reach of the multitude is bound, sooner or later, to be stoned.

The hero business only thrives in the golden ages.

Depressions prove that the meek, with the prolific inevitability of cockroaches, do inherit the earth.—Vancouver Sun.

WHO KEEPS UP NEWSPAPERS?

(Editorial in the Chicago Daily News)

The first interest of a modern newspaper is the prosperity of the people of the community in which it is published. No modern mass-production industry can hope to survive where community income is not widely and equitably distributed. The newspaper is even more dependent upon the prosperity of its readers than is a manufacturer of low-priced automobiles, radio sets or the other "luxuries" of yesterday, fast becoming the necessities of to-day.

The newspaper must sell its product every day. It must sell many papers in the locality.

Its readers must be able to buy the paper and also to buy the goods and services advertised in the paper.

The families of its readers must be literate, they must enjoy living standards high enough to create a demand for the quality of goods that advertising sells, and they must have enough leisure to enable them to use and enjoy the many thousands of articles and services turned out by modern industry.

* * * *

Conceding for the sake of argument that the Marxist dogma of economic determinism is true, that the world does move on its belly, and that all individuals shape their conduct to fit the sides on which their bread is buttered, then it follows that the modern newspaper must be democratic, or die. Its essential democracy, if the Marxist premise be granted, is not a matter of politics, theory or temperament. It is a quality dictated by the struggle for existence and the law of economic survival.

Of course, Marxism is mere metaphysics, like the "economic man" of classic economics. And the newspaper business is not all business. It is also an adventure in public service. Newspaper owners, publishers and editors are not merely business men. They are also human beings. But in the long run, of course, they do not as a rule indulge in diversions that are calculated to send them to bankruptcy and the breadline.

Directly from reader buyers, or indirectly through advertisers, every cent of newspaper revenue must come from the voluntary spending of their own money by the masses of the people. No modern newspaper plant and staff could be supported twenty-four hours on the money of the people who pay the higher income taxes. There is not a private fortune big enough to print and publish a modern metropolitan newspaper from its own income.

Out of these hard dollars-and-cents facts flow some inescapable deductions. The reason why an ungagged press instinctively fights dictatorship and favors democracy is partly, of course, a reflex of the ideals and temperament of newspaper men, inherited from centuries of liberal and democratic habit. But it is also inevitable from economic compulsion. Unless industrial and economic democracy is a substantial reality in a nation, the press cannot function as a free large-scale enterprise. It must inevitably shrink into a small or a servile and subsidized institution, supported by the state from tax money taken from the people.

For a newspaper to support exploiters of the people is to cut its own financial throat. How well exploiters know that! The dictator and the demagogue everywhere damn the newspapers.

* * * *

The newspaper submits its work and policies every day to the free referendum of the news-stands, where the masses cast their votes in the form of pennies. There choice is unrestrained and is made in cool judgment.

Compared to the real democracy and liberty of the market place, whether it be for newspapers or shirts, the democracy even of the ballot box is but a feeble thing. The "vote" of the buyer metes out business life or death to the seller.

The demagogue places himself and his policies in issue only at elections years apart, and those tests are staged with elaborate ballyhoo, hysteria, red fire and tub-thumping appeal.

The dictator rarely risks even the artificial and theatrical test of a referendum.

The newspaper submits itself to the people's will every time it goes to press.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

There is nothing from Geneva to indicate that Mr. Bennett was overjoyed at the result of Monday's by-elections.

The C.C.F. candidate in Toronto East was never a serious contender. Evidently the Co-operative Commonwealth movement is not making any worth-while headway.

It cannot be said that the America's Cup races are contributing a great deal to international amity.

Leave it to Sault Ste. Marie. Right in the midst of the by-election excitement the Algoma centre comes to bat with a story of a car being charged by a ferocious moose.

Tommy Church will be welcomed back to the House of Commons where members of his independent frame of mind are all too few.

Apparently it is the faculty that is doing most of the graduation from Ontario Agricultural College just now.

New Canadian bank notes are to be smaller. Even at that they'll have more purchasing power than the larger ones had a few years ago.—Niagara Falls Review.

Druggists will not view with alarm the action of the Hepburn Government in doing its own dispensing, so long as that it is confined to dispensing with surplus personnel.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

A DEPOSIT FOR CANDIDATES

Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Being a believer in free speech and an advocate for liberty of opinion I cannot reasonably take exception to you taking advantage of these liberties in the editorial columns of your paper. While you may make free use of that privilege and without question is no indication that your opinion is in harmony with that of your readers. The resolution passed by the Windsor C.C.F. club calling for the abolition of the present law which requires every candidate for a seat in the Federal parliament to put up a deposit of $300. There should be no financial barrier or hindrance of any kind put in the way of the electors in electing a candidate to represent them in the House of Parliament. In connection with the booklet which the newly organised Dominion Tourist Bureau is to issue early next year for distribution in the United States you suggest that this should be the business of the local City Council or the Chamber of Commerce or both to see that Peterborough and this section of Ontario receives a fair share of publicity in the new publication. With all due respect to the members of the Chamber of Commerce—and I think I am expressing the general consensus of opinion of the working people—when I say that they have as little use for the Chamber of Commerce as what a cart has for a third wheel. The City Council is a representative body of the ratepayers and householders of the city and when a question arises that may call for outside assistance every confidence can be placed in that body that they will select a fair representation of the classes concerned.

Thanking you in anticipation for the above space,

Alex Murray.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

AITOKAN, NTARIO.

The name of this town is derived from the Indian language and is popularly supposed to mean "Pile of Caribou Bones". Another translation has it that the word means "the shin bone of a deer". Since there is little to choose between the two translations, it follows that either may be correct.

A Thought

TREES

Children may not be able to understand the importance of trees in their aggregation as forests; however, they will, if allowed to assemble in a grove or park, be inspired with the idea that trees are one of the grandest products of God when they hear that without them the earth could never have produced the necessaries of life, and that with their destruction we could not keep up the sustained growth of the plants that feed man an animals. There is no more suitable subject for practical oral lessons, now common in most of our schools, than the nature of plants, and especially that of trees and the value of tree-planting.—Nicholas Jarchow.

MORE WORK HOURS GENERAL MOTORS

Thousands of Men Benefit by Increased Demand for Cars.

OSHAWA, Sept. 25 — Full of meaning for the country at large are the 1934 production figures of the Canadian automobile industry, showing as they do a tremendous margin over the total for 1933. What this year's relatively active motor car market represents in terms of factory schedules, man hours, and extra working days for the Canadian wage earners, was expressed tersely by C. E. McTavish, General Sales Manager of General Motors Products of Canada, Limited, while discussing gratifying sales of passenger cars in the third quarter.

"More than two million additional hours of work for our men here at Oshawa and at our Walkerville factory," said Mr. McTavish. "That's the comparison between the first eight months of 1934 and the same period of 1933. To be exact, the difference in the payroll was 2,294,761 hours on the right side of the ledger. If you are statistically minded, you will realise that is the equivalent of months of extra work for thousands of men. And that is the picture only as far as General Motors of Canada is concerned. Popularity of Chevrolet and our other lines has meant increased sales to us, and consequently heavy factory schedules at Walkerville and Oshawa; but it has also meant more work than last year for suppliers and parts manufacturers and their employees all over Canada."

Specifically dealing with General Motors of Canada production, Mr. MacTavish said that the first eight months' total exceeded the same period of 1933 by 105 per cent.

"Personally, however," he added, "I think people more readily realise what the year's activity has meant in extra work for wage earners, rather than what it means in percentage increase of car units sold. Nevertheless some of our passenger cars register really extraordinary percentage gains over 1933. Chevrolet is most commonly cited, but Oldsmobile's record is even more remarkable."

Keene

The "Tillicum" Class met at the home of Miss Willena Hope on Thursday evening for the opening meeting of the fall term.

After the business discussion the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Miss Jean Armstrong; Vice-President, Miss Kathleen Nelson; Secretary, Miss Edythe Nelson; Treasurer, Miss Marjorie Francis; Social Committee: Bertha Elmhirst and Alberta Comrie; Program Committee, Willena Nelson, Mabel McIntyre and Isobel Davis.

Mrs. J. W. Patoine, of Peterborough, was a guest of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Taylor, last week.

Misses Jean and Marion Nelson are visiting relatives in Toronto.

Mr. Norman Taylor, of Winnipeg, was a week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Taylor.

Mr. Roy Elmhirst was a week-end guest of his mother, Mrs. Mabel Elmhirst.

The Young People's Society met on Sunday evening in the basement of the church, with Miss Mabel McIntyre in charge of the meeting. The topic was "Hymns of Social Religion" Scripture service was sung by Douglas Brown; reading, Isabel Nelson. Miss Helen Nichols, Peterborough, gave a musical selection. Edythe Elmhirst led in prayer.

A very well attended tea was held at the home of Mrs. Herbert Macfarlane by "The Drummond Line" group of the W.M.S. of Keene United Church on Tuesday afternoon.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

WHEN THE KI G VISITED WINNIPEG.

On this date, in 1901, Winnipeg welcomed the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, now King George and Queen Mary. It was a fine day, the first for a fortnight; though the sky was clear there was a plentitude of Red river mud on the streets. Their royal highnesses were welcomed by Lieutenant Governor McMillan, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. R. P. Roblin and were guided to a marquee on the platform where the duchess's eyes were at once attracted by an immense bank of roses, the gift of the Sons of England, guarded by two boys, Clement Harrison in khaki and Willie Broughton as a jack tar (where are those boys now? Perhaps their uniforms on that day 33 years ago were prophetic of their destiny later?). The procession up Main Street to the city hall went through great arches of wheat, which drew comments from the future king and queen. At the city hall Mayor John Arbuthnot welcomed their royal highnesses and read the civic address, which was followed by others from the Anglican and Roman Catholic churches. The insignia of Companion of the Bath was conferred upon Colonel Evans and a number of South African veterans (five officers and 90 non-coms and men) were given their medals.

In the afternoon the royal party visited the University of Manitoba, where the duke opened the new science building with the usual ceremonies and red tape. Miss Jeanne Dubac was thanked by the duchess for a gift of lovely roses; school children sang patriotic airs; there was a drill of the boys from the Indian school, and an inspection of survivors of the Nile expedition of 1884 and of the North West rebellion campaign of 1885. Dinner at Government house was a grand function. How many of the guests now survive? They included the Archbishop of Rupert's Land, the Chief Justice of Manitoba and Mrs. Killam, Justice and Mrs. Richards, Hon. R. P. and Mrs. Roblin, Hon. Robert and Mrs. Rogers, the Mayor and Mrs. Arbuthnot, Colonel Evans, Mr. and Mrs. R. Ewart, Mr. Isaac Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. M. Aikins, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Chipman, and Mr. and Mrs. M. Aldous. After the banquet the royal party proceeded through cheering crowds to the railway station and boarded their special train, on which the next morning they awoke to find the prairie completely covered with snow, whereupon the royal couple and their suite were assured that it was "most unusual weather" for the time of year! Just as other folk have since when late September brings the first taste of winter.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 97c to 99c; oats, 35c to 38c; barley, 60c to 64c; corn, 85c to 86c; rye, 55c to 57c; buckwheat, 55c to 58c; malting barley, 70c to 72c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Right-about face action of the grain markets late yesterday and an outburst of general buying, turned losses into brisk advances.

Paucity of offerings in the last hour indicated that both wheat and corn here had become oversold. A disposition to rally shown by Argentine wheat prices helped to restore confidence, which had been badly shaken earlier by sharp breaks in Buenos Aires quotations, tumbling Argentine wheat to the lowest point since Aug. 6.

Wheat in Chicago closed firm, ¾c to 1¼c above Monday's finish; December, new, $1.04⅛ to $1.04¼; corn 1c to 1¼c up; oats, unchanged to ¼c higher, and provisions varying from 25c decline to a rise of 2c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Prices were unchanged on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

Cheese quotations held at yesterday's advances, Ontario colored bringing 10c to 10¾c a pound while Quebec cheese was priced at 9¼c to 9¾c a pound. Receipts totalled 2,111 boxes. At the weekly auction held at the Board of Trade offerings totalled 529 boxes of Quebec cheese, for which No. 1 white brought 9 cents a pound and No. 1 colored sold at 9¾ cents a pound.

Fresh No. 1 butter continued to be quoted at 19½c to 19¾c a pound in carlots or less. Small lots to the retail trade were 20½ cents a pound for solids and 21½ cents for prints. Arrivals were only two boxes. At the auction 623 boxes were offered and No. 1 Quebec brought 19¾ cents a pound.

Graded shipments of eggs in carlots or less were again priced at 28 cents a dozen for A-large, 26 cents for A-medium, 21 cents for B and 19½ cents for C. Arrivals totalled 514 cases.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, September 26. — Wheat prices rallied from a 1c break on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday, and closed ¼c to ½c higher. Late upturns at Chicago and purchasing by Southern traders was responsible for the advance.

October wheat rose to 82¾c, December to 83c, and May to 87¼c. Sharp declines at Liverpool and Buenos Aires accounted for early weakness, and at bottom levels artificial support was necessary to check further downturns.

Chicago sellers took the place of the absent hedging pressure in early dealings, but when their own market rallied they were quick to buy in their short sales.

Canadian farmers delivered only 236,000 bushels on Monday, thus hedging was considerably lightened. News of bad weather in the Prairie Provinces failed to create any new export demand.

Cash and coarse grains were dull, and closed comparatively steady.

ACTIVE BUYING AMONG GOLDS

Teck Hughes Turns Strong and Closes Higher After New Low.

BIG GOLDS OUT.

TORONTO, September 26 (C.P.).—An early period of slow trading at declining prices was succeeded this afternoon by active buying with quotations in a rising trend. Several of the medium-priced gold shares particularly reflected the more buoyant outlook. Teck-Hughes turned strong and closed higher after hitting a new low mark for the year in the morning at $4.05.

The late afternoon show of strength was not general, several of the big gold shares remaining out of the picture. Pioneer featured the group by rising more than $1.00 and Hollinger recovered most of a morning loss. Teck showed a net gain of 7 at 4.15. Dome closed 25 cents up, and Braylorne unchanged.

PROSPECTOR OVERHEARS PLANS BEATS STEEL COMPANY TO GOLD

Learns Old Iron Claims Believed Patented Are Open and Flies In.

STURGEON RIVER TALES.

(Written for The Canadian Press By Leslie Roberts).

JELLICOE, Ont., Sept. 26. (CP) Some fine yarns are emerging from the heat of Sturgeon River's gold rush and the best so far concerns a losing venture by the Bethlehem Steel Company of the United States. Bethlehem Steel was interested in the Sturgeon a quarter-century ago because this was reckoned to be an iron range area.

As far back as 1907 Bethlehem Steel prospected and staked a large group of claims, approximately a mile and a half southwest of Lake Windigokan. Bethlehem was looking for iron. Apparently nobody thought of the likelihood of finding gold in the district. Surface work was carried on but the properties were finally abandoned, although a few claims were patented.

Then the 1934 gold rush started. Almost immediately representatives of the original stakers headed into the country to test the old iron claims for gold. At a little hotel in Hard Rock, an up and doing aerial prospector overheard the Bethlehem tale.

Leaves Claims Open

The Bethlehem men were planning to outfit and go into the country by the river route. Meanwhile, however, the prospector flew out to Port Arthur and ascertained that the claims which the Americans regarded as patented were actually open for staking. He outdistanced the party travelling by river, rushed into the country by air and was out before the Bethlehem men arrived to discover their claims had been restaked and were lost.

The Sturgeon River country abounds in such tales. As quickly as new finds are made and recorded, exploration and development companies are on the ground bidding for options. Small groups of claims well situated on the "break" have brought their discoverers thousands of dollars in cash and large interests in the companies formed to develop the properties.

Amounts ranging into five figures have been offered and paid by operators for the right to move crews and machinery onto properties and to set development work in motion. Some people have made much money. Then there is the story of Mrs. Grace McAllister of Vancouver.

Unexpected riches are likely to accrue to the British Columbia widow. More than 25 years ago her husband staked claims along the Sturgeon hoping to find and establish an iron mine. Many old-time iron claims are being re-prospected now and several operators, whose scouts are in the rush area, are said to be moving towards deals which, if consummated, would make Mrs. McAllister rich.

PRICE CHANGES ARE INDECISIVE

Stocks Encounter Resistance in Trying to Advance Further After Rally.

ALCOHOLS FIRM.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 (A.P.). — Stocks encountered resistance today in attempting to extend yesterday's advance. Utilities and alcohols made a fairly good showing during the forenoon, but other parts of the list lagged. The late tone was irregular.

American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, American Commercial Alcohol and U.S. Industrial Alcohol were steady to firm, but small recessions prevailed in U.S. Steel, General Motors and Santa Fe. Transfers approximated 800,000 shares.

The rally in the stock market petered out after a further buying flurry in the first hour of trading. The list turned dull, and price movements in this and in other markets became indecisive. The bond market was fairly steady.

Among Canadian shares, Dome and McIntyre eased slightly. International Nickel ruled about even. On the curb, Lake Shore and Hiram Walker showed fractional declines. Dominion Government bonds were steady. The Canadian dollar was 1-32 of a cent lower at 100 3-16 cents.

Issues still up fractions to a point or so in the early afternoon included U.S. Industrial Alcohol, American Commercial Alcohol, .S. Smelting, American Smelting, U.S. Rubber Preferred, Goodyear, Public Service of N.J., Liggett & Myers B and Case. "BIG SHOT" IMPLICATED IN McEAN KIDNAP PLOT

TORONTO, Sept. 26. (CP).—Existence of a "big fellow" with previous kidnapping experience as the brains of the alleged plot to kidnap J. S. McLean, president of Canada Packers, Ltd., was declared a fact here to-day by Frank Wood who is on trial before Judge D. O'Connell, charged in company with Harry and James Leslie with conspiracy to kidnap.

Wood said when he told Fred Hastings who, he alleged, first broached the alleged scheme, he considered the plot "crazy" and they could not effect a kidnapping in the face of Canadian law. Hastings answered a friend who was helping him had enough experience to carry it through.

Hastings intended to take a trip around the world with his share of the ransom, Wood swore.

35 HOTELMEN MEET IN CITY

George O'Neill President of Ontario Hotelmen's Association Present.

POLICIES OUTLINED.

Thirty-five of the hotelmen of the district comprising No. 7 zone in the new inspectorate of C. H. Curtis of Warkworth met at the Empress yesterday, and were addressed by George O'Neill of Toronto, president of the Ontario Hotelmens Association.

Mr. O'Neill spoke on the general subject of the improvement of the hotel business with special reference to the new beverage rooms, and the importance of strict compliances with the law pertaining to the sale of beer and wine. Incidentally he commended the action of the proprietors of the Peterborough hotels in their decision for the earlier closing of beverage rooms at 10 p.m. on Saturdays and at 11 p.m. on the other days during the week. All the hotels of No. 7 zone were represented at yesterday's meeting which outlined a policy of hotel management which is designed to co-operate to the fullest extent with the Ontario Liquor Commission.

statement that the keynote of success in the case was the co-operation between the three agencies conducting the investigation—federal authorities, and state and local police.

Asked whether the department of justice was seeking others as alleged accomplices of Hauptmann, Cummings declined to comment. But he did say that the federal government was "continuing its investigation."

Meanwhile, despite earlier reports from the Bronx county sheriff's office that Hauptmann had spent a restful night in his Bronx county jail cell, Sheriff John J. Hanley said today that the first break in the prisoner's stoical calm came last night.

The sheriff said the prisoner did not sleep well, and that he alternately paced the floor of his cell and sat on his bunk, weeping, during the night.

Hauptmann was taken to the District Attorney's office this morning and on his arrival there he appeared nervous and shaken.

Parents Desolate.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press).

MARKGROENINGEN, Germany, Sept. 26 (A.P.).—An aged and deaf saddlemaker and his invalid hausfrau were desolated to-day at the news from New York that their daughter, Anna, through marriage to Bruno Richard Hauptmann, has been involved in the Lindbergh kidnapping case.

The sympathy of the 3,200 villagers was extended to the couple in their dejection. The villagers generally described Anna as a decent, industrious, hard-working woman, "who can't possibly be implicated in the Lindbergh murder."

There was nothing to indicate money ever flowed very freely in the direction of Markgroeningen from Anna.

Deaf old Herr Schoeffler still eks out a modest living selling leather accoutrements for horses and dogs, while the infirm mother long has been confined to her bed. Only occasionally, it was said, did they receive two or five dollars from Anna at Christmas time.

Anna emigrated nine years ago after serving as a waitress in Switzerland.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Sept. 26 (C.P.) — Cattle trade was very dull in early afternoon trading on the Toronto Livestock Market on the plain quality supply. Receipts were not much heavier than at the opening of the market. Hogs settled steady at yesterday's closing prices. Calves, sheep and lambs were all steady.

Receipts as supplied by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 720, calves 560, hogs 1,130, sheep and lambs 1,230.

Small lots of butcher cattle sold steady from $2.50 to $4. Cows were weak at $2.25 to $2.50 for choice. A few good butcher bulls brought $2.25 to $2.75 with bologna bulls bringing $1.75 to $1.85. Fed calves were steady from $5 to $7.25 according to quality. Common to medium stock cattle brought $2 to $2.75 cwt.

Calves were unchanged at $6.50 to $7 for good and choice vealers with heavies at $3 to $4.

Hogs were steady in early afternoon trading at $7 f.o.b. for bacons, $7.35 off truck and $7.75 off cars.

Lambs were steady at $5.75 for good ewes and wethers and at $4.75 for culls and heavies. Bucks brought $4.75 to $5. Sheep were steady at $1 to $3 according to quality.

HOG PRICES

TORONTO, Sept. 26. (CP).—Hog prices were generally unchanged again to-day at reporting market points. The Kitchener price was down 15 cents.

Quotations at the various market points were: Hull, $7.50, unchanged; Peterborough, $7.00, unchanged; Kitchener, $7.10, down 15c; Barrie, $7.00, unchanged.

GRANADA.

Installation of the new Hadsell mill which is to be added to the present circuit at the Granada Gold Mines is rapidly nearing completion, according to R. C. Gamble, present of the company. It is expected by officials that the new addition will be placed in operation around the first week in October, which will bring the present capacity of 100 tons up to 200 tons per day. Meanwhile, underground development work on all levels is progressing satisfactorily with ore conditions to the east showing up well after passing through the faulted section.

PROFIT TAKING IN INDUSTRIALS

Ford A Closed Below $20 For Loss of Nearly a Point.

BREWERIES BETTER.

TORONTO, Sept. 26. (CP) — Scattered profit-taking on Tuesday's rise came along this afternoon on the industrial section of the Toronto Exchange and a general shading of prices resulted, although gains held a margin over losses at the close. The oils, some of the brewery issues, Ford A, Brazilian and Nickel were offered down a little. Imperial had its heaviest day in weeks but nevertheless closed at a loss of ⅛ at 14¾.

Ford A closed below the 20 mark for a loss of nearly a point on substantial turnover. Smaller declines were registered for Brazilian, C.P.R. and Nickel and Consolidated Smelters took a loss of nearly two points. The distillery stocks were off ¼ to a point.

Brewing Corporation, common and preferred featured the brewery group, the preferred registered a net gain of about three points and the common nearly a point.

WHEAT PICTURE IS NOW BRIGHT

Canada's Carryover is Lowest in a Dozen Years, 75,000,000 Bushels.

MARKETS OPEN.

(By Sam G. Ross, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

WINNIPEG, Sept. 26 (CP)—Revenue prospects for wheat exporting farmers of Canada were bright to-day because the country's carryover will be the lowest in a dozen years—75,000,000 bushels.

Far lower than the 203,000,000 bushels carryover at July 31, 1934, the estimated 1935 carryover has increased importance when it is coupled with Broomhall's estimate that during the present crop year Canada will supply half of the world's imports.

The Situation

In brief, grain traders placed Canada's situation in world markets like this:

1.—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimates the 1934 Canadian wheat crop at 277,000,000 bushels. Home requirements are estimated at 117,000,000 bushels, leaving 160,000,000 bushels of the crop for export purposes.

2.—The Dominion Bureau placed the Canadian carryover at the end of the crop years, July 31, 1934, at 203,000,000 bushels. Adding the 160,000,000 bushels available for export from the 1934 crop Canada has 363,000,000 bushels for export between now and July 31, 1935.

3.—Broomhall estimated Canadian exports during the crop year July 31, 1934, to July 31, 1935, at 282,000,000 bushels. If the export were fully made, then only 75,000,000 bushels would be in elevators at the end of the current crop year.

Canada's place was shown graphically by Broomhall's summary of world import requirements. The total estimated was 576,000,000 bushels. Of this total, Broomhall said Canada would provide 288,000,000 bushels; United States, 8,000,000; Argentine, 160,000,0000; Australia, 96,000,000, and Danubian countri and France 24,000,000.

JOSEPH JONES PLEADS GUILTY

"His entire service," Mr. Anson testified, "has caused us to form a high opinion of his ability and general conduct."

Mr. Rose also spoke in highest terms of the accused and said, "He is always reliable and punctual."

Counsel for the accused further stated that Jones was the sole support of a widowed mother.

Flagrant Case

In agreeing to suspended sentence in view of Jones' good record and the fact that it was his first offence, Mr. McElderry stated nevertheless, "this was a very flagrant case. One young lady and a young man in the party were badly injured, the young lady being the more seriously injured of the two. The cause that resulted in injuries to these people was that the accused had been drinking. All three had been to a dance in Peterborough and I believe they were going on to another dance at Bewdley."

"People who carry on in such a manner are a menace not only to themselves but to the public also," Mr. McElderry urged, "and such offences should not be treated lightly."

Garden Produce Is Most Plentiful

Vendors come faithfully to the Wednesday morning markets, but patrons are conspicuous by their absence. Fresh, moderately-priced goods are all-ready for their inspection, but they aren't around.

There was no sale in the basket section, but vegetables and garden produce were plentiful on the open market.

Red tomatoes were 15 cents a basket, green variety 25 cents; large pears were 65 cents a basket, and preserving pears 40 cents a peck; crabapples were 25 cents; corn 20 cents a dozen; little cucumbers 40 cents a basket, and Brussels sprouts 10 cents a quart.

Potatoes were 75 cents a bag.

Apples were plentiful. Baxters and Blenheim Pippins were $1.00 a bushel, McIntosh Reds and St. Lawrence $1.50, No. 2 McIntosh were 30 cents a peck.

Little yellow plum tomatoes were 5 cents a quart.

A mild little white rat terrier brought her brood to market this morning. They were offered at a dollar apiece.

Stanley Bishop was displaying the latest acquisition, just arrived from Toronto last night, to his riding stable. It was a gentle much-admired "Sunshine" chestnut, with a satin-smooth coat, roached mane, and pricked-up ears, hackney-thoroughbred breed.

ST. CATHARINES.—Sheriff Fred J. Graves is celebrating a real hole in one made at the St. Catharines golf club. Playing the eighth hole, 135 yards, the ball did not roll into the cup but dropped in without touching the ground. There were three others with him, including the club pro.

Boy's Death Blamed On Bite From Insect

TORONTO, Sept. 26 (CP.).—An autopsy was held to-day on the body of a four-year-old boy who died in hospital last night, supposedly from blood poisoning resulting from an insect bite.

The boy, Harold Canning, was bitten two weeks ago by an insect of unidentified species. The bite, on his right eyelid, caused a swelling which was thought to have improved at one time, but subsequently developed blood poisoning which spread over his body.

Lloyd Canning, the boy's father, said he and his wife had poulticed the swelling when they noticed it first and that their family physician had lanced it.

Favor Partial Federal Control Regarding Liquor

EDMONTON, September 26 (C.P.). — The executive of the Hotel Association of Canada to-day was on record in favor of transferring some of the liquor control powers now in the hands of the Provincial Governments to the Dominion Government.

Meeting here yesterday, the executive adopted a resolution favoring transfer of authority under the British North America Act to permit the Dominion to legislate on distribution of liquor to be sold on railway dining cars or on steamships operating on salt waters. President Lloyd Manly of Vancouver presided.

The executive also declared for uniformity in liquor legislation affecting hotels if necessary by introduction of Federal legislation.

Another resolution expressed opposition to sale of wines and liquors in other than licensed hotels.

LONDON LAWYER ALLOWED BAIL

Bond is Raised to $12,000 After Additional Theft Charge is Laid.

IN EXTORTION CASE.

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 26 (C.P.).—Vincent Foley, London lawyer, rearrested last night on an additional charge of theft of $1,500 by conversion from Mr. D. and C., was remanded on bail to-day of $12,000. Last Saturday he was released on $10,000 bail posted by two friends.

The latest case was adjourned until next Tuesday, when Mr. Foley appeared before Magistrate Scandrett.

The plaintiffs in the conversion charge are two Toronto businessmen, who laid the original extortion charges.

Counsel for the defence said he expected an additional $2,000 bail would be raised.

BETTER STEEL DEMAND HAS BUOYED UP HOPES

NEW YORK, Sept. 26. (AP)—A further rise in steel demand, accompanied by a two and one-half point gain in production, said the Weekly Iron Age Review to-day, was buoyed up by the hopes of the trade and stiffened resistance to pressure against prices. Ingot production is estimated at 23½ per cent against 21 percent for last week.

"Part of the increase," asserted the Review, "is attributable to larger releases from the automobile industry, but much of it is due to heavier replenishment buying.

"Further acceleration of purchases for stock replacement is now looked for.

"Among factors encouraging freer buying is the lingering fear of eventual currency inflation, although generally speaking the tone of business is more confident and less uncertain, influenced no doubt by the ending of the textile strike.

Mrs. McKague of Cobourg and Mrs. Purvis, Mrs. and Miss Johnston of Baltimore were guests of Rev. D. A. and Mrs. McKenzie on Friday.

The new seeding of fall wheat is very promising. The land worked up well and the recent showers have produced a rapid and exuberant growth.

Owing to heavily reduced acreage Australia does not expect to profit greatly by the high prices of wheat.

S. MONAGHAN FAIR IMPROVED

Attendance Larger for School Exhibition and Exhibits Better and More Numerous.

MANY CONTESTS.

CENTREVILLE, eSpt. 26. (Examiner Correspondence).—Favored with ideal weather conditions the South Monaghan School Fair was held on Monday at Centreville under the auspices of the Ontario Department of Agriculture supervised by Mr. E. A. Summers, district representative of Durham County and Col. J. W. Odell, I.P. schools.

The attendance was larger than last year and the exhibits consisted of colts, calves, sheep, fruits, vegetables, flowers, poultry, etc., were of a high class. Domestic science and manual training exhibits were of a high order and again featured by an increased number of entries.

Races were held in the forenoon. The school parade was a very colorful affair and the physical training and drills and competitive school sports proved to be most interesting. A most impressive salute of the Union Jack and the singing of the national anthem terminated the shcool parade.

SOUTH CAVAN RURAL SCHOOL FAIR REAL SUCCESS WITH 643 ENTRIES

Marsh School No. 18, Miss J. Bothwell, Teacher, Wins in Chorus Singing.

R. LEWERS BEST SPEAKER.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 25 (Examiner Correspondence). — A well-filled grandstand accorded generous applause to the program presented in connection with the South Cavan Rural School Fair, held at the Agricultural Park, Millbrook, on Friday at 1:45 p.m., under the supervision of A. E. Summers, Agricultural Representative for Durham, and Colonel J. W. Odell, P.S.I.

The South Cavan fair is always looked upon as outstanding in the list for Durham, and on Friday all classes were well supplied with exhibits, the total number being 643. Special interest centered round the school chorus singing, this being only the second year since the schools of Cavan have had the advantage of voice culture, under the capable training of Martin Chenhall, Jr. The judges, Messrs. S. Willis and J. Sedgewick, of Peterborough, found their task a difficult one, but finally awarded first standing to the Marsh school, No. 18, Miss Jean Bothwell teacher, with Cedar Valley, Miss Gwen Hutchison teacher and Millbrook Senior room, B. B. Dawson teacher, tied for second place; Fallis Line, No. 10, Miss Jean Burnham teacher, was third. In all eight schools competed.

Prizes For Soloists.

Mr. Willis offered a medal to the pupil taking highest place in the solo singing, this feature being a new one this year, with a number of scholars entered as contestants. Beatrice McDowell, of Millbrook Senior Room came first, and received the medal as well as the one dollar prize donated by the Women's Institute; Elsie Damchuk of S.S. No. 18, came second Rev. William Simpson and Rev. A. L. Sisco judged the recitations and impromptu speaking, the winners being for the first class, Ruth Lewers, No. 12; 2nd, Audrey Wood; 3rd, Joyce Kennedy, Zion (13). Jack Arundel and Eleanor Bigelow, both of Millbrook school, took first and second places respectively in the speech making for which they had drawn their subjects only that morning.

The special prizes of $3 and $2 offered for the pupils making the best speech on "Farm Fire Prevention", were won by I. Vernon McInnis, No. 8; and Ray Kennedy, No. 13. The first and second prize winners in each class follow.

SINGING BOYS DO HOUSEWORK

Canadian Girl From South Africa Tells of Happy Life There.

SHE PREFERS IT.

REGINA, Sask., Sept. 26 (C.P.).—A Saskatchewan girl who has lived for the past four years in Rhodesia, South Africa, Mrs. W. J. Mackenzie, formerly Miss Marie Sinclair of Weyburn, told an interviewer she preferred life there to Western Canada, though visits home are delightful.

"I've never seen an elephant, a snake, lion, or cannibal since I went there, except in a zoo," she said. "We travelled 2,000 miles from Cape Town to Luanshya, Rhodesia, where we have been living. The climate is wonderful. We have eight months of sunshine when the weather is never hotter than hot weather in Canada and in the winter-time we very seldom have frost. We are 5,000 feet above sea level and get about 50 inches of rain during the four months of winter.

"We play bridge, tennis and golf, but rarely go swimming for there are crocodiles in the rivers. Teas are held in the morning and we have the usual round of social activities you have here. There is very little hardship out there. Our settlement is equipped with electric lights, regulation plumbing and all modern conveniences. Even electric refrigerators and stoves are used there. Most green vegetables and fruit that grow in Canada grow there and all year round. In addition there are many other African varieties.

"Black boys do the housework and I assure you they aren't in the least ferocious. Laziness is their chief fault, so one must be emphatic about giving orders. The boys name themselves. Our cook boy calls himself Moses and the houseboy Table. The boy next door is Solomon. They are happy-go-lucky and carefree. Their ambition is to save enough money to buy a wife or bicycle. We encourage them to buy the bicycle in order to keep the backyard from being filled with pickaninnies."

"Did you ever play any of those southern folk songs or Negro spirituels to your black boys?" she was asked.

"They wouldn't recognize them as being negro songs. Their music consists of making up songs about everything they do in the day, and hymns. They sing most of the time and it is not unusual to see two of them coming up the road, probably a tenor and a base, singing 'Onward Christian Soldiers' or some other hymn at the top of their voices."

MARMORA

TEETHING FEVER
Relieved/

Mrs. Edward James' baby had two teeth when less than three months old. She writes: "He has 18 now and I can truthfully say that giving him Baby's Own Tablets while cutting his teeth kept him fit and well". Teething is a restless feverish time for babies but the little one can always be soothed and the fever reduced by giving sweet, safe Baby's Own Tablets. Very easy to take, no after effects. Price 25c everywhere.

RECIPE CONTRIBUTIONS WANTED

TO BE INCLUDED IN THE

EXAMINER'S FIRST ANNUAL EDITION OF COOKING RECIPES

It is our intention to publish in the very near future a neat comprehensive supplement of Favorite and Tested Recipes compiled from those sent in by interested women readers in Peterborough, Durham and Northumberland Counties — in fact, any woman reader of The Examiner.

So we would appreciate it if all readers would enter this wholeheartedly and sumbit their recipes which they have found successful and which you think would prove tasteful to others.

All those submitted will be published bearing the name or initials of the sender, or will be gladly received should it be desired that no mention of the name be made, as you wish; but let us have as many as possible.

Please address your contributions accordingly:—

The funeral will be held in Calgary on Thursday, Sept. 27.

GREENHOUSE IS BEING ERECTED

Little Lake Cemetery Board Erecting Greenhouse at a Cost of $4,000.

96 FEET BY 28 FEET.

Construction of a large greenhouse replacing the main section of the former structure after 30 years of service, is being hurried to completion at Little Lake Cemetery. With the expense of additional heating equipment, the total cost will be in the region of $4,000.

The new section will measure 96 feet in length by 28 in width. A smaller greenhouse constructed 12 years ago will be allowed to remain adjoining the new building. On a concrete foundation, the frame of the glass-enclosed building is of steel fabrication.

The expansion will serve to relieve a considerable burden which has taxed to capacity the facilities of the plant during the past few years. Supplying the horticultural needs of the cemetery, the necessity of greater growing space has long been apparent. Approximately 1500 square feet additional space will be available.

The Lord and Burnham Company of Toronto, specialists in greenhouse construction, is doing the work. Eight to ten men have been on the job since the middle of August and expect to finish within the next three weeks. The expansion of the present hot water boiler and the installation of piping is the principal task which remains.

William James, cemetery superintendent, is overseeing the work.

MONTREAL STAR IS ELIMINATED

Defeat of Mrs. J. Dagena is the Biggest Upset of Golf Championship.

ONE WESTERNER LEFT.

SCARBORO GOLF CLUB, Toronto, Sept. 26.—(CP)—Making her first appearance in major tournament play, Miss Dorothy Harris, of the Ottawa Hunt Club, registered the biggest upset of the Canadian ladies' close golf championship here today, by eliminating the Montreal star, Mrs. J. Dagenais in the second round of the event, 3 and 1.

The defeat of the province of Quebec champion was the second blow to the Montreal contingent as earlier in the day the default of Mrs. A. B. Darling, due to an injury to her ankle in yesterday's play, was posted.

The route of the Montreal representatives continued as Miss Margery Kirkham, encountered Toronto's Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen in brilliant form and dropped a close decision 2 and 1.

The final bid of the Montreal hopefuls ended abruptly as Mrs. H. W. Soper, bowed herself out of the chase before the steady play of Mrs. E. W. Whittington, Toronto, 4 and 3. It was a case of lost opportunities for the Montreal player, whose ambitions were crushed under Scarboro's treacherous hazards.

Mrs. T. J. Agar boosted Toronto's chances to five for the quarter finals by defeating Mrs. W. Silcock, Vancouver, on the 18th green. The setback left only one westerner, Mrs. Ford to carry on the battle.

ARMISTICE DAY PLANS ARE LAID

Archbishop of Canterbury Requests Special References to Memories, Hopes, Resolves.

FALLS ON SUNDAY.

Thos. T. Champion
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

LONDON, Sept. 26 (C.P.). — In view of the fact that Armistice Day (November 11) falls this year on a Sunday, the Archbishop of Canterbury has addressed a letter to all the diocesan bishops in England. His Grace says he has been in communication with the Government as to the arrangements proposed by them in accordance with the wishes of His Majesty the King for the due observance of the day.

"It is hoped that everywhere in the religious services on Sunday, November 11, there will be special references to the memories, hopes and resolves which surround Armistice Day," continued the Archbishop, "and particularly that after due notice the hours and conduct of the services may be so arranged that the two minutes of silence during which the whole nation will be at one in thought and prayer, shall be observed within our churches at exactly 11 o'clock.

"I write this letter with the concurrence of the Archbishop of York, who associates himself with me in this request to our dioceses. I am in communication with the authorities of other religious communions."

BENNETT OFF TO VISIT PARIS

Hopes to Straighten Out Franco-Canadian Trade Pact Questions.

PHILIPPE ROY'S GUEST.

GENEVA, Sept. 26 (C.P. Cable).—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett left for Paris to-day for a few days' stay before proceeding to England. He is expected to return to Canada about the end of next week.

During his few days' stay in Paris the Canadian Prime Minister will continue negotiations for an agreement supplemental to the Franco-Canadian trade treaty, which he initiated while en route to Geneva last month.

While the trade treaty itself was concluded numerous questions, interpretative and otherwise, have arisen and it is these which are under discussion. They do not involve a new treaty but it is understood may call for reciprocal favorable treatment for Canadian wheat and French wines.

Mr. Bennett will be a dinner guest of Hon. Philippe Roy, Canadian Minister to Paris, on Thursday, and the guest of honor at a luncheon to be tendered on Friday by President Le Brun of France, at which Premier Bennett will meet the members of the French Government.

CHILD HIT BY CAR

Francis McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Clare McDonald of 266 Dalhousie street escaped with bruises and scratches to forehead and knees when struck by an automobile on Sherbrooke street last evening.

The child was being chased across Sherbrooke street, apparently by some playmates, it is learned, when he was struck by a car being driven west on Sherbrooke street just east of Aylmer street, by Walter Villneff of Tweed.

SIX WEEKS IN SCOTLAND

Early Sunday morning last John Anderson of this city disembarked at Montreal from the S.S. Antonia.

Today he is back at his linotype machine readjusting himself after a memorable six-weeks spent with his mother and sisters at Greenock, Scotland.

Apart from the great flood of activity on the Clyde created by the construction of the new Cunard - White Star Liner "Queen Mary" No. "534" which Mr. Anderson saw on the stocks, and which was launched by Her Majesty the Queen, today, he believed conditions in general were steadily improving in the manufacturing districts of Scotland. He learned that Clyde shipbuilders appeared to be well pleased with the number of shipbuilding orders they have in hand.

AN EASY MARK

One of the first partridges of the season was tame enough to enter a King street garden this morning and pick at a raspberry.

"It would have made an easy shot", remarked the lady who reported it.

SIX-LEAF CLOVER

The Peterborough Lawn Bowling greens turned up a "bit of luck" this morning in the form of a six leaf clover for Jim Cullen, 445 Park street, greenskeeper. It was picked by Mr. Cullen during some of the waning season's grounds care.

Weddings

ROWE—SEAWARD.

The wedding was solemnized last evening by the Rev. W. McDonald, of Knox United Church, of Kathleen Mabel ('Kitty') Seaward, of 256 Lake street, and Mr. Bertram John Rowe of 208 Rink street.

Mr. and Mrs. Rowe will reside near Indian River.

GARDNER—BARTON.

A very pretty autumn wedding was solemnized at one o'clock on Tuesday, September the twenty-fifth, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Barton, Waverly Road, Bowmanville, when their daughter, Dorothy Helen, became the bride of Mr. Russel H. Gardner, Phm.B., of Norwood, son of Mrs. M. E. Gardner, and the late Mr. Robert W. Gardner of Maitland avenue, Peterborough.

The bride, lovely in a dress of ivory satin and matching turban, ivory satin shoes with silver trimming and rhinestone buckles, and carrying a bouquet of Ophelia roses and fern, entered the room on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Miss Olive Barton, her sister, and took her place beneath an arch of evergreen and autumn flowers. Her only ornament was a diamond pendant.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. S. Kerr of St. Paul's United church, Bowmanville. Little Lorne Sexsmith, of Trenton, cousin of the bridegroom, acted as ring bearer. During the signing of the register, "Love Dreams" was played by Miss Olive Barton.

After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served to the immediate relatives of the bridal party, the rooms being tastefully decorated in pink and white, and a profusion of autumn flowers.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a silver tea service, to the pianist a compact, to the ring bearer a signet ring.

The young people were recipients of many beautiful gifts, including a Chesterfield suite from the bride's parents.

Previous to her marriage the bride was presented with sherbet glasses and plates by the Bowmanville Public school teaching staff, of which she was a member, also with a serving tray by the Young People's Guild of St. Paul's United church, of which she was vice-president.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardner left for a motor trip to Montreal and Eastern Canada, the bride travelling in a navy blue swagger suit with black accessories. On their return they will reside in Norwood.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

The Weather

TORONTO, Sept. 26 (C.P.). — Synopsis: Pressure is high on the Atlantic coast states, also over Hudson Straits and the north-west states, while a disturbance of increasing intensity covers the upper lake region with a trough extending south-westward to Texas, and a moderate depression is centred over the Mackenzie River Valley. Showers and thunderstorms have occurred over north-western Ontario and rain and snow in Southern Manitoba, while in nearly all other parts of the Dominion the weather has been fair. It continues warm from the lower lake region eastward and cold in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, but temperatures are slightly higher this morning in Alberta.

Georgian Bay—Fair and moderately warm to-day, followed by some showers or thunderstorms to-night and Thursday; somewhat cooler Thursday night.

Northern Ontario—Unsettled with showers to-night and Thursday; somewhat cooler Thursday night.

Ottawa and Upper and Lower St. Lawrence Valleys—Light to moderate south-west winds; fair and warm. Thursday — Moderate to fresh south-west winds; partly cloudy and moderately warm with some showers.

Large Cavalier Hats Stylish

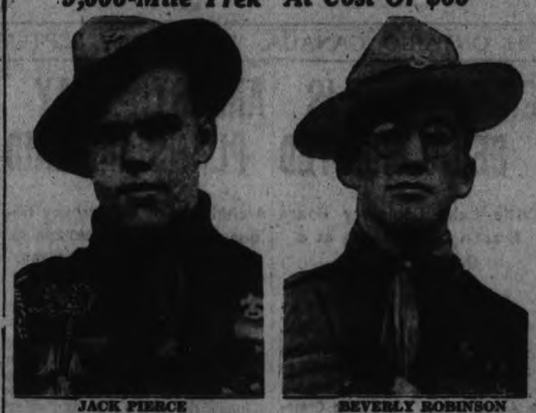
For several season's milliners have been trying to "sell" the American woman the large, feather trimmed hat. And at last they have succeeded. The "picture hat", with its dashing ostrich trimming, is very fashionable for formal wear this season. It should accompany a formal street dress, of course, and be worn with luxurious furs and jewels.

Photographs center is a big black felt cavalier hat, with curled ostrich feather which swoops around the crown and droops off the brim. It is from Mainbocher, and is the 1934 version of the huge chapeaux worn by so many of the beauties which were painted by Gainsborough.

Berets have staged a terrific comeback, but how they have changed! Mostly they are of felt, sometimes of velvet, and they always mold the head on top. Pictured at top left and inset is Suzy's gray beret, pleated across the crown, tilted up at back and dropped at the sides like a spaniel's ears. It is worn comparatively straight up on the head.

Below at right is Agnes' brown felt beret with two tiny mercury wings trimming it.

9,000-Mile Trek At Cost Of $60



JACK PIERCE — BEVERLY ROBINSON

These two Toronto boy scouts have returned from a 9,000 mile trek through United States at a total expenditure of $60. Since July 10 when they started a search for adventure and thrills they have been arrested twice, robbed, broiled under hottest sun American deserts have experienced for half a century and chilled in the fog of California mountain nights. They said they averaged 300 miles a day in their hitch-hiking endeavours and think a trans-Canada hike would be fun in the near future.

Arline Judge, screen star in her own right and wife of Wesley Ruggles is shown with her sturdy son, Wesley, Jr., when they attended a kiddie party given for children of the movie world in Los Angeles.

Two Die As Miners Stage March

Two men were killed and several wounded when a column of more than 2,000 U.S. miners marched into the Porer coal mining camp situated in northwest Jefferson county, Alabama, and were fired upon by state deputies. This shows part of the long procession of union miners a few hours before the slaying occurred.

Dr. Elliott Speer, pastor-principal of Mount Herman University preparatory school, Northfield, Mass., who was shot down as he sat in the study of his home, paid a visit to Canada during the past summer when he spent a vacation at his summer home in Temigami, Ont. United States police investigating the killing believe it was the act of a religious fanatic. Dr. Speer's home is shown above and lower a state detective interviews Jack Benet, Northfield, who claimed to know the slayer's identity.

Furs Play Important Parts

Left, June Knight; right, Lois January

By LISBETH

Don't throw away any good pieces of fur, even if they are small. They may be just the things to trim up your new dress or made-over old one.

For fur is important this season, even more so than in previous ones. And it is used in striking and original ways.

A green broadcloth coat worn by Lois January, right above, uses mink in typical 1934 fashion. The tight sleeve has a capelet from shoulder to elbow, which is split to the shoulder line and edged with mink. The collar ends in ties, forms a smart bow when tied, hugging the neck closely and warmly. They may hang loose when the wearer is warm.

With it Lois wears a brown felt hat trimmed with self band in a knot and ends.

A new leopard and nutria coat is shown left, worn by June Knight, another young picture player. The wide cape collar and puffed sleeves are two of the season's newest touches for furs.

Bluenose Would Oppose Crack Yachts

Skipper Angus Walters, shown above, master of the Bluenose, champion of north Atlantic fishing fleets, would not be adverse to pitting his sturdy craft against either of the America Cup contenders, Endeavour and Rainbow, and thinks that in an Atlantic "snorter" he would show them some tricks. Captain Walters, who spent the last winter tied up to a Toronto dock, thinks that city used him "shabbily" in not giving him financial assistance or making his craft an attraction at the 1934 C.N.E. City authorities deny the charge.

"He Was Tricked"

JOHN F. "JAFSIE" CONDON

The man who paid over $50,000 in an effort to secure release of little Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., when the baby was kidnapped from its Hopewell, N.J., home in March, 1922. Condon contacted a mysterious person supposed to be a representative of the kidnappers and tossed the huge sum over a wall according to instructions. Weeks later the baby's body was found. Condon was called to identify Bruno Hauptmann now under arrest in connection with the case.

Solution?

BRUNO HAUPTMANN

A close-up of Bernard or Bruno Richard Hauptmann of the Bronx, New York, arrested in connection with kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby as he appeared under questioning by U.S. federal police who declare he is the man who received $50,000 paid in an unsuccessful attempt to secure release of the child. Police recovered nearly $14,000 of the ransom money from Hauptmann.

Holding Up Big Power Company

MRS. ELSIE BARNABIE

Ready to "sit" indefinitely, Mrs. Barnabie has been worrying the Camden, N.J., electric light company by taking up quarters over a hole dug by its linemen for a pole to be erected in front of her home. Mrs. Barnabie insists that the company must pay because, when her little girl was ill, she says, she begged the company not to turn off her lights and they told her she had to pay.

If you have a large button to sew on heavy material, use a smaller button for the under side to keep the material from teasing out around the button.

Binnie Barnes, British star of the screen now in America, chooses this handsome kolinsky coat for evening, allowing it to supplant the more expensive sable.

Binnie says while furs are cheaper in Europe, they cannot touch the American goods for style. This garment has a wide, full collar and sleeves that are full at the cuff, fitting closely at the wrist.

ALBERT PEGRAN

With a warrant out for his arrest in connection with the kidnapping of John S. Labatt, London, Ont., brewer, Pegran has been reported seen in Ontario or hiding in the northern Ontario woods. Following the surrender of David Meisner in Detroit, wanted in the same case, it is believed possible that Pegran will also surrender and attempt to establish an alibi.

Canada's Latest Gold Rush

A new Canadian gold rush with prospectors and trappers converging on Lake Athabaska, Alberta, by horsepack, canoe and plane is stirring the north country, after a lone hunter discovered new rich ore beds. Here are pictured, top, prospectors taking a canoe against the current in the race to the treasure fields; below, seaplanes stationed at Fort McMurray ready to fly prospectors 160 miles to the nearest accessible landing area to the ore beds.

Ray McLaren, aviation section of the Franklin Institute, demonstrates visible airflow, which is the effect of streamlining. He used a smoke screen forced at high pressure over a streamlined surface to explain that shape of an object determines its speed through the air and that increase in streamlining means smoother flow of air currents over it, hence increased speed.

The closing Field Day of the Ladies' section of the Kawartha Golf and Country Club will be an interesting event of tomorrow. The program commences at ten o'clock in the morning with a "Monkey" competition and at twelve-thirty luncheon will be served. In the afternoon, the golfing contests will include driving (aggregate three balls), from the first tee; approaching and putting (third and ninth greens), and putting on the practice green. Tea will be served at half past four o'clock, when the presentation of the season's trophies and prizes for the day will be made. An invitation is extended to the Social and Tennis members of the club to attend the luncheon and afternoon tea.

MAKE THIS SMART LOOKING "PLAY" OUTFIT

To be "a la mode," as the French say, which means "up to the minute," this smart "play" outfit carries the nautical influence, as you see.

Of course, daughter will want it for school activities, the moment she sees it.

The bloomers have ample fulness, so as to give the appearance of a skirt. The middy can be worn in neat "tuck-in" style or an over-blouse.

The original model, as sketched, was navy blue gabardine for the bloomers. The white cotton gabardine middy collar and cuffs trimmed with bias folds of the navy gabardine.

Navy blue woolen as jersey, twill or serge is also nice for the bloomers.

Style No. 3042 includes pattern for middy and bloomers in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1¾ yards of 39-inch material with 1¼ yards of 39-inch contrasting.

Dear Madam:

Can you help us with a good suggestion? We'll give you a pair of "Lucky Sevens" Silk Stockings if you will.

Many of our improvements have come about through statements made to us by friendly customers, and sometimes not so friendly critics.

Will you or your husband please tell us of anything we can do to improve our job of passing out to you Dry Goods at the right prices. Can you suggest a way to better our service—our merchandise—some particular department—our displays. A small error made often becomes a big handicap.

In connection with our "HARVEST SALE" we are willing to give one pair of "Lucky Sevens" Silk Stockings for each suggestion on which we can take action.

If more than one person sends the same suggestion the stockings will be sent to the writer of the first letter to reach us. If duplicates come in the same mail, we will give stockings to each writer.

We'll answer your letter in our advertisements, using your name, unless you prefer otherwise.

Your early reply will very much help.

Yours very truly,

Home and School Association News

PRINCE OF WALES SCHOOL

The first meeting of the autumn season of the Prince of Wales Home and School Association was held Monday evening in the Kindergarten Room. There was a large attendance, the occasion being the presentation of certificates to the successful Entrance candidates.

The roll call showed that Miss Hunter's class had won the banner for this month, having the largest number of parents present.

J. A. McKone very capably acted as chairman. Harold Wilson delighted the audience with several cornet solos accompanied by Thomas Allen. A reading by Barrie Jack was enjoyed. Valedictory addresses were given by Peggy Bassett and Frank Gishman, outstanding pupils of Mr. Frost's and Mr. Mattice's rooms.

E. F. Reid, chairman of the Board of Education, addressed the graduating class, giving suitable advice as they set out to choose their various occupations and studies for further advancement in life. A. Mowat, public school inspector, presented 39A certificates, congratulating the large class on the high percentage they had attained.

A pleasant feature of the evening was the presentation of a gift to Mr. Evans, who has been caretaker of the school for 14 years and is forced to retire due to ill health. Mrs. N. Todd spoke a few words of his splendid service and Mrs. A. Mason presented the gift. Mr. Evans suitably acknowledged the present.

Dainty refreshments were served to the graduating class and assisting artists by Mrs. Pearson and her committee.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Kitchen utensils, like carpenter's tools, must be kept in condition if they are to serve the homemaker well. It is amazing how dull knives are allowed to get, especially when the family consists entirely of women. These utensils cannot fulfill their object unless sharp. They leave ragged edges to bread when cut, they tear meat instead of cleaving it evenly and smoothly. They have to be pressed down to get through whatever substance is being cut instead of being drawn back and forth with slight pressure, just enough to position the blade deeper. With all the many devices available for sharpening knives at home, such a state of affairs is unnecessary. Moreover, the work of the homemaker is made much harder in the preparation of dishes. Carving knives are more likely to be kept sharp than vegetable knives, bread knives, etc. Some devices for kitchen sharpening of knives cost but a little.

* * * * * *

CAN OPENERS

Can openers are not so easy to keep sharp as knives. But anyone who has tried to open a can with a dull tool, knows the difficulties. If you have one of the handy cheap openers which are worked up and down around a can as the opener is gradually pushed forward, will find it almost if not quite as cheap to buy a new one when the first gets dull. It may be sharpened sometimes on a home sharpening tool, but the metal in the cheap openers is not of high quality and does not respond well to sharpening.

* * * * * *

CORERS AND PEELERS

This same thing holds true of apple corers. Since the ordinary ones cost but 10 cents, there is no saving in trying to sharpen them or in having them sharpened, which is well night impossible. Nevertheless keep a good sharp corer and peeler, they come in one, and save you annoyance and dissatisfaction.

* * * * * *

KITCHEN FORKS

Kitchen forks there should be, both with two as well as three or four times. The two and the four tined ones serve different purposes. Testing vegetables to see if cooked should be done with the two-tined fork. Pricking potatoes before baking is best done with the four-tined fork. When you want to lift hot rolls from a pan when warming them over and they would burn the fingers, use the two-tined fork. When you want to test peas the four-tined fork is needed. There are homemakers who omit to have the two-tined fork except of the carving sets.

* * * * * *

OTHER KITCHEN CUTLERY

Among kitchen tools there should be pincers, corkscrews small and large, bottle openers, screw driver, tack lifter, hammer, screws, tacks and nails and such other tools as a homemaker finds meet her needs. There should be a box or drawer in which to keep them.

WOMAN CLIMBS TO LOUIS PEAK

Adds Feat to Her List of Other Successful Ascents.

EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 26. — (C.P.).—Miss Wilma Watson, well-known Edmonton mountaineer and secretary of the Alpine Club, Edmonton section, won new laurels when she made the ascent of Mount Louis, near Banff. Miss Watson already has an imposing list of successful ascents to her credit this summer, and she regards her last climb as the climax of a very active season of mountaineering.

Mount Louis, which is a peak of the Sawback range about eight miles from Banff, has long been classed as one of the most difficult rock climbs in the Canadian Rockies. It was first climbed by Capt. A. H. MacCarthy, and the Swiss guide, Conrad Kain, in 1916.

WORKERS' UNITY LEAGUE TO BE RECOGNIZED LEGAL

TORONTO, Sept. 26 (C.P.).—The Workers' Unity League will have to be recognized by the Ontario Department of Labor in the administration of the new Industrial Codes L. w, James F. Marsh, Ontario Deputy Minister of Labor, said last night while addressing the Local Council of Women.

Questioned by a member of the audience whether the Government intended to deal with international unions, represented by the American Federation of Labor, or national unions, Mr. Marsh replied that although he himself was a member of the international unions, nevertheless as far as the Government was concerned the national unions were labor unions and would be recognized as such.

Battling Cards Reduce Giants' Lead to 1 Game

DEAN HURLS CARDS TO VICTORY WHILE PHILLIES SHUTOUT GIANTS

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

WITH THE completion of today's card at Woodbine it just leaves seventeen days more of racing in Canada this season. Three more days at Woodbine followed by seven days at Long Branch and the grand finale which will last seven days at the half mile oval called Dufferin Park. During these seventeen days we should witness a lot of sleepers coming to life as all the owners will be anxious to collect all the purse money they possibly can in order to take care of the large feed bills and sundry other expenses during the long winter months.

Fall Apple, who originally belonged to the powerful Whitney Stable, broke down very badly during his race on opening day last Saturday. He will not be seen in action again this year and it is very doubtful if he will ever face the barrier again. We suppose you notice where our old friend Wooley West went over the other day at Lincoln Fields, Chicago and paid a wonderful price. This fellow was always a consistent performer over our tracks and the American climate does not seem to have lessened his winning ways to any great extent. Jim Badame expects to do business in a big way with Canuck Bred Aymond any day now.

OVER AT DETROIT

Whitey Abel gathered in a purse with his good plater Just Fun and as usual the price was in double figures. At the same track the good distance performer Winnifred Ann is all set for a winning effort, also one by the name of Huraway from the Halliwell barn. Nat Ray who has a great reputation for developing jockeys has taken out the contract on Jockey C. W. Smith and do not be surprised if you hear of this boy becoming a sensation during this coming winter. Jockey Johnny Westrope is performing in great style these days at Lincoln Fields kicking home two and three winners each afternoon with great regularity.

St. Louis Has Five Games to Play and New York Has But Three.

TENSE STRUGGLE.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., A.P Sports Writer.)

The margin of a single game—representing two victories by the Giants and two games which the Cardinals have not yet played—separated the National League pennant contenders to-day as they fought through the keenest home-stretch duel the senior major league has seen in a good many years.

The Cards split the difference rightdown the middle yesterday when they drove through to a 3-2 victory over Pittsburgh behind the eminent Jerome Herman "Dizzy" Dean while the Giants were suffering an unexpected 4-0 shutout from the Phillies, getting only four hits off young Curtis Davis.

The result put the Cards very much into the running again. Each has lost 57 games so far, with 93 victories for the Giants and 91 for the Cards. St. Louis has five games left to play against New York's three. If both should sweep their remaining contests it would be a tie and one defeat for either team before next Sunday may decide the struggle. In case of a deadlock the teams would have to play a special series, but the league board of directors, which would make the arrangements, hasn't considered the subject yet, hoping apparently that a number of knotty problems about time and place won't be brought up.

Freshman Stars.

David, one of the season's outstanding "freshman" flingers, gave a brilliant exhibition against the world's champions as he beat them for the fourth time this year and recorded his 19th victory. He let only one runner reach third in the whitewashing, while the Phils landed on Fred Fitzsimmons in the third and fourth innings for all their runs. They got the benefit of five hits, a walk, and a giant error in two good bunches.

The senior member of the Dean pitching firm limited the Pirates to six blows and it took a ninth-inning homer by Arky Vaughan to rob him of a shutout for his season's 28th victory. The Cards bunched three of their five blows off Lefty Larry French behind an error by Vaughan in the first inning to score their three counters.

Boston's Activities

While most of the other big league clubs devoted their late games to trying out next year's prospects, the Boston clubs took two important steps yesterday. The Red Sox clinched a berth in the first division for the first time since 1918 by beating the Senators twice. They won the opener, 1-0, on Wes Ferrell's five-hit pitching and two hits and an error from Bob Burke in the ninth, then slammed out a 9-3 decision. The Braves took a 1½ game lead over Pittsburgh in their fourth-place struggle when a ninth-inning rally netted three runs and a 9-6 victory over Brooklyn.

A home run by 19-year-old Phil Cavaretta off another player who was making his first big league start, Francis Wisert, gave the Cubs a 1-0 triumph over the Reds. The Yankees, with Lefty Vito Tamulis pitching a seven-hit shutout in his first major league appearance, blanked the Athletics, 5-0. The Browns, striking to recapture fifth place from the Athletics, used their regulars to defeat Cleveland, 3-0, behind the veteran Irvin "Bump" Hadley.

Pitching Deans in Playful Mood

Here are the dear, delightful Dizzy Deans, who are not quite so dizzy as might be supposed. Mrs. Jerome H. (Dizzy) Dean is asking Paul Dean, centre, to pick a card, while Jerome H. (Dizzy) himself looks on. Dizzy says he will try to duplicate Paul's recent feat of patching a no-hit game in Brooklyn. The brothers have made good their spring training camp boast that they would win between them 45 games for the St. Louis Cardinals this season.

Gets a "Birdie" But Loses Hole

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 26 (CP)—W. E. Moser, playing at the Pittsburgh Field Club's golf course, got a birdie on No. 15 and lost the hole.

His brassie shot, headed right for the green, caught a robin redbreast amidships and killed it instantly, just as the bird took off from the middle of the fairway. Moser's ball caromed into the adjacent woods and cost him another stroke.

JUVENILE GAME HERE TOMORROW

Herb Ralph's Terriers and Toronto Arlingtons Resume Series at Riverside.

STELLAR TEAMS.

The second game of the O.B.A. juvenile semi-final series will be played here to-morrow (Thursday) at 3.30 in Riverside Park between Toronto Arlingtons and Herb Ralph's Terriers. The local outfit nosed out a 12-10 nod in Toronto in the first game, and hopes to wind up the series here to-morrow and advance into the finals against Guelph. With both young squads being made up of star players who have been playing together several years—and both with championship aspirations—this fixture should be well worth seeing. Several of the Terriers will likely be trying out with the senior Petes next season, showing the class of ball they play now.

Manager Ralph expects to start Tip Anderson on the mound and feels his team can win in two straight. He admits Arlingtons have a mighty nifty outfit in all departments, there being a strong suspicion that this club is "loaded," that is packed with stars from various Toronto teams. However, Terriers should hold their own, as the local team is really smart. They are pointing toward a juvenile Ontario title, something Peterborough has never won. It requires money, so a big turnout is hoped for — and fans will get their money's worth.

GIANTS STRONGER IN OUTFIELD THAN EITHER TIGERS OR CARDS

Have Superior Power at Bat and Greater All-around Defensive Skill.

NOT SAME HARMONY.

By ALAN GOULD.
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(A.P.)—Getting down to cases on the current baseball whirligig, there's no question that the New York Giants are more strongly fortified on the outfield ramparts than either the St. Louis Cardinals, who are pursuing them this week, or the Detroit Tigers, with whom they hope to fight it out for the World Series spoils next week.

For long or short hauls, no thoroughly unbiased baseball man would hesitate to take the combination of Mel Ott, Joe Moore and either George Watkins or Hank Leiber, in preference to the Cardinal outfield of Joe Medwick, Ernie Orsatti and Jack Rothrock; the fly-chasing trio of Tigers— Leon (Goose) Goslin, Ervin (Pete) Fox and Joyner (Jo-Jo) White.

The Giant trio is not so fast as the Tiger patrol and perhaps it doesn't harmonize so well under the showers as the Cardinal song-birds, but it has what happens to be most important on the ball field—superior power at bat and greater all-around defensive skill.

Batting Average .320.

Combined, the New York outfield trio has an unofficial batting mark of about .320 for the season, exclusive of such heavy-hitting reserves as Frank "Lefty" O'Doul, pinch-batsman extraordinary, and Phil Weintraub. The margin over the Cardinal regulars is about 25 points, but the edge over the Tiger patrol is nearer 50 points in the aggregate.

A few weeks ago, Terry thought Leiber, the big kid from Arizona, was the answer to his prayer for a centerfielder who could combine ground-covering ability with a sturdy wallop at the plate. But the Giant pilot has weakened on Leiber the last few days and indications now are that if the Giants land in the world series Watkins will do most of the heavy duty between Moore and Ott. The little difference in Watkins' and Leiber's hitting. Latest averages show Watkins at .346 and Leiber at .338 but either would be flanked by a pair of .340 batsmen in Moore and Ott.

Moore's Power

Moore, the celebrated first-ball hitter, is the leadoff man for the Giants and the kind of a fellow who likes to start trouble. Ott is in the cleanup role. "Mighty Mel" struck a number of telling blows against the Senators in the last world series and he has led the National League in runs batted-in this year by a wide margin, his current total being 136. Both are great fly-catchers and equipped with two of the finest arms in the game.

The only real slugger in the current Tiger outfield is Goslin. The Goose was a star with the champion Washington Senators ten years ago but he justified Mickey Cochrane's confidence in him by staging a come-back and helping to drive Detroit into the lead. Lately, however, Goslin's batting mark has dropped from around .360 to less than .300, and the Goose hardly rates the all-around class of either Moore or Medwick, his left-field rivals.

Goslin's Coaching

White's development as a .300 sticker is reputed to be due largely to Goslin's coaching. The Tiger leadoff man is a fine ball-hawk and has an all-around edge on the basis of current figures, over his prospective rivals, Orsatti of the Cards or Watkins or Leiber of the Giants in centerfield.

Fox, a .280 batsman, is a steady workman in right field but neither he nor Rothrock, the big Cardinal slugger, ranks with Ott in hitting or defensive skill.

MISS MACKENZIE IS GOING STRONG IN CLOSE PLAY

Has Installed Herself as One to Beat by Brilliant Early Rounds.

SOME UPSETS.

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

SCARBORO GOLF CLUB, Toronto, Sept. 26. (CP).—Dominated by the ambition of falling heir to the mantle now worn by Miss Ada Mackenzie of Toronto, as Canadian ladies' close golf champion, 15 determined, hopeful contenders embarked with her on the second round of the event this morning. Those who succeeded in this weeding out process will continue the advance over another 18-hole route in the afternoon which will produce the semi-finalists.

Out of the field of first round survivors nine are from Ontario, four from Montreal, two Vancouverites and one from Victoria.

Since the open event last week, in which she won the medal and was only dethroned after an extra-hole play, Miss Mackenzie has installed herself as the one to beat. She groped through a dense fog over Scarboro's long layout Monday to win her second qualifying medal and hurdled her first test yesterday with a convincing 5 and 4 victory over Miss K. Farrell of Vancouver.

Even Experiments

The champion even exposed herself to danger by experimenting with the larger American ball to serve as a tune-up for her crack at the United States open title next week. She found the bigger sphere quite troublesome, but was able to guide it along a true line when put to the test.

There was some doubt if Mrs. Darling of Montreal would be in condition to continue in the title chase. She twisted her ankle so badly in descending from the 17th tee yesterday that only sheer pluck carried her through to a finish in her match against Mrs. G. Stanley, Toronto.

The Montreal star, who had offered to concede the match to her opponent after the injury, was persuaded to accept a default herself, but gamely carried on and won out with a one up margin on the 18th green.

Two extra-hole contests were required to reach decisions with Mrs. W. Silcock of Vancouver, uncorking a birdie three on the 20th hole to set back a gallant rival, Miss Hazel Hudson, Toronto.

The other overtime match gave Mrs. H. Sedgwick, also of Toronto the verdict over Mrs. R. K. Beairsto of Winnipeg on the 19th hole. The only other Winnipeg contender, Mrs. B. P. Pellenz also went out in a first round duel, losing to Margery Kirkham of Montreal, 5 and 4.

Worried Over Wife's Divorce Threat, Levinsky Says His In-Laws Are to Blame

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 26 (AP) King Levinsky, the one-time fish merchant of Chicago's Maxwell street, is training for a bout here Friday, but he is worrying more about his marital troubles than about Salvatore Ruggerillo, his Italian foe.

"Just Monday, I gave her $50 for while I'm away, and she runs to a mouthpiece to get a divorce. She says I beat her. She can't prove nothing.

"I tell you, I luff her. And I ask you can she get alimony if I want to live with her and not get a divorce?

"I met her at the World's Fair," continued the Kingfish. "She was just a $40 a week fan dancer eating hamburger when the King took pity on her and married her. Now she's eating steak wid mushrooms."

Still troubled for a way "to keep the in-laws out of my married life," the Kingfish was told to get a peace bond.

"Oi, I'll do it," the Kingfish announced sharply. "Then if they cause any trouble, they'll be in the jug and I'll be the King.

"I want they all should know on Maxwell Street that the King is still the King."

BARRIE VICTORY RUBS OUT TWEED

Smart Hurling and Timely Hitting Are Features of Softball Semi-final.

SCORE 11 TO 3.

Tweed Selberlings were eliminated here yesterday in the third game of their O.A.S.A. intermediate "B" semi-final series by Roxy Aces of Barrie, 11 to 3, before about three hundred fans in Riverside Park. It was a lively number with the victors getting four runs in the first frame and adding to it in the late stages. Smart hurling by Ken Guilfoyle with timely hitting and neat fielding by his teammates shoved Tweed out of the picture. Guilfoyle allowed but eight hits while fanning two.

The losing hurlers, Stan Luffman and Red Baker, were nicked for a total of fifteen safe hits, including two triples and two doubles. Their support for the most part was good. Only in the seventh, when they scored two, did Tweed really threaten, whereas Barrie was dangerous nearly every inning and got four in the first and three each in the seventh and ninth. A. Marshall and Hines were the big hitters for Barrie, with Simpson and Quinn best for Tweed. Some smart fielding was shown by the victors' infield and Stransman in centre; and for Tweed, Meraw, Rollings and Orr, the latter's throwing cutting off several runs.

OFFICIALS HERE APPROVE PLAN OF COMPETITION

Quinte League Suggests the Playing of Series With Champions of Local Association.

NEW RULE MADE.

A championship series for Eastern Ontario soccer honors will probably be arranged between the Bay of Quinte League and the Peterborough and District Soccer Association.

With this in view, a communication was read last night at an enthusiastic meeting of the local Soccer Association, in which such a championship series between the two leagues was urged by the eastern league. The secretary was instructed to reply to the Bay of Quinte League, stating that such a series had the approval of officials here.

It is probable that medals will be given to the winners of the series. No definite date can be selected until the league games have been completed.

All Cup-Ties Be Finished.

It was unanimously agreed at the meeting that, in future, all Cup-ties will be played to a finish. The Peck Cup final on Saturday between the Canadian General and the Packers will be finished if there is a draw at the end of the ninety minutes. W. Harrington has been selected as referee. Linesmen: D. McGregor and J. Isle.

On Saturday, Oct. 6—Caledonians vs. C.G.E. W. Harrington, referee. Lindsay vs. Packers. P. Dyer, referee.

On Monday, Oct. 8—C.G.E. vs. Packers. J. Morgan, referee.

Scots Re-organize.

A special meeting of the Caledonians was held last night, when W. Rankin was appointed president, T. Craig treasurer, J. Isle secretary; manager and representative, D. Anderson. They decided to hold a dance at an early date so as to get funds.

The Caledonians received definite notice this afternoon that Clark United from Orono will be here on Thanksgiving Day. The local boys defeated them 1-0 in previous engagement but the visitors have been greatly strengthened.

Action Over the Hurdles

This excellent action picture shows the entry of R. S. McLaughlin, well-known sportsman, head of General Motors, Oshawa, Ont., clearing the hurdles in the pair jumping events at the Seignory Club Horse show in Quebec. The pair are taking the jump in perfect unison.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Keene and Westclox are slated to tangle again this eve at 4.45 in the Ashburn Bowl. It's their third game of the five-game titular series, each team having copped a number. They pretty nearly played a game here a few nights back but some mistaken strategy and more clowning than you see at a circus by both squads forced the umps to call it "no contest." This tussle to-night is really a replay of the burlesque, and let's hope it isn't the frost the other one turned out to be. It's still just a toss-up which team will cop the Bond Trophy.

• • • • • •

There were more rooters all the way from Tweed and Barrie in Riverside Park than local softball fans last p.m. to see the third game of the intermediate "B" semi-finals. It wasn't a bad contest but Barrie clearly earned the 11-3 margin, with better pitching and hitting. The teams dished up pretty smart softball as a whole and maybe their followers didn't make a racket during the game! Johnny Marchen, formerly from here, proved a good umpire on balls and strikes, both sides being satisfied. When you can please two small towns in a crucial game, you must be good.

• • • • • •

The juvenile O.B.A.A. semi-final game at 3.30 in Riverside tomorrow between Toronto Arlingtons and the local Terriers shapes up as a natural. We certainly advise ball fans to see these two smart squads in action. They play swell baseball and are very evenly matched. Terriers copped the first fixture by two markers and hope to win the series Thursday here. Another reason why a good crowd is hoped for is the financial angle—Herb Ralph needing the dough to send these boys into the finals against Guelph, which is a long way from here. Come out and root the local eighteen-year-olds into the Ontario finals.

• • • • • •

Our senior baseballers are in Toronto to-day, playing the G. & W. Grads in Ulster Stadium. This is the first game of the O.B.A.A. senior semi-finals, second one being in Riverside Park this Saturday at three. The winner meets the winner of Western Ontario — not settled yet—in the provincial finals, and this may be the Petes year to cop it. While no word of word of congratulation or encouragement has come the Petes' way from Kingston, nor was any expected, we're surprised the Limestone scribe did not even mention to his readers who won the title. Such service!

• • • • • •

The Belleville team and their sportswriter wished the Petes all kinds of luck, while the Oshawa scrivener says: "Chief Williams failed in his gigantic task of winning three play-off games in a row. This brings to a close a hectic C.O.B.I. campaign which has created plenty of interest and produced some nice baseball. It's nice to see the honors passed around and C.O.B.I. fans will watch with interest Peterborough's success in their series with Riverdale Grads. Don't be surprised if the Petes win the round, despite the way the Ulster Stadium teams used to wallop the Dukes around. That was in the early season and we think the Petes are just as good, and perhaps have an edge. Congrats are in order for the 'cousin'." Thanks, pal—we'll let that "cousin" crack pass.

• • • • • •

Looking over the C.O.B.I. season's averages, we see where the Petes, as a team, led the loop in hitting, having a shade on Oshawa. The locals hit .267 while the Dukes walloped the ball for a .266 mark. The Nats hit .254 and Kingston .234. We were low in fielding with .962 while Oshawa was a trifle ahead with .963, Kingston got .956 and Belleville led with .966—but all were pretty well bunched. Our pitching was best, with the Nats second and little or no difference noted in the hurling of the Dukes and Ponies.

• • • • • •

The local outfield was better defensively than any of them, but not so hot in hitting, while our infield as a whole proved the best in both departments. It's true that, man for man, we may not cop all positions on a mythical all-star infield, but we're around the top at that in each position. Ash, for instance, is topped only by Wallace both hitting and fielding—and Wallace didn't play as many games for Oshawa. Murray ranks next to Sonny Green of Belleville, right on his heels. None of the regular shortstops rate as high as Konopka, Stone of Kingston and Ford of Belleville falling below him, while Oshawa used several players at that spot during the summer. Batten is right next to Smith of Kingston at the hot corner. Yeah, all around, the Petes looked good this year in winning the C.O.B.I. championship.

Regarding rugby here this—gee, we're sorry, folks, but we must sign off immediately to catch that car for the big game to-day in Toronto.

BALMY BEACHES' BACKFIELD TRIO TORN TO SHREDS

Smartest All-round Half-line Combinations Spoiled by Murchie's Injury.

CHANCES ARE GONE.

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Sept. 26.—(CP)—One of the few Canadian-coached, all-Candian football teams left in this section of the country, Balmy Beach of the Ontario Rugby Football Union presents an unusual picture this year in that only one graduate of junior ranks holds down a regular berth in the line-up.

In other years it was quite in order for Beaches to introduce half-dozen or more promising juniors into senior ranks only to have them leave for greener fields of the Interprovincial Union as they verged on stardom.

This season Beaches have all but three of last year's players. Of the trio Ike Commins, snapback and member of the original team that won two Dominion titles, has made good his oft-repeated threat to retire, taking "Fat" Hendry, dependable lineman, along with him.

Box to Western

The third to go was Charlie Box, brother of Argos' brilliant booter. Box, one of the most promising ends in the country, left in quest of higher education and is registered at the University of Western Ontario.

One of the youngest and smartest all-round backfield combinations in the country was broken up before the season got properly under way when Jimmy Murchie, 22, partner of Bobby Porter, also 22, suffered a broken jaw in last Saturday's city championship series game with Argos. The loss of Murchie just about voided any aspirations Beaches had of gaining a championship.

Loss Is Tremendous

"His loss means as much to us as the loss of either Ab Box or Tommy Burns would mean to Argos," declared Coach Alex Ponton. Ponton said the 19-year-old "Red" Brant, making his debut in senior ranks, would be shifted from the secondary defense to fill Murchie's boots.

To aid the left-footer Porter with the kicking, Ponton has lanky Ross Lipsett who starred in the game with Montreal Football club two weeks ago. Two intermediates of last year, Ted Jarvis of Westsides and Bob Lougheed of Varsity are other backfielders with the squad.

Art Snyder, a little older than when he starred with the Varsity Orphans of 1926, but just as aggressive is the regular flying wing. He will be relieved by Archie Meikle.

Lone Quarterback

A 60-minute man, Carl Britnel is the lone quarterback on the team. Just 25 years of age Britnell is one of the oldsters on the outfit.

Contrary to the usual custom Balmy signed a couple of ready-made footballers to aid them this year. Tom Bell comes from Varsity to takeover the duties of snap while Jack Taylor who understudied to Joe Wright, Argo centre of 1933, will fill a middlewing berth.

The real veterans of the team are Bill Iswin and Bob Reid at inside. Reid is the "daddy" of the squad at the age of 27. Two juniors, Dave Cohen and Tommy Eisenhart, Charlie Greenwood, one of last year's men and Ab O'Brien, are being groomed to relieve the veterans. O'Brien draws down heavyweight honors with a poundage of 215.

The other regular middle is Ab Pople. Relief work at this position is taking care of by Phil Powell, Andy Anderson who was with the team in 1927 and Bill Cohen, brother of Dave. The Beach team has Jack Bennett, Cliff and Syd Reynolds and Ernie Keefe back again this year to look after the ankle-clutching end of the game.

DETROIT HONORS LEAGUE CHAMPS

Plan Huge Testimonial Banquet and a Deluge of Gifts for Players.

SPECIAL ROOM NEEDED.

DETROIT, Sept. 26 (A.P.).—Elated by its first pennant in 25 years, this city last night paid formal and official homage to Detroit Tigers, newly-crowned champions of the American League.

The city, through a resolution passed by the city council, tendered its congratulations to Frank J. Navin, president of the club, and Mickey Cochrane, who in his first year as a manager brought Detroit a pennant winner.

Plans were being completed for a huge testimonial banquet Saturday night at which 1,000 fans will shower gifts on each member of the squad ranging from a diamond "Tiger" ring to a tailored suit of clothes.

The number of gifts has increased so fast that special rooms in a hotel have been set aside to store the wrist watches, sports clothng, toilet articles and flowers to be presented to the team.

The Tigers yesterday were in Lansing for an exhibition game, and the state's capital declared a public holiday to welcome the champions.

Manager Cochrane, deluged by congratulatory messages, reiterated his opinion that the Tigers won the flag because "we stuck to our system of playing for a big opening in one inning and cleaning up."

MILLBROOK TIES LACROSSE PLAY

Defeat Dinty's Inn 10-9 to Even Up Hard-fought Series.

NEAR RIOT RESULTS.

Staging a great scoring rally in the final minutes of the game, Millbrook last evening defeated Dinty's Inn 10-9 to tie up the cup series. The third game will be played at Millbrook on Thursday evening.

The game was featured by brilliant combination efforts by both teams and play was a mile-in-minute pace throughout. The checking was rugged throughout and the fans were in a frenzy of excitement as play swept back and forth, both teams battling every inch of the way.

The battling reached its highest point in the third period, when a couple of players during the heat of the struggle exchanged fisticuffs and the spectators surged out upon the field. However, peace was restored and the contest continued unabated.

The teams:

LOCAL GRIDDERS ARE IMPROVING

Intermediate Squad is Fast Rounding Into Shape After Heavy Practices.

MUCH MATERIAL.

With the benefit of ten days of conditioning exercises and scrimmage practices, the Peterborough intermediate rugby squad is beginning to take the shape of a team. Former P.C.I. stars are taking the spotlight and look like likely contenders for some of the choice berths.

An abundance of good material is available. Four of the best all-round backfield men developed around here for some time are promised in the persons of Richardson, Magee, Routly and Young. Sloan at snap with Kirkwood, Howe, Ashmore and Gerow in adjoining positions should make the nucleus of a hefty line while Dineson, Reynolds, Wagar, Weir and Gardiner will be important members of the tackling brigade.

At the present time Newson is the only contender for the quarterback job but he has had plenty of experience and should be able to handle the assignment. Other promising candidates for the team are Broadly, Francis, Janeway, Mesley, Hewitt, Spencely, Palmer, Creighton and Whittaker.

A start on signals and plays has been made only during the past couple of practices but the squad is to tangle in a practice match with P. C. I. seniors at the Oval this evening. The boys have been working out every evening and the team should be ready when the schedule opens.

SPYING ON SPORTS

"GOSSIP AND SUCH

MOST EVERYONE knows this flag the Detroit Tigers have been fighting so gallantly for is their first in 25 years. Also it is virtually common knowledge that Detroit has won three other American League flags—in 1907, 1908 and 1909—but nary a world series.

However, it may come as a surprise to even some of those rabid Michigan baseball fans, already fighting over world series tickets, that Detroit DID win a world series and that it took not seven or nine, but 15 games to do it.

This was back in the Neanderthal period of baseball, when shinguards were for sissies, batters could call for high or low balls and get them, or else, and when every major leaguer sported a sheriff-model moustache to prove he was big-time stuff.

The year was 1887 and the site of the series was virtually the entire United States. The 15 games were not confined to the habitats of the two pennant winners—Detroit National league champions, and the St. Louis Brown Stockings, winners of the American association pennant (then a major league).

No. Only three of the 15 games were played in St. Louis and only two in Detroit. Other games were played in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, Pa.; Brooklyn and New York, Chicago, Boston, Washington and Baltimore.

The series began Oct. 10, in St. Louis, and wound up 16 days later, also in St. Louis. The Browns won the first and last game, but that didn't mean anything, as the Detroits had twice as many victories, the series being called ended when it becsme too cold to play.

It was an extremely informal series. St. Louis outhit Detroit in almost every game, but, also, and this decided the series, made more errors, averaging six bobbles a contest.

To add to the gayety of the occasion Gansel and Bennett, Detroit's first baseman and catcher, were constantly swapping jobs. And, on Oct. 21, the two teams not only played a world series double-header, but played the first game in Baltimore, Md., skipped lunch, and played the second contest that afternoon in Washington, D.C.

Dave Foutz, St. Louis right fielder, pitched and lost three games.

However, the strangest stunt of the entire series was pulled by St. Louis when that club withdrew from the series for one day, Oct. 16, to play an exhibition game with a Brooklyn nine. And—no kidding—lost, 10-3.

Level Athletic Field.

A special meeting of the Athletic Association was held in Coronation Hall Friday evening at eight o'clock. The meeting was called for the purpose of considering the advisability of levelling the athletic field. A good attendance was present and all were agreed that it was an excellent idea to go forward with the work this fall. Accordingly plans were made and a committee appointed to get in touch with someone to do the work and give an estimate as to the cost.

Wrestling Last Night.

(By the Associated Press).

Bradman's Illness In Critical Stage

LONDON, Sept. 26.—(C.P. Cable)—Don Bradman, one of the greatest cricketers produced in Australia, was in a serious condition today. He underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis two days ago and for a time was progressing satisfactorily, but an official bulletin today showed him to be in a critical state.

Bradman's temperature is extremely high, and blood transfusions may be necessary. A further complication is a tendency to haemophilia of excessive bleeding, which has shown itself in recent cricketing injuries, and also at the conclusion of his record-breaking partnership with W. H. Ponsford in the last and deciding test cricket match.

The Aussie, one of the finest batsman the game has ever seen, is 26 years of age.

Chapter 49

In two weeks Joan would marry Drew Hallam. If it had not been for Amelie and Scripps, Giles would have returned at once to his island. Among his books he felt he might find surcease from the agony which tore him. Deep in his heart he was aware that Joan would never be happy. There was that within her which Drew could never satisfy. She was heading straight for disaster.

There were things, too, he had to think about, which made him uncertain as to the course he should pursue. Many of the men he had met in Paris knew Drew Hallam and from them he had heard the gossip which linked the name of Joan's future husband with the past which was indiscreet, if not stained with dishonor. If Joan had had a brother or a father, Giles would have laid the whole story before them. Yet to go to Joan herself? How could he do it? She would not believe him, and he would seem only a despairing lover trying to force an issue for his own sake.

As he sat by the quiet pool, in the purple dusk, he wondered why he should care what he seemed to others. The thing was to save the woman he loved. He had thought of an appeal to Hallam. Of a challenge to Drew's own sense of the enormity of linking his smirched life with the life of a girl like Joan.

Whatever he did, must be done at once. He rose and stood with his face uplifted to the sky. Above him was a serene world—yet his heart was torn.

And now Amelie and Scripps came from the blossoming arbor, hand in hand. As they approached, Amelie was singing a little French song she had often chanted long ago for Scripps—her voice was like a bird's, sweet and clear in the silent night.

When they reached him Scripps spoke: "Amelie wants to come back here . . ."

"You mean . . .?" Giles looked from one to the other.

"Yes," Scripps said, and his voice was deep with emotion, "she wants to come with me, Giles, alone . . ."

Sitting by the pool the three of them made their plans. They would return to Paris, and as soon as possible Scripps and Amelie would settle down for a time in this lovely spot. Amelie was radiant. The dark clouds had lifted. She was like herself. Simple, sweet. Giles felt, however, that they must not go too fast, there must be no mistake before Amelie entered upon this new life which was to be an ecstatic echo of the old.

As they drove home Giles knew that freedom had come to him at last. Amelie and Scripps would soon not need him. Yet he knew too, that his release had arrived too late. He would be alone with neither friendship nor love to fill his life. The days intervening between Joan's marriage would soon pass. She would be Drew's wife. Lost to him forever.

That night, as he sat late in the grill room of his hotel, he was approached by an English officer whom he had known intimately during the Great War. They talked over old times, of Amelie and Scripps, and Giles voiced with some vehemence, his sense of restlessness and indecision. "I am not sure what I want to do with my life."

"Why not travel?"

Giles tapped the table thoughtfully. "It was what I wanted—but now that the opportunity is mine, I find myself eager to go back to my island—to bury myself."

His friend demanded, "What has happened?"

Giles tried to laugh it off, "Perhaps I am growing old."

"Perhaps—you are in love."

"What makes you think that?"

"Oh, a man like you should be ready for adventure, for life, for experience."

Giles flung up his head. "I am in love. With a woman who marries another man next week and he is not worthy of her."

"How do you know?"

"You remember him—Drew Hallam."

The Englishman gave a short exclamation. "Remember! He is a cad and a coward."

Giles' tone was eager, "You're sure of that?"

"Sure of it," the Englishman settled himself in his chair, "listen to this."

The story that he told was not a pleasant one. "There was Rose Carter. He would have married her in a minute if she had had money. He is always hard up. If you care anything for the girl that he is going to marry why don't you lay the case before her?"

"But how can I, loving her, do that?"

"It is because you love her that you should do it."

"I'd rather go to Hallam himself."

"Well, why not? Tell him what you know. In the old days you could have had the thing out with pistols. As it is you may knock each other down, but what's the difference?"

They said little after that, and the next morning Giles left for Barcelona. He took the same route that Joan had followed, coming at night to the dusky inn where Rose and Joan had met. He was aware of the charm of it all and of the atmosphere which seemed to belong to medieval days. He was aware too of that sense of romantic adventure which had impressed Joan. He wondered if by any chance he might some day travel this road with the woman he loved. If she did not marry Drew? Might there not come a time . . .?

As he sat at breakfast he saw opposite him a sailor in a vivid blue shirt, scarlet sash and scarlet handkerchief about his head. He was showing to a companion, as picturesque as himself, the model of a little painted ship. It was a tiny, perfect thing, carved from wood, brilliantly colored and gilded, with its pennants and flags perfect. Giles' eyes rested on it eagerly. He leaned forward and asked in his imperfect Spanish, "Will you sell?"

The sailor nodded and named a price, and presently Giles found himself in possession of the tiny bark. He had a feeling that he would like to give it to Joan. Its spreading sails held the promise of some voyage of happy adventure. If only she did not marry Drew!

When he came that night to Barcelona, he went to the hotel and asked for Drew. He was told that the Hallams and Miss Dudley were spending the week-end in the mountains, a half a day's journey by motor. They had gone, away, the clerk informed him, that Miss Dudley might rest.

Giles asked, "May I have the address? I am an old friend."

The clerk gave it, and an hour later Giles was on his way. He would see Drew Hallam and have the thing out. And failing Drew, Joan.

The retreat to which Joan and the Hallams had gone was an old monastery, which offered hospitality to those who sought rest and quiet. Joan would have loved it if she could have been there alone with Drew.

"It is a perfect place for a honeymoon," she said, "but why should Rose and her mother have followed us?" Her voice had a note of sharpness, her nerves were on edge. It had seemed incredible to her that Rose and Mrs. Carter should intrude at such a time. "What made her think she could come, Drew?" she insisted.

He evaded her question, "Oh, well, you know Rose . . ."

"But—surely you didn't invite her?"

"No—but she adores this place—and asked if I cared if she joined us. What could I say?"

"Will she be following us like this after we are married?"

He laughed and put a finger under her chin, lifting her face so that he could look into her eyes, "Jealous?"

A deep flush stained her cheeks, "You know I'm not. But the thing is so utterly absurd. Rose ought to know she is not wanted."

"Oh, well, in a week you and I will leave her behind forever." He laid his cheek against hers, "My sweet . . ."

Joan wandered that afternoon into the garden of the monastery and sat on the rim of an old fountain and watched the doves flying down to the water. One of the brown-clad brothers came out to feed the doves.

Joan said to him, "I love this peace. The world seems so far away."

The brother said quietly, "Yet there is peace in the world, daughter, if we have it in our hearts."

"I know."

There were no further words between them, and when he had fed the birds the brother went away, but Joan thought of what he had said: "There is peace in the world if we have it in our hearts."

She knew there was no peace in her world. When she was with Drew she was conscious of a sort of tumultuous happiness—he was a marvelous lover and knew how to play on the strings of her emotions. Yet always at the back of her mind was a disturbed sense that some day the glamor would disappear and she would face Drew's faults and be afraid of them.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, September 27.

A very active day with the mind attuned to progressive and ambitious attainments may be presaged from the dominating planetary influences. Those in employment or seeking it may be very fortunate in approaching superiors or, those in power and authority for favors, preferment or promotion. It is a time for pushing in this direction with assurance and confidence, as well as with the mentality keyed to originality, ingenuity and progressive insight of a high if unorthodox order. Innovation and novelty may find ready supporters.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a very interesting and progressive year with originality, innovation and independent investigations attracting the support and promotion of those in high places. Employers and important personages may be sought for advancement, favors and tokens of preferment. It is a time for pushing boldly for out of the ordinary projects.

A child born on this day should be talented, original and independent in its mentality and should win success through its intellectuality and culture.

GODOLPHIN.

Miss Teresa Butler is taking care of Master Donald Oliver of Cobourg Road, who is ailing with scarlet fever. Everyone hopes for a speedy recovery.

Rev. Mr. Neil of the United Church, Campbellford, attended the community Sunday school on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Geordie Skinkle, of Warkworth, visited friends in this community during the past week.

We are glad to know that Mrs. Alf Shea, is improving from her past illness.

Mr. and Mrs. William Carr have taken up a new residence with Mr. John Currie, Campbellford.

Mrs. George Herriot entertained about thirty members of St. Andrew's Ladies Circle of Warkworth Presbyterian Church.

Australia is exporting about 35 per cent more of her agricultural products than in pre-depression years.

DIPLOMAS ARE GIVEN PUPILS

Graduating Class of Queen Alexandra School Honored.

INSPECTOR COPP SPEAKS.

On Monday evening parents and friends filled to capacity the kindergarten room of Queen Alexandra school, on the occasion of the presentation of entrance certificates to the graduating class. The room was tastefully decorated with a profusion of autumn flowers. Chas. W. Saunders made a very capable and entertaining chairman, interspersing his remarks with many bits of humour.

The program was opened by two enjoyable readings given by Miss Jessie Tully. Miss Loreen Piper then delighted the audience with a piano solo and encore.

Inspector Copp as guest speaker, opened his remarks with some humourous anecdotes and reminiscences of his own boyhood days spent at Queen Alexandra School. During his interesting and helpful talk to the graduating class, Mr. Copp asked them to especially remember two things. First, that their entrance certificate was really an ability certificate, signifying their capability of doing higher and better things, and secondly that their course of study at both public school and high school was for the purpose of development of character and of the right habits of living.

At the close of Mr. Copp's address, the chairman also stressed the point that the real value of an education was not so much the learning of certain subjects as the capacity which it gave one for living the useful life and for enjoying the better things in life.

The principal, J. E. R. Munro in presenting the certificates to the graduates, congratulated the class on behalf of the teachers and pupils of the school and gave them a few words of timely advice which he expressed in the words of the poet:

"Be good and let who can be clever;
Do lovely things, not dream them all day long;
And so make life and death, and that for ever,
One grand sweet song."

The thanks and appreciation of the graduating class were well expressed in short speeches by Mary Duncan and Effie Saunders.

Mr. Dearborn presented a bronze medal to Herbert Galley, last year's efficient commander of the cadet corps, after which a very hearty clap was given for the corps, its commander, and training officer, Mr. Dearborn.

The following musical numbers were much enjoyed, two pleasing guitar solos by Miss Helen Ludbrook and a charming vocal solo by Mrs. Cutmore, the audience begging an encore which was graciously given, Mrs. Greenslade played piano accompaniments.

Mrs. McBride, on behalf of the Home and School Association, thanked the speaker and artists who contributed their talent to make the evening a most enjoyable one.

At the close, ice cream and cake were served by the members of the social committee.

The following pupils received entrance certificates:

June Armstrong, Dorothy Bateson, Elsie Board, Margaret Cournes, Audrey Dainton, Marcella Dorrington, Donna Doxsee, Mary Duncan, Marjorie Foster, Dorothy Gibbs, Helen Grant, Marion Hall, Jean Metcalfe, Joyce Powers, Gwen Record, Jean Reid, Pearl Revoy, Effie Saunders, Florence Simmons, Hazel Tighe, Margaret Whatman, Rae Borland, Ernest Cockerill, Herbert Galley, Sherman Montgomery, Walter Morrow, Robert Packer.

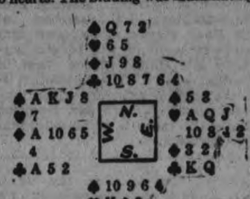
SHOULD WEST BID 6 HEARTS?

One reason why the Knickerbocker Whist Club turned out so many leading players was the numerous constructive criticisms made. Nobody objected to helpful comments either from players or from a member of the gallery, provided he followed the unwritten rule of looking only at dummy and a defender's hand, or at the declaring hand alone. A kibitzer who commented after seeing the declaring hand and that of a defender heard remarks which were not complimentary. As I sat where I viewed only dummy and South's hand, I was invited to state whether West should have bid 6 hearts. The bidding was illuminating.



Bidding went: West, 1 diamond; East, 2 hearts, which could mean only "game assured, slam hoped"; West, 2 spades; East, 3 hearts, to keep bidding low, so partner might give added information without exceeding a game bid; West, 3 no trumps, showing something in the unbid club suit instead of rebidding diamonds; East, 5 hearts, which ended bidding. The question was whether or not West should have bid the small slam. The message from East appeared clear to me. East was most anxious to know whether his partner held the aces of spades, diamonds and clubs, with the king of either of West's biddable suits. East needed 4 immediate tricks for a grand slam. I could read East's bidding in no other way.

The opening lead was the king of diamonds. Dummy's ace won. A low club was led. East took both his high honors in that suit. Dummy won 2 spade tricks, then East discarded his losing diamond upon dummy's ace of clubs, ridding the declaring hand of its last side card.

Not until then did East dare lead dummy's lone trump. The 10 was finessed and South's king won the only trick for the defenders. East spread his hand, claiming the balance, and making one trick over his contract.

East had a hand worth a minimum of 7 playing tricks—8 tricks in case dummy holds the king of hearts or if the heart finesse works or in case dummy has the ace of clubs in a short suit. East could see game when his partner opened the bidding, and at least a small slam if West had not opened bidding with king-queen suits plus the side ace of clubs. As East and West were not vulnerable I think the small slam should have been bid by West.

Slug Machine Is Taken From Booth

Premises located at Lock and Braidwood streets and known as "Joe's Booth" were broken into in the early hours of Tuesday morning, when goods valued at approximately $75 were stolen. The theft was reported to Provincial Police.

Joseph Marino operator of the booth told The Examiner that when he came to open up for business yesterday morning he found that the premises had been broken into by a side door on Braidwood avenue. The door appeared to have been forced with a "jimmy" and a portion of the lock was broken off.

Besides a quantity of cigarettes and tobacco, Mr. Marino stated that a slug machine had been stolen. The machine worth about fifty dollars, and which had contained an estimated amount of twelve dollars in cash, was recovered yesterday in a pig pen at the Exhibition grounds. It had been wrecked and the money extracted.

COLD WEATHER POULTRY HOUSES SHOULD BE KEPT WARM AND DRY

Proper Ventilation Plays Big Part—Care Shows in Egg Production.

LOW NESTS AN AID.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, September 25. — Forty years ago, or even less, the idea prevailed that any sort of shelter was good enough for chickens during Fall and Winter months. Hens were of no value in the general opinion so why should their care entail added expense to the upkeep of the farm.

Men of inquiring mind experimented with feeds, with housing methods and with breeds and varieties within the breed until finally it was discovered that feed, housing and breeding were of very great importance in the poultry industry. To-day their exists abundant proof that hens appreciate comfortable sanitary shelter. Yet it is a fact that many new poultry houses are built each year that do not measure up to modern ideas.

In most cases it would cost no more to construct an ideal poultry house. The only excuse the builder has to offer is that "he didn't think of that."

There is a wide variety of "things to think of" if you are building a new poultry house or remodelling your old one for use in the colder months which lie ahead.

Clean and Dry

A house must be dry, clean and have plenty of ventilation—not a breezy draught, of course, but constantly changing fresh air. The first point—keeping the house dry—is all important. Constant dampness inside the house will effect very greatly the health of the hens. This dampness may be due to improper location of the house on ground so low that the floor is soaked by rains, or by ice, and snow. Or it may be from the hens themselves.

Of course the house should be built on ground that is high enough to insure against flooding. Even on low ground or on heavy clay soil, a waterproof concrete floor should be laid. This is built by putting down a layer of asphalt before the concrete is laid, or by placing a layer of tar paper between layers of concrete. Two inches of concrete and a layer of tar paper with two inches of concrete on top will effectively stop ordinary seepage from coming up through the floor to dampen the litter.

Damp Litter

Many poultrymen blame the floor for causing dampness in the litter when the trouble is really due to water that comes from the hens. One hundred hens usually consume in excess of twelve quarts of water and only a small part of this water is carried out in the egg-basket. The remainder of the water goes into droppings, and into the air. Partly because a hen has no sweat glands, and partly because of its high temperature a bird eliminates a very large amount of water from its lungs in proportion to its size.

Regardless of whether it comes out of the lungs, or out of the droppings, one hundred hens pass nearly twelve quarts of water a day. If you were to pour a pailful of water into the litter of an empty henhouse every day, you would expect it to become wet very quickly. Counting the water that gets spilled you are actually dumping over a pail of water into each pen every day.

Ventilation

The only way that one can possibly keep a henhouse dry is to have enough ventilation to carry off the excess water. If the air inside the hen house is somewhat warmer than the outside, it will hold a little more water, for the warmer the air is the more water it will hold. If it were not for this fact it would be utterly impossible to keep a house dry when it is raining or when it is foggy outside. During wet weather you should keep the windows shut so as to slightly raise the temperature inside and yet have enough of an opening to have a fairly rapid exchange of air. Without supplying extra heat and light it is sometimes very difficult to keep a house dry. During dry weather, that is when the air is dry, there is not the necessity for the difference in temperature, and the windows can be opened more, and the house thoroughly dried out. The dampness on the floor seems to depend partly on the type of litter used. When hay is used for litter it mats down and becomes very wet and undesirable. Good clean straw allows enough circulation of air so that it is fairly dry. Apparently peat moss littler keeps mulch drier than most anything else.

By keeping the air dry, it is generally possible to keep the hens from freezing their combs, for the hens feel the cold much more severely when the air is damp.

Hopper Space

Provide at least two running feet of open hopper space for each ten hens. Have the hopper so that the birds do not waste the mash but so that they can eat it freely, and have it so that they do not soil it, and do not injure their combs in getting it.

Running Water an Aid

Running water is particularly desirable. This frequently can be easily provided by using a float system. The float can be in the water or else a piece of eavetrough can be used and one end suspended in the air. When the trough is full it cuts off the flow of water. A system of this kind requires very little attention and keeps fresh water always available.

Well Ventilated Nests

The nests should be open enough and well ventilated so that the hens will not be affected by hot weather. It is not reasonable to punish a hen for laying eggs, and tight, poorly-ventilated nests frequently kill hens on hot sultry days when more than one hen goes on the same nest. The nest should be fairly dark so that they will be attractive to the hens and it is better if they are placed on the side walls instead of underneath the dropping platforms.

Low Nests, Dropping Boards

If the nests are under the dropping platforms it makes the perches too high from the floor, or makes it too dark underneath the platforms so that the hens will frequently lay there. The perches should not be over three feet from the floor at the most for the hens are apt to injure their feet or rupture their oviduct in jumping to the floor.

The fact that a hen that does not lay wants to go to the top of the house, or top of a tree, is not a good reason for forcing a hen, full of eggs, to jump down from a high perch, or from a high nest. Most of the "bumble-foot," and a great deal of internal laying disabilities are no doubt due to either high perches, or high nests in the house.

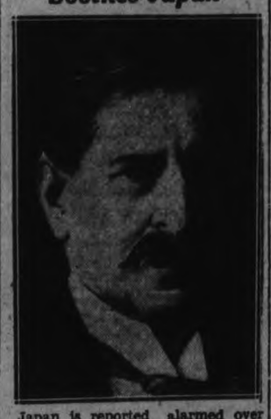
Soothes Japan



Japan is reported alarmed over announcement U.S. Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson that naval manoeuvres will be conducted by the United States fleet in Alaskan waters. The location intimates possible existence of an Oriental enemy, though Mr. Swanson denies the move is made with that consideration.

CAVALRYMEN TO GATHER HERE

Nineteenth Annual Convention of Cavalry Association in Early October.

DRAGOONS HOST UNIT.

The nineteenth annual convention of the Canadian Cavalry Association to be held in this city, will open two-day sessions on the morning of October 8, with a meeting of the Association council in Empress Hotel.

At that meeting the resolutions committee and other committees will be appointed, following which the delegates to the convention will lunch at the hotel as the guests of the City Council. It is expected that invitations to the civic luncheon will be extended to officers of Peterborough Garrison, as well as to the Federal and Provincial members of parliament.

Lieut.-Col. Claire H. Stuart, O.C., 3rd Prince of Wales' Canadian Dragoons, guests to the convention announces appointment of committees as follows: Dinners and luncheon—Major M. R. Sloan. Transportation — Major E. G. Johnston. Dance—Major H. G. Mason. Boat Trip —Major A. R. MacNab. Ya-Hoo Competition—Captain D. A. Loomis, M.C.

On the afternoon of the first day of the convention delegates are to experience the novelty of a trip over the lift locks in the "Bessie Butler," through special arrangements made by courtesy of E. A. Peck, K.C., M.P., with the Department of Railways and Canals.

Disembarking from the "Bessie Butler" at Nassau the delegates are to be taken on a motor sightseeing tour over a route planned by the transportation committee and which includes all points of interest in the entire city. Tea served in the Dragoons Mess at five o'clock, precedes a dinner at seven o'clock tendered to the delegates by the officers of the Dragoons.

As a wind-up to the first days activity a dance is to be staged at the Armouries.

Tuesday, Oct. 9 at 10 a.m. the annual meeting of the Association will be conducted in the Dragoons Mess, followed by the President's luncheon at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club. At 2 o'clock the business sessions will be resumed, followed by the annual dinner of the Association at Empress Hotel at seven-thirty o'clock.

After dinner and as the concluding item on the convention program a Ya-Hoo contest is to be staged at the Armouries. While the nature of this competition is being secretly guarded, it is understood that it will provide one of the most entertaining features of the convention.

According to Major Sloan over one hundred delegates are expected to attend the convention representative of each of the Military Districts and Cavalry units in the Dominion. Among those who have so far signified their intention of being present, are the following:

Lieut.-Colonel G. M. Endacott, V.D., Vancouver; Colonel H. C. A. Hervey, V.D., Midnapore, Alberta; Lieut.-Colonel W. L. Oliver, Edmonton, Alberta; Major H. S. Packman, Lloydminster, Saskatchewan; Lieut.-Colonel R. B. Crouch, E.D., London, Ont.; Lieut.-Colonel P. L. Johnston, D.C.M., Danville, Quebec; Brigadier-General J. B. White, D.S.O., E.D., Montreal; Lieut.-Colonel E. A. Devitt, V.D., Ottawa; Colonel F. B. Inkster, V.D., Ottawa; Colonel the Honorable R. F. Stockwell, V.D., Provincial Treasurer of Quebec; Colonel P. J. Montague, C.M.G., D.S.O., M.C., V.D., A.D.C Judge of King's Bench, Manitoba; Major H. F. Smith, Vancouver; Colonel E. J. Mooney, V.D., St. John's, N.B.; Major J. D. Fraser, Ottawa.

HIGHWAY WORK, HAVELOCK AREA RAPIDLY NEARING COMPLETION

Majority of Contracts Expected to be Completed Around End of Week.

GIVEN HUNDREDS WORK.

HAVELOCK, Sept. 26. (Examiner Correspondence).—Hundreds of Havelock and district men have found employment as a result of the extensive road building program on highways No. 7 and 30 throughout the Spring and Summer months. The Ontario Rock Company has been working day and night for the past few months supplying crushed limestone for the resurfacing work. The quarry has literally been a regular "beehive" of industry and its manager H. L. Scott has been indeed a very busy man, but the highway work will be finished this week sometime.

Never since the busy days of the railway before the market crash of '29 have so many men been able to find work so easily. Even the village council created employment by laying some much needed drains along the south side of Union street and a few hundred feet to insure better drainage of the park during the Spring freshet.

Not only have local men been kept busy in the immediate vicinity, but some found employment on stretches of highway work as far west as Indian River and as far east as Marmora on No. 7 highway. The younger single men and a few of the older ones have been welll looked after in road camps along the Burleigh-Bancroft highway.

Almost Complete

The highway work in this section is rapidly nearing completion and probably with the exception of the eleven mile stretch on No. 7 between Norwood and Indian River bridge, will be open for traffic in another week or so. The job east of the village towards Marmora will be completed this week and C. V. Billie the contractor is deserving of much credit for his fine work in record time.

William Holdcroft, a local boy by the way, and president of the Holdcroft Construction Company has completed the section from Havelock south to the Woodland Cheese Factory south of Trent River. The cuts on this contract are all tiled and will ensure better drainage, especially during the Spring when the road start breaking up.

The Standard Paving company expect to finish this week some time and a tour of their section from Marmora westward for eight miles reveals a very fine piece of work. Although a few hundred feet of the penetrated oil bed had to be taken up on account of excessive 'bleeding" during the very wet spell earlier in the month, it is altogether a splendid job. At present it is hard to tell the section near Marmora from concrete work. The gentle grade through the jagged rock cut approaching on the fine new concrete bridge at Marmora's western entrance is certainly a much appreciated change from the old treacherous path around the steep hill.

The Raynor Construction Company's job from Madoc eastward will be in all probability completed this week. A large number of new bridges under construction from Madoc to Marmora stretch are holding up completion of that strip for some time yet.

When the Highway Department took over Concession street from No. 7 highway to Old Havelock corner they "lifted its face" so to speak and after all the scarifying was done they raised the road bed slightly and did a littlte necessary grading to bring the crown up in place.

122 CASES BEEN TREATED DURING PAST 2 MONTHS

Figures For Province Higher Than Anytime in Last Three Years.

SERUM READY.

Far From Epidemic Dr. Faulkner Assures—Urges Early Diagnosis.

TORONTO, Sept. 27.—(CP) — Infantile paralysis has been more prevalent in Ontario during August and September than in the past three years, Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Minister of Health, stated today. To combat the disease, Dr. Faulkner points out that the department has prepared for free distribution, a supply of convalescent serum which it is felt from result of its administration, justifies the expenditure.

During the present year, 136 cases have been reported. The months of August, September and October is the usual season for outbreaks and usually show an increase in the number of cases. During the first seven months of the present year, 14 cases were reported throughout the province; in 1931 there were 17 in the same period; in 1932, 15 and in 1933, 14. But during August 45 cases were reported and for this month there were 77. For September in previous years there were 58 in 1931; 53 in 1932 and 7 last year. Total figures for 1933 indicated a very low incidence of the disease and the current year shows highest figures since the epidemic of 1929 and 1930.

No Cause for Alarm

Considering the population of the province is 3,000,000 Dr. Faulkner points out that 136 cases is not a serious cause for alarm. In no district has an outbreak reached epidemic proportions, the cases having been sporadic and widely separated.

"People of the province are generally intelligently interested in this disease," he said. "They have come to realize that early diagnosis and early treatment constitute the only effective method for prevention of crippling, that the disease is caused by an infection readily transmitted from child to child and that susceptible children develop the disease frequently in a very severe form."

Railroaders To Fight Scrapping Of Lines

TORONTO, Sept. 27 (C.P.). — Possibility of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways scrapping hundreds of miles of roads would provide the signal for what may prove the bitterest war ever fought in the history of railway trade unions, R. J. Tallon, president of the Canadian Division, Railway Employees' Department of the American Federation of Labor, said here to-day.

"This contest will be the first test of strength of the new Canadian Pacific - Canadian National Act passed in 1933," Mr. Tallon explained. "Previous to the passing of this Act, when lines were abandoned or terminals closed, provision was made for adequate compensation for the employees."

Before any lines are scrapped the railways will make application to the Railway Commission and "we will fight tooth and nail to prevent this move on their part," he declared, adding: "Failing that, we will demand adequate compensation for employees affected."

Missing Girl Discovered Strangled in Trunk

Stuffed in a trunk, after being bound and strangled, the body of 11-year-old Lillian Gallagher, Detroit, Mich., schoolgirl, missing from her home, was found in a nearby apartment house by the janitor, who informed police. Disclosure by the janitor that the occupants of the "death suite," calling themselves Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Goodrich, had checked out a few days before the discovery of the body, spurred Detroit authorities to order their arrest for questioning. Here are, top left, the apartment house with arrow pointing to "death suite"; top right, a recent photo of slain Lillian Gallagher; below ,detectives removing the "death trunk" from the building.

MEMBERS WOULD AVOID CHECK-UP ON ARMS PARLEY

Fear Henderson's Report Will Blame German Withdrawal For Conference Failure.

LEAD FURTHER.

Probably Bring Up Nazi Rearming in Defiance of Versailles Treaty.

GENEVA, Sept. 27—(AP)—Efforts were made today to have Maxim Litvinoff of Russia, the League of Nations' newest member, withdraw a "dynamite" package he tossed into delegates' laps.

Litvinoff asked the council to get a report on whether the Disarmament Conference could be resumed with a possibility of success.

Some League leaders were fearful a report from Arthur Henderson, president of the Disarmament Conference, would blame Germany's withdrawal for failure of the conference.

This, they said, would bring up the question of Germany's alleged rearming in defiance of the Treaty of Versailles — a question which some League members are anxious to avoid. Negotiations are believed under way now to get Berlin to return to Geneva.

In a letter to Richard Sandler, president of the League Assembly, Litvinoff asked that a resolution requesting a report from the Disarmament Conference be considered at the League's next plenary session The League's council then would decide on a course toward disarmament.

A Bachelor

TORONTO, Sept. 27.—(CP)— Louis Gyonffy, barber, was sentenced today to three months on the municipal farm here when he pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy.

Gyonffy was married at Westbourne, Man., in 1929, and again here this year, Detective Jackson told the court he had confessed.

"I asked him why he swore he was a bachelor,' 'the officer said, "and he replied he thought a bachelor was a man who cooked his own meals."

Popcorn

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., September 27 (C.P.). — A. H. Ludwig, husking corn he raised on his farm, found a number of ears of corn which already had been popped. The heat, with the temperature 107 at one time during the summer, was held responsible.

FIND TWO SLAIN PARIS EXPRESS

Frenchman Believed to Have Shot Italian, Then Suicided.

TRAIN MUFFLES NOISE.

PARIS, France, Sept. 27. (AP).—Murder stalked in a sleeping car last night and an express train brought two dead men into Paris this morning.

The train was the crack express from Vintimille to Paris. A porter, making his rounds, discovered the bodies of two men, sprawled in a firstclass sleeper.

As the train neared Montgeron, he pulled the emergency cord. The train stopped at the station. Police came aboard, made a cursory investigation, and ordered the train to continue to Paris.

At the capital city, the death car was cut out of the train and put on a sidetrack. Parisian detectives went to work and determined that the men were Rene Beitlamine, an Italian, and Jean Alibert, a Frenchman.

They theorized that the Frenchman shot his companion to death, then turned the revolver on himself while the noise of the heavy train muffled the sound.

McGill Observatory Fire Quickly Doused

MONTREAL, Sept. 27.—(C.P.)—A fire in McGill Observatory today threatened injury to the many valuable scientific instruments housed there, but was quickly extinguished before flames had a chance to spread.

A preliminary survey indicated the instruments had escaped the fire and water, but further examination was to be made. Cause of the outbreak was not ascertained. Firemen cut a hole in the roof and put out flames that were moving along the rafters.

No one was injured.

TRAP DRUMMER, SPOUSE HUNTED IN GIRL MURDER

Detroit Police Learn Wanted Man Was Held in 1931 for Molesting Girl.

FIND KILLER'S HAMMER.

Warrant Charging First Degree Murder is Issued Trail Warms Up.

DETROIT, Sept. 27.—(A.P.)—A warrant charging first degree murder was issued to-day for M. W. Goodrich, 26 year old trap drummer, who has been sought, with his attractive, red-haired wife Florence, since the body of Lillian Gallaher was found in their apartment.

The search centred in the northwest section of Detroit, where managers of nine apartment houses said that a couple closely resembling the Goodriches had sought to rent an apartment Monday night.

Tip Changes Situation.

Until that information came early to-day from acquaintances of the couple, there had been a growing belief the Gooldriches had fled the city long before the body of the 11 year old schoolgril, beaten, strangled and criminally assaulted was found yesterday trussed up in a trunk.

Police said they were convinced that the child was the victim of a degenerate who derived delight from the torture of girl victims.

Scores of groundless leads and clues poured in upon Detroit police while they sought the apparently insane killer.

Investigation established only a few facts. That the Gallaher girl was criminally attacked, beaten and strangled to death at least three days ago; that the Goodriches apparently left their apartment last Saturday and that Goodrich had been detained in an Ohio asylum for molesting a 12-year-old girl in 1931.

Last Seen Thursday

Lillian Gallaher was last seen Thursday when she knocked at the door of the Goodrich apartment while attempting to sell punch board chances for a parochial school benefit. The intensive search for the child ended in that apartment Wednesday when Clyde Burgess, the caretaker, noticed a mysterious odor and summoned the police who found the child's body trussed up in a small trunk.

J. A. O'BRIEN FACES CHARGE OF CONVERTING

Trial Opens Before Judge A. T. Boles and Special Crown Prosecutor.

ADMINISTRATOR OF ESTATE

Charged With Fraudulently Converting to His Own Use $4,565.62.

To a charge of having fraudulently converted to his own use $4565.62 of the estate of the late Sarah Mensies of which he was administrator, Joseph A. O'Brien, barrister, pleaded not guilty this morning before Judge A. T. Boles of Simcoe in the county judge's criminal court.

G. A. Urquhart, K.C., of Toronto, was acting in this trial as special Crown Prosecutor.

T. J. Carley was counsel for Mr. O'Brien.

The charge against the accused was read by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

Both the Judge and Crown Prosecutor were especially appointed from outside the local jurisdiction for the purposes of this trial.

Administration of Estate

George J. Sherry, local registrar of the Supreme Court of Ontario, and of the Surrogate Court, was the first witnesss. He produced certified copies of the letters of administration of the estate of Sarah Mensies, appointing on March 31, 1933, administrator of that estate.

Mr. Sherry also identified other documents relating to the case, including the oath of administration taken by the accused, faithfully to perform his duties, an inventory of the value of the estate, and Mr. O'Briens bond as administrator signed by Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien and F. H. Johnston, merchant.

A receipt given by H. E. Davis, law stulent with Mr. O'Brien, indicating that he had received certain books pertaining to the estate including a Bank of Toronto pass book, was also produced. Mr. Carley pointed out that the pass book phrase was in a different handwriting to the rest of the receipt. Among other papers was an order by Judge McGibbon directing the accused to pay $4,656.62 to the Bank of Commerce; an other was an understaking by Mr. O'Brien on July 30, 1934, to pay this sum into the Supreme Court.

Authority Questioned

To Mr. Carley, witness said he did not know upon what authority Judge McGibbon acted as Judge of the Surrogate Court here following the death of Judge Huycke.

Mr. Carley—Had you any official communication as to who was acting Judge of the Surrogate Court in this county?

Mr. Sherry—I would have to look up my records.

Mr. Carley pointed out that an appeal against Judge McGibbon's order of July 20, 1934, had been lodged with Mr. Sherry yesterday. One of the grounds alleged that Judge McGibbon did not have jurisdiction in this county, another showed an error of $400 in one accounting of estate moneys

Mr. MacPherson said that the appeal had been initiated after the prescribed time and should not be considered.

"We will submit," said Mr. Carley.

Woman Survivor Says No Alarm Given

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (A.P.). — Miss Ann Behling, of Philadelphia, a survivor of the Morro Castle disaster, in a letter to the Federal Inquiry board investigating the burning of the liner at sea, said to-day that no alarms were sounded aboard the liner.

Miss Behling, in the letter read by Dickerson N. Hoover, who is conducting the inquiry, said that she was awakened at 2.35 a.m. by the smell of smoke, and that she saw the flare of flames through the port-hole of her cabin on "C" deck.

At no time, she wrote, did she hear an alarm nor did she see any officers. Her letter said that while she was on "C" deck no one was fighting the fire.

Miss Behling's letter was placed in the record after being read by Hoover without being sworn to. Hoover said that she would swear to the letter later.

Ransom Money

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (AP). Here is how the full $50,000 of the Lindbergh ransom is accounted for to-day by Assistant District Attorney Edward F. Breslin:

Bruno Hauptmann's present assets, $16,000.

Hauptmann's market losses, 7,000.

Found in Hauptmann garage, $14,590.

Ransom bills spent, $5,100.

Supposed loan to Isadore Fisch, $7,500.

The total comes to $50,000— with $190 to spare.

TWO SERGEANTS GET JAIL TERMS ASSAULT CHARGE

Imprisonment and Fines Follow Hearing in Magistrate's Court.

ASSAULTED OFFICER.

Men Were Intoxicated and Refused to Submit to Being Arrested.

Imprisonment and fines were imposed upon two sergeants of the Northumberland Regiment, when they appeared on remand before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., today, in answer to a series of charges.

Sergeant Hugh Lawrie, 35, of Cobourg, was sentenced to two months' imprisonment for assaulting a traffic officer, E. A. Hornick; 20 days' imprisonment for driving a car while intoxicated, and was further ordered to pay $100 and $3 costs for having liquor in a place other than a residence, or in default an additional 30 days' imprisonment.

His brother, Sergeant Robert Lawrie, 25, was given three months on a charge of assaulting a police officer, and was fined $25 and $3 costs for being intoxicated in a public place, or in default an additional 20 days' imprisonment.

In imposing sentence, His Worship hoped that it would act as a warning "to soldiers and others" that offences of such a nature could not be tolerated. "Police officers," he said, "must be protected in the execution of their duty."

Got Off Lightly.

He also commented on that fact that Sergeant William Chard, 25, of Havelock, who was sentenced to seven days for obstructing a police officer had got off too lightly. "I dealt with the case without being aware of the real seriousness of the matter," he admitted.

The magistrate agreed with Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., that the offences committed by the three militiamen had been aggravated by the fact that they were wearing the King's uniform.

The Crown called the evidence of Traffic Officer Hornick. The officer related that he had suffered an injury to a ligament in his right shoulder on Saturday morning. On Sunday afternoon, he stated, in the witness box, he was riding north on Highway 28 in a car driven by Mrs. Hornick.

"When in the vicinity of Kendry crossing I noticed a car zigzagging towards us. Mrs. Hornick pulled over to the side of the road to prevent a head-on collision," the officer stated.

Afterwards the officer took the

2 Weeks Of 'Quakes Give Town Jitters

ELLENSBURG, Wash., Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Already suffering from earthquake jitters, Ellensburg residents waited nervously to-day expecting more of the series of more than 18 earth shocks that has jarred the town for the last two and a half weeks.

Six tremblors yesterday afternoon and last night brought a general exodus into the streets but did no more damage than the previous 'quakes. Plaster cracked, chandeliers swayed and windows rattled. The shocks were felt at Thorp, eight miles away, and at Ole Elum, 25 miles to the north-west. They were not reported elsewhere and were not recorded on seismographs at the University of Washington, in Seattle or at Victoria, B.C.

WHOLE INQUIRY TO BE FINISHED BY NOVEMBER 1

Character of All Beverage Room Authority Holders Behind Move.

24 INSPECTORS ON JOB.

All Material Ordered in Before Application for New Licenses Considered.

TORONTO, Sept. 27.—(CP) — Investigation of every hotel property in the province and inquiry into the character of all beverage-room authority holders before November 1 was ordered today by E. G. Odette, Ontario Liquor Commissioner.

The probe will be conducted by 24 inspectors, five of whom have been retained from the former liquor control administration.

It is the intention of the Liquor Control Board to have all material complete some time before considering applications for new authorities. These will be issued after November 1, end of the present fiscal year.

Commissioner Odette is now directing attention to several clubs in Toronto which are believed proprietary in the matter of ownership and are said to be operated solely for profit.

JARVIS HEARING TO BE PROBED

Inquiry to Open Shortly After His Return From New York.

SAYS TORONTO PAPER.

TORONTO, Sept. 27—(CP)— A Toronto paper today says it understands Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck will announce an inquiry into the conduct of the Amelius Jarvis trial shortly after his return from New York tomorrow.

Faced with demands for a new trial for Mr. Jarvis emanating from the latter's friends all over the province, Mr. Roebuck has decided to appoint a commissioner to investigate the procedure before the late Mr. Justice W. R. Meredith, the paper says. Witnesses for Mr. Jarvis and the Crown will testify at an open hearing.

It is understood, the paper declares, that Mr. Roebuck will submit the recommendations of the commissioner direct to Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice at Ottawa, for his decision. The Attorney-General will not likely accompany the findings with any comment of his own.

Two Boys On Cycle Are Slightly Injured

Two boys on a cycle were slightly injured in an accident at McDonnel and Aylmer streets last night, emphasizing the extreme danger of cross-bar riding, which is strongly condemned by Chief Constable S. Newhall.

The automobile was proceeding east on McDonnel street with the intention of turning north on Aylmer street, when a cycle ridden by Borden Herron and his brother Mitchell Herron wobbled across in front of him. The latter was riding on the cross-bar of the bicycle.

The motorist swerved sharply in an unsuccessful effort to avoid the cyclists, but the machine was struck. Each of the boys sustained minor injuries that were attended by Dr. A. G. Howson at Ward's Grocery. The front wheel of the cycle was knocked off.

STILL ON THE JOB

STURGEON FALLS, Ont., Sept. 2 (CP)—In 81-year-old Charles Gagne this town boasts the oldest truant officer in Canada. He visits the Separate School each morning to inquire of absent children. When non-attendance is reported he scours the town for the missing ones. Among Mr. Gagne's proud possessions are a number of letters from the Department of Education complimenting him upon his work.

YEAR RESIDENCE ORDER INSERTED IN REGULATIONS

Aimed to Prevent Dumping of Jobless on Municipalities Says Croll.

THWART BUCK PASSING.

Minister Repeats Warning at Cutting Off of Relief at Any Season.

TORONTO, Sept. 27. — A one - year residence requirement was inserted into Ontario relief regulations by an Order-in-Council passed Monday, and made public last night by Hon. David Croll, Minister of Welfare and Municipal Affairs. The residence rule governing eligibility for relief in a municipality has been extended to one year, and the municipalities from which relief recipients move after Sept. 1 of this year will be liable for the cost of assistance for the same period of time.

Check on Dumping

The Minister stated last night that the new regulations were designed to check the dumping of families from municipalities with low standards of unemployment relief into municipalities with higher standards. "This does not stop the free movement of people in any way," he said, in announcing the liability of the municipalities from which the relief recipients depart.

The move follows repeated representations from city and town officials expressed in detail when the Mayors of the Province met at Queen's Park in July to discuss relief matters. Protests had previously resulted in a three months residential rule introduced by the late Government during last winter's session of the Legislature and many municipal executives have called for a lengthier period.

The Minister repeated his opposition last night to arbitrary cutting-off of municipal relief at any season, and warned that the Government intends to see that the municipalities carry out their duties.

FAIR WEDDING ROUSES FROWNS AMONG CLERGY

Lambton Presbytery Condemns Practise as Exploitation of Sacred Rite.

PASTOR SEES DIFFERENT.

LEAMINGTON, Ont., Sept. 27 (CP)—When William Quick and Margaret MacVicar of Leamington were joined in holy wedlock before the Fair grandstands, packed with more than 5,000 persons, frowns gathered on the brows of members of the United Church clergy. They were married Sept. 25 and the following day Lambton Presbytery of the United Church gathered in session and decided such a wedding discredited "the solemnity of the marriage ceremony."

A resolution condemning such practice was passed by the Presbytery. "Exploitation of the sacred rite" was feared, and the Presbytery members decided to send the resolution to the secretary of the London Conference and also to the secretary of the Presbytery of which the minister who performed the ceremony is a member. The resolution noted that the wedding was "carried off with pomp in front of the grandstand."

Veteran Pastor Differs

The veteran minister of the United Church who made Quick and Miss MacVicar man and wife failed to see eye to eye with the Lambton Presbytery. He is Rev. F. B. Champion of Wheatley, eight miles from Leamington, and is the father of a family. He has been retired for a year because of ill health.

"Very picayune," came from Rev. Mr. Champion, when he was informed of objections to the grandstand wedding. It was the spirit that prevailed and not the place where weddings were solemnized that counted, he declared.

"When the United Church was

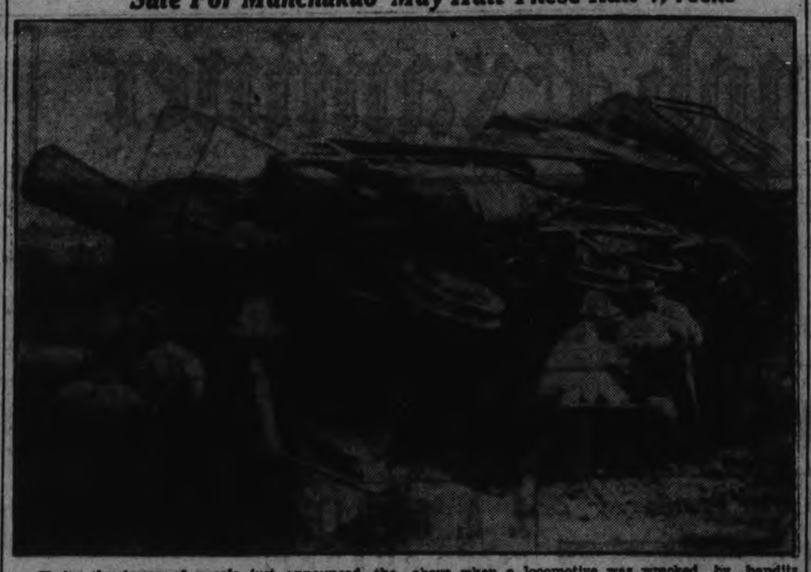
Sale For Manchukuo May Halt These Rail Wrecks



Under the terms of a sale just announced, the Chinese Eastern railway, trouble spot of the Orient, becomes the property of Manchoukuo for a reported consideration of $50,000,000 to Russia. The sale is expected to halt such depredations as that pictured above when a locomotive was wrecked by bandits near Harbin, Manchoukuo. Several passengers were killed in this wreck, and among the hostages were two American motion picture salesmen, rescued later by Japanese.

HIGHER PRICES GIVE FARMERS CASH TO SPEND

Estimate Puts Wheat Revenue $51,000,000 Over 1933 Figure.

BARLEY DOUBLES PRICE.

Bad Harvesting Conditions Expected to Hit Grade to Some Extent.

By Sam G. Ross
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

WINNIPEG, Sept. 27 (C.P.). — Canadian farmers will have more money to spend this year than last, but the exact amount was a bit uncertain to-day as the 1934 crop was moving into world markets. One estimate put the wheat revenue alone $51,000,000 over the 1933 figure. But weather was still a major factor.

On the basis of the price at Fort William, wheat, oats, flax, barley and rye were far ahead of their values at this time last year. Prices stumbled a bit on the Winnipeg grain exchange in recent weeks but they were still in strong position.

Comparative average prices for September, 1933, with September, 1934, to date, showed wheat was 15 cents a bushel higher than a year ago; oats, 11 cents up; flax, 14 cts. advanced; rye, 15 cents better, and barley, almost double its price, was 33 cents a bushel higher.

A comparative table shows:

	Sept. 1933 Average	Sept. 1934 Average
No. 1 Nor. wheat	.67⅛	.82⅝
No. 2 C.W. oats	.34¼	.45⅝
No. 2 C.W. flax	1.47⅛	1.60½
No. 1 C.W. rye	.52½	.67⅛
Six-Rowed barley	.43⅝	.77⅝

The Sanford Evans statistical service made the first estimate of the value of the 1934 prairie wheat crop. Basing its figures on a crop o. 265,000,000 bushels and taking the average price paid at country elevators during the first six weeks of the crop year, it set the wheat value at $170,035,000, an increase of $51,000,000 over the 1933 value.

Canada's 1933 wheat production, selling at much lower prices, was 269,729,000 bushels and the 1934 crop was estimated at 277,304,000 bushels, of which 265,000,000 was estimated for the three prairie provinces. Added to the better wheat prices was the increased revenue from coarse grains.

Bad harvesting conditions were certain to affect the grade of grain to some extent, but until it is cleaned and graded the full effect will not be known. Rain and snow both came to hamper harvesting. But even at that, lower grades were bringing higher prices than a year ago.

CHIEF RETAINED BY BLUE SHIRTS

O'Duffy Denies Resignations —Advises Suspended Officers to Stick.

SPLIT WITH COSGRAVE.

CORK, Irish Free State, Sept. 27. (AP).—General Eoin O'Duffy issued a statement to-day that, contrary to previous reports, he is still the leader of the Irish Blue Shirts and does not intend to resign.

The statement followed a conference between O'Duffy and leading supporters of his in Cork, one of the most important centres of his party.

He explained that he resigned his leadership in the Fine Gail, chief opposition party to the government of President Eamon De Valera, because he couldn't agree with William T Cosgrave and other party leaders on executive questions regarding the land annuity question, nor with the political section of the party controlling the Blue Shirts.

He directed Blue Shirt officers who have been suspended in the last few days to remain in office.

LARGE ENTRY AT FALL FAIR CAMPBELLFORD

Seymour's Fall Fair One of the Best in Entire District.

SOME FINE ENTRIES.

Four Real Good Horse Races —Plenty of Other Attractions.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 27.—Exceptionally numerous entries in the dairy cattle, light and heavy horse classes were notable features of Campbellford's fair yesterday. Big exhibits of poultry and sheep, field, garden and orchard products, and a fine display of ladies' work were other high lights.

Fine weather accounted substantially for a large attendance of visitors from the northern section of Northumberland county, West Hastings and East Peterborough. The crowd was generally representative of Central Ontario, ranging from Peterborough to Belleville, and from Tweed to Port Hope.

So uniformly successful was this year's Fair in all its departments that it showed every evidence of ranking with the best in this part of the province, and the President, W. S. Milne, Deputy-reeve of Seymour township, with his associates of the directorate, must have been deeply gratified with the results of their year's planning and preparation.

Although Wallace Brothers' midway failed to make connections in their long hop from Montreal, causing a disappointment which could not be fully provided for at the last minute, the midway appeared to be about as long and noisy as ever. Eastman's Minstrels had a big tent at one end of the barkers' lane, half a dozen independents were fairly busy all afternoon with various games that were within the law, Herb Payne of Toronto, well known to hundreds who have attended the Peterborough Exhibition, had several weighing machines working busily, and the re-

SOPWITH TAKES ENTIRE BLAME ON RACE ERRORS

Admits Mistakes, Absolves Crew—Not Vindictive, But Disillusioned

AT N.Y. CLUB TREATMENT.

Finds Races Run as Big Business—Will Keep Endeavour for English Contests.

By Tom Horgan
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

BRISTOL, R.I., Sept. 27.—(A.P.)—As Endeavour, 15th vanquished challenger for the America's Cup, was being prepared to-day for her voyage home to England, her owner-skipper, T. O. M. Sopwith, remained by his own testimony, "not heart-broken because I did not win, but disgusted at the spirit in which International racing is conducted here."

"I do not feel vindictive," he said, "at my treatment at the hands of the New York Club, but I do feel disillusioned."

Sopwith said he came over to the United States, as he thought, for the good of the sport but found the races were "run as a big business, something I was not prepared to contend with."

The English yachtsman said he was fully aware of mistakes he had made during the races and of the last race said: "My tactics were all wrong. I admit it."

Magnanimously, he added: "All errors made aboard Endeavour from beginning to end, were mine. The people of Gosport built the best boat in the world. I had a splendid afterguard and as for the amateurs in the crew, I could not expect to find a more capable and willing set of chaps, all rumors to the contrary."

Uncertain of Challenge.

Although Sopwith stated emphatically after the final race that he would not challenge again, he is still in a fighting mood and now prefers to leave that question open. "I would not say that," he countered, "but it is a very expensive game trying to win the America's Cup.

"Please make it clear that my disillusionment over the way yachting is taken in certain quarters does not blind me to the fact that Americans as a whole are marvellously friendly and hospitable. I really believe most Americans wanted Endeavour to win. We have received literally thousands of letters and telegrams from well wishers in all parts of the country."

Before the amateurs in Endeavours crew left to take steamers for home they clambered aboard Vita and gave their skipper three rousing cheers.

Unless something occurs to change his opinion, Sopwith will leave for home thoroughly convinced Endeavour was fouled by the defender, Harold S. Vanderbilt's Rainbow, in both Tuesday's and Saturday's races. His protest of Saturday was not considered because the race committee ruled he did not show his protest flag promptly enough. He said he flew a protest flag Tuesday chiefly—because he hoped to have an opportunity to air his views of Saturday's foul, but withdrew it after his boat had been "fairly and squarely beaten after both got going."

Regarding reports that he intended to sell Endeavour, Sopwith said: "Why should I sell her? Haven't I got the fastest boat ever built? I'm going to race her in England next year."

Police Turn Attention to Man Who Fled U.S. Hastily Aboard Liner.

HAD FULL WALLET.

Hauptmann's Dealings Since April 2, 1932, Account for Full $50,000 Ransom.

BY HENRY CASSIDY

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. —(AP)— Bruno Richard Hauptmann answers today to the charge of extorting the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom money—and his answer is 'not guilty!"

Disregarding the stubborn plea of innocence, New York city and United States authorities bayed more loudly today on the trail of possible accomplices.

Far out on the Atlantic, a passenger on the North German Lloyd Columbus came under police scrutiny.

The passenger at sea, Inspector John J. Sullivan disclosed, appeared at the line office Saturday, evidently agitated and carrying a thick roll of bills, and chartered a tug to overtake the out-bound ship.

His full wallet, in contrast to the poorness of his clothes, and the haste and anxiety with which he departed, caused police to seek further information about him.

Had Accomplices

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the investigation division of the Department of Justice, expressed the belief that Hauptmann did not work alone, and said of the search for other suspects: "Things look very good."

Bronx county authorities disclosed that figures for Hauptmann's dealings since the ransom was paid until April 2, 1932, account for the full $50,000 given by the father, Charles A. Lindbergh, for the return of his first born—already dead.

Colonel Lindbergh, after a swift flight across the continent, appeared yesterday before the grand jury that promptly returned an indictment against Hauptmann, and it was predicted today that the two soon will meet.

A reliable source said that Colonel Lindbergh will confront the man accused of victimizing him, to determineif he has ever before seen him, but that the meeting will be delayed until some of the excitement of the case has subsided.

Hauptmann's arraignment today is in the new Bronx county courthouse—the same building in which he has been on the grill almost constantly since his arrest.

Not Guilty

His attorney, James M. Fawcett, announcing the plea of innocence would be made, said: "I am confident that Hauptmann is not guilty of extortion."

District Attorney Samuel J. Foley did not disclose the bail in which he would ask that Hauptmann be held, but it was believed that it would equal or surpass the record bail for the county, $250,000.

A date for the trial may be set today, with conviction carrying a

MURDERED NEIGHBOR.

WETASKIWIN, Alta., Sept. 27. — (C.P.).—Julius Kassi, 30, convicted of the murder of Julius Molnar on the latter's farm west of here last June 9, to-day was under sentence to be hanged December 31 at Fort Saskatchewan Jail.

Mr. Justice Boyle passed sentence of death late yesterday after a Supreme Court jury had returned a verdict of guilty.

In a dramatic anti-climax to the death sentence, Kassai pounded on the rail of the dock, asked that he be shot rather than hanged, and spat in the faces of witnesses as he was marched from the courtroom.

"Six policemen you should order out to me," Kassai declared in broken English, "and that I should be shot with three bullets in my head and three in my heart."

When sentence was passed Kassai said defiantly to Mr. Justice Boyle, "Thank you very much."

Kassai came to Canada from Hungary in 1927. "I did not come out to b hung," he told the court, and declared that he did not kill Molnar.

The victim's body, with skull fractured and a rope around the neck, was found on June 27 by police under a manure pile on his farm. The Crown at the trial showed that Kassai took Molnar's horses, after the slaying, and sold them.

CHRIST CHURCH IN LAKEFIELD IS 80 YEARS OLD

Little Church Stands as Link With Early Pioneer Days of the Village.

DEDICATED BY STRACHAN.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 27 (Examiner Correspondence).—In September of this year the Church of England celebrates the eightieth anniversary of the building of the first church in Lakefield, which was built by local labor, the cost being covered by subscriptions from England. The first church, which is still standing and used as a parish hall, was erected of stone and set near the road on a lot which gently slopes down to the river. Christ Church, as it was called, was consecrated by that fearless pioneer, John Strachan, first Bishop of Toronto, who left his impress on the life of the province as a pioneer educationalist and founder of Ontario's educational system, and as a zealous churchman.

Lakefield's little church with the God's acre surrounding it is a landmark, or, as a summer visitor called it, "the keepsake church," and is one of the few remaining links of pioneer days.

Pioneers Buried in Yard

The little church yard tells its own story of pioneer history and there the early settlers sleep their last sleep between the swift-flowing Otonabee River and the highway, which is the main street of the village. Naturally there are many unmarked graves and tradition says that the front part of the lot at least is really filled with graves. Among those whose graves are marked are Rev. Henry Wolseley, who was among the first settlers and who held in his own home the first service nearly one hundred years ago. Mr. Wolseley was an uncle of the eminent British soldier, Lord Wolseley, who is closely associated with the quelling of the Northwest Rebellion and the attempt at relieving General Gordon in Khartoun. Another early settler whose grave lies in the old churchyard is that of Robert Casement, Lakefield's first postmaster and a church warden at the time of the building of the new church in 1866.

When the first church was consecrated the first incumbent was Rev. Percy Warren, who remained several years and, after the death of his wife, went back to England. Mrs. Warren's grave is in the churchyard near the northeast corner and has an iron railing about the grave. Colonel Samuel Strickland, his wife and some members of his family also lie there in that God's acre.

Cemetery Moved

More than fifty years ago it was deemed unsanitary to have a "burying ground" in the heart of the village, and the property known as "Hillside" was purchased to take its place. The old church played its part in the early history and some of the families of the two first bridal coupes are still residents. Mr. and Mrs. James Jory were the first, and a week later Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Atwood were married. The bell which hung in the ivy-covered belfry called the volunteers in 1866.

In 1897 the official public services to honor Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee, in Lakefield, was held in St. John's Church and through all the eighty years the church has played an important part in the history of the village.

Rev. Percy Warren went back to England about 1862, and Rev. Vincent Clementi was appointed to succeed him. Mr. Clementi built the house now owned and occupied by Dr. J. C. Smith, and resided in it. This fact is perpetuated in a marble tablet erected in the porch of the church, which also gives the names of Robert Casement and Robert Strickland as the churchwardens. The mason work which is remarkably fine was the work of John Richardson, an Aberdeen stone mason.

Successive clergy were: Rev. Everest, Rev. Horace Musson, Rev. C. Roles Bell, Rev. W. Farncombe, Rev. George Warren(the present Archdeacon of York), Rev. W. J. Creighton, Rev. F. J. Sawers, Rev. H. A. Ben-Oliel, Rev. W. Archbold, Rev. Frank Vipond, Rev. Walter Cox, and Rev. W. J. Creighton, M.A., the present rector. During the war years during the absence of Rev. H. A. Ben-Oliel on active service, various clergymen acted as locum tenens for short periods of time.

Pictures Collected

Following a custom which is becoming more and more in vogue, Rev. W. J. Creighton has been collecting pictures of past incumbents and hanging them in the vestry. By the co-operation of interested members of the parish, the collection has grown till almost all are represented. This summer Mr. Creighton received a letter from a daughter of the late Rev. Percy Warren, asking for a copy of her baptismal certificate, and in response to the request of Mr. Creighton forwarded a picture of her father, which has been added to the gallery. A picture of the late Isaac Watson who was for many years the faithful and efficient sexton is also hung in the vestry.

The completion of the croup has been a dream of Rev. W. J. Creighton; there are still a few to be added, including Rev. Everest, Rev. F. J. Sawers, Rev. W. Archbold, Rev. Frank Vipond, and Rev. Walter Cox.

Motorists Escape Injury In Accident

CAMPBELLFORD, September 27 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Hastings Road was the scene of another motor accident early this morning when a car driven by Thomas Saunders with two companions, crashed head-on into a car owned by William Partridge, of R. R. 1, Dartford, who with his wife was returning home. Both cars were badly damaged, but the occupants escaped serious injury. Provincial Constable Gordon Campbell investigated.

LIQUOR CASE.

Charged with consuming liquor in a public place, Peter St. Clair and Benjamin Bernard, both hailing from Montreal, and here for Fair Day, were assessed ten dollars, and when they appeared in Police Court on Wednesday afternoon. Provincial Constable Gordon Campbell laid the information and the evidence was conclusive, Chief Constable George Hardy producing three partly filled bottles of beer.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Woods, with Dr. and Mrs. H. D. Sparks of Ottowa, were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. S. L. O'Hara of Bridge Street during the week.

Obituary

JACOB COONEY.

MADOC, Sept. 27 (Examiner Correspondence)—On Sunday afternoon the funeral of Jacob Cooney, a resident of Rawdon Township, was held in Trinity United Church.

Mr. Cooney had been residing at the home of his sister, Mrs. A. D. Runnalls, Harold, and death took place on Friday, Sept. 21st, at the age of 78 years.

WARREN SCOTT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WOOLER, September 27. — The death occurred on Thursday of a well known and highly esteemed resident of this village in the person of Warren Scott. He had been ill for several weeks.

The late Mr. Scott was born in Wooler in the year 1856, a son of the late Reuben and Catharine Scott, and accordingly was in his 78th year, and had resided in the village all his life.

Surviving are his wife, Aurilla Steinburgh, two sons, L. E. Scott, and R. A. Scott. The deceased was held in high esteem which was expressed in the beautiful floral tributes. Rev. A. Poulter conducted the funeral service in the United Church, on Saturday afternoon and interment in McPhail's cemetery.

The pall bearers were Norman Easterly, P. J. Wessels, Thorpe Jones, F. A. Doriand, E. M. Wessels and W. A. Smith.

maximum penalty of 20 years at hard labor.

A decision is expected soon on whether to try Hauptmann for extortion in the Bronx or to extradite him to New Jersey for trial on ch[illegible] of kid[illegible]ping and murder. If he is taken to New Jersey, he faces life imprisonment or death.

One bubble of hope in the search for Hauptmann accomplices, not only in the ransom dealings, but the actual kidnapping and killing of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was exploded today.

Dismiss Vagrants Story

A shabby vagrant, arrested last night for soliciting alms in a park, conjured up a picture of plotters conniving the kidnapping in a New Jersey speakeasy.

For a time police attached importance to the story, announcing that they might have an "important break" within 24 hours, but after questioning the man through the night, they said to-day his story "did not hold water."

Undeterred by the failure of this clue, police worked on the Hauptmann home in the Bronx with carpenters to-day, tearing the simple frame structure to bits.

Since the discovery of $13,750—the original Lindbergh ransom cache—in the garage, both house and garage had been searched minutely, a search that was crowned yesterday with the discovery of $840 more in ransom notes and a pistol, hidden cleverly in a cross-piece of the garage.

Confronted with the money and the weapon, Hauptmann answered stolidly:

"Yes, that's mine. I bought that pistol from a German-American a few years ago. The mone/ is part of the Lindbergh ransom money. You should know that."

Under a fire of questions from District Attorney Samuel J. Foley, he said, "You won't find another penny if you take the house apart," and clamped his lips shut.

"Well, now we will take the house apart," said the prosecutor.

In co-operation with the Department of Justice, however, he promised the landlady, Mrs. Pauline Rauch, that the house and garage would be paid for or put together again.

Weddings

NELSON—NICHOLL.

MADOC, Sept. 27 (Examiner Correspondence). — Rebecca Ruby Nicholl of Madoc was united in marriage to Mr. Arthur William Nelson of Kirkland Lake, by Rev. W. A. Hunter, in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc, on Wednesday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock, in the presence of immediate relatives and friends.

The bride was given away by her uncle, Mr William Hawthorne, of Madoc, and was supported by her intimate friend, Miss Minnie Ferguson.

The church was prettily decorated with gladioli and white ribbons by sister Rebekahs.

During the signing of the register, little Stanley Hawthorne sang "I Love You Truly."

FAIR WEDDING

formed the Union ceremonies were not held in a church, but at the stadium in the Canadian National Exhibition grounds at Toronto," said the veteran pastor.

Sanctity of the marriage ceremony was not considered violated when persons of tender years and certain other individuals were married quietly by ministers who accepted a $5 fee, Rev. Mr. Champion added.

"Publicity is the safeguard of marriage," and Rev. Mr. Champion maintained commendation was due Quick and Miss MacVicar for having the courage to take their marriage vows in public.

No Snap Decision

Before he decided to perform the ceremonies, Rev. Mr. Champion continued, he had discussed the matter with other ministers. The Fair Board had tendered a prize for the first couple to be wed before the grandstand and had sanctioned the wedding, and the bride was given away by L. N. Allott, board official.

"They were of age and that was their choice," said the Minister. "It is just the same as being married in the registrar's office, in a parsonage or at a big church wedding."

Flower girls and a ring bearer took part in the wedding before the packed grandstand. Harold Powell of Leamington was best man and Mrs. Mary Mellor was matron of honor. Six of Leamington's fairest maidens were bridesmaids.

And while Lambton Presbytery members frowned over the way they became a happily wedded couple, Mr. and Mrs. William Quick to-day were busy home-making, well supplied with gifts from the Fair Board and Windsor and Leamington merchants.

THINKS HUSBAND NO LONGER BOSS

Strong Silent Man Too Clumsy as Dancing Partner, and That's Not All.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Sept. 27.—(CP)—The Cape Argus takes up editorially the subjectof "Rules for Husbands." In newspaper discussion, it is discovered "the strong silent man no longer holds a commanding position." Man's strength, it is averred, makes him clumsy as a dancing partner, while his formidable silences are apt in time to pall at the domestic dinner table. The paper discusses a maintenance order case in court in which a wife alleged that her husband had deserted her. The husband's defence—successful as it turned out—was that his wife had laid down four rules touching his domestic behaviour, the breaking of which brought such a storm on his head as to make his life unendurable.

"No smoking in the house"—surely a reversion to mid-Victorian days. The second prohibition was against using too much soap in the bathroom. This, too, sounds unreasonable, the editor thinks. If the unhappy, soap-encumbered husband had been warned not to turn the bathroom floor into a swamp—as so many husbands (and wives) do—there would have been sound sense in the restriction.

"Of a much more truly English stamp was the third ban, which forbade the husband to use his wife's toothpaste. Here we confess our sympathies go out to the good woman's demand. She was standing for the right of personal property against the communism which daily invades our private lives. 'One woman, one tube of toothpaste' might well be a Tory slogan.

"The wife's fourth rule was that the husband must not spend his time reading newspapers. The husband who sits after dinner with a book or paper and merely grunts when addressed can be incredibly aggravating and has wrecked many a promising marriage. Or, maybe she thought he ought to help—in washing the dishes or cleaning up the bathroom or something of that sort. It is just possible, however, that she wished to read the newspaper herself. In that case she again elicits our sympathy to the full."

PROPERTY TAX RULING

TORONTO, Sept. 26. — (CP) — With Mr. Justice Masten dissenting, the Appellate Court of Ontario in a judgment delivered at Osgoode Hall today, ruled that Mrs. Mary Stiver and three other London, Ont., women, all Roman Catholics married to Protestant husbands and holding property in joint tenancy, cannot direct that half of the taxes on such property be paid to separate school support.

JURY DISAGREES

WINDSOR, Sept. 26 (CP)—After deliberating for more than five hours a Supreme Court jury reported disagreement in the case of Joseph Gardiner, charged with armed robbery.

Mr. Justice Hope returned Gardiner to custody in the county jail and said he would make direction in the case later in the week.

It was alleged that Gardiner had used a revolver during the holdup of Harry Collison, a Windsor taxi driver, on a Sandwich street.

UPHOLD CONVICTION

TORONTO, Sept. 26 (C.P.) — "We have no hesitation in affirming the conviction," declared Chief Justice Sir William Mulock announcing the judgment of the Ontario Court of Appeal upon a plea of Samuel Greenspan, Niagara Falls, for reversal of his conviction on a charge of having received 1,850 pounds of copper wire, the property of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, knowing the material to have been stolen.

Peter Brown, aged 62 and unemployed, of Leith, Scotland, has been awarded a medal for saving a man from drowning.

Conciliators Named For Strike Charges

WASHINGTON, September 27 (C. P.). — Three veteran conciliators chosen by President Roosevelt plan swift steps to delve deep into charges that United States textile mill owners are discriminating against men involved in the recent strike.

To investigate these complaints—which have brought denials from operators — and take "appropriate action" was the first task imposed on the board when the President named it last night.

The board's personnel— identical with the membership of the Steel Labor Board—is: Walter P. Stacy, Chief Justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court, chairman; Rear-Admiral Henry A. Wiley, retired; and James Mullenbach, noted Chicago labor arbitrator.

TOO MANY LEAKS.

Chief Inspector J. N. Malcolm has announced that as a result of a Government investigation of the relief system in East Windsor prosecutions are to follow.

It is stated that there have been irregularities in the handling of relief orders, and that it has been found that persons working full time have been in receipt of relief.

This situation and similar reports from other municipalities certainly go far to indicate the need of more adequate investigation of relief cases.

It has long been the conviction of The Examiner that this feature of the relief problem has not received the consideration in most places that its importance merits, and that through a mistaken idea of economy, poorly paid and inadequate inspection departments have been relied on, with the result that should have been anticipated, namely, that fraudulent relief applications have been accepted, and there has been a leak of public money in helping families and individuals who are not entitled to such assistance.

The fact that efficient inspection would far more than pay for itself by ridding the relief lists of impostors seems to have been lost sight of altogether, and the consequence has been in a good many municipalities that there has been a waste of public funds in assistance to those not really in need of help.

It would seem to be good business surely to stop the leaks by installing an efficient and adequate paid staff of inspectors.

ENCOURAGING BUILDING.

There has been considerable discussion over the suggestion from Attorney-General Roebuck that the building industry should be encouraged by exempting new buildings from taxation for a period of years.

Building constructors and a great many other people have not been slow in expressing their hearty approval of the plan. On the other hand it has been attacked in some quarters on the ground that under such a policy municipalities would lose a certain amount of taxes, while at the same time municipal expenditures would be increased by the cost of serving these new homes.

It seems to The Examiner that these objections are not very serious.

While there is no building on there is no chance of more taxes so that nothing would be lost by waiving the general levy on new buildings; these of course would be called upon to pay school taxes and water rates, so that the net result would be a gain in revenue.

As for the additional expenses this is an imaginary objection for certainly little more in the way of police and fire protection would have to be provided in the event of a number of new houses being erected.

And it should not be forgotten that after the period of exemption had come to an end all this new property would be fully taxed and municipal revenues would climb as a result.

The building industry has been in a bad way and Mr. Roebuck's suggestion offers one simple plan by which it could be assisted materially.

SAFETY SURVEYS.

R. B. Morley, the general manager of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations, is contributing a useful service in calling attention to the fact that now that industrial production is getting a certain amount of momentum there is need for greater effort along accident prevention lines.

It is undoubtedly true, as he points out, that former employees coming back to work after months of enforced idleness need as much assistance and guidance in accident prevention and job training as do new men.

In this connection the surveys that are being carried on by the inspection force of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations are undoubtedly doing good work, for, as Mr. Morley says, no successful accident prevention program can be started and completed in an industry without a careful and searching survey by experienced and competent men.

The first step in the correction of any undesirable working condition is the discovery of that condition, and it is in the locating and remedying of weaknesses and hazards that the staff of the associations are doing a fine job.

With more men back in employment, there has been a rise in the number of industrial accidents, and it is evident therefore that every employer under workmen's compensation in Ontario should co-operate with the organization and do his part to reduce accidents to a minimum.

UNCLE SAM'S PROBLEM.

President Roosevelt and his Government are facing a financial situation that might well dismay any administration.

Although Senator Harrison, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, has been indulging in optimistic talk to the effect that no new taxes are contemplated, it is not likely that any considerable section of the American people will be deceived by such statements, especially in view of the approaching elections.

As a matter of fact, financial men across the border declare that Uncle Sam will have to seek new revenues to the extent of five hundred million dollars, and it is common knowledge that the Treasury Department is already preparing a tax increase program to be recommended to Congress in January.

This schedule, it is said, will include a new excess profits levy, graduated somewhat on the plan of the income tax brackets; a tax on corporation surpluses; the reduction of income tax reductions from $2,500 to $2,000 in the case of married persons and from $1,500 to $1,000 for single persons, and finally, increase of income taxes generally in the lower brackets.

In other words, while Canadians have some right to look forward to a balanced budget and possibly to a lifting of some of the burden of taxation, our cousins to the south find themselves in the position of having to locate a vast amount of new revenue, and that means heavy increases in taxation for the American people.

WE STILL READ BOOKS.

In these restless days, when nearly everybody seems to be taking a solemn joy in finding fault with everything, making us feel an unregenerate lot, it is good occasionally to find contradictory testimony. So, one of the most pleasing things we read in the papers yesterday was that in 1933 Canada's libraries contained 250,000 more books than in 1931, and that circulation of library books had increased by 1,220,000 volumes.

We are told that the radio, with the movie and the motor car, is destructive of our reading habits, that few of us now take time for contemplation or reflection. Yet people don't go to libraries and carry home books unless they intend to read them, and libraries don't order books unless people demand them. We must conclude, therefore, that those good people who bewail our wayward ways in the matter of reading are not much better than those who bemoan our alleged waywardness in other things. That they are too pessimistic.

It may be true that a lot of us spend a lot of time listening to Eddie Cantor, or maybe Jack Benny, when we might be doing something more useful, and that a lot more of us are fonder of Joan Crawford than of Joan of Arc. On the other hand, it is just possible that people these days have more capacity for mixing fun and play with reading and reflection, with some of the time they used to give to just moping turned over to recreation.

Our own belief, born of reasonably wide contacts, is that there are more fairly well-read and well-informed people to-day than at any time in our history. We may have lost something of the understanding and appreciation of scholasticism for its own sake, may have curious notions about what constitutes education, but as against that we have a far wider circle of people who read books, and more people who read worth-while books.

Time was when, in most communities, the so-called "bookish" man was something of a rarity. Like the old-fashioned schoolmaster, he was the oracle to whom the rest of us appealed when we wished to settle some argument, but between the controversies we thought him "queer." To-day one may encounter people in all walks of life—laborers, artisans, farmers, white-collar workers—who read history, economics, biography, memoirs. More people want to know more about the world and its ways.

It is a hopeful thing in our time. Reading, like education, will not necessarily make a good man, as history teaches all too solemnly. But reading does make a fuller man, a more exact man, and, in most cases, a more useful man. It at least supplies the equipment for a more civilized and more enjoyable life.—Ottawa Journal.

THE CURE IS SIMPLE.

From a resident of Stratford came the following letter:

"I think it is high time your paper spoke out and exposed the games of chance which are operated at the Stratford Fall Fair. I am as sure as I can be that there is no chance of a person winning against the people who run those games of chance. I saw police on the grounds, but they were doing nothing toward closing up the places where the people were constantly losing their money without having a fair chance at the game."

The games which are played at the fall fairs are allowed on the grounds; the local society admits them and there is no law to say they cannot operate. The person who wrote the letter, part of which is given above, went into one of the games and put up his money. He did so because he wanted to take some money away from the man who was operating the game. The man who was operating the game had somewhat the same idea. He wanted to take money from the man who wrote the letter. So in each case the desire or the motive, or whatever you call it, was the same. The result was as it was because the man running the game knew more about it than the man who stood in front of the counter and put up his money.

We have heard people complaining that there were people hired to come and play the game, and they would win, but afterward would be required to go around behind and turn in their winnings. It may be that there were many in the crowd who did not understand the notice which was displayed on which were the words, "Demonstrators Used." That covers the point in the eyes of the law. It means that there were people employed to come along now and then and play and win. They were "demonstrating" how the thing should be done. They were much like the decoy ducks of the shooting season.

The solution to the question is simple, and it can be put in a few words: Stay away from such games. The public must know that men do not go around from one fair to another and erect their games of chance with the idea of distributing money and making good fellows of themselves. Each place they stop they are going to take away money with them; they are going to win a good deal more than they pay out, and in order to do this the game must be so arranged that their chances are better than those of the passing public.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

With the by-elections out of the way the administration of the beer law in Ontario should receive a little more consideration.

The international yacht races degenerated from a sporting contest into a bitter controversy. Such events are enemies to the cause of international good-will.

Up to the present moment none of the defeated candidates in Monday's by-elections has made any move to demand a recount.

ALEXANDRIA, ONTARIO.

The nucleus of the town of Alexandria was formed in the year 1819, when a grist mill was erected on the Garry river by the Rt. Rev. Alexander Macdonnell, first Roman Catholic bishop of Kingston, who was then a parish priest of the county of Glengary. It was first called Priest's Mills, in the Gaelic language "Moulin Taggarst", and was afterwards changed to Alexandria in honor of the priest. Soon after the grist mill was erected small wooden houses began to be built around the millsite, and a sawmill, stores and a hotel followed as a matter of course.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

YOU CAN'T WIN AN ARGUMENT.

In all my life I've never won an argument.

I've tried. Certainly I've tried. Thousands of times. Since I was kneehigh to a grasshopper I've been trying to win them. But never once have I been the victor in any argumant with cat, puppy, child, man or woman.

I've won other things. Once I won a footrace. Once I won a pair of shoes in a raffle. I won $20 once for a funny poem. I won a pool on the score of a world series game. I've matched coins to see who'd pay the street car fare and won . . . But never any arguments.

I've argued about education. About child training. About freedom. About independence, evolution, the nature of man and woman, socialism, communism, anarchism, politics. About books. About economics. About religion. About people . . . Hot and heavy. Up and down. In and out. From twilight to midnight, from dark to dawn. Amicably, irritably, patiently, explosively, quietly and loudly I have argued.

But never once did any opponent of mine in any argument finally say to me, "I quit. You win. You have convinced me that you are right and that I am wrong." . . . Those people I have argued with always have been stubborn. They wanted their own way. They couldn't see the truth when I placed it before them on a silver platter. And they wouldn't give up . . . Of course sometimes after much argument I have had my own way. When I was a youngster I probably wore my mother out until she let me do what I wanted. Or, later, some opponent had to catch a train and stopped arguing because of that. But I have never had what you would call an intellectual conquest, and I am firmly convinced that nobody else ever won an argument, either.

I should admit, I suppose, that neither have I ever LOST any arguments. Of course, you understand, I would have admitted defeat gracefully if any of my opponents had ever been right and I was wrong. But somehow they never were. They have always been stubborn, perverse, badly informed, and they didn't look at things from the right point of view . . . And I couldn't surrender my point of view in favor of theirs . . . Of course you understand how it is. You've had arguments, too.

Popular Astronomy

Is a Science of History Likely

BY H. W. L. MAHOOD

The first result of the Science of Astronomy was foresight. If a Science of History can be reached it will be of incalculable advantage. But there seem to be insurmountable difficulties. In the beginning days but little knowledge of mathematics, and with flat walls and the dial-plate the early searchers of the heavens made progress. There was a reason. The phenonema observed recurred within short periods of time. This made possible the gathering of many facts from observation within a lifetime. This writer recalls a lecture delivered before the Royal Institution of London by James Anthony Froude in 1864. He was a historian. Things, he said, whether read, or heard, fastened on the mind, and remain with a vivid impression. As the writer of this article read his lecture there was an inner pull to read slowly and ponder. I can see some of those packed sentences still. Speaking of the discoveries in Astronomy, he said: The days and month, and years, are measurable periods, and within them the more simple phenomena were repeated perpetually.

Then in his lecture he asks how would it have been if, instead of turning on its axis once in twenty-four hours, the Earth had taken a year, and if the year had been four hundred years, and if man's life had been no longer than it now is, and if there had been nothing but observations recorded in history? We might answer his question by saying: There would be but little to record as a Science of Astronomy after a hundred years of observation. Would any one have discovered that there is order in our universe? Parts of Astronomy dependent upon observations recorded at different and remote times still puzzle the greatest astronomers. The movements of comets are uncertain. The time of return cannot be calculated with certainty. Science is certainty, not uncertainty. Then how about a science of History? There the phenomena do not repeat. The scientist is dependent for his calculations upon the record of events that have occurred but not recurred.

HASTINGS COMMISSION HOLDS FIRST MEETING

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 27. — The inaugural session of the local Park Commission was held on Tuesday night in the council chambers with Reeve G. R. Stevenson, L. E. Kelley, Rev. Father P. J. Kelley, J. A. Brown, L. F. Daly and A. S. Spooner, present.

Reeve Stevenson was elected chairman and Father Kelley secretary, until Mr. J. V. Findlay's return. Mr. J. A. Brown resigned his seat and Mr. A. G. Parker was not present to state his intentions at the first meeting.

The matter of an open air rink was discussed and if they receive the necessary support from the sportsmen of the village the Park Board will put one up.

TWINS SO ALIKE PARENTS AT SEA

Babies So Perfect Doubles That Doctors Are Much Surprised.

WIN FIRST PRIZE.

TORONTO, Sept. 26 (C.P.) — Featuring the baby show at the Canadian National Exhibition this year were twins whom the doctors positively could not tell apart. They captured first prize in their class. They were Sheilla and Sherlia Stevens—the front names didn't help much for distinguishing purposes either.

Sheill and Sherlia actually look more alike than their names sound. Daughters of Mr. and Mrs. P. K. Stevens of Toronto, they are so much alike they go round with tags and only by the tags can their parents tell the difference. Once the tags were changed and so no one has ever been quite sure since which was Sheilla and which Sherlia. They are 18 months old.

More than a year ago someone mixed up the tags which the perfect blondes with the big blue eyes were wearing to distinguish them. "We took them to the doctor and asked him which was which. He said he could only guess. So we're not such which is Sherlia and which Sheilla," Mrs. Stevens said.

When one laughs the other starts to laugh. When one cries the other cries. And when one gets stick, the other does, too, Mrs. Stevens stated.

Some 625 babies were entered in the show. They were mostly fair-haired and they came in simple frocks. One youngster, though, was all wrapped up in a sweater over which she wore a sun suit. When her mother proceeded to put a band of pink ribbon round her head, Dr. Nelson rushed over and removed it, "I can't stand those rosettes," he declared.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

FIRST ANGLICAN SERVICE AT QUEBEC.

On this date, in 1759, the first Church of England service was held at Quebec. It was in the Recollets' chapel upon the site of which years later, curiously enough, the cathedral of the Holy Trinity was erected. It was a service of thanksgiving for the success which had been permitted to the British arms and must have been most impressive, for General Murray, the other military commanders and the naval officers were present, the music being supplied by one of the military bands. I have not the name of the preacher of the occasion, but he was one of fourteen chaplains who had accompanied the victorious army and navy up the St. Lawrence. One chronicler commented upon the beauty of the Te Deum as rendered by the band and upon the enthusiasm with which all present answered the responses and joined in singing the psalms of thanksgiving. The national anthem was of course, sung, and after the service the people of Quebec had the opportunity of watching the first British church parade in our history and of listening to bands and pipers as the troops passed through the hilly streets of the city.

One man present at that thanksgiving service was unique. He was Rev. Michel Houin, an itinerant missionary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, who had, somehow or other got up from his usual station in New Jersey and who took part in the battle on the plains. He had, before becoming a convert to the Church of England, been (it is said) superior of a monastery in Canada, though it is hard to believe. However, he was much thought of by the officers in control and was kept in Canada for two years as adviser to Murray and later to Amherst at Montreal, and it is just possible that he took part also in the service of thanksgiving at Montreal on September 14, 1760, which took place in the Jesuits' chapel. It would appear as if the Anglican services in those early days were all conducted by the military chaplains, for Rev. John Ogilvie, who had held service at Fort Niagara and at various points down the St. Lawrence, held services at Montreal all the first winter, while Rev. John Brooke, chaplain to the fleet, was in charge of the services at Quebec.

LONDONER WILL GO UP FOR TRIAL ON TWO COUNTS

Committed After "Mr. A" Tells Story in Blackmail Probe.

CLAIMS $1,000 STOLEN.

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 27.—In the face of strenuous objections raised by J. M. Donahue, defending lawyer, Frank Taylor, Sr., was committed for trial late yesterday afternoon by Police Magistrate T. W. Scandrett, K.C., on two charges arising out of the recent blackmail probe.

The charges are that on Jan. 12, 1932, he stole $1,000 from Mr. A. the London businessman who has sued and criminally charged Mrs. Mae Turnbull, Taylor's former wife, with extorting a total of $10,855 from him by threats and menaces.

Mr. A. entered the witness box and told his story in detail at today's hearing. He alleges that Mrs. Turnbull invited him to her Lorne Avenue home. He says that when he arrived the lights were out in accordance with their pre-arrangement and that he entered the house and committed acts of immorality with her. While they were so engaged, he said, Taylor dashed in from another room with a flashlight, and threatened to call police.

Met Next Day

He said that on the following day he met Taylor and together they went to an East London bank where he paid Taylor $1,000 and took from him a signed agreement prepared by the manager of the bank under which Taylor agreed never again to mention what he knew of Mr. A. The bank manager confirmed this story and identified the agreement which was produced.

Detective Gavin Monohan and Inspector Thomas Cousans of the provincial police, who have been at work on the blackmail probe, both testified that Taylor, after his arrest and after being warned, gave them a signed statement in which Taylor alleged that Mr. A. had proposed the settlement and had raised offers from a start of $65 to $700 and later to $1,000. Taylor's story was that he had come back to the home of his former wife and had found the doors locked. He said he entered through the coal shute not knowing what he would find and that when he discovered Mr. A. and Mrs. Turnbull in a compromising position, he threatened to call police, but they persuaded him against it, and bother offered him money.

Mr. A.'s story in this connection was that when he met Taylor on the following morning on Queen's Avenue he saw Mrs. Turnbull drive past twice in her car and that when the meeting was held at the bank Mrs. Turnbull was waiting at the door to see how much had been paid.

Trent River

Ideal September weather has prevailed all week. The thermometer reached the 80 mark in the shade on Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. James Wright of Toronto, who summers at "Windmere" cottage is spending the week in Toronto, and celebrated her 80th birthday on Thursday, September 27th, when she was guest of honor at a birthday party given her by her daughter, Mrs. John A. Alexander of the "Windmere", 232 Jarvis street, Toronto.

Mrs. E. H. Fairbrother expects to remain at her summer home till the middle of October. Mr. and Mrs. Mowry (sister of Mrs. Fairbrother) of Providence, Rhode Island, will remain as guests.

Mr. Garrat of Toronto is spending a few days at his summer home down the Trent shores.

Mr. Clarence Revoir, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lagrow and son Charles and Mrs. G. James left Tuesday by motor for Noranda, Quebec, after spending over the week-end at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Revoir.

Mr. Kenneth Craddock of Trenton is a visitor with Mr. Leslie McMillan.

Mrs. E. Cunningham, daughter Gloria and son Omar have taken up residence in Toronto. Gloria is attending Public School while Omar a pupil in attendance at High School.

Two muskinonge were caught Monday afternoon while Mr. and Mrs. George Holmes were trolling from a motor boat in muskinonge Bay. Mrs. Holmes caught one weighing 6 pounds while Mr. Holmes landed one weighing 5 pounds.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 97c to 99c; oats, 35c to 36c; barley, 60c to 64c; corn, 85c to 86c; rye, 55c to 57c; buckwheat, 55c to 56c; malting barley, 69c to 72c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Butter tended slightly easier in price, while prices of other products remained unchanged on the Montreal produce and dairy market yesterday.

Fresh No. 1 butter was quoted at 19½c a pound in carlots or less, against Tuesday's level of 19½c to 19¾c. To the retail trade, small lots brought 20½c for solids and 21½c for prints. Only three boxes were received.

On the cheese market, Ontario colored was priced at 10¾c a pound, while Quebec colored brought 9¾c. Ontario white, Septembers, was 10c to 10¼c a pound, and Quebec white sold at 9¼c. Receipts totalled 1,760 boxes.

Egg quotations were again unchanged, graded shipments in carlots or less being, 28c a dozen for "A" large, 26c for "A" medium, 21c for "B" and 19½c for "C." Arrivals totalled 2,774 cases.

New Quebec potatoes were 35c to 45c per 80-pound bag, and new New Brunswick Mountains brought 55c per 80-pound bag. Old stock sold at 20c to 25c per 80-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Virtual disappearance of the sudden display of buying power that late Tuesday put grain prices up led to an irregular downward trend yesterday.

Announcement from Washington that $50,000,000 would be used to import foreign feedstuffs had a general bearish effect, although some leading trade authorities contended that the importation program would only apply to hay and forage products and not to grains. Another factor conducive to downturns was an unofficial report that seeding of domestic winter wheat was making rapid progress, with 75 per cent. of the work completed in Kansas.

After maximum setbacks of a cent a bushel, wheat closed easy, ⅝-¾ under Tuesday's finish. December new $1.03⅛ to $1.03⅝; corn also ⅝-¾ down; December new 78⅛; oats unchanged to ⅜ off, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to a rise of 5 cents.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, September 27. — Wavering wheat prices dropped fractionally under late hedging pressure on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday, to close ⅛c to ¼c lower.

October option closed at 81⅝c, December at 82⅛c and May at 87⅛c. In early operations gains of ⅛c were recorded when a reversal of the downward trend at Liverpool was noted. Small gains were held until the closing minutes.

Export business in Canadian wheat was estimated at about 250,000 bushels. Other support, aside from some buying by the Government agency, was hard to trace.

Less than 750,000 bushels of wheat were delivered at country points on Tuesday, but support was not sufficient to absorb even this small amount of hedging.

Cash grain offerings were light, and only a small business was worked. Coarse grains were comparatively steady in dull trading.

CATTLE LACK QUALITY.

OTTAWA, September 27 (C.P.).—A cable to the Department of Agriculture reports the arrival of the Manchester Brigade at Birkenhead, with Canadian cattle. The shipment contained a large percentage of common and rough quality stock. No sales had been made at time of cabling, and the trade was reported quiet due to the liberal offerings of home cattle and the general lack of quality in the Canadian shipment.

STRIKE SETTLED.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—(C.P. Cable).—A settlement between the parties to the coal dispute in South Wales averting the strike threatened for October 1 was announced by the Mines Department this evening.

SENTIMENT IS IMPROVED ON WALL STREET

Stocks Hold Firm Generally, Although Selling Prevails in Metal Group.

McINTYRE DOWN.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 (AP).—Stocks were generally firm today despite selling in the metal group. Active broadened during rallying spells. The heaviness in smelting and mining issues appeared to check the advance in the late dealings. U. S. Smelting and McIntyre lost more than 3 points each. Santa Fe, U. S. Steel, Du Pont, Celanese and Chrysler were firm. Transfers approximated 775,000 shares.

While there was little news that might have spurred equities to any enthusiastic performance, sentiment seemed much improved when compared with the recent gloom that hovered over the financial sector.

Bonds were diffident, with U. S. Governments slightly lower.

Aside from heaviness in McIntyre, Canadian stocks were narrowly changed. Dome, ex-dividend, sold a shade lower. Canadian Pacific was steady while International Nickel improved slightly. On the curb, Lake Shore and Hiram Walker were fairly even. Dominion Government bonds were inactive. The Canadian dollar was off 1-8 of a cent at 102 15-16 cents.

Gainers of fractions to a point or so included Celanese, Industrial Rayon, Spiegel-May-Stern, Montgomery Ward Sears Roebuck, Oppenheim Collins, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Santa Fe, N.Y. Central, Bethlehem Steel, U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Loew's, U. S. Rubber preferred, Union Carbide, Du Pont and American Commercial Alcohol.

BUOYANT TONE IN INDUSTRIALS

Gains Have Margin Over Losses But Volume is Decreased.

DISTILLERIES LEAD.

TORONTO, Sept. 27 (CP).—The distillery shares led an afternoon move to higher levels on the industrial section of the Toronto Exchange today. Trade in the group was active and there was a substantial trade also in the oils and some of the brewery stocks. International Petroleum closed at 29 for a gain of ¾ and Imperial was steady at 14⅞. Gains held a good margin over losses at the close but volume on the whole was down from that of Wednesday.

The depressed tone of the early session gave place after noon to a more buoyant outlook and the board was soon spotted with fractional gains. Volume also expanded.

Distillery shares were favored in the early afternoon, heavy blocks of Walkers Common going through at higher prices, action reflecting gains in the liquor group on the New York market. The Brewing Corporation issues continued in demand in anticipation of a possible dividend announcement following today's meeting of the board of directors.

Interlisted leaders were strong this afternoon, with Ford "A", C.P.R. and Nickel in fair demand.

Distillers Corporation-Seagrams had a full-point rise and Walkers Common was up ⅞ to 26, while Industrial Alcohol added ¼. In the brewery group Brewing Corporation preferred held on to a morning advance of ¾ to 29 and other leaders were unchanged.

Interest in Brazilian was renewed and the issue closed on the up side. Gains were also registered for C.P.R. and Ford "A" but Nickel closed unchanged.

HIGHER GOLDS SHOW DECLINE

Cheaper Issues Stand Up Under Pressure of New York Selling.

SILVERS STRONGER.

TORONTO, Sept. 27 (CP).—The gold shares weakened today while silvers perked up on the mining section of the Toronto Stock Exchange. The high-priced gold shares exhibited less vitality than the cheaper issues under pressure of lower prices on the New York Board for the yellow metal shares. Base metal issues were also slightly soft in spots.

The whole market was slow and barely firm in the morning trading but volume expanded in the early afternoon with buying active in the silver shares. Castle moved up 6 cents to 60 and Eldorado came back from a low of 1.95 to close at 2.10 for a net gain of 5 cents. Dome led the gold retreat with a loss of 1.50 to $40 and Pioneer and Hollinger weakened 15 cents to 40 each and Wright Hargreaves 5 cents. McIntyre dropped $1.

JOBS FOR 200

NORTH BAY, Ont., Sept. 2 (CP)—Nearly 200 persons in this district will obtain temporary employment from October 15 until October 20, when enumerators who compile the Federal Voters' List for the riding will be at work under the supervision of Wilfrid Aubry, District Franchise Officer. Twenty-six enumerators will do the work in North Bay and forty will be used in Sudbury.

Livestock-Produce Quotations

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Sept. 27 (C.P.)—Trading continued slow in the early afternoon on the Toronto Livestock Market to-day, with only about 70 head of cattle sold. Hogs settled steady. Calves, lambs and sheep were all steady.

Receipts as supplied by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 40, Calves 50, hogs 160, sheep and lambs 340.

Common butcher cattle brought $2 to $3 and a few common stocker cattle sold from $2 to $3.25.

Calves were steady at $7 for choice with a few grassers selling as low as $2.75.

Hogs steadied to $7 for bacons, $7.35 off truck and $7.75 off cars.

Lambs remained steady at $5.75 for good ewes and wethers, with one choice load at $5.85. About a dozen sheep brought $1 to $3.

TORONTO CHEESE

TORONTO, Sept. 27 (C.P.)—The Toronto wholesale cheese market was steady to-day, with dealers buying large, colored, paraffined and government grades at 10¼c.

Wholesalers offered cheese to retailers at the following prices: New, large, 11¾c; twins, 12c; triplets, 12¼c; old, large 17c; twins 17¼c; triplets 17½c; medium, large 15c, twins 15¼c, triplets 15½c.

Steel of Canada

Steel of Canada returned to it's 7 per cent. dividend rate on the common shares yesterday with the announcement that 43¾ cents is to be paid November 1st to shareholders of record September 30th. The improved earnings for the company recently reported are responsible for the increased dividend. A rate of 7 per cent. was maintained on the old common shares from 1919 to 1928 and when the new common shares made their appearance this rate was continued until February 1st, 1933, when the dividend was cut to 30 cents quarterly. This latter rate of $1.20 annually has been paid since that time in quarterly disbursements.

LINDBERGH PAYS SURPRISE VISIT TO SEE SUSPECT

Wears Disguise and Watches Prisoner From Line of Bronx Detectives.

BAIL SET $100,000.

Hauptmann Pleads Not Guilty to Extortion—Hearing Adjourned.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (AP).—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh made a surprise visit to the Bronx county building to-day and, disguised and in a line of detectives, viewed Bruno Richard Hauptmann, former German machine-gunner charged with extorting $50,000 from the flyer

District Attorney Samuel J. Foley disclosed the meeting after Hauptmann had pleaded not guilty to an indictment returned by a Bronx county grand jury yesterday charging extortion in the Lindbergh kidnap case.

Colonel Lindbergh made the trip from his Englewood, N.J., home accompanied by several members of the District Attorney's staff and rushed to the Bronx county building.

He entered unnoticed, and as a guise wore a pair of horn-rimmed gasses and a cap.

Whisked to the sixth foor of the buiding in a private elevator, Col. Lindbergh took his place in a line of detectives and the prisoner was brought in. The disguise served to prevent Hauptmann from knowing that Lindbergh was in the line, but further details of the meeting were not disclosed by Foley. The district Attorney said that the outcome of the meeting would not be made public.

10-Minute Visit.

The visit of Col. Lindbergh in the "line-up" at the district attorney's office lasted 10 minutes, from 9.50 to 10 a.m. It resulted from a wish expressed by the flyer to see the prisoner. During the "line-up" Lindbergh did not utter a word, Charles Brodie, chief clerk in the district attorney's office, announced after Foley had made the meeting public. Foley also said that Lindbergh did not comment afterwards either to Foley or any member of the prosecutor's staff.

When the "line-up" was concluded, Col. Lindbergh left immediately, also unnoticed.

The line-up caused a delay in arraignment of the prisoner before County Judge Lester W. Patterson. Hauptmann appeared in a daze when he was led before the bench, wearing a wrinkled light grey suit, a white shirt with the collar open and no tie. He had a stubby growth of beard and said nothing during the brief proceeding, which required five or six minutes.

Pleads Not Guilty.

His plea of "not guilty" was voiced by his counsel, James W. Fawcett, after Judge Patterson had opened "the case of the State of New York against Bruno Richard Hauptman and his several aliases." The court announced that the arraignment was made on a bench warrant handed down yesterday at the same time that the Bronx County Grand Jury fyled its indictment.

District Attorney asked that the prisoner be held without bail, and Fawcett voiced the "not guilty" plea and asked to be heard. Defence counsel referred to a section of the penal law of the State, quoting from it that bail is permissable in crimes of extortion, and asked that bail be set at $5,000 "in the name of justice." Fawcett told the court that $5,000 was all that Hauptmann had been able to raise. During his plea Fawcett said that no case brought against Hauptmann in Germany had been proven to be a felony.

SILVER MARTS MAY COMBINE

New York Endeavours to Convince Canadians Two Exchanges Unnecessary.

OFFICIALS TO MEET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (CP)—Officials of the Toronto and Montreal Stock Exchanges were scheduled to meet here again to-day to consider consolidating the proposed silver future trading facilities in these centres.

They held a session yesterday with United States metal brokers to thresh out details of a possible merger. Later it was announced that opening of the Montreal silver market had been set back from Oct. 1 to Oct. 3.

New York silver trading interests have been trying lately to convince the Canadian exchanges of the need for linking their projected silver departments on the ground that there is not enough business to support two silver market in the Dominion. The New York voice has naturally been prominent in the plans for much of the business any new market would do would come from the United States where trading in silver futures has been suspended since the nationalization of the metal on August 9.

Montreal Better Site

In answer to the claims that Toronto was the logical place for the market because of its ticker service and more active stock market, Montreal interests declared that city a better site because of its geographical location and advantages as a shipping centre.

The suggestion had been put forward here that the market in silver futures should go to Toronto, with Montreal made an optional delivery centre and Montreal Silver Exchange members given associate memberships in the Toronto Stock Exchange. But it was contended that Montreal members preferred an outright membership in an exchange with a full voice in its affairs to an associate membership, allowing only trading privileges.

J. A. O'BRIEN FACES CHARGE

"that there was no evidence before Judge McGibbon that the money was converted to his own use by Mr. O'Brien.

Judge Boles said that the salient points were that the accused had received certain moneys, that he had not paid the money as directed, and the inference was that he had converted the money to his own use.

Mr. Carley replied that if Judge McGibbon was without jurisdiction Mr. O'Brien had a lawful excuse for not paying the money to any person.

Judge Boles said he would make a note of the appeal action.

Judge Ruddy's Request.

Mr. Urquhart submitted a document dated May 18, 1934, signed by Judge Ruddy of Whitby as Judge of the Surrogate Court in Peterborough County requesting some person not named in the document to act as Judge in the Surrogate Court here.

Mr. Sherry said that no person was named in the document.

Mr. Urquhart—Who presented it?

Mr. Sherry—I can't tell you.

Witness said it was produced here on May 23 when Judge McGibbon was sitting here.

Mr. Carley objected that it should go in as an authority of jurisdiction.

Judge Ruddy's request referred specifically to the Sarah Menzies estate action in the words: "I request you in writing to act as Judge in the Surrogate Court."

Jas. H. Sparling, accountant of the Bank of Commerce, testified that there had been no payment of the sum of $4,565.62 received since July. The Bank of Commerce was authorized to receive deposits directed by the Surrogate court in this county.

S. B. Molton, accountant of the Bank of Montreal, said that Mrs. Menzies had an account in that bank which was closed on January 4, 1934, by J. A. O'Brien, administrator.

Mrs. Menzies died on March 17, 1933.

F. M. Lonergan, accountant of the Royal Bank, said that the account of Sarah Menzies had been transferred to the name of the estate of Sarah Menzies at the request of the administrator of the estate, Mr. O'Brien.

G. N. Gordon Examined.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., stated that he had acted for all the heirs of Sarah Menzies, and had obtained an order frrom Judge Huycke requiring Mr. O'Brien to file and pass estate accounts.

Judge Huycke died on May 8th, and Judge Robert Ruddy was officially appointed Judge of the Surrogate court in Peterboro, witness said.

Referring to the document signed by Judge Ruddy, Mr. Gordon explained that he had seen it signed by Judge Ruddy and had delivered it to Judge McGibbon.

"I saw it in Judge McGibbon's hands," Mr. Gordon said.

The next sitting of the Surrogate court in the estate case was on May 23, when Judge McGibbon of Lindsay presided for Judge Ruddy.

TWO SERGEANTS GET JAIL TERMS

wheel of the car and turned around in pursuit of the other car. It had stopped near Springbrook Farm and the officer said, the occupants of the car were drinking beer.

"I asked 'What are you trying to do?' and produced my warrant showing that I am a provincial police officer, and told the occupants of the car they were under arrest. Someone in the car replied 'Oh yeah'."

Later, the officer said he was talking to Sergeant Chard when Robert Lawrie struck him a severe blow from behind on the back of the head. "I fell to the pavement and after struggling up to grapple with Robert Lawrie, his brother Hugh took part in the assault. From that time on I took a good beating from the two brothers. Mrs. Hornick stopped two or three cars and finally had to walk half a mile to telephone for assistance. Constable Jack Naples of the city police was the first to arrive and later Provincial Constable David Silvester and other members of the city police arrived."

"Constable Joseph Wheeler had some difficulty in arresting Hugh Lawrie and Naples and I had considerable trouble in arresting Robert Lawrie who had run off into the swamp," the officer testified.

In answer to the Crown Attorney the officer said that while awaiting the arrival of the police the battle continued. At times, he said, he was on the pavement with the two Lawrie brothers piled on top of him, and at other times he was in the ditch. A blue suit the officer was wearing was practically ruined and his shirt was almost torn from his back.

"At the time the police arrived from Peterborough, I was feeling pretty weary," the officer confessed.

He paid tribute to the assistance he had received from Jack Downer of Peterborough and Otto Pue, storekeeper at Fraserville.

Cross-examining the Crown witness, Hugh Lawrie asked: "You admitted that I tried to help you?"

"Yes; you did after Pue and Downer appeared on the scene," the officer replied.

"I got a considerable beating myself trying to help you," Hugh Lawrie claimed.

He told the magistrate that the fight had been caused mainly because they had failed to realize that Hornick was a provincial officer. "He was in civilian clothes and the boys didn't realize who he was. He had only a little wee warrant," the accused complained.

Character evidence on behalf of the two accused was tendered by Major H. Drope, officer commanding "A" Company, Northumberland Regiment; Albert Bird, Cobourg contractor, and Edward Bennett of Port Hope, who described himself as an old professional boxer.

Each of the witnesses testified to the former good character of the accused, and Mr. Bennett pleaded with the magistrate to "give them a chance; they are only young men."

The Crown stated: "It would look as though the accused had absolutely disregarded the rights of the public." He urged. "Police officers must be protected in the execution of their duty," and demanded suitable punishment for the offences.

CATTLE LACK QUALITY.

OTTAWA, September 27 (C.P.).—A cable to the Department of Agriculture reports the arrival of the Manchester Brigade at Birkenhead, with Canadian cattle. The shipment contained a large percentage of common and rough quality stock. No sales had been made at time of cabling, and the trade was reported quiet due to the liberal offerings of home cattle and the general lack of quality in the Canadian shipment.

STRIKE SETTLED.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—(C.P. Cable).—A settlement between the parties to the coal dispute in South Wales averting the strike threatened for October 1 was announced by the Mines Department this evening.

SENTIMENT IS IMPROVED ON WALL STREET

Stocks Hold Firm Generally, Although Selling Prevails in Metal Group.

McINTYRE DOWN.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 (AP).—Stocks were generally firm today despite selling in the metal group. Active broadened during rallying spells. The heaviness in smelting and mining issues appeared to check the advance in the late dealings. U. S. Smelting and McIntyre lost more than 3 points each. Santa Fe, U. S. Steel, Du Pont, Celanese and Chrysler were firm. Transfers approximated 775,000 shares.

While there was little news that might have spurred equities to any enthusiastic performance, sentiment seemed much improved when compared with the recent gloom that hovered over the financial sector.

Bonds were diffident, with U. S. Governments slightly lower.

Aside from heaviness in McIntyre, Canadian stocks were narrowly changed. Dome, ex-dividend, sold a shade lower. Canadian Pacific was steady while International Nickel improved slightly. On the curb, Lake Shore and Hiram Walker were fairly even. Dominion Government bonds were inactive. The Canadian dollar was off 1-8 of a cent at 102 15-16 cents.

Gainers of fractions to a point or so included Celanese, Industrial Rayon, Spiegel-May-Stern, Montgomery Ward Sears Roebuck, Oppenheim Collins, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Santa Fe, N.Y. Central, Bethlehem Steel, U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Loew's, U. S. Rubber preferred, Union Carbide, Du Pont and American Commercial Alcohol.

BUOYANT TONE IN INDUSTRIALS

Gains Have Margin Over Losses But Volume is Decreased.

DISTILLERIES LEAD.

TORONTO, Sept. 27 (CP).—The distillery shares led an afternoon move to higher levels on the industrial section of the Toronto Exchange today. Trade in the group was active and there was a substantial trade also in the oils and some of the brewery stocks. International Petroleum closed at 29 for a gain of ¾ and Imperial was steady at 14⅞. Gains held a good margin over losses at the close but volume on the whole was down from that of Wednesday.

The depressed tone of the early session gave place after noon to a more buoyant outlook and the board was soon spotted with fractional gains. Volume also expanded.

Distillery shares were favored in the early afternoon, heavy blocks of Walkers Common going through at higher prices, action reflecting gains in the liquor group on the New York market. The Brewing Corporation issues continued in demand in anticipation of a possible dividend announcement following today's meeting of the board of directors.

Interlisted leaders were strong this afternoon, with Ford "A", C.P.R. and Nickel in fair demand.

Distillers Corporation-Seagrams had a full-point rise and Walkers Common was up ⅛ to 26, while Industrial Alcohol added ¼. In the brewery group Brewing Corporation preferred held on to a morning advance of ¾ to 29 and other leaders were unchanged.

Interest in Brazilian was renewed and the issue closed on the up side. Gains were also registered for C.P.R. and Ford "A" but Nickel closed unchanged.

HIGHER GOLDS SHOW DECLINE

Cheaper Issues Stand Up Under Pressure of New York Selling.

SILVERS STRONGER.

TORONTO, Sept. 27 (CP).—The gold shares weakened today while silvers perked up on the mining section of the Toronto Stock Exchange. The high-priced gold shares exhibited less vitality than the cheaper issues under pressure of lower prices on the New York Board for the yellow metal shares. Base metal issues were also slightly soft in spots.

The whole market was slow and barely firm in the morning trading but volume expanded in the early afternoon with buying active in the silver shares. Castle moved up 6 cents to 60 and Eldorado came back from a low of 1.95 to close at 2.10 for a net gain of 5 cents. Dome led the gold retreat with a loss of 1.50 to $40 and Pioneer and Hollinger weakened 15 cents to 40 each and Wright Hargreaves 5 cents. McIntyre dropped $1.

JOBS FOR 200

NORTH BAY, Ont., Sept. 2 (CP)—Nearly 200 persons in this district will obtain temporary employment from October 15 until October 20, when enumerators who compile the Federal Voters' List for the riding will be at work under the supervision of Wilfrid Aubry, District Franchise Officer. Twenty-six enumerators will do the work in North Bay and forty will be used in Sudbury.

Livestock-Produce Quotations

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Sept. 27 (C.P.) — Trading continued slow in the early afternoon on the Toronto Livestock Market to-day, with only about 70 head of cattle sold. Hogs settled steady. Calves, lambs and sheep were all steady.

Receipts as supplied by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 40, Calves 50, hogs 160, sheep and lambs 340.

Common butcher cattle brought $2 to $3 and a few common stocker cattle sold from $2 to $3.25.

Calves were steady at $7 for choice with a few grassers selling as low as $3.75.

Hogs steadied to $7 for bacons, $7.35 off truck and $7.75 off cars.

Lambs remained steady at $5.75 for good ewes and wethers, with one choice load at $5.85. About a dozen sheep brought $1 to $3.

TORONTO CHEESE

TORONTO, Sept. 27 (C.P.)—The Toronto wholesale cheese market was steady to-day, with dealers buying large, colored, paraffined and government grades at 10¾c.

Wholesalers offered cheese to retailers at the following prices: New, large, 11¾c; twins, 12c; triplets, 12¼c; old, large 17c; twins 17¼c; triplets 17½c; medium, large 15c, twins 15¼c, triplets 15½c.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

TORONTO, Sept. 27 (C.P.) — Wholesale prices on fruit and vegetables as supplied by White and Co., were reported unchanged here to-day.

Beattie

A balance sheet filed with the Toronto Stock Exchange shows the financial position of Beattie Gold Mines, Ltd., as at July 31st, 1934. On that date current assets amounted to $895,616, of which $838,830 was concentrates in transit. Current liabilities were $418,602, indicating a working capital of $477,000. For the month of July gross production was $144,178 and operating costs $65,878. Marketing costs amounted to $32, 335 and smelter deduction $2,926, leaving an operating profit of $43,038 for the month. This is at the rate of over $500,000 annually. Earnings shown are before taxes and depreciation.

Steel of Canada

Steel of Canada returned to it's 7 per cent. dividend rate on the common shares yesterday with the announcement that 43¾ cents is to be paid November 1st to shareholders of record September 30th. The improved earnings for the company recently reported are responsible for the increased dividend. A rate of 7 per cent. was maintained on the old common shares from 1919 to 1928 and when the new common shares made their appearance this rate was continued until February 1st, 1933, when the dividend was cut to 30 cents quarterly. This latter rate of $1.20 annually has been paid since that time in quarterly disbursements.

LINDBERGH PAYS SURPRISE VISIT TO SEE SUSPECT

Wears Disguise and Watches Prisoner From Line of Bronx Detectives.

BAIL SET $100,000.

Hauptmann Pleads Not Guilty to Extortion—Hearing Adjourned.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (AP).—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh made a surprise visit to the Bronx county building to-day and, disguised and in a line of detectives, viewed Bruno Richard Hauptmann, former German machine-gunner charged with extorting $50,000 from the flyer.

District Attorney Samuel J. Foley disclosed the meeting after Hauptmann had pleaded not guilty to an indictment returned by a Bronx county grand jury yesterday charging extortion in the Lindbergh kidnap case.

Colonel Lindbergh made the trip from his Englewood, N.J., home accompanied by several members of the District Attorney's staff and rushed to the Bronx county building.

He entered unnoticed, and as a guise wore a pair of horn-rimmed glasses and a cap.

Whisked to the sixth foor of the building in a private elevator, Col. Lindbergh took his place in a line of detectives and the prisoner was brought in. The disguise served to prevent Hauptmann from knowing that Lindbergh was in the line, but further details of the meeting were not disclosed by Foley. The district Attorney said that the outcome of the meeting would not be made public.

10-Minute Visit.

The visit of Col. Lindbergh in the "line-up" at the district attorney's office lasted 10 minutes, from 9.50 to 10 a.m. It resulted from a wish expreaased by the flyer to see the prisoner. During the "line-up" Lindbergh did not utter a word, Charles Brodie, chief clerk in the district attorney's office, announced after Foley had made the meeting public. Foley also said that Lindbergh did not comment afterwards either to Foley or any member of the prosecutor's staff.

When the "line-up" was concluded, Col. Lindbergh left immediately, also unnoticed.

The line-up caused a delay in arraignment of the prisoner before County Judge Lester W. Patterson. Hauptmann appeared in a daze when he was led before the bench, wearing a wrinkled light grey suit, a white shirt with the collar open and no tie. He had a stubby growth of beard and said nothing during the brief proceeding, which required five or six minutes.

Pleads Not Guilty.

His plea of "not guilty" was voiced by his counsel, James W. Fawcett, after Judge Patterson had opened "the case of the State of New York against Bruno Richard Hauptman and his several aliases." The court announced that the arraignment was made on a bench warrant handed down yesterday at the same time that the Bronx County Grand Jury fyled its indictment.

District Attorney asked that the prisoner be held without bail, and Fawcett voiced the "not guilty" plea and asked to be heard. Defence counsel referred to a section of the penal law of the State, quoting from it that bail is permissable in crimes of extortion, and asked that bail be set at $5,000 "in the name of justice." Fawcett told the court that $5,000 was all that Hauptmann had been able to raise. During his plea Fawcett said that no case brought against Hauptmann in Germany had been proven to be a felony.

SILVER MARTS MAY COMBINE

New York Endeavours to Convince Canadians Two Exchanges Unnecessary.

OFFICIALS TO MEET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (CP)—Officials of the Toronto and Montreal Stock Exchanges were scheduled to meet here again to-day to consider consolidating the proposed silver future trading facilities in these centres.

They held a session yesterday with United States metal brokers to thresh out details of a possible merger. Later it was announced that opening of the Montreal silver market had been set back from Oct. 1 to Oct. 3.

New York silver trading interests have been trying lately to convince the Canadian exchanges of the need for linking their projected silver departments on the ground that there is not enough business to support two silver market in the Dominion. The New York voice has naturally been prominent in the plans for much of the business any new market would do would come from the United States where trading in silver futures has been suspended since the nationalization of the metal on August 9.

Montreal Better Site

In answer to the claims that Toronto was the logical place for the market because of its ticker service and more active stock market, Montreal interests declared that city a better site because of its geographical location and advantages as a shipping centre.

The suggestion had been put forward here that the market in silver futures should go to Toronto, with Montreal made an optional delivery centre and Montreal Silver Exchange members given associate memberships in the Toronto Stock Exchange. But it was contended that Montreal members preferred an outright membership in an exchange with a full voice in its affairs to an associate membership, allowing only trading privileges.

J. A. O'BRIEN FACES CHARGE

"that there was no evidence before Judge McGibbon that the money was converted to his own use by Mr. O'Brien.

Judge Boles said that the salient points were that the accused had received certain moneys, that he had not paid the money as directed, and the inference was that he had converted the money to his own use.

Mr. Carley replied that if Judge McGibbon was without jurisdiction Mr. O'Brien had a lawful excuse for not paying the money to any person.

Judge Boles said he wouldl make a note of the appeal action.

Judge Ruddy's Request.

Mr. Urquhart submitted a document dated May 18, 1934, signed by Judge Ruddy of Whitby as Judge of the Surrogate Court in Peterborough County requesting some person not named in the document to act as Judge in the Surrogate Court here.

Mr. Sherry said that no person was named in the document.

Mr. Urquhart—Who presented it?

Mr. Sherry—I can't tell you.

Witness said it was produced here on May 23 when Judge McGibbon was sitting here.

Mr. Carley objected that it should go in as an authority of jurisdiction.

Judge Ruddy's request referred specifically to the Sarah Menzies estate action in the words: "I request you in writing to act as Judge in the Surrogate Court."

Jas. H. Sparling, accountant of the Bank of Commerce, testified that there had been no payment of the sum of $4,565.62 received since July. The Bank of Commerce was authorized to receive deposits directed by the Surrogate court in this county.

S. B. Molton, accountant of the Bank of Montreal, said that Mrs. Menzies had an account in that bank which was closed on January 4, 1934, by J. A. O'Brien, administrator.

Mrs. Menzies died on March 17, 1933.

F. M. Lonergan, accountant of the Royal Bank, said that the account of Sarah Menzies had been transferred to the name of the estate of Sarah Menzies at the request of the administrator of the estate, Mr. O'Brien.

G. N. Gordon Examined.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., stated that he had acted for all the heirs of Sarah Menzies, and had obtained an order frrom Judge Huycke requiring Mr. O'Brien to file and pass estate accounts.

Judge Huycke died on May 8th, and Judge Robert Ruddy was officially appointed Judge of the Surrogate court in Peterboro, witness said.

Referring to the document signed by Judge Ruddy, Mr. Gordon explained that he had seen it signed by Judge Ruddy and had delivered it to Judge McGibbon.

"I saw it in Judge McGibbon's hands," Mr. Gordon said.

The next sitting of the Surrogate court in the estate case was on May 23, when Judge McGibbon of Lindsay presided for Judge Ruddy.

TWO SERGEANTS GET JAIL TERMS

wheel of the car and turned around in pursuit of the other car. It had stopped near Springbrook Farm and the officer said, the occupants of the car were drinking beer.

"I asked 'What are you trying to do?' and produced my warrant showing that I am a provincial police officer, and told the occupants of the car they were under arrest. Someone in the car replied 'Oh yeah'."

Later, the officer said he was talking to Sergeant Chard when Robert Lawrie struck him a severe blow from behind on the back of the head. "I fell to the pavement and after struggling up to grapple with Robert Lawrie, his brother Hugh took part in the assault. From that time on I took a good beating from the two brothers. Mrs. Hornick stopped two or three cars and finally had to walk half a mile to telephone for assistance. Constable Jack Naples of the city police was the first to arrive and later Provincial Constable David Silvester and other members of the city police arrived."

"Constable Joseph Wheeler had some difficulty in arresting Hugh Lawrie and Naples and I had considerable trouble in arresting Robert Lawrie who had run off into the swamp," the officer testified.

In answer to the Crown Attorney the officer said that while awaiting the arrival of the police the battle continued. At times, he said, he was on the pavement with the two Lawrie brothers piled on top of him, and at other times he was in the ditch. A blue suit the officer was wearing was practically ruined and his shirt was almost torn from his back.

"At the time the police arrived from Peterborough, I was feeling pretty weary," the officer confessed.

He paid tribute to the assistance he had received from Jack Downer of Peterborough and Otto Pue, storekeeper at Fraserville.

Cross-examining the Crown witness, Hugh Lawrie asked: "You admitted that I tried to help you?"

"Yes; you did after Pue and Downer appeared on the scene," the officer replied.

"I got a considerable beating myself trying to help you," Hugh Lawrie claimed.

He told the magistrate that the fight had been caused mainly because they had failed to realize that Hornick was a provincial officer. "He was in civilian clothes and the boys didn't realize who he was. He had only a little wee warrant," the accused complained.

Character evidence on behalf of the two accused was tendered by Major H. Drope, officer commanding "A" Company, Northumberland Regiment; Albert Bird, Cobourg contractor, and Edward Bennett of Port Hope, who described himself as an old professional boxer.

Each of the witnesses testified to the former good character of the accused, and Mr. Bennett pleaded with the magistrate to "give them a chance; they are only young men."

The Crown stated: "It would look as though the accused had absolutely disregarded the rights of the public." He urged. "Police officers must be protected in the execution of their duty," and demanded suitable punishment for the offences.

ENNISMORE WOMAN RE-ELECTED HEAD OF THE WOMEN'S LEAGUE

Most Successful Gathering Is Held in Ennismore Parish Hall.

GOOD ADDRESSES.

Mrs. Patrick Cadigan of Ennismore was unanimously re-elected to the office of Diocesan president of the Catholic Women's League, at the annual Diocesan convention, held yesterday afternoon in the parish hall at Ennismore.

It was a most successful gathering which took place in the big hall, with almost two hundred delegates present from many parts of the diocese, from as far north as Depot Harbor and Parry Sound, with representatives present from Grafton, Downeyville, Lindsay, Hastings, Kirkfield, Lakefield, Campbellford, Norwood, Kinmount, Douro and Peterborough, the local group numbering twenty ladies.

Following the afternoon business session, and preceding Benediction in St. Martin's Church, His Excellency, Bishop O'Connor of Peterborough, arrived, accompanied by the Rev. J. T. Finn, and spoke briefly to the ladies, commending the excellent work done by the League and wishing success to the gathering and its deliberations.

Other clergymen from the diocese, who were present included one of the guest speakers of the afternoon, the Rev. P. J. Galvin of Grafton, the Rt. Rev. Monsignor W. J. McColl of Lindsay, the Rev. V. G. McFadden of Downeyville, the Rev. J. J. O'Brien and the Rev. Dr. J. V. Masterson, of Peterborough, and the host, the Rev. J. V. McAuley of Ennismore, who expressed a cordial welcome to the ladies, which was echoed also by the president of Ennismore sub-division, Miss Anne O'Sullivan of Ennismore.

The Diocesan president, Mrs. P. Cadigan, was in the chair, and, in her presidential address, outlined very pleasingly the work of the sessions of the annual League convention of the Dominion, held this year at Victoria, B.C.

Good Manners

The Rev. P. J. Galvin, addressing the ladies at the banquet table in one of the thoughtfully eloquent speeches for which he is noted, spoke with especial emphasis of the great influence which may be exerted in various ways by the members of the Catholic Women's League, as mothers, teachers and leaders.

The importace of home influence as exerted by the parents, was emphasized. High ideals must be maintained asserted the speaker, who alluded to the lack of civility and the pleasing amenities of life, observed in the youth of the present day.

Children should be tutored in politeness, in high ideals and in unselfishness, as well as the little sacrifices which should be made by all for the good of the many. Good manners are sadly neglected in this day and generation.

The speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. J. E. Hoey of Campbellford, who was presented with a lovely bouquet of flowers by little Teresa Cavanagh at the conclusion of her interesting talk, stressed the efficacy, in dealing with the younger generation, of creating in their minds some interest outside of the ordinary routine of amusement, such as the cinema and the dance hall.

She exhorted the members of the League to strive to provide further incentives along this line, and complimented them on the advances already made by the organization, in giving prizes for oratorical contests and in furthering the cause of good reading. Speaking of the educational aspect of the work as one of the most important of the society's activities, she urged greater effort among the younger people who will be the leaders of the next generation.

Reports of Diocesan officers and convenors were presented, as follows: Miss Aileen Tunney of Grafton, corresponding secretary; Miss Molly Baker of Lindsay, treasurer; Mrs. Redmond Walsh of Norwood, recording secretary; Mrs. George O'Sullivan of Campbellford, on Education; Mrs. Myles Henry of Peterborough, on the Girl Guides; Mrs. James Black of Campbellford, on the League magazine; Mrs. Ethel McDonald of Kirkfield, on Social Welfare; Miss Emma Kennedy of Lakefield, on the Sisters of Service, and Miss Murray of Downeyville, on Child Welfare.

Brief Sub-division Reports

Five-minute reports on the work of the various branches were given by presidents and representatives of the sub-divisions, as follows: Mrs. George O'Sullivan of Campbellford, Mrs. Will Herlihey of Downeyville, Miss Evva Gifford of Ennismore, Miss Aileen Tunney of Grafton, Mrs. T. A. Walsh of Hastings, Mrs. Ethel McDonald of Kirkfield, Mrs. George Charlton of Lakefield, Miss Anna Murphy of Lindsay, Mrs. English of Norwood, Mrs. Derocher of Parry Sound, Mrs. Villeneuve of Depot Harbor, and Mrs. B. Law of Peterborough.

At the conclusion of the afternoon session, the members of the Ennismore League were gracious hostesses at a most enjoyable banquet at which the Rev. Father Galvin was guest speaker. Delicious viands were served at tables decorated in the League colors of yellow and white, with many beautiful flowers and lighted tapers. Mrs. Daniel Cavanagh was convenor of the committee in charge.

Pleasing musical numbers were provided by a vocal solo by Miss Helen Fraley, and a vocal trio by three girls, Anna Marie and Carmel Killen and Rita Crough.

The officers elected yesterday afternoon for the Diocesan personnel for the coming year, are as follows: Mrs. P. Cadigan of Ennismore, president; Mrs. Myles Henry of Peterborough, first vice president; Mrs. Bruce Law of Peterborough, second vice president; Miss Emma Kennery of Lakefield, third vice president; Mrs. Redmond Walsh of Norwood, recording secretary; Miss Aileen Tunney of Grafton, corresponding secretary; Miss Delphine Piggott of Downeyville, treasurer.

Ask Your Doctor First, Mother

Before You Give Your Child an Unknown Remedy to Take

According to any doctor you may ask, there is one duty every mother owes her child. The duty of asking him before giving her child an unknown remedy to take.

Yet, unthinkingly, every day mothers violate this simple rule. Take the advice of unqualified persons — instead of their doctors' — on remedies for their children.

If they knew what the scientists know, they would never take the chance.

Doctors Say PHILLIPS' For Your Child

When it comes to the very frequently used "milk of magnesia," authorities stand solidly together.

Ask your own doctor about this. For over 50 years, doctors, whose life work it is to study the safety and quality of drugs that go into the home, have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia for your child."

For "Phillips'" is the result of over a half century of continuous laboratory experiment. And is rated among the finest products that science knows in its field, the kind of product your child deserves.

So Always Say "Phillips'" when you buy. And see that your child gets what you ask for — Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Do this for your own peace of mind.

Also in Tablet Form: Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at all drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

CONVICT IS SHOT DOWN WHILE 9 PALS ESCAPE

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 27.— (A.P.)—One convict was shot to death and nine others escaped to-day from a truck carrying them to the site of a road building project in the rural section of Chatham county.

Five other prisoners on board the truck made no effort to flee. The 10 men overpowered a guard on the rear of the truck, took his pistol and shotgun and then seized another guard riding on the front of the truck.

Bandsman Dyer Given Efficiency Medal

Bandsman W. T. Dyer of Peterborough Rangers has been awarded the Canadian Efficiency Medal, according to announcement in current orders issued from military district headquarters at Kingston.

He has 33 years of volunteer military service to his credit, having originally enlisted in the 3rd Battalion Devonshire Regiment in England as a bugler boy at the age of 11 years. After coming to this country in 1912, Mr. Dyer became connected with the Rangers Band as a clarinet player, and his service with that unit has been unbroken, except for a period of service overseas with the 93rd Battalion during the period of the Great War.

District orders also contain the intimation that Captain G. H. Free, C Company, Northumberland Regiment, is detailed for duty as officer in charge of the Armouries at Campbellford, with effect from September 1, vice Major J. M. Bygott, V.D.

SHEFFIELD, England (C.P.).— The Sheffield City Council, for the fifth time in a few years, has voted against allowing Sunday golf on the municipal golf courses.

N. CAVAN FAIR WELL ATTENDED

Ernest Boyles Wins W. I. Prize as Best Soloist—Keen Competition.

PARADES ARE FEATURE.

CAVAN, Sept. 27 (Examiner Correspondence—North Cavan Rural Fair at Ida on Saturday was well attended. Entries were numerous and of splendid quality.

On the live stock section, there were two lambs, five beef calves and five dairy calves but no colts. A very attractive feature of the fair was the school parades and the singing, both choruses and solos.

Great credit is due Mr. Chenhall for the marked progress made in singing during the year that he has been in charge.

Two special prizes were competed for this year. One given by the Hamilton Mutual Fire Insurance Co. for the best two speeches "Fire Prevention," won by Gwenyth Staples and Mary Bradburn and one offered by Cavan Women's Institute for the best solos. The latter prizes were won first by Ernest Boyles, second by Bee Fallis, third Eddie Visce, fourth Edith Graham, fifth Bernice Richards and sixth Edith Scott.

How do You tell the Difference?

■ Solid silver and silver plate may look very much alike. Pure soap and impure soap may also look very much alike.

■ Yet it's easy to tell the difference if you look for the "sterling" mark on silver and the "purity" mark on the soap. But this "purity" mark is not on every soap. Sunlight is the only soap which is so carefully made from the purest ingredients that it is stamped: "Guaranteed Pure."

■ Being all pure soap, Sunlight dissolves readily. It forms plenty of suds so quickly . . . lasting suds which cleanse most economically. They wash more clothes beautifully clean without harm to fabric or colours . . . and Sunlight's pure, gentle suds never could roughen or hurt your hands.

■ To the women who have once used Sunlight, other soaps are never really satisfactory. Look for the $5,000 Sunlight Guarantee of Purity on every carton. It means real economy—longer life to your clothes—protection to your hands.

freshment stands extended the line.

George Tice of Belleville, starter of the horse races, remarked that they were the best he had ever seen at the smaller shows. The track was fast with more horses than were needed to fill the card, and the long afternoon passed off without a mishap of any kind.

Special mention should be made of the quality of the livestock, particularly in the dairy cattle and heavy draught horse classes. They alone more than justified this year's exhibition, and all the other displays supplement the credit which is due the Board of Directors. Campbellford is the centre of an excellent farming district, and even a glance over the judging of the many classes of livestock, demonstrated that the Seymour countryside can compete successfully with breeders from other parts of the district.

Some of the Judges

The veteran Bob' Holtby of Port Perry judged the Holstein and grade cattle; Brodie Ness of Kingston was in charge of the Ayrshires and Jerseys; Mark Duff of Myrtle handed out the ribbons in the heavy horse section, and A. Lewis of Port Hope was the judge of the light horses. Andrew Knox of Asphodel decided the winners of the beef cattle; H. M. Crosby of Markham had a big job on his hands in disposing of the poultry prize money; and Vivian Milburn and W. M. Gordon were in charge of the swine classes.

Foal Club Competition

Thirteen boys in the Campbellford district took part in the Northumberland Foal Club competition conducted jointly by the Ontario Horse Breeders' Association, the Ontario Department of Agriculture, and the Fair Board. The boys were required to have looked after their entries for two months and fitted them for showing. The first six awards were: 1st, James Sanders; 2, M. Melklejohn; 3, Stewart Milne; 4, Harry Trunks; 5, Jack Naylor; 6, W. Bateson.

Four Horse Races

Although only three races were carded for the afternoon's track program, it was extended to four when twelve horses answered the call for the 2.26 class, which was run off in two divisions.

The three races were disposed of in twelve heats, providing plenty of action for the hundreds of fans who lined the rails and occupied seats in the stand. George Tice of Belleville didn't waste any time in getting the drivers out to the track, and the last heat was started about 4.30, which may have been some kind of record in cleaning up a big card.

Louie Bennett of Port Hope took first and second money in the free-for-all with 'Walter Stone' and 'Ginger Grattan'. Ed Henry of Picton turned up with the winner of the 2.18 in 'Cigarette'; 'Rio Dale' owned by Franklin of Roseneath won the first money in the front half of the 2.26 class, and Gifford of Madoc with 'Hal Winger' drew the big end of the purse in the second division.

MILLBROOK Y.P.S. HAS LIVELY MEET

New Convenor, Gordon Muspratt, Conducts 'Citizenship Night.'

MILLBROOK, Sept. 27 (Examiner Correspondence)—The citizenship committee was responsible for the program at this week's meeting of the Young Peoples' Society of St. Andrew's Church, the newly appointed convenor, Gordon Muspratt, taking charge and fulfilling his duties in a most efficient manner.

The attendance was large, and the program inspirational, the theme of the worship period being based on Matthew 22: 34-40, the two great commandments, Dorothy McDowell presiding at the piano. The evening's study was on "What is the meaning of a Christian Citizen?" and assisting the leader in its development were Mary Burnham, Marjorie McDowell and Ken Kidd.

A duet by Marjorie and Beatrice McDowell, and the closing prayer was followed by the recreational period, in charge of the president, E. B. Dawson.

Next Monday night, October 1, the literary committee will be responsible for the program. Miss Lakefield young people will be invited as guests of the local society —a return invitation since the Millbrook Y.P.S. enjoyed a delightful evening as guests of the Lakefield folk last spring.

The young peoples' society increases in interest and attendance constantly, and is becoming an active force for righteousness in the community. The annual Y.P.S. convention for the Peterborough Presbytery will be held in the city of Peterborough on October 12, instead of at Havelock as at first intended. Afternoon and evening sessions, and a good program promised.

Pile Sufferers
Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why external remedies as applied to sore and painful Piles are only local in effect and do not reach to true circulatory cause?

Why Piles may "come back" even after a first removal by cutting?

Do you know the cause of Piles is internal?

That there is congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the veins flabby, the parts lifeless?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy for itching, bleeding or protruding Piles discovered by Dr. Leonhardt, known as HEM-ROID and sold with your money back if not joyfully satisfied with the help one bottle gives?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by relieving congested circulation and helps to heal and restore the sore surfaces.

HEM-ROID is so successful in even the most stubborn cases that Mcdermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store and other good druggists advise every sufferer to get a bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets to-day—take them as directed—then if not completely satisfied with results—your money back.

TEMPERANCE WORKERS PLANNING NATIONAL STUDY COURSE IN CITY

Conducted by Religious Educational Council and the W. C. T. U.

SEPTEMBER MEETING.

The first meeting of the Autumn season of the W.C.T.U., was held yesterday afternoon in the Green Room at the Y.W.C.A., with a very good attendance.

The president, Mrs. J. H. Rowe occupied the chair, while, in Miss Might's absence, Mrs. Manning acted as secretary pro tem. The meeting opened with the watchword "Forward," which all joined heartily in singing, with Mrs. Tyler at the piano. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Rowe, followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison.

The scripture lesson, chosen from the 65th and the 66th Psalms, was read by Mrs. E. Wand and Mrs. Tyler led in earnest prayer.

The theme for the day's study was "The National Study Course for Temperance in Sunday Schools" and was stressed from all standpoints. Especially was this true in the clip-sheet exercise, which was very interesting as it elucidated the objectives of the course with some very pertinent information to superintendents, teachers, students, parents and examiners in connection.

This is the seventh National Study course conducted by the Religious Educational Council of Canada and the W.C.T.U., and will commence on October 7, continuing each Sunday until November 4. The lessons will all be published in the Sunday School papers of the Presbyterian and United Church as well as The Canadian Baptist and The Northern Messenger. Many local newspapers throughout the province have shown their interest by printing the lessons each week, this making them available to many who might not get them in any other way. The outline of the necessary literature for the course was given in the clip-sheet and sounded very enticing. A catalogue will be sent free upon request from the Depository, 76 Byron Avenue, London, Ont. Superintendents of Sunday Schools are asked to announce the course on Rally Day. The course includes five lesson in all for both Juniors and Intermediate-Seniors, while many of the Seniors are taking the course in Leadership Training. A suggestion was made that all public school teachers be furnished with the material for this contest.

To assist in defraying the expense of literature and pledge cards, a special offering was announced for the October meeting of the W.C.T.U. That this course will be a success in both urban and rural Sunday schools is an assured fact if those in responsible offices will co-operate.

Following up the same subject a report was given by the local superintendent of temperance in Sunday Schools, Mrs. J. Fairbrother, who has entered into the work in real earnest. She emphasised the importance of the work, and reported having consulted fourteen superintendents of Sunday schools, and found each one very willing to co-operate in every way possible. She said it was conceded that the best way to promote temperance, is to teach it while children are young and impressionable, of the dangers that surround them and urge the signing of pledge cards. She found the methods of teaching temperance to vary in the different denominations, but she highly commended that of the Salvation Army who have the temperance pledge right on their membership cards. A good plan for all churches to follow. She concluded her report with the words of the Master, Who said: "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these—ye have done it unto Me."

A pleasing change in the program was introduced by little June Wallace, who contributed two very entertaining recitations of a humorous character.

In a very earnest and informal talk, Mrs. Throop conducted a round table conference, when plans of work were discussed. The great need just now is for leadership and Mrs. Throop emphasised the value of prayer. We need leaders like Frances E. Willard. Nothwithstanding the repeal of the 18th Amendment, she is still honored and revered in the United States. A statue stands to her memory at the Capital in Washington and a bust and tablet in the Hall of Fame in New York.

Temperance, she said, is essentially a work by women for women. We must rouse public opinion to our cause by talking. The principles are, "Home protection from war, impurity and alcohol." Our goal is to promote voluntary total abstinence and our aim is prohibition. We do not believe any government has the right to derive revenue from the vices of its people. Our great battle just now is against "moderate" drinking. There is no moderation in the use of that which is harmful. She urged that each member strive to strengthen our organization at every point. Every department must contribute to the building up of public opinion and when we have brought our young people to Christ, we will have no need to worry. In closing, Mrs. Throop read some excerpts from a letter received from Mrs. Haskett, Ottawa, which carried a strong challenge to every member of the W.C.T.U. She deplored the present conditions, and said "The gone-forever bar is with us again in a new and more deadly guise," and stressed the necessity for increased fervor on the part of every member. Alcoholic poison is being sold to our people in nearly every hamlet across the province. Under the new act the flood of beer is beyond control. "Hotel" means any house or tourist camp with five rooms."

A brief business session ratified the appointment of Mesdames Wand and Tyler as delegates to the Provincial annual convention, to be held in Stratford early in October. The Mizpah Benediction brought this very inspiring meeting to a conclusion.

FIRST DEANERY MEETING OF W. A. AT LAKEFIELD IS SUCCESSFUL

Large Gathering of Women Hear Inspiring Addresses by Outstanding Speakers.

EXPLAIN THE WORK.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 27 (Examiner Correspondence).—For the first time in history the Deanery meeting of the Women's Auxiliary was held in St. John the Baptist Church. There was a large attendance, with the session opening with the celebration of Holy Communion, with Rev. W. J. Creighton as celebrant and Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, Rev. G. J. Bousfield and Rev. E. W. G. Worrell assisting.

Rev. Mr. Worrell, of Norwood, was the preacher at the Communion service. Lunch was later served in the Town Hall by the local branch of the W.A. Miss Plant, of Hastings, the Deanery officer, occupied the chair in the afternoon session. Miss Florence Atwood was secretary of the meeting. Mrs. Ewing, of Toronto, a diocesan officer, displayed the Honan model, a lovely piece of work. R. F. Brown, a medical missionary, also addressed the meeting, describing the great work done at the Honan hospital, and paid a fine tribute to the loyal support of the Women's Auxiliary.

More leadership of 'teen-age girls was urged by Mrs. Wagland, superintendent of girls' work on the Diocesan Board. She outlined the splendid programs that have been prepared for girls' Christian endeavour.

Work in North.

Rev. Horace Ashmore of Hudson Bay Junction, and a former Peterborough boy, gave an address which could not fail to touch every heart for the work among the white settlers. In 1874 the Diocese of Saskatchewan was wholly missionary, and the first bishop, John MacLean, was consecrated in England. The diocese, which covered thousands of miles, has since been divided and such men as Bishop Pinkham and Bishop Newman, worked as pioneers in that land of great spaces. Bishop Lloyd, the great apostle of white settlers, has done a tremendous amount for that work. The work among the Indians has been separated from the white work as a measure to give both a better opportunity. Bishop Newman went to England and got sixty new men to come out to the mission field of Saskatchewan.

Small wooden churches have sprung up and tiny rectories beside them, and these provide places of worship for a portion of these people. The speaker spoke of the encouragement received from generous gifts from All Saints' and St. Luke's, Peterborough. The W. A. not only preach but practice and show a practical Christianity. If it was not for the women of the Church it would be terribly hard for the missionary to carry on, and do not forget help is needed as it never was before. Some of the missionaries receive their salary from the parishes in foodstuffs which are taken at store prices and credit given. The missionary is not in the work for the money but for the gospel of Jesus Christ. He closed with an appeal for the prayers and continued support of the missionaries and the settlers in their primitive log shacks.

Reports were given by representatives from Apsley, Campbellford, Havelock, Lakefield, St. Mark's, Otonabee; All Saints' and St. John's, with their evening and afternoon branches; St. George's and St. Luke's, all of Peterborough; Roseneath and Young's Point. These reports showed that the woman's work is a powerful factor in each of these parishes, and while in most cases the depression has affected both membership and finances, the banner still flies from the mast head and the W.A. is going strong.

Mrs. B. M. Purdy, a nurse in Dr. Grenfell's hospital at Harrington, on the Labrador coast, told of the W.A. which is flourishing in that outpost of the church. There are about 27 families, and of these 22 are Anglican and there is a W.A. of 19 members.

The hospital is now denominational, and has 15 beds and one baby cot, and for the past two years an X-ray machine, which helps so much. There are two other branches of the W.A. on the Labrador coast. The doctor for the hospital makes two trips along the coast in the boat, "The Northern Messenger," in the summer season, and in the winter by dog team. Mrs. Purdy returns in a few weeks for another three years' service, and looks forward on her return to meeting the ladies of the Deanery again on her return.

Miss Plant, the Deanery officer, gave her report in brief as the hour was late.

15 Branches.

There are 15 branches with 304 members and $611.75 has been given to the senior pledges. With the members standing in reverent silence, the names of those who had passed during the year were read. The reports were adopted on motion of Mrs. Hughes and Mrs. Connelly, and the offering at the Deanery voted to the Diocesan deficit on motion of Mrs. Creighton and Mrs. Floyd. Mrs. Dawson invited the Deanery to meet next year at All Saints', Peterborough.

Miss Plant was re-elected as Deanery officer for the coming year.

Mrs. Hughes moved a vote of thanks to the rector and wardens of Lakefield, Mr. Worrell and the other clergy and all the speakers. Mrs. King seconded the motion.

On motion of Mesdames Archer and Dawson, the hearty thanks of the Deanery were given the Lakefield W.A. for their delicious lunch.

The Deanery closed, and the women scattered to their homes, all better for the gathering together with a common purpose, and as the strains of that glorious W.A. hymn rose high "The Love of Christ Constraineth," the women felt a new inspiration and a renewal of their zeal in the Lord's work.
